Heart Assoc. sets facts straight on alcohol & heart health

LOS ANGELES - There is no clear evidence that drinking will prevent a heart attack, according to Ruth Johnson R.D., Chairman of the Nutrition Committee of the American Heart Association, Greater Los Angeles Affiliate.

She spoke in response to a preliminary research report by the government-supported National Institutes of Health that indicated moderate consumption of alcohol may reduce the amount of "unhealthy" cholesterol (low density lipoprotein of LDL) in the blood stream while raising the level of "healthy" cholesterol (high density lipoprotein of HDL).

"Unhealthy" cholesterol is a major contributor to atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) which is linked to hundreds of thousands of deaths each year in America. This disease occurs when fatty compounds line blood vessel walls, narrowing the channel for the flow of blood. Resulting blockages are a major cause of heart attacks.

For some unknown reason, individuals with high HDL levels have fewer heart attacks while those with high levels of LDL have more heart attacks. The National Institutes of Health study found that participants who claimed to consume higher levels of alcohol had higher levels of HDL and fewer heart attacks.

Mrs. Johnson warned against any changes in drinking habits based on these preliminary observations and cited statistics to illustrate the staggering social, economic and health costs associated with alcohol.

M*A*S*H script writer to teach public relations course

RIVERSIDE - A Riverside Freelance TV-film writer for such shows as MASH, "Barney Miller," "The Jeffersons" and "What's Happening" will teach a Tuesday night course at University of California Extension, Riverside, in the winter quarter beginning Jan. 8.

Thomas Dale, who has also been a reporter and photographer for three major newspapers, public relations director for the Los Angeles Rams, California Angels, San Diego Chargers and Los Alamos Race Course, will offer his experience for prospective and working public relations people.

Dale's most recent assignment was a radio-television coordinator for Los Alamos. Participants in the course will learn how to achieve results on a limited budget, cultivate the public relations-media relationship, apply public relations tools and manage a staff.

"There is no doubt that the dangers of chronic and/or excessive drinking for outweigh and theoretical effect on cholesterol levels," Mrs. Johnson stated.

In 1976, for example, the federal government estimated there were 18-20 million alcoholics—nearly 10 percent of the total population—in the U.S. The disease is also estimated to account for 5-10 percent of all trips to see a doctor, 40-60 percent of all traffic fatalities, and a loss in the gross national product exceeding $25 billion.

And alcohol-like candy—adds "empty" calories that may contribute to obesity and malnutrition, she added. Alcohol and candy are sources of energy, but they lack important nutrients such as vitamins and protein.

According to a recent statement by the national American Heart Association, alcohol may even result in cardiovascular disorders. Evidence indicates that alcohol taken in large amounts is toxic to the heart and may destroy heart muscle tissue. Alcohol also may contribute indirectly to hardening of the arteries through an effect on blood lipids in some individuals.

The best way to reduce blood cholesterol, Mrs. Johnson emphasized, is to control overweight and to eat a prudent diet low in animal fats and other cholesterol-rich foods.

Further information about prudent dietary guidelines or other nutrition questions may be obtained by calling the "Diet Factline" of your local Heart Association office.

"Entertainment and Sports Public Relations" will also take participants into a major television/sports organization for an inside look at an ongoing public relations campaign.

Guest lecturers will include Jerry Wilcox, public relations director for the Los Angeles Rams, Bob Roth of Disneyland and David Mirisch, president of Mirisch Productions in Hollywood.

The course applies toward the Professional Designation in Public Relations offered through Extension. For further information regarding the program, call (714) 787-3806.

To enroll in Dale's course, call 787-4105. Credit card enrollments may be accomplished by phone. The course fee is $71. Sessions will be held in Sprout Hall on campus, 7-10 p.m. through March 4.

JURY'S VERDICT MAY BE INFLUENCED BY ETHNIC BACKGROUND

RIVERSIDE - A study conducted at the University of California, Riverside, has produced evidence that a jury's verdict may be influenced by the ethnic background of the defendant.

With 96 UCR students acting as jurors in 32 simulated cases, the study indicated that anglos were more likely than Chicanos to convict a Chicano defendant, given the same evidence.

The jury's own ethnic make-up, and the sex of its members, also played a part in the treatment of defendants from different backgrounds, according to former graduate student Jack Lipton of Hollywood, who carried out the year-long study and filed it as his doctoral dissertation.

