CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY SAN BERNARDINO

OBSERVATIONS

Replenishing Inventory for Scholarship Shoppers

Juan Gonzalez

The good news is: More students than ever before may be eligible for financial aid this year because of changes in state and federal regulations qualifying them for assistance. The bad news is: There is less federal money available for grants and only a modest increase in state-funded assistance, so students may need to take out larger loans in order to complete their education.

For some students, these trends in college financial aid will translate into $100 less in Pell Grants, which will be a maximum of $2,300 this year. For others, state university grants could be slashed from $1,440—what once was a "full ride"—to $100 or less. The reality is that many students will be bearing a bigger percentage of the cost of their education than ever before. This comes at a time when a 10 percent increase in California State University fees brings the surge in the cost of a CSU education to 80 percent over the past four years.

While still a bargain when compared with other states (California's state university fees are the 48th lowest in the nation), the cost of a CSU education could be reduced greatly by expanding privately endowed student scholarships available through CSUSB. Currently, only $100,000 of the nearly $15 million in assistance awarded through our Financial Aid Office is in the form of academic scholarships.

Meanwhile, the percentage of students who are applying for financial assistance has doubled within the past two years. Now nearly 68 percent of our 12,500 students have an application pending in the office. Each of them rightfully claims significant need, but only about half of their requests will be met.

Fortunately, a few more students will be assisted this year through recent private contributions made to the university. Three students will benefit from the newly established Jack H. Brown Scholarship for the School of Business and Public Administration, which has been created by the Food Industries Sales Club of Riverside and San Bernardino Counties. An accounting scholarship honoring the first dean of the business school, Dr. Hal Hoverland, will support students majoring in that field, while another privately endowed scholarship, established through the estate of Julle and Ann Ronning, will offer advantages for students studying the real estate industry. A fund established in honor of retired Barstow teacher, Clara McKinney, will assist future educators. And a scholarship started by former Cal State Professor Arlo Harris will benefit future chemists.

Each of these funds created within the past academic year will make a significant difference in the pursuits of students for years to come, and is turning the bad news into good tidings for some deserving students.

E MAN WHO SEES BEAUTY IN ANIMAL LOCOMOTION

CAL STATE SAN BERNARDINO

vot very long ago, in a land not too far away, professional animators began to envy Cal State biology professor Stuart Sumida, whose job, they said, was very wonderful. Stuart admired the animators and their jobs, too. For they worked in the pleasant and prestigious Walt Disney studios sketching out pictures that always became famous. But no, no, no, thought the animators. It was Stuart who had the fun of hunting hidden treasures in places like the four corner states of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Arizona, or in Germany, where Stuart spent six weeks this past summer. Treasure hunting like this impressed the animators. Because once upon a paleontological period ancient animals left for Stuart and those with his brand of curiosity a very special gift, the most special gift beasts could ever leave: Bones.

"There are a lot of paleontologists who use the fossils they find to figure out the rocks," says Stuart. "Well, I use the fossils I find to figure out the animals."

Stuart is the Bone Man to Disney artists, their "teacher," the specialist in comparative anatomy who stepped into Animation Land on the reference of a friend and an invitation by Disney and had world-class animators draw, ahem, anatomy! He is the man who sees beauty in animal locomotion, who illustrates his research with his own (improving, even if they are diagrammatical) drawings of animals, who has liked and watched good cartoons ever since he was a boy, who tells animators how a bird folds its wings, and maybe how they, the animators, err in thinking that digging up the THE MOST SPECIAL GIFT BEASTS COULD EVER LEAVE ARE BONES past is glamorous work; fascinating, yes. But picking your way through dirt around a valued fossil can be as tedious as drawing a thousand pictures to animate a descending leaf.

Disney animators, says Stuart, are "meticulous." Experts have come to lecture them before. But under a formal program set up in the late '80s Disney wanted to train new as well as experienced animators, and that's when Stuart began showing them how size, weight, gravity and bone structure shape an animal's movements. For one week during the production of "Beauty and the Beast," he lectured on wolves and horses, and worked closely with Russ Edmunds, the lead animator for Belle's horse, Philippe-Disney animation that amazes Stuart, as does the detail of Bambi, the dinosaurs of "Fantasia," and, above all, the flight of the golden eagle in "Rescuers Down Under," because its "movement is true to the form of the animal, yet communicates personality and feeling without turning into a human being." Stuart now is advising Disney animators on a film to be released next year, "Lion King." And next year he will address the 50th anniversary convention of the National Science Teachers Association in Anaheim about his work at Disney, and about this fairytale marriage of biology and fine art.

