Fall 1992 - 1993
You may be wondering about this "NEW" magazine you're receiving. Actually it's not new, but it is improved, we think. We hope you'll think so, too, once you've had some time to spend with the publication.

Cal State magazine replaces the Panorama, the tri-annual publication that has brought you news and features about alumni and faculty.

Some research we conducted last spring with members of our magazine audience (alumni, donors, faculty and parents) helped us see how we could do a better job of informing you of the dynamic developments happening at this booming campus.

Among the changes you'll find inside are focuses on the news of the individual academic schools. Our graduates feel the most connected to their fields of interest and want to know how Cal State's schools are contributing to new knowledge through faculty research and professional activities.

Your colleagues who took part in our research told us, too, that the magazine could do a better job of publicizing the growth and development on campus, with all the new construction that is underway. You should be able to catch up on these latest developments through the Cal State Update pages. Learn also about how individuals and corporations are helping to make this university the best it can be through financial contributions publicized in the Gift Rap department.

Some of our readers' favorite sections in the Panorama, such as the Alumni Notes and Coyote Sports pages, remain in Cal State magazine. Our endeavor is to bring you the news you want to know and make it easy to find. That's also the philosophy behind the change in the name of the magazine... there should no longer be any doubt about what this publication is about, who it's for and why you're receiving it.

But we don't break with tradition without a lot of thought and consultation. If you have a strong reaction to this new magazine, the editorial staff would like to hear from you. We invite you to send your comments to my attention.

"We make a living by what we get,
we make a life by what we give."
• WINSTON CHURCHILL

As I reflect on the past year and review the nearly 3500 names listed in this progress report, I am deeply gratified by the strong support provided to Cal State, San Bernardino by alumni, parents, faculty and staff, special friends and businesses throughout the region. With our annual Honor Roll of Donors, we are able to say thank you and to acknowledge your generous contributions publicly.

Encouraged by the growing support and mindful of the opportunities available for university-community partnerships, we have chosen this year to launch our first major fund raising campaign, Partnership 2000: Building on the Cornerstone of Knowledge.

In this era of constrained revenues and over-committed state budgets, Cal State, San Bernardino can no longer count on tax dollars to fund adequately its many necessary programs and services. Donated assistance from local business and industry, as well as individuals, is necessary to ensure continued quality instruction, meaningful student development and adequate facilities at the campus. Citizens of the region are counting on the university to play a leadership role in meeting the needs of a growing and increasingly diverse population. The university, in turn, is counting on partnerships with businesses and individuals to respond to those needs.

The university's most formative years are at hand: By the end of this decade, the campus's physical space for classes and community programs will almost double. The university's academic programs will heighten in sophistication with the addition of 16 degree programs, two-thirds of which will be at the graduate level. Nearly 20,000 students will be enrolled in the university at the dawn of the new century.

Your involvement now in the life of the university will make a noticeable difference in the character and quality of Cal State, San Bernardino in the 21st century. Opportunities abound, as never before, for you to influence the development of the university and its areas of distinction. The effectiveness of Cal State's ability to contribute toward the quality of life in the Inland Valley depends upon your investment and commitment today.

Whether your devotion is to the arts or sciences, the education of future leaders, business people or teachers, or to the development of research that builds upon the cornerstone of knowledge, your charitable desires may find a home here at the university.

In remarks to the volunteer leaders gathered for the Partnership 2000 kick-off in May, Jim Kennedy, president of the Cal State, San Bernardino Alumni Association, called on all of us to work together to make Cal State an even better university than it is today. He expressed his conviction that, "Cal State can upgrade and uplift this region like no other institution can." I share Jim's belief in what Cal State can do, especially in partnership with all of you.

These are exciting times, indeed. I invite you to help us dream the dreams of the 21st century and continue your support for Cal State, San Bernardino as we move forward with Partnership 2000: Building on the Cornerstone of Knowledge.