Lipton, who has specialized in courtroom psychology, received a $9,679 grant from the U.S. Department of Justice.

Other studies on jury behavior have indicated that a defendant's personal characteristics, like whether he or she is attractive, may sway a jury's thinking. Lipton said. Studies of the effects of ethnicity, however, have been "few and inconclusive," he said.

By making the study more realistic, its validity is enhanced, he said.

"This is the first study to look at the ethnic composition of a jury in a scientific way," said Lipton. "It's also the first to concentrate on Chicanos. They're a significant minority group in California and they've been neglected in this area of research."

Lipton, who now teaches legal and criminal psychology and psychology of prejudice at Humboldt State University, said the results point out "the fallibility of the human frailties of a jury" and underscore the need for an increased dialogue between psychologists and the criminal justice system.

Female jurors were more lenient on Chicanos. Only 31 percent of the women voted against them, while 45 percent of male jurors did. "Regardless of their own consideration of a case. We like to think juries take in all the evidence and come up with an objective, well-thought-out verdict, and that doesn't seem to be the case at all."

Among the findings of his study: Although jurors gave equal treatment to anglo defendants, 41 percent of the anglos voted to convict a Chicano defendant, while only 35 percent of the Chicano jurors did.

Female jurors were more lenient on Chicanos. Only 31 percent of the women voted against them, while 45 percent of male jurors did. "Regardless of their own ethnic backgrounds, jurors who found themselves in a minority on the jury itself tended to side with the Chicano defendant. Sixty-nine percent of those jurors found the anglo defendant guilty; only 38 percent voted against the Chicano.

The 16 six-person juries were given only one clue to the fictitious defendant's background—his name. Each jury had two cases, one involving "Richard Nelson," the other a "Horacio Garcia," and the circumstances of two cases (a student accused of destroying university property or cheating on an exam) were systematically alternated between the two. "Just introducing that one factor, the Spanish surname, appears to make ethnicity an issue," said Lipton.

The jurors were selected at random from the campus at large and paid $10-$15 to participate. The composition of the juries was varied so that some were dominated by Chicanos, some by anglos, some by males and some by females.

Lipton, who was recently contacted by a law firm to assist in a jury's selection, said, "We (psychologists) think we're going to have an impact" on the legal profession's search for juries that are more impartial.

Reasons for living

... by Donnie Saxe

The Best thing about beginning the new year, is enjoying its unmarred beauty. However, it is impossible for us to predict accurately what future events may occur which could remove its shimmer. Since "Hindsight is better than foresight," we must look at our past failures and shortcomings, with a critical eye. Then we must resolve to avoid the same mistakes - blunders - and wrong decisions, again. "Resolutions," should always be designed to achieve personal improvements. The lessons contained in the following fable may prove helpful in making them - and keeping them.

A hunter who had wounded a bird, was lifting it from the ground, when the bird said: "Hunter, if you put me in a cage I'm going to tell people all your secrets. It will make you miserable to have your friends know all those things you would like to keep hidden. But if you will turn me loose, I will tell you three truths that will make you both wise and successful." Impressed, the hunter agreed to let the bird go in exchange for the wisdom.

"First," said the bird, "Do not believe everything you hear. Check it out first. Second, Do Not Try to Do Something That is Beyond Your Capabilities. People will ridicule you when you fail. Third, When You Make A Mistake, Forget It. Instead of tormenting yourself about it." The hunter then turned the bird loose. After it flew into a tree, it spoke again. "You are foolish. You made a mistake, I carry inside of me a valuable diamond. It is so priceless, it could make you very rich."

Angry with himself, the hunter ran to the tree and tried to climb to where the bird was, but as the hunter climbed higher, the bird flew higher. Finally in a desperate attempt to reach the bird, the hunter fell to the ground, breaking his leg. "You are indeed a foolish person," said the bird. "I gave you three very wise truths, yet in just a few minutes after receiving them, you completely failed to follow them."

"I told you not to believe everything you heard. There was absolutely no reason why you should believe there was a valuable diamond inside of me. Second, I told you not to try to do something beyond your limitations, yet you tried to climb a tree to catch me, which was impossible. Third, I warned you not to worry about some mistake you could not change. Yet After turning me loose, you tried to change everything by attempting to recapture me."

Well, like the hunter, we often view the past with deepest regret. The old Accuser stands ready to taunt us at every opportunity. But Paul said: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are ahead" (Phil. 3:13). We can learn from the past, but we don't have to live in it.