"You need to understand some of the biological sciences to do certain kinds of art. That's something most biologists wouldn't think about, or they've been trained not to think about."

LARGEST CASH DONATION LAUNCHES BUILDING

The first portion of the three-phase building for Extended Education will be built next year with a gift from Yasuda Women's University in Japan.

A donation of 100 million yen, which is approximately $925,000, will "seed" the construction of a new Extended Education building at Cal State, thanks to the Yasuda Institute of Education in Hiroshima, Japan.

The largest single, private cash contribution received to date by the university underscores the partnership between the two educational institutions that have been working together for seven years through the Office of Extended Education's American Culture and Language Program (ACLP) at Cal State.

Work on the 15,600-square-foot edifice, that will be located north of the campus's Foundation Building, is expected to break ground in January and take about one year to complete. The remainder of the funding for the $2.2 million project will be obtained through a privately financed loan secured by the university's Foundation. The new building will house five classrooms, language and computer laboratories, and a student lounge and patio.

AFROTC ESTABLISHES REGIONAL PROFILE WITH NEW CSUSB UNIT

President Evans (right) joins alumnus Col. Ed Sheeran in welcoming the Air Force ROTC to campus.

The first Air Force Officers' Training Corps program in inland Southern California is being established this fall at Cal State, creating a nearby opportunity for military training that previously was available only in Los Angeles and San Diego.

With a military identity already established in the Inland Empire, the Air Force ROTC program will draw its enrollment from the eastern valley, says Col. Ed Sheeran, commander of the southwest region of Air Force ROTC and a CSUSB alumnus, class of '67.

Students in virtually every field of study are eligible for the program that offers two- and four-year processes leading to a bachelor's degree. A class of about 30 students has been recruited for the initial year of the program.

CAMPUS PLANT EXPANDS TO MEET 21ST CENTURY NEEDS

An ambitious plan for $172 million in capital construction projects at CSUSB in the next five years will more than double the amount of physical space currently housing classes and community gatherings at the university.

Two of the major expansion projects were completed this summer and overall about half of the budgeted construction work is underway.

Students, alumni and community guests will notice the advantages of the $5 million Student Union addition that opens this fall. The facility features a new multi-purpose room that accommodates 1,000 guests for special events.

Jack H. Brown Hall also will open this fall as the new home of the School of Business and Public Administration plus the departments of mathematics and computer science.

Also making its debut this fall will be an expansion of the university Bookstore, creating a split-level merchandising area and reorganized textbook sales area.

At the midway point in construction this fall will be the health and physical education complex, destined to become the largest building on campus. Featuring the 5,000-seat James and Arianthi Coussoulis Arena, the building will offer a multitude of recreational and entertainment opportunities for the Inland Empire once the facility is completed in 1994.

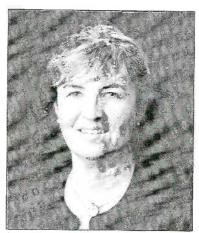

Passed the half-way mark is the Pfau Library addition, which extends an expansive wing to the left of the existing structure. The five-story addition is expected to reach completion this December.

Among the projects awaiting construction is a new Visual Arts Complex that proposes to include a 4,000-square-foot museum, if private funding is secured for the project by early 1994.

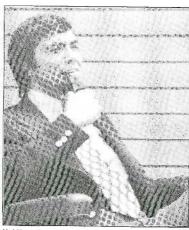

Expansion of the university's physical plant is helping to ease overcrowded conditions for the university's 12,500 students and nearly 1,000 employees and preparing Cal State to meet the needs of more than 20,000 students and 4 million citizens in the 21st century.

SCHOOL NEWS

School of Business and Public Administration

Sue Greenfeld teaching in Talwan

Hal Hoverland in his early years as dean

Russell Beirich (Accounting and Finance) has been named the 1993 Accountant Advocate of the Year by the U.S. Small Business Administration. A part-time instructor here, he is a partner in the accounting firm of Lund and Guttry in Palm Springs.

Sue Greenfeld (Management) is teaching at one of the top two business schools in Taiwan, the National Chengchi University in Taipei. While there on her Fulbright Fellowship, she hopes to conduct in-depth critiques of companies in that country, much like those she has performed with colleague Harold Dyck (Information and Decision Sciences) here. Most recently they evaluated Mobil Chemical. The two business professors also are in the midst of collaborating on research of the attitudes toward and socioeconomic effects of the free trade arrangements proposed between the U.S. and Mexico.