BUSINESS, INFORMATION SCIENCES BUILDING NAMED JACK H. BROWN HALL

A $1 million gift to the university made personally by Jack H. Brown (left), president and chief executive officer of Stater Bros. Markets, will be applied toward the enhancement of the business and information sciences building currently under construction on campus. Targeted for completion a year from this November, the 80,000-square-foot edifice will be dubbed Jack H. Brown Hall in honor of Brown’s generosity, the largest gift to date that the university has received. President Anthony Evans (right) commented on the momentous occasion in July.

LIBRARY, STUDENT UNION EXPANSIONS ADD TO CONSTRUCTION ACTIVITY

If you haven’t been on campus for more than a year and you plan on coming back soon, bring your hard hat. The long-awaited expansion of the Student Union (top) broke ground in February and the Pfau Library addition (bottom) got underway in April. The Union is expected to be completed by May of next year while the library construction will finish in the spring of 1994.

PROGRAMS, ENROLLMENT CONTINUE TO INCREASE AT COACHELLA VALLEY CENTER

A new emphasis in small business management within the existing business administration degree program is being added to the nearly 60 classes available through the university’s satellite campus in Palm Desert this fall. Having just marked its fifth anniversary serving students in the Coachella Valley, the Cal State center’s roster has swelled from an initial 80 students in the fall of 1986 to more than 700 during the past year.

BAJA UNIVERSITY PARTNERSHIP PROMISES ENRICHING EXPERIENCES

San Bernardino’s sister city relationship with Mexicali was strengthened in April when Cal State signed an agreement with the University of Baja California to facilitate educational and cultural exchanges between the two institutions. The universities share interests in education, business, economics, urban planning and geothermal energy.

GRADUATE TRAINING AVAILABLE FOR URBAN PLANNERS

Mid-level planners seeking to advance their professional skills will benefit from a master’s degree in urban planning being added to the curriculum this fall. The new interdisciplinary program is the only one of its kind offered in the Inland Empire, explains Dr. James Mulvihill (Geography). The degree’s offerings, including development finance and land management, are “hands-on courses that have direct application to the day-to-day work of urban planners,” he remarks.

“Given the great amount of undeveloped mountain and desert areas within the Inland Empire, this program seeks to provide students with a solid understanding and appreciation of the impact of urban activities on these fragile environments,” Mulvihill adds.

UNIVERSITY BECOMES NATIONAL EXAMPLE OF PARTNERSHIP

Lauded as the national example of “Creating Professional Development School Partnerships between Universities and Public Schools,” Cal State’s alliance with the Hillside-University Demonstration School in San Bernardino earned CSUSB a Christa McAuliffe Showcase for Excellence award June 15. At a Washington, D.C. ceremony, President Anthony Evans accepted the honor, which was named after the teacher who perished in the Challenger space shuttle disaster.
Shel Bockman (Management) and Barbara Sirotnik (Information and Decision Sciences) conducted several studies this year, including a needs and satisfaction survey of brokers reacting to services provided by Century 21, and a study of the shopping habits of Twentynine Palms residents. Another project of theirs is a state-of-the-art data repository for the Coachella Valley that compiled a labor force and demographic profile of the region.

How is growth management in California affected by state and regional policymakers? Guenther Kress (Public Administration) collaborated with Randi Miller (Sociology) on such an evaluation, which resulted in some specific recommendations for Inland Empire civic agencies.

School Dean David Porter received the only honorable mention awarded by the James C. Webb Award competition as part of the American Society for Public Administration conference.

Your Executive Image, written by Victoria Seitz (Marketing), hit the bookstores last spring, giving jobhunters tips on self-marketing, body language, etiquette and dress. Seitz also was awarded a research grant for her study of the Direct Response Advertising of Fashion Products in the U.S. and Foreign Markets.

The nation's largest juvenile-adult correctional facility, the Herman G. Stark Youth Training School in Chino, has benefitted from the work of Clifford Young (Public Administration). He set up an automated management information system that may serve as a model for other similar computer-ization needs throughout the country. Currently, New Jersey is the only state, other than California, to attempt automation of correctional facilities. Young's work has earned him nearly $160,000 in grant monies from the California Youth Authority in the past year.