An A.M.E. salute to the "INTERNATIONAL YEAR OF THE CHILD 1979"

The year 1979 has been proclaimed by the United Nations as the "International Year of the Child." The official logo was designed by Erik Jerichau of Denmark. Surrounded by the UN laurel leaves are two embracing figures, symbolizing the relationship between adult and child. The year 1979 is when The United Nations Declaration of the Rights of the Child will be 20 years old. It affirms:

The Right to affection, love and understanding.
The Right to adequate nutrition and medical care.
The Right to free education
The Right to full opportunity for play and recreation.

The Right to a name and a nationality.
The Right to special care, if handicapped.
The Right to be among the first to receive relief in times of disaster.

The Right to be a useful member of society and to develop individual abilities.

The Right to be brought up in a spirit of peace and universal brotherhood.

The Right to enjoy these rights, regardless of race, color, sex, religion, national or social origin.

The year 1979 is the time when people throughout the world will together strive to discover the best ways and means to alert their societies to the needs of children. A short pamphlet distributed by the U. S. Committee for UNICEF quickly outlines the reasons for the goals of International Year of the Child.

Why an International Year of the Child?
For one and a half billion reasons - most of them under ten years old. Because all children have special needs - but in many cases these needs are not being adequately met.

Because children are our future - and our most precious resource. The quality of tomorrow's world - perhaps even its survival - will be determined by the well-being, safety and development of children today.

Because children are wholly dependent upon adults - and we owe them the best we have to give.

What is IYC?
An opportunity to focus on children, and put them in their proper place: at the centre of world concern.

Twentieth anniversary of the United Nations Declaration of the Rights of the Child: a time to recall its principles and redouble our efforts to put them into practice. A year supported by members of the United Nations to promote lasting action to improve the lives of children everywhere.

A time for governments, organizations and individuals to work together in concrete, constructive, practical programs for the benefit of children.

Jordan says alliances are key to Black progress in 80's

NEW YORK - Declaring that "The extent to which we forge ahead or fall behind depends largely on our ability to reconstruct those faded alliances," Vernon E. Jordan, Jr., President of the National Urban League, called on all parts of the society, "to unite behind an agenda for the 1980's that includes full employment, quality health care and decent housing for all, and a national commitment to affirmative action," in his address at the National Urban League's 23rd Annual Equal Opportunity Day Dinner at the New York Hilton Hotel.

Recipients of this year's award given in recognition of outstanding achievements by individuals to the cause of equal opportunity were Patricia Roberts Harris, Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and McGeorge Bundy, former President of the Ford Foundation.

Presently, the cause of equal opportunity is being pursued by Mrs. Harris through her Department's lawsuit to force the Chicago school system to desegregate.

Mr. Bundy is credited as the catalyst of American Foundation concern for equal opportunity during his tenure as President of the Ford Foundation.

In his address, Mr. Jordan said, "black people are at the top of the recessionary hit list. Last month the National unemployment rate rose - and almost all of it was among black workers. And the black poor are also at the top of inflation's hit list. They're paying more for less. Inflation hits them harder - poor people are being forced to choose between heating and eating. And they're facing a national mood of growing callousness. A bill for emergency heating aid for the poor was held up by some senators who used the tragic plight of poor people to try to pass federal subsidies for the middle class and for the affluent."

Expanding his theme of the danger of weak alliances, Mr. Jordan said, "the spirit of the Klan infects even those who wouldn't dream of wearing white sheets or go on night rides. It is a spirit that resists black equality. It is a spirit that finds all sorts of respectable excuses to avoid the social and economic changes that would move black people into the mainstream of society."

"It is because of that evil spirit stalking our land that blacks and whites must join together to heal our nation of the terrible heritage of racism, discrimination and deprivation. Our lives - black and white - are interconnected, intertwined, and interwoven."

Citing the alliances among business, labor, churches, educational institutions and "conservatives and liberals" in the 1960's Mr. Jordan said the moral fervor for equality that bound these sectors together in the fight against racism and poverty is missing today because of a general feeling of drift and lack of national purpose.

This sentiment was one that was echoed by Mr. Bundy who said in his acceptance address that during the 1960's, it was his perception that the cause of equal opportunity was one that the Ford Foundation was compelled to pursue. Also citing the importance of alliances, he stressed that greater efforts must be made to engage the legal, social and political "arenas" more fully in the "serious work" of equal opportunity.