Hal Hoverland (Accounting and Finance), the founding dean of the School of Business and Public Administration, retired from CSUSB after 20 years of service. In honor of his 12 years of leadership as dean, the Hal Hoverland Scholarship Endowment Fund has been established to benefit junior and senior accounting students. Those wishing to contribute to the scholarship may send their gift in care of the CSUSB Foundation, 5500 University Parkway, San Bernardino, CA 92407.

Nabil Razzouk (Marketing) reports that seven CSUSB graduates majoring in business have taken management training jobs with WalMart corporation in recent months. He adds that it probably doesn't hurt that the company's regional employment recruiter Michelle Harbauer (B.S. administration '91) has the same alma mater.

Mary Smith (Marketing) collaborated with three authors on a study of "Mail Survey Response Rates Using a Lottery Prize Giveaway Incentive," which was published in the Journal of Direct Marketing.

Five CSUSB students swept a summer Inland Empire research paper competition and went on to compete with entrants from 12 universities in a regional contest of the American Production and Inventory Control Society (APICS), reports Javad Varzandeh (Information and Decision Sciences). Earning first-place awards were graduate student Carolyn Bartowski-Arabatzus of Redlands and undergraduate student Patti Stephens of Victorville. Second-place honors were awarded to graduate student Sharon Dragan of Upland, and undergraduate Kai-Ing Hwang of Colton. A third-place was bestowed upon John Cuevas of Riverside. CSUSB associate professors Kamvar Farahbod and Harold Dyck (Information and Decision Sciences) are local chapter advisors.

Lewis Assumes Deanship Professor and chair for the Accounting and Finance Department, Eldon Lewis is the interim dean for the School of Business and Public Administration for the next two years. Succeeding David Porter, who accepted a position at the University of Fairbanks, Alaska, Lewis will oversee the school's move into Jack Brown Hall and the completion of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) accreditation process. When he was a dean at Wichita State University, he was involved in a similar process, which, coincidentally, also preceded moving into a new building.

Stepping into the position of acting chair of the Accounting and Finance Department will be Linvol Henry, an associate professor who's been with the university for eight years. He will serve for one year while a search for a permanent appointee is conducted, Lewis says.

SCHOOL

Margaret Atwell (Advanced Studies) is leaving CSUSB after 12 years of service to accept the position of associate vice president for academic affairs at Cal State, Fullerton. She was CSUSB's Outstanding Professor in 1987.

As chair of the Council of Scientific Society Presidents, Bonnie Brunkhorst (Secondary/Vocational Education, Geological Sciences) testified before a subcommittee of the U.S. House of Representatives' Appropriations Committee urging support for President Clinton's $3.18 billion budget for the National Science Foundation.

While the teaching-reform book, Making Connections: Teaching and the Human Brain, co-authored by Renate Caine (Secondary/Vocational Education) and Geoffrey Caine is setting precedent with a circulation of 136,000 for its first printing, Renate's work at the Cal State Center for Research and Integrative Learning and Teaching has attracted several installments of a grant from the Yucaipa-Calimesa Joint Unified School District to provide for her to be an ongoing coach at Park View Middle School in Yucaipa.

Sherrie Howie (Secondary/Vocational Education) is teaching under a Fulbright Fellowship at National Kaohsiung Normal University in southern Taiwan this year. She plans to research cooperative learning techniques in classes designed to help prospective teachers use computers in their lessons.

Adria Klein (Advanced Studies) is the newly elected vice president for the 17,000-member California Reading Association (CRA) and will serve as its president in 1995-96.

Ken Lane (Advanced Studies) was awarded the Outstanding Alumnus honor by his doctoral alma mater, East Texas State University. He also was honored in April by Technomics Publishing for his work as an associate editor for the Journal of School Leadership.

Darleen Stoner (Environmental Education) is the 1993 Distinguished Alumnus from the College of Science at Cal Poly, Pomona.

STUDENTS NAB STATE HONORS

Three CSUSB students walked away with second-place honors in the CSU's annual research competition held this year on the Fullerton campus in early May. Competing with 130 entrants in 10 categories, the CSUSB winners were graduate students Eileene Payne and William Thomas, while Shannon Lynne Shannon captured the honor at the undergraduate level. Payne looked at head-banging behavior in her report, "Analysis and Intervention Issues Related to the Self-Injurious Behavior in a Blind, Multiply Impaired Child." Her work was supervised by Joanne Eichinger (Advanced Studies). Thomas worked with Jeffrey Thompson (Biology) on the "Effect of 60HZ, 1 Gauss Magnetic Field on Neuropeptide Y Gene Expression." Shannon's research focused on a specific statement of financial accounting standards and the implications for employers as well as employees. She was guided by Christine Shalow (Accounting and Finance).