Ken Thygerson (Accounting and Finance) devised A Model for Measuring Retail Depository Branch Profitability in an article for the fall 1991 issue of the Journal of Retail Banking.

Friendly Campus Key for Kimiko

"The growth occurring here is bound to bring more opportunities to the students," believes sophomore Kimiko Glenn. Despite all the new developments on campus, Kimiko, a marketing major, says the campus is still small enough to provide students with individual attention. "The professors here are very supportive and they care about and establish friendships with the students." Kimiko also was attracted to the campus's "relaxed atmosphere and friendly people" as well as the excellent reputation of the Marketing Dept.
The training of school board candidates is the aim of Billie Goode Blair (Advanced Studies), who was awarded a Danforth Foundation Grant of approximately $26,000 to begin such a program.

A $205,000 grant from the federal government was the largest amount awarded this year under the Educational Personnel Training Program of the Office of Bilingual Education and Minority Language Affairs. Lynne Diaz-Rico (Elementary and Bilingual Education) will use the funds to continue her Bilingual Educators' Career Advancement Program, which boasts the largest number of graduate students in the CSU system.

Changing Attitudes Toward People with Disabilities was the focus of the collaborative efforts of Joanne Eichinger (Advanced Studies), Terry Rizzo (Physical Education) and Barbara Sirotnik (Information and Decision Sciences), who published the article in Teacher Education and Special Education.

An attempt to set national teaching standards and develop a universal assessment tool for teacher certification is being undertaken by Barbara Flores (Advanced Studies), who has been appointed to a nationwide team of educators working on these influential issues.

The critical need to train special education intern teachers over the next several years received a $406,000 boost from the federal government with a grant to Marjorie McCabe (Advanced Studies). McCabe and colleague Dwight Sweeney (Advanced Studies) also were busy looking at stress factors affecting teachers of behavior-disordered pupils this year, presenting the results at the annual convention for the Council for Exceptional Children.

Teaching Thinking and Literacy, Gary Negin's (Elementary and Bilingual Education) new book, breaks new ground in the field of literacy due to its philosophical approach and its interesting descriptions of reading, writing, study strategies and teaching.

Strategies for involving students in the evaluation of their reading and writing difficulties were developed by Patricia Tefli-Cousin (Advanced Studies) and presented to the National Council of Teachers of English Conference.

In Memoriam

Kathy O'Brien

Shortly before her death in August, Kathy O'Brien (Advanced Studies) was honored with a Teacher Leader Award for her work in promoting the internationally acclaimed Reading Recovery program that will be headquartered at Cal State this upcoming year. Her leadership was key to bringing the first-grade reading intervention program to California and she will be missed greatly.

Student Profile

Support Helps Student Flourish

When deciding which university would best prepare her to become a teacher of English literature, Yvonne Atkinson faced many choices. "I have a learning disability that could present some difficulties if the school I chose were not devoted to providing a great education for everyone. Cal State has great support groups and programs—a lot of people." She finds the professors approachable and challenging. "They make you think for yourself because most of the classes aren't lecture based." A professional storyteller, Yvonne won an award for a story she wrote for the Pacific Review, the university's literary journal published annually, and she's been on the Dean's List and captured a pre-doctorate scholar award.
One of the top five plays in the nation, Cal State’s original theatrical work “A Warring Absence” was selected from more than 800 college productions in the country for performance at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. last spring. Playwright Jody Duncan (left) costarred with fellow alumnus Doug Buckhout.

Foreign Languages Professor Ruth Burke was among a select group of 20 chosen to take part in a summer institute to develop prototypes for multimedia that can be used in language acquisition projects.

Cowan (Psychology) the Outstanding Professor Award bestowed by the San Bernardino Area Chamber of Commerce.