Secretary Harris warned in her acceptance speech that unless Americans in all sectors of the society learned to assume leadership roles in solving the nation's common ills that, "we will continue to frustrate our efforts to make this society a more just, a more open, and a more equitable society for all Americans."

BLACK CAUCUS CRITICAL OF REPORT

SACRAMENTO - The California Legislative Black Caucus today criticized the report recently issued by the State Department of General Services based on its investigation into the circulation of a caricature of a Black man depicted as a shooting target within the State Police Department. The target, labelled the "Official Runnin' Nigger Target", was disseminated in the State Police locker room area and was found on the Department target range.

"Letters of reprimand and a brief suspension of those officers involved in this incident is an affront to the dignity of Black people throughout the State," commented Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, Jr. (D-SF), Chair of the Black Caucus. "Racist conduct by State Police Officers cannot be condoned by State agencies or personnel with the authority to take disciplinary action, particularly when such conduct is seen as encouraging life threatening activity as in this instance."

An investigation by the Department of General Services disclosed that the Target was placed in the lockers of State Police Officers and subsequently carried to the target practice area by a member of the Department. The report also noted that while supervisory personnel were aware of the Target they took no steps to collect the racist material nor to determine its origin and that there was no information, as to which person or persons were responsible for bringing the Target into the locker area.

"The report is a sham, an apparent fabrication, and a totally insensitive piece of bureaucratic paper-shuffling," said Assemblywoman Gwen Moore (D-LA). "It's impossible to conceive that anyone, Black or white could ascribe that a 'Nigger Target' is someone's version of an innocent racial joke. A more thorough investigation is needed now, and should command the direct supervision of Alice Lytle (Director of State and Consumer Services) and the Governor's Office, and appropriate action must be taken against those persons responsible for the Target."

The Caucus points out that while the Administration sought the dismissal of Josette Montalano, former Deputy Director of the Division of Substance Abuse for alleged misuse of State Stationery, now, when persons who have sworn to protect our citizens are found with evidence of blatant racism in a form clearly intended to be sufficient reprimand, "This action is intolerable. Those responsible should be called on the carpet immediately," said Assemblyman Curtis Tucker (D-Inglewood).

"We're not going to sit by and watch this outrageous incident get glossed over," said Assemblywoman Maxine Waters. "We're going to take a hard look at statutes and regulations which are used to harass employees with legitimate grievances, and which offer not protection against harassment or reprisal by other employees or officials. The citizens of California will not stand for this sort of unprofessional conduct, and neither will we."

receive; it is not an audit indicator.

Once audited, always audited.

IRS makes a special effort not to keep auditing the same people over and over. In fact, IRS has a special program called the Repetitive Audit Procedure, the purpose of which is to see to it that no taxpayer is audited two years in a row on the same issue when there was no change the previous year, and see

When IRS prepares a return, the tax is always higher.

If facts and figures remain the same, the correct tax will be identical, no matter who prepares the return. A mistake on a return triggers an audit.

Generally, math errors are corrected automatically by the computer and do not generate an audit. The adjustment is also automatic, increasing or decreasing taxes and refunds as appropriate. A mistake on its own does not generate an audit.

Tax on a "long" form is not the same as tax on the "short" form.

Because of certain situations, some taxpayers must use the 1040 Form, often called the "long" form. However, the tax tables for both Form 1040 and Form 1040A are the same. Taxpayers would not pay more tax simply because they chose to use one form another.

IRS agents and revenue officers work on commission.

IRS employees, like other government employees, work on a salary basis. The amount of money they "collect" or don't "collect" in no way influences the amount of their paychecks.

Anyone who is audited will end up owing more tax. The outcome of an audit is one of three possibilities: an additional tax assessment, an additional tax refund, or a "no-change" case. It is not necessarily so that a person who is audited will have to pay more tax, but it is a possibility.

These misconceptions are certainly not all of the incorrect notions people have about the IRS. Many of these misconceptions could probably be clarified by a taxpayer if he or she only took the time to visit a local IRS office, or by calling the IRS toll-free number, 1-800-242-4500.

War on Arson Fund raising banquet

SAN BERNARDINO - Invitations to the War on Arson fund-raising banquet have been sent to organizations and individuals throughout the county.

The banquet, sponsored by the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, fire and law enforcement agencies and WE-TIP, Inc. is scheduled for Jan. 11 at the San Bernardino Convention Center, 303 N. "E" St., San Bernardino. A cocktail reception is set for 7 p.m.