Ed White honored by Chamber of Commerce

A collection of plays and working scripts has been donated by the world-class magic team of Gay and Harry Blackstone, Jr., establishing a library of reference materials for the university's Theatre Arts Department. Dedicated in the name and memory of their son, the Harry B. Blackstone III Collection eventually will include scripts from film, theatre and television. The accessibility of materials will be a boon to students, faculty and those in the general public who are interested in writing, acting and directing, says Ron Barnes (Theatre Arts). Gay once was a student of Barnes. The Blackstones, who are inviting the support of friends and business associates, recently received a $1,000 donation for the collection.

Jim Brown (English) published an essay on autobiography and fiction, entitled, "My Papa's Waltz," in The Cream City Review, the literary magazine of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

A 10-foot tall bronze sculpture, interpreting a heron taking flight, was commissioned by Yasuda Women's University in Hiroshima, Japan and rendered by Richard Johnston (Art) for the Sept. 3 dedication of a new classroom building at the Japanese institute.

"Dancing to the Chorales: The 1550 Geistliche Ringeltentze of Valten Vogt" is the subject of a paper presented by Art Moorefield (Music) at a joint chapter meeting of the American Musicological Society.

Rodney Simard and Julie Abner (English) co-wrote the paper, "Hollywood Paradigm and Cultural Stereotype: 'Captain Jack,' the Modoc 'Wars,' Drum Beat, and Indians in Mid-Century Film," which was presented at the California Indians Conference.

Ed White (English) was recognized by the San Bernardino Area Chamber of Commerce as one of two outstanding professors at Cal State in the annual College Professors' Honors Breakfast this past spring. He also has been elected to a three-year term on the executive committee of the Conference on College Composition and Communication.

MUSEUM HINGES ON PRIVATE FUNDING

A 4,000-square foot University Art Museum, designed to house permanent collections as well as new and changing exhibitions, could be built concurrently with a visual arts classroom complex, if sufficient private funding is found by early 1994. More information is found in Gift Rap on page 14.

SCHOOL OF NATURAL SCIENCES

Kimberley Cousins (Chemistry) has received a $32,200 award from the Research Corporation to assist her in the development of polymer-bond organoaluminum regents for organic synthesis.

George Georgiou (Computer Science) collaborated on the article, "Complex Domain Backpropagation," for the IEEE Transactions on Circuits and Systems II: Analog and Digital Signal Processing.

John Sarli (Mathematics) is collaborating with Javier Torner (Physics) on research that describes an algebraic construction they have discovered for elastic displacement fields, which is analogous to the complex analytic function representation for harmonic vector fields.

Jeffrey Thompson (Biology) collaborated with a professor from the University of Illinois-Urbana on the article, "Morphological Comparison by Scanning Electron Microscopy of Transient Retina-Muscle Synapses and Long-Lived Spinal Cord-Muscle Synapses," for Cellular and Molecular Biology.

"Smoking Cessation: Clinical Steps to Improve Compliance" is an article that Thomas Timmreck (Health Science and Human Ecology) co-authored for the journal Geriatrics.

Ching-Hua Wang (Biology) co-authored the "Characterization of Cellular and Molecular Immune Effectors Against Trichinella spiralis Newborn Larvae in Vivo" for the journal of Cellular and Molecular Biology.

"Hybrid Dynamic Markov Modeling" was the subject of a paper presented by Tong Lai Yu (Computer Science) at the IEEE Data Compression Conference.

Sixteen faculty and staff authors were honored in the spring by their colleagues and administrators for their published books. Pictured here are (front row, left to right): Art Moorefield (Music), Frank Williams and Marilyn McShane (Criminal Justice), Linda Stockham (Anthropology), Norton Marks (Marketing) and Robert Yowell (Theatre Arts). Alumna Spotlighted in Textbook

Patricia Lough, (B.S. '78, M.S. biology '90) who holds two degrees from CSUSB, was highlighted in a new edition of the textbook, Biology, for her work as a forensic scientist—also known as a criminalist—for the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department. Applying her knowledge in biology, Lough first trained in the alcohol and narcotics section and has gone on to investigate major crimes that involve sexual assault. She contributes special expertise in bloodstain pattern interpretation.

Profiled in the "Career Visions" section of the book, Lough says that "helping people is a very real part of my job. I feel that I provide a benefit to my community, and a real service to that victim sitting at home waiting for tests to be run. I can't think of any occupation in the sciences that deals so directly with human life."

Wally Cleaves (Psychology) is on a one-year sabbatical, teaching at UCLA and continuing his research on issues affecting Native American citizens.