Cheryl Harris (Communication Studies) served as a judge for two film and video festivals in Washington, D.C. and San Diego. She was honored with the top paper award at the Broadcast Education Association Conference for her work on The Raters Berated: A History of the Congressional Investigation of Audience Measurement Techniques in Television Broadcasting. Currently, Harris is in the midst of researching the debate on fetal rights issues in the public media.

Richard Johnston (Art) has been selected to design a sculpture landscape for the library at Dixie College and two sculptural gardens for the State Hospital in Utah.

Having completed the fourth and final volume of his ongoing research on the work of 14th century composer Johannes Galliculus, Art Moorefield (Music) also has published a three-volume Study Guide for Music History. Moorefield and Music Dept. colleagues Ed Bostley and Larry McFatter also formed a Faculty Music Trio this year, offering concert performances throughout the Inland Empire.

STUDENT PROFILE

Native Heritage Defines Grad’s Interest

Named the university’s outstanding graduate student in June, Julie LaMay Abner begins work on a Ph.D. in literature at the University of California, Riverside, this fall. Already teaching at Cal State and Riverside Community College, Julie credits Cal State English Professor Rodney Simard for helping her realize her goals of becoming an English instructor: "He taught me how to be a professor and a professional....My experience here at CSUSB has gone way beyond what I’ve learned in the classroom." Currently in the process of compiling an anthology of traditional and contemporary American Indian literature, Julie says her Native American "heritage is a sacred part of my life. I try to promote inner peace and hand down Native American traditions to my students and my family: I try to encourage the belief that everyone is important and has a special contribution to bring to society."
These kidney cells magnified 1500 times by an electron microscope at CSUSB are an example of the capabilities afforded by the university’s development of a comprehensive Electron Microscope and Image Analysis Center.

Tracing human birth defects back to a molecular level by analyzing proteins in amniotic fluid, Nicole Bournias-Vardiabasis (Biology) continues to build upon her research that has been lauded for being an alternative to animal testing. Previously, she was using fruit fly cells in her work. This past year she received a $16,000 renewal grant from the Johns Hopkins Center for Alternatives to Animal Testing and she also received $23,000 from the Demeter Fund.

A $100,000 matching grant from IBM enabled Arturo Concepcion, Kay Zemoudeh and Owen Murphy (Computer Science) to establish a laboratory for courses in computer architecture. With the lab, students can design computer hardware systems and test them with the aid of software simulation, which is a more cost-effective teaching method compared to purchasing the necessary hardware.

"Learning for the sake of learning," is how Leo Connolly (Physics) describes the motivation of 38 high school students who collaborated on research during the Summer Science Program in Ojai. Connolly has directed the part-time academic program for the past eight years. Supported by funds from the National Science Foundation, the highly concentrated program integrates math, physics, astronomy and computer science. Although there are no grades or college credits for the students to gain, "these students are changed at the very end of the program," Connolly submits, "and they end up at some of the best colleges in the nation."

Women’s perceptions of the menopausal experience have been under the scrutiny of Sandra Cross and Joseph Lovett (Health Science and Human Ecology), who have presented their findings to the National Council on Aging and the Association for Women in Psychology.

Discovering unknown "uniqueness results" in trigonometric series, Chris Freiling and Dan Rinne (Mathematics) have "proved uniqueness for rectangular convergence for any number of dimensions," Freiling explains. The question, "Can a function have more than one trigonometric series that converges to it?" was solved for one dimension in 1870, and in two dimensions (circular and rectangular convergence) in the 1950s and 70s. Now, with the help of a $50,000 grant from the National Science Foundation, the Cal State math colleagues will continue to pursue the question of uniqueness for the still unknown square convergence in two dimensions and for circular in three dimensions.

The ongoing research into the basic properties of ferroelectrics by Tim Usher (Physics) received a $13,000 boost from the Research Corp. this year. Usher has been able to collaborate with several students and at least one high school teacher in his research, which has the potential to expand the memory capabilities of computer technology, among other applications.