Fire officials report that arson is responsible for between 20 and 50 percent of all fire in the county. Arson is now a part I crime in the Federal Uniform Crime Reporting System and California law (Senate Bill 116) effective Jan. 1, 1980, will increase penalties and the means of prosecuting arsonists. The Board of Supervisors has declared January 1980 as Arson Awareness Month, urging all citizens to help stop arson.

1979 a mixed year

NEW YORK, N.Y. - 1979 began with a stunned national trying to understand the mass suicides in Jonestown and it ended with an angry nation concerned with Americans held hostage by Iran, in gross violation of international law and any standards of accepted diplomatic practice.

In between came twelve months of continued hardship for poor people, some important gains for minorities, and some setbacks as well.

Perhaps the most important plus in 1979 was the Supreme Court's Weber decision. Especially after the disappointing result of the Bakke case the previous year, Weber brought fresh hope to millions.

In its decision the Supreme Court upheld an affirmative action plan condemned by some as an unconstitutional quota system. The Court's action gave a big boost to affirmative action just when it looked as if it might be swept away by the rightward tide.

The Court also laid down some ground rules on what makes an affirmative action program acceptable. Since those rules are consistent with every such program I've ever heard of, the outlook for progress on this front is bright.

The Weber case takes on greater importance since it came against the backdrop of continued high black unemployment and predicted recession that may yet inflict heavy damage on black workers.

That recession, now starting, was deliberately engineered to curb inflation. It's the old story-you beat inflation by damping down the whole economy. If people lose their jobs, why it's only a temporary inconvenience. They'll be back at work when the recession ends, and inflation will be under control then. It's small price to pay for controlling inflation.

Well, that kind of thinking is all wrong. Not only does it make the poorest people pay the greatest price for controlling inflation, but it won't work. In the seventies, we've had both high inflation and high unemployment, and there's no reason to expect conventional economic policies to work now.

The nation's economic problems may be a factor behind the withdrawal from support for minority rights and for the rise of fringe groups like the Klan. When the economy is expanding, the majority isn't worried about competition from minorities. But in hard times, everyone takes a "me-first" attitude and sees justice for others as a personal threat.

Young's departure from the Administration set off shock waves of anger in the Black community. It has still not been fully explained to most people's satisfaction.

But the immediate effect was to intensify friction between black and Jews, since Young's resignation came in the wake of his meeting with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Long-smoldering resentments about numerous issues broke to the surface and the groups are now engaged in dialogues to try to re-establish their past partnership on behalf of civil rights.

In a way, the break may have been healthy in that it provides a basis for realistic coalitions based on each group being completely aware of the other's position. Sometimes a fractured bone, when it heals, is stronger than it had been before. Both blacks and Jews will benefit from a healed, reconstituted creative alliance.

For most minorities, 1979 continued as a year of hardship, high unemployment, high prices, eroding conditions. Discrimination continues to be an integral part of our society, and there were few signs of any renewed national commitment to the ideals of equality that once were so important to so many Americans.

That's sad commentary on a year that could have been a lot better.

CHP DUI Campaign

SACRAMENTO - The roadside billboard says "Will You Be Next..." and it pictures a symbol as well as a driver behind jail bars.

The billboards now going up in many areas of the state are the California Highway Patrol's way of communicating with 15 million drivers about a familiar December hazard - the drunk behind the wheel.

"The last month of the year, with two major holiday periods, is typically associated with increased drinking. What we are trying to avoid is the tendency for more drinking drivers to be on the road," Commissioner Glen Craig said.

The CHP's statewide effort will receive extra emphasis in 17 target areas, designated because the drinking driver accident problem is proportionately higher.

A federal grant channeled through the California Office of Traffic Safety is providing $426,128 for increased enforcement hours and a major awareness campaign in the 17 target locations.

One of the awareness strategies is outdoor billboards, but the material publicizing the theme will

School bus statistics

CALIFORNIA - 1978/79 also showed that California school buses traveled another 12 months without a pupil passenger death. Highway Patrol statistics for the year ended June 30, 1979, show:

School buses now have traveled 24 months and 471 million miles without a pupil passenger death. There has been one student death in that time - a 6-year-old girl struck as she was crossing the road.

The last time a pupil passenger fatality occurred was in 1976-77. The CHP report for also be seen on matchbooks, bus cards, pins, lapel patches and a variety of other items.