Brij Khare and Ralph Salmi (Political Science) are glowing over Cal State's winning Model United Nations team, which topped universities from around the world in this spring's competition. Representing the Islamic Republic of Iran during the contest, CSUSB's team of 16 students earned the Outstanding Delegation award.

Thomas Lyons (Geography/Urban Planning) is in the process of reporting the results of his national study of the economic development effects of rural business incubators.

All four prestigious campus awards (Outstanding Professor, Outstanding Graduate and Undergraduate Students and the Distinguished Alumnus) were captured by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences this year. Joining the outstanding professor, Dr. Ward McAfee (History), on the Commencement platform were two psychology majors who earned the outstanding students distinction. They were Jill Kuhn, a graduate student from Redlands, who is on her way to Colorado State University to begin work on a doctorate. The outstanding undergraduate was Suzanne Reid of Apple Valley who also is the reigning Miss Victorville Ambassador. Alumnus Wesley Krause (M.A. criminal justice '90) is a probation officer in the High Desert, where he has distinguished himself with innovative case management techniques. He continues to work closely with Marilyn McShane (Criminal Justice), co-authoring books and articles on new developments in his field.

Teresa Morris (Social Work) published "Teaching Social Workers Research Methods: Orthodox Doctrine, Heresy or an Atheistic Compromise" in the Journal of Teaching in Social Work.

Tom Pierce (Economics) presented "Determinants of Individual FOMC Members' Voting Behavior," an article that he co-authored, at the annual meeting of the Western Economic Association.

COACHELLA VALLEY CAMPUS

More Than One Hundred Graduate

About 88 of the 125 students eligible to "turn their tassels" at Commencement did so at the Coachella Valley Campus's ceremony at the McCallum Theater in Palm Desert. The 1,000-seat theater nearly was filled with families and friends of graduates, reports Dean Peter Wilson. This was the third year that the campus held a ceremony separate from the San Bernardino campus's tradition.

DEGREE OPTIONS EXPAND

The accounting concentration in the business administration bachelor's degree program plus two new options for graduate-level degrees in education are being offered this fall at the Coachella Valley Campus.

The introductory accounting course will be taught on the San Bernardino main campus and broadcast at the Coachella Valley Campus over the university's two-way instructional television system, says Peter Wilson, dean.

Reading and special education will be the emphases offered in the master's degree programs, he adds, noting that reading classes offered last spring were over-enrolled due to high interest in the program.

REFINING DISTANCE LEARNING

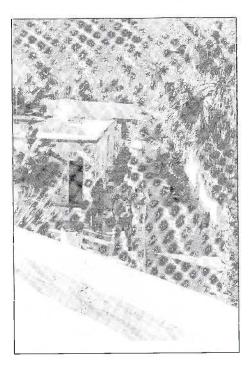

Work is underway to establish video-teleconferencing capabilities between the San Bernardino and Coachella Valley campuses in order to refine the delivery of distance learning services to low desert students, reports Peter Wilson, dean of the CVC. Currently some classes are carried over an instructional television system that sends a one-way video signal to the Coachella campus's classrooms and permits a two-way audio interaction between the professor at the San Bernardino campus and students at the low desert site.

With the more sophisticated video-teleconferencing technology, "the professor will be able to see as well as hear the students here," Wilson says. University officials are looking for funds to assist in installing a teleconferencing studio at both campuses within the next year.

NEW LOOK, NEW SPACE

Housed in modular buildings on the College of the Desert campus, the Cal State Coachella Valley Campus is getting new "digs." The original buildings, which had been leased by the university, are being replaced through a lease-purchase agreement that will mature in five years, says David DeMauro, vice president for administration and finance. The buildings then will become the property of Cal State, he adds.

The switch in facilities allows the university to design the space to better suit the needs of the students, faculty and staff at the Coachella Valley Campus, notes Peter Wilson, dean. "Originally when the campus was established it was hard to tell what space we would need for labs and classes, so this redesigned space will be much more effective," Wilson remarks.

COYOTE SPORTS

Center Chevrolet & Geo Joins Corporate Sponsors

Center Chevrolet & Geo recently joined the growing list of corporate sponsors of the Cal State, San Bernardino Intercollegiate Athletics Department. Other Coyote corporate sponsors include restaurants, hotels and apartment complexes.

Located on South "E" Street in San Bernardino, Center Chevrolet & Geo will be involved with many promotions throughout the upcoming athletic season, including half-time promotions during men's basketball games.

"We welcome the addition of Center Chevrolet & Geo to our corporate family," states David Suenram, Cal State athletics director. "We look forward to Center's involvement and to working with Center on a long-term, mutually rewarding relationship."