The summertime earthquakes in San Bernardino County gave Sally McGill (Geological Sciences) untold opportunities to examine earth displacement. She was among "an army" of researchers who set about mapping the 70 kilometer rupture caused by the Landers earthquake on June 28. Earlier this year, she received a $5,000 grant to study a San Bernardino segment of the San Andreas fault and she continued her research on the Garlock Fault, which stretches 150 miles from the Tejon Pass of Interstate 5 east to Death Valley.

A look at the Kurdish Refugee Resettlement: An Environmental Health Perspective was the focus of a paper that Gary Shook (Health Science) presented to the California Environmental Health Association Update Conference. His work on this topic was commended by the International Rescue Committee, which provided medical services to the Kurds.

Usher has been able to collaborate with several students and at least one high school teacher in his research, which has the potential to expand the memory capabilities of computer technology, among other applications.

Student Profile

Outstanding Undergrad Pursues AIDS Research

Tae-Wook Chun, honored as Cal State’s outstanding undergraduate student in June, begins doctoral work in immunology and virology at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine this fall on a full scholarship. He wants to join the army of researchers searching for a cure for AIDS. The 24-year-old Korean native became a member of the Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society in his junior year at Cal State, where he says his experience as a research/laboratory assistant has been invaluable. "For students seeking more in-depth studies beyond the normal course requirements, the faculty are willing to encourage students and to support them. I think we have excellent faculty members here."

STUDENT PROFILE
Prison disciplinary processes as they relate to prison overcrowding is just one topic that husband-and-wife team Marilyn McShane and Frank Williams (Criminal Justice) took a look at this year. They examined (along with colleague David Shichor) employee turnover in corrections, and published an article on Making the Police Proactive: An Impossible Task for Improbable Reasons in Police Forum.

What influences slow growth initiatives? Is it population density, the housing market, race or politics? Jerrell Richer (Economics) is doing a comparative analysis with data from urbanized cities to propose explanations for growth control measures in California.

Nancy Rose (Economics) received the Frank R. Breul Memorial Prize in social welfare history for her article, Work Relief in the 1930s and the Origins of the Social Security Act.

Earthquake preparedness in San Bernardino and nearby Southern California communities has been studied over a five-year period by Ted McDowell (Geography) and his students. Results show that public knowledge of seismic hazards has improved over the past decade and that most of those surveyed recognize that they will be responsible for their own survival during and immediately following a catastrophic quake.

Cultural practices affecting women’s work and health in Sudan will be studied in greater depth by Ellen Gruenbaum (Anthropology) with a $3,000 grant that will help her to return to that country on sabbatical leave.

A $150,000 grant from the state Department of Health Services for Action to Control Tobacco was awarded to Elizabeth Klonoff and Jan Fritz of the university’s Behavioral Health Institute.

The redirection of military personnel to “socially useful” economic endeavors is being studied by Nancy Mary (Social Work), who is interested in the extent to which social workers are involved in economic conversion projects throughout the U.S.

Economies Major Appreciates Diversity

One of the most attractive aspects of Cal State, San Bernardino, according to Brian Lees, is “the wide variety of interesting courses offered not only in the ‘core’ classes, but also in the general education requirements.” Brian, a sophomore majoring in economics, says CSUSB is a “fantastic campus with a lot to offer. Cal State draws from such a diverse, large area. I’ve met lots of interesting people from all over Southern California who are usually cheerful and have a positive outlook.” Brian would like to become an economics analyst with a major financial firm and he feels confident that with his education at Cal State, he’ll “enter the business world fully prepared.”

Swimming Shelved in Budgetary Cutback

Men's and women's swimming have been suspended from the Cal State athletics program as a budget reduction measure for 1992-93, reports David Suenram, athletic director. The cut will have little impact on returning students, because only one or two swim team members were scheduled to return this year.

By dropping the swimming programs, the athletic department will save about $15,000 of state money, and $4,000 in scholarship money will become available for other sports.