"The campaign symbol was designed to simulate a universal roadside sign," Craig noted. "We think that the letters DUI covered by the red circle and slash will outlast the campaign, becoming a standard symbol to indicate that driving under the influence is improper behavior."

Craig said the CHP and Alcoholism Council of California are cooperating in December campaigns because the ACC has designated December as Alcoholism Action Month. "The council points out that alcoholism is the source of untold anguish and disruption, a sentiment the Highway Patrol echoes because we have a first-hand view of the anguish which the drunk driver produces through traffic accidents."

The CHP campaign extends through New Year.

QUESTION: What substitution can I use if I run out of one of the recipe's ingredients?
ANSWER: With a busy holiday schedule, you don't have to be caught in the middle of measuring ingredients for a recipe recipe only to find a main item is missing. Another trip to the store means more time and more gasoline used. The following information may seem like a Christmas gift itself!

Food	Substitute
Chocolate, semisweet (1 lb.)	1 lb. unsweetened chocolate plus 4 tsp. sugar
Chocolate, unsweetened (1 lb.)	1 tablespoon cocoa plus 1 tablespoon fat
Baking Powder (1 teaspoon)	1/4 teaspoon baking soda plus 1/2 cup sour milk or buttermilk or 1/2 teaspoon baking soda plus 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
Ginger, powdered (1/2 teaspoon)	1 tablespoon candied ginger, rinsed and finely cut
Butter or margarine for baking (1 cup)	1/2 cup oil or shortening plus 1/2 teaspoon salt
Whole Milk (1 cup)	1/2 cup evaporated milk plus 1/2 cup water or 1 cup fluid nondairy milk or skim milk plus 2 1/2 teaspoons butter or margarine
Buttermilk or sour milk (1 cup)	1 cup fluid whole milk plus 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice (let stand 3 minutes) or 1 cup fluid whole milk plus 1 1/2 teaspoons cream of tartar
Heavy Cream (1 cup)	1/2 cup fluid whole milk plus 1/2 cup butter
Light Cream (1 cup)	1/2 cup fluid whole milk plus 3 tablespoons butter
Corn Syrup or Honey (1 cup)	1 cup sugar plus 1/2 cup liquid (use a liquid listed in the recipe)

AF receives "Golden Fleece Award"

NORTON AFB - Top Air Force officials say they are extremely pleased to earn Sen. William Proxmire's "Golden Fleece Award."

Senator Proxmire makes the periodic award to highlight what he considers wasteful or excessive spending of government funds.

Announcing his award for November, the Senator cited last-minute spending of $715,000 at Clark Air Base, Philippines, for various programs designed to improve the quality of life of Air Force people stationed there.

Senator Proxmire cited, in particular, purchases of television sets, air conditioners, fans, resurfacing of tennis courts, acquisition of dorm furniture and refurbishing of the dining hall.

Air Force leaders consider receipt of the award "recognition that Air Force commanders in the field are trying to improve living conditions for their troops, despite years of fund shortages."

Senator Proxmire specifically mentioned what he considers a "rush" to use or lose unallocated funds on items that were not essential.

The Air Force disagreed.

"Years of trying to get along without enough money have left Air Force facilities and accommodations for its people in bad need of repair," a spokesman said.

"We have to use most available dollars to keep up our training, and our aircraft flying. Meanwhile the quality of life of Air Force members and families has declined."

"In the case at hand, a commander used money for legally authorized and essential improvements to broken and rundown base equipment and facilities."

"Air conditioners, fans and television sets for

This educational program, "Marketing for the Residential Builder," was created by the Institute of Residential Marketing (IRM), affiliated with the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB). The courses are required as part of the qualifications for membership in the Institute and to receive MIRM designation. Course 11, "Marketing Management, Planning and Feasibility," deals with the planning process for housing development and includes subjects such as market research, consumer segmentation, developing a marketing plan, budgeting, pricing and product development. It provides in-depth principles and practical applications for builders, marketing directors, sales managers and other industry professionals.

MIRM courses in Southern California are under the direction of Lester Goodman, president of Lester Goodman Associates, Brea, CA, who will be the instructor for Course 11. Many housing industry executives and leaders will be guest speakers, including company principals and marketing specialists.

The 12-week course will be presented in room 123 10 p.m. For information about enrollment, contact the BIA office at 1071 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles (213) 625-0771 or Lester Goodman at (714) 524-2387.