As a corporate Gold Sponsor, Center Chevrolet & Geo will receive recognition as an "Official Auto Dealership of the Coyotes."

Scholarship Golf Tourney Oct. 22 in Rialto

The annual Coyote Golf Classic, benefiting athletic scholarships, is set for Oct. 22 at El Rancho Verde Country Club in Rialto.

Last year's tournament netted more than $10,000 for scholarships. This year's event is expected to double that amount and add breadth to the athletics scholarship fund at CSUSB.

"We are building on the success of last year's tournament," comments Max Alonzo, tournament chair. "We're hopeful that this year's event will be the biggest and best in the tournament's history."

The Two-Man Best Ball tournament will tee off at 8:30 a.m. using a shotgun format. The tournament will be followed by an award luncheon in the clubhouse.

The cost for participating in the tournament is $125 per person and includes a continental breakfast, greens fee and cart, and the awards luncheon.

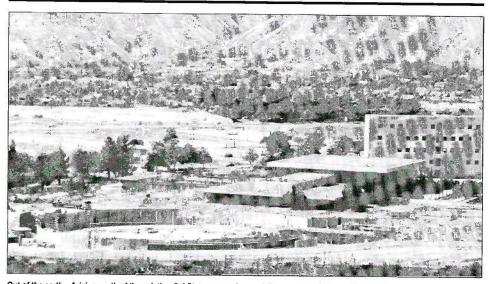

Interested persons should contact the Athletics Department (909) 880-5011.

Pioneering Grad Makes History

The first woman president of City College of New York, Dr. Yolanda Moses (B.A. sociology '68), headed there in August, straight from her position as vice president for academic affairs at CSU Dominguez Hills. Prior to that position, she had been the dean of the School of Arts at Cal Poly Pomona for five years.

Moses is a Life Member of the Alumni Association here and the winner of the 1983 Distinguished Alumni Award given by the Association.

of your Board of Directors, a new logo has replaced the old. The desire to modernize our "look" and clearly associate it with an identifying factor of the university moved the committee to choose the stylized rendering of the mountains.

Probation Officer Honored As Distinguished Alumnus

San Bernardino County Probation Officer Wesley Krause is the 1993 Distinguished Alumni Award winner chosen by a panel of alumni, faculty, and administrators on behalf of the Alumni Association.

Practicing in the field of probation for more than 20 years, Krause currently serves as the supervising probation officer responsible for all juvenile operations in the Victor Valley. He has come up through the ranks working first as a field officer investigating juvenile and adult cases and then later supervising them.

A Wrightwood resident, Krause is a 1990 graduate of CSUSB with a master's degree in criminal justice. He earned his undergraduate degree from UC Riverside in 1970. His work as a graduate student at Cal State and his scholarship pursuits since then prompted Dr. Marilyn McShane to nominate him for the award, which recognizes service to the community and university as well as career distinction.

Alumni Encouraged to Make Use of Career Center

Alumni are welcome to take advantage of the range of services offered through the university's Career Development Center. If you have graduated within the past 90 days, you may use the center's resources free of charge; all other alumni must register with the center and pay a $25 annual fee.

Alumni Association Offers Benefits

In July, Alumni Association forms were sent out to over 16,000 alumni inviting you to take advantage of the benefits that derive from membership, including use of the Cal State Library and many of the other CSU libraries, insurance programs (vision, dental, and health), assistance from the Career Center, membership in both FEDCO and the San Bernardino County Central Credit Union, discount coupons for California attractions, as well as discounted tickets for theatrical and musical events at Cal State, plus much more.

Your membership in the Alumni Association not only benefits you but gives current students the assistance they need in the form of scholarships and student emergency loan funds because the association contributes to both of those causes. If you did not receive that membership brochure, or tossed it away and then changed your mind, you may use the coupon below to join.

HALF OF THE PRIVATE FUNDS NEEDED HAS BEEN RAISED

Four Months Remain to Fund University Art Museum

A privately financed University Art Museum, that could be built concurrently with a state-funded visual arts classroom complex in early 1994, is attracting noteworthy support from alumni, including community and business leaders and arts patrons, with approximately half of the funding donated toward the project as of early August.

The entire funding for the 4,000-square-foot museum project must be secured by early 1994. The $560,000 museum will save $1 million if built in conjunction with the classroom complex, says Howard Grossman, chair of the University Art Museum campaign.

With the estimated cost reduced by two-thirds, "Clearly this is a savings worth achieving," remarks Grossman, who along with campaign vice chair, Dr. Don Iman, has made a generous contribution toward the museum. The initial campaign committee of 14 civic leaders and arts patrons had raised approximately $200,000 for the project by mid-summer.