With the discontinuation, Cal State will field eight sports, four for men and four for women, which is the minimum number required for membership in the NCAA at the Division II level.

Spellacy Establishes Athletic Scholarship

Kim Hansen, returning women's basketball forward, is the first student-athlete to benefit from a new scholarship established by Freddie Spellacy, owner of San Bernardino-based real estate franchise, Spellacy and Associates. The $1500 annual athletic scholarship will benefit women's basketball for each of the next five years, notes David Suenram, athletic director.

Although she did not designate her gift for a particular sport, Spellacy believes she's made a good investment. "I've always been excited about the fact that we have the university and its influence here in the community," she says. "I felt compelled to give something back."

Kim Hansen is the first recipient of an athletic scholarship established by Freddie Spellacy.

California State University, San Bernardino is proud of the interest and support of each individual and organization whose name appears in this Honor Roll of Donors. Every effort has been made to properly acknowledge all gifts made to the university in 1991-92, but in a listing of this size inadvertent oversights may have occurred. If we have failed to recognize anyone, we apologize and ask you to please notify the office of development so that we may correct our records. Any corrections to the Honor Roll will appear in the winter issue of Cal State, San Bernardino.

ATHLETICS ARENA NAMED IN HONOR OF PARENTS OF NICHOLAS COUSSOULIS

A 5,000-seat indoor facility for the future Health and Physical Education Complex at Cal State will be named in honor of the parents of a long-time university supporter, Nicholas Coussoulis. The James and Arianthi Coussoulis Arena is made possible by a $500,000 contribution from their son, who is a 1975 graduate of Cal State. Founder and president of the Coussoulis Development Co. in San Bernardino, "Nick has earned a place as one of the leading business people and philanthropists of our region," says Vice President Judith Rymer (University Relations). A long-time friend of higher education, Coussoulis has served on the Board of Councillors for Cal State's School of Business and Public Administration since 1983, and in 1991 he was appointed to a second four-year term on the University Advisory Board. For years he has provided scholarships for underrepresented minority students at Cal State.

UNIVERSITY FUND RAISING ACCELERATES WITH NEW DIRECTOR OF MAJOR GIFTS

Stephen D. Christensen

Stephen D. Christensen, former vice president and senior fund raising consultant for the Robert B. Sharp Co., Inc., joined Cal State July 13 as the director of major gifts. This new post was created to build upon the university's Partnership 2000 effort (see accompanying story). Christensen says his initial efforts will focus on developing a number of capital campaigns for the academic schools centering on the solicitation of major contributions and multi-year pledges, endowments and estate planning gifts.

PRECEDE-NET-SETTING PARTNERSHIP 2000 CAMPAIGN BUILDS CAL STATE PROGRAMS, FACILITIES FOR THE 21ST CENTURY

Initiated in the spring of 1992, Partnership 2000 is an unprecedented public-private partnership between Cal State, San Bernardino and the community. It is a decade-long, major multi-million dollar fund raising campaign for the university, focusing on generating gifts and pledges necessary to allow the campus to meet the immediate and growing needs of our students, faculty, alumni and the community-at-large. As the campus's first major capital campaign, Partnership 2000 initially is focused on six priority areas: The Pfau Library addition and renovation, the School of Business and Information Science, the Health and Physical Education Complex, and new buildings for visual arts and the schools of education and social and behavioral sciences.

With shrinking state funding, the university is seeking partnerships and significant financial support from individuals, corporations, foundations, and organizations whose memberships consist of alumni, business and community leaders. Guided by the unprecedented expansion of facilities on campus, Partnership 2000 will influence the growth and development of virtually every facet of the university's intellectual life and student nurturance over the next several years.
STATE ASSEMBLYMAN
PAUL WOODRUFF
DISTINGUISHED
ALUMNUS THIS YEAR

State Assemblyman Paul Woodruff, B.A. 1983 political science, was given the Distinguished Alumni Award by the Alumni Association before 17,000 guests and graduates at the Commencement ceremony on June 13.