Because state funding rules do not allow the university to include the museum in the construction plans for the classroom complex, the university is engaging in this public-private partnership to establish a regional repository for local, regional & world-wide art.

"I would like to have a local museum for Inland Empire school children, families and arts patrons as well as Cal State students, faculty and staff to visit and be able to study and learn in their own backyard," Grossman says, explaining his enthusiasm for the campaign.

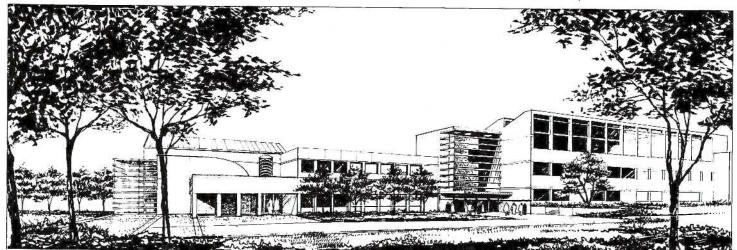

Recognition will be given to all gifts of $2,000 or more with inscriptions on the major donor wall in the museum lobby. The "Founders" category will acknowledge contributions of $15,000 or more. Other opportunities exist for donor recognition in the University Art Museum and the classroom complex, including the naming of facilities.

In addition to the campaign chairs, community members of the University Art Museum campaign committee are: Kat Grossman '83; Pamela Harer; W. Benson Harer, Jr., M.D.; Penny Hirschman; Mike Hough; Soonja Kim; Taewoong Kim, M.D.; Samuel Kushner; Jane Matthews; Pattie Pate '87; Cindy Rinne; Mignon Schweitzer; Nancy Sedlak and Ron Skipper. Also involved are Richard Johnston, Art Department chair and professor, and Stephen Christensen, director of major gifts and campaign director.

Volunteers are welcome to join the committee or participate in the campaign at any level, from the donation of art and fiscal resources, to the lending of time and assistance to support the University Art Museum project. Contact Richard Johnston at (909) 880-5823.

Egyptian art from the Harer Family Trust collection as well as permanent holdings of the university would be showcased in the University Art Museum designed to be built with a visual arts classroom complex in 1994.

BUSINESS EXECUTIVES CHAIR FIVE CAMPAIGNS IN PARTNERSHIP 2000 EFFORT INFLUENTIAL CITIZENS ALIGN WITH UNIVERSITY

From a senior corporate vice president and a retired businessman to a real estate developer, a lawyer and a business owner, the professional credentials of the campaign chairmen working under the university's Partnership 2000 fund-raising effort are illustrious.

Don Baker, group senior vice president for Stater Bros. Markets, was the earliest volunteer among the campaign chairs, joining the university's effort to engender public-private partnerships for the School of Business and Public Administration more than one year ago. Howard Grossman, retired executive of TRW Corporation, is heading up the community fund-raising effort to build a University Art Museum at the same time that construction begins on a state-funded visual arts classroom complex. Don Iman, D.D.S., is serving as vice chair for this effort, which needs to secure the bulk of its donations by January 1994.

Coachella Valley developer, Richard Oliphant, who is the former mayor of Indian Wells, is leading the university's interest in securing land and funding for a permanent Cal State campus in the low desert. Currently, Cal State's Coachella Valley Campus is situated on the College of the Desert's grounds in Palm Desert. Cal State is embracing the interests of low desert citizens in establishing a more permanent presence in the Coachella Valley.

San Bernardino attorney Wilfrid "Bill" Lemann is overseeing the fund drive for the Pfau Library, that is expanding with an additional wing and ultimate renovation. A native of San Bernardino, Lemann believes the university library is a "natural" information and technological resource for the region.

Spearheading the athletics fund-raising effort is Redlands businessman, Jeff Sykes, who is the president of Uniglobe Crown Travel. Sykes committed to the campaign as the university broke ground for its expansive health and physical education complex, which will feature a 5,000-seat arena that is the largest of its kind in the Inland Empire.

FATE FOCUSES TEACHER'S INTERESTS ON CSUSB A Scholarship Finds a Home

Clara McKinney's 60 years of devotion to teaching so inspired a cadre of admirers in her hometown of Barstow when she retired two years ago that they decided to mount a scholarship drive in her honor. Knowing her desire to help persons pursuing careers in early childhood education, they worked intensely for five months in order to present her with $10,000 on her 88th birthday.