After attending local primary and secondary schools, Woodruff was active in student affairs at Cal State. In his freshman year here, he organized a women's conference that featured such notables as Gloria Allred. He also helped run the student Model Congress, organized the Political Science Council and interned for former State Assemblyman Bill Leonard.

As a legislator, Woodruff is the chairman of the Republican Assembly Caucus, serves on the Higher Education Committee, the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and the Committee on Televising the Legislature.

A member of the Alumni Association, Woodruff returns to campus frequently to speak to political science classes. Two of his former professors offered his name in nomination: Dr. Carol Goss and Dr. Jim Thomas.

'92 GRADUATES
SALUTED, REMEMBERED

The Alumni Affairs Office is pleased to welcome more than 3100 new alumni to our family of degree holders. That's how many students received degrees within the past year. Of those eligible to attend graduation ceremonies (2554 receiving bachelor's degrees and 622 master's degrees) approximately 1700 participated in the June ceremony.

Every effort is made to produce a Commencement program that lists correctly the names and honors accorded to every graduate, but despite the care taken a few students were left out of the program entirely or were not listed properly.

To the following we extend our apologies and our sincere congratulations on their accomplishment:

Heather Gill,
Physical Education,
Department Honors

Anna Guthrie,
Liberal Studies,
Highest Honors

Carol Halliman,
Social Science,

The San Bernardino Sun had a feature article about the Credit Counseling Service of the Inland Empire. Dianne Huppman, M.B.A., president and chief executive officer of the non-profit organization says that "a growing demand by debt-laden Southland residents has spurred (the company) to open an office in San Bernardino, with plans for two more in the county." The CCS, as it's known, offers assistance to clients needing to get their credit problems under control and shows them how to live within their means.

Donna Morin, B.A. art, was recently part of a three-person show at the International House Gallery in New York. In the spring of '92 she was one of three featured artists in the "Studio Tour Cooperative Exhibit" at the Museum of History and Art in Ontario. Later this year her work will be included in "New American Talent," an exhibit in Austin, TX. Morin has an M.F.A. from Claremont Graduate School.

Clay Spence, B.A. administration, is the municipal product manager for Ketema, Inc., McCrometer Division, located in Hemet, CA. In addition to being an active member of the American Water Works Association, Spence belongs to the Water Environment Federation, the Southern California Water Meter Association, and the Instrumentation Society of America.

Casey Chandler Wilkerson, B.A. child development, is a substitute teacher for the Redback Unified School District, and lives in Perris, CA, with her husband Paul (B.A. theatre arts '83) and two children.

Rebecca Mares Durney, B.A. sociology and criminal justice, received her J.D. degree in 1991 from USC. After passing the California Bar Exam on her first try, she celebrated by spending a month in Europe and visiting 11 countries. She is currently employed as an attorney with the law firm of Best, Best & Krieger in Riverside. She and her husband, John, a San Bernardino dentist, live in Blue Jay. She writes, "I owe a lot of thanks to Professors Wagoner and Erler for their support and confidence. Without them, I would not have gone to law school, and I wouldn't be where I am today. Please give them my special thanks."

Paul Mata, B.S. administration, is currently obtaining his Certified Financial Planner professional designation and is being groomed for a district management position. Paul is a personal financial planner for IDS American Express in Moreno Valley.

Miguel Alaniz, M.P.A., is the recently appointed library director in Inglewood. In March he was featured in an article in the Central News Wave that outlined his rise from being the son of Mexican-American farm laborers to being a trumpet player in the Army, earning a bachelor's degree at CSU Hayward, a library science degree in '75 and finally his M.P.A. from CSUSB in '88. Miguel lives in Inglewood with his wife, Mercedes.

Deborah Ann (Almer) Montana Seiberling, M.S. psychology, is a marriage, family and child therapist in private practice in Moreno Valley, CA. She also works with adolescent patients and their families at March AFB Hospital.