Since then McKinney has overseen the committee of volunteers who have been managing the fund and searching for an educational institution to administer it. Fate intervened this past spring when a student, Christina Tobiason, telephoned a friend of McKinney's during the university's Alumni Annual Fund Drive. Alumna Marilyn Van Norman (B.A. social sciences '72) encouraged university officials to meet with McKinney regarding the Cal State education program.

Dean Jean Ramage and Pamela Langford, director of development, made a presentation to the Barstow committee, which was impressed with the depth of the education program and the university's plans to expand. McKinney, who is a graduate of the University of Redlands, subsequently chose Cal State as the home for her scholarship.

McKinney and the committee were pleased to "partner" with an institution that would value the contribution, notes Langford. "This is reflective of the collaborative effort of a current student, an alumna and the citizens served by Cal State," she remarks. "That's what the university's Partnership 2000 effort is all about."

Volunteer Retired Executives Needed

Share your expertise and time with Cal State, San Bernardino. Help ensure the finest academic experience for students by pairing your interests with specific academic units on the campus. Volunteer opportunities range from five to 20 hours per week. Activities include coordinating campus visits by local businesses, identifying and researching possible corporate partnerships or facilitating the introduction of faculty to key executives. PARTNERSHIP 2000 CAMPAIGN CHAIRS

THESE KEY LEADERS WILL BE JOINED BY OTHERS IN THE ENSUING YEARS AS THE UNIVERSITY EXPANDS ITS TARGETED CAMPAIGNS WITHIN PARTNERSHIP 2000

C A M P A I G N

Launched in the Spring of 1992 and concluding in the year 2000, the Partnership 2000 campaign for Cal State, San Bernardino was established to ensure educational quality and opportunity, to broaden the university's areas of academic distinction, and to expand further its services to the region. Partnership 2000 embraces a public-private partnership between the university and the community. The first major multi-million dollar fund-raising effort on behalf of Cal State, San Bernardino, Partnership 2000 is focused on generating gifts and pledges required to allow the university to meet the immediate and growing demands of its students, faculty, alumni and the community. Designed to meet current and ongoing needs for scholarships, facilities enhancements and instructional equipment, for example, Partnership 2000 also provides a structure to secure support for future programmatic expansion.

She also serves as the president of the Academic Senate, and was appointed by the Governor to the Challenge 21 Taskforce on Management. She is also the president of the Desert Council of World Affairs.

▲ She's done it again! Alumna author, Joanne Fluke, B.A. psychology, will see the publication of her 11th mystery novel, Fatal Identity, to be published by Zebra Books in Sept., 1993.

"Two different women—one fatally beautiful face. They were two halves of the same whole, sisters who were different in every way but one; they shared the same flawlessly equisite features. But now gorgeous movie star Mercedes Calder is dead ... and her identical twin is about to embark on a cunning deception that will put her desperately at risk." Fluke, using the pseudonym Jo Gibson, also is entering into the "teenage horror genre"—her first novel is entitled, The Dead Girl, published in paperback by Zebra Books and expected in the bookstores on November 1.

The Honorable Jean Pfeiffer Leonard, B.A. history, was appointed in December 1992 by Governor Wilson as a Municipal Court Judge in Riverside. She is the second female in county history to hold such a position. Leonard practiced family and juvenile law from 1977 to 1992; her law degree is from LaVerne College of Law.

Debbie (Virochpoka) Toomey, B.A. sociology, is working in the Purchasing Dept. for the city of San Bernardino.

Benita Roberts, M.A. education, the new superintendent of the Jurupa Unified School District, is the second African-American to be appointed a school district superintendent in Riverside County. Prior to this appointment Roberts had been the assistant superintendent for educational services and has been in the teaching profession for 25 years.

Dr. Robert Rose, M.A. education, middle school teacher at Del Vallejo in San Bernardino, was featured in an article in the San Bernardino Sun entitled, "Class Projects, A Fresh Look at Learning." Rose "takes the students most likely to drop out and makes them the most likely to enjoy learning." He is the author of a book, Creating Your Giant Self, that he uses in his discussions and assignments.

1975

Herbert E. Miller, B.A. administration, M.B.A. '77, retired from Morton International in Colton, CA, to accept the position of general manager of a joint-venture paint manufacturing company in Jinan, the People's Republic of China. He writes, "I would be delighted to introduce any CSUSB alumni or friends to opportunities in this area. Even if no such interest exists, I would enjoy hearing from (or receiving visits from) alumni, faculty, or students in business administration." Call the Alumni Office, (909) 880-5008, for information.

1976

Frank Basirico, B.A. administration, is the vice president of the credit management division for the Chino Valley Bank in Chino, CA.
