READING TEST COMING UP

Have you read SILENT SPRING yet? If not you'd better get going because the test is this Friday. An alternate test will be given Saturday.

As we understand it, one of the College Reading Program's goals is to promote intellectual discussion wherever students meet. Maybe the administration realizes by now that precious little such discussion takes place, at least in our hearing. A great deal on sports cars (the slippery parking lot appears made to order for them), but not on Rachel Carson. A change in procedure is indicated.

We'd like to get our two bits' worth into the Reading Program, a suggestion that we feel would benefit the cause of discussion and help the individual student as well. Our idea is simply to offer a choice of books, allowing for a wide range of interests. Plain curiosity about other people's choices would open conversations, and individuals' background in fields of specific interest to them would be enhanced.

Another benefit of the choice would be heightened student morale. This constitutes a considerable, and desirable, change from the thinly-disguised resentment caused by the Program's compulsory nature.

Testing complications? Test keyed to the students' choices, with appropriate markings on the answer sheets.

What would be your reaction to such a change? Drop a slip of paper telling us on the desk of the Dean of Students' secretary.

DOING ANYTHING NEXT QUARTER?

Why not think about a class in P.E. 100 this spring? The weather will be better and instead of just sitting in a dull class, why not enjoy the fresh air outside and have a lot of fun too?

A variety of recreational and sports activities will be introduced into the Physical Education Program during the Spring Quarter. Round dancing, cook-outs and other outdoor activities will be available. Mr. Karl Mahle from Antioch College will be here to assist during the Spring Quarter and will bring a range of new ideas with him.

Paved courts for handball, tennis and other activities may be available this up-coming term. Besides fulfilling one required term, you can enjoy yourself and be more physically fit.

A. REAL VICTORY IN VIETNAM

Editor of COMMUNIQUE:

Criticism of President Johnson's Vietnam policy is not restricted to advocates of withdrawing from Vietnam. Certain members of the ultra-conservative faction of the Republican party are also capable of launching attacks against Mr. Johnson.

These dissenting Republicans, in spite of the support for President Johnson's war policy by former President Eisenhower and Senator Dirksen, charge the present administration with conducting a "no-win" policy in Vietnam. They point to the thirty-seven day bombing pause over North Vietnam which, they claim, allowed the Communists to rebuild their defenses, roads, and bridges.

Last week former Senator Barry Goldwater attacked the President's peace offensive with the statement: "It is a very sad spectacle to see the greatest power on earth sort of groveling."

It is unfortunate that Mr. Goldwater does not realize that by being "the greatest power on earth" we can conduct a war and work for peace at the same time. The United States does not need to annihilate an enemy in order to win a war.

The idea that President Johnson does not want victory in Vietnam is absurd. Mr. Johnson would lose as much, if not more, as any other American by a defeat in this war. The President knows, moreover, that a successful peace will have a better and longer-lasting effect than a successful war.

Those people who continue to believe that "total victory" means "total destruction" continue to misunderstand the complicated nature of modern warfare.

In one of the Lincoln-Douglas debates Stephen Douglas said "we shall be the admiration and terror of the world." Abraham Lincoln replied: "I don't think we want to be the terror of the world." Mr. Goldwater and other Republican critics, who frequently quote Mr. Lincoln, might do well to heed, as well as to read, his words.

James F. Penman

Editor's Note: We're interested in all efforts to discuss the Vietnam war. Certainly President Johnson's decisions aren't always popular, but they're based on information to which we don't have access. His advisors are paid to know what's going on and to keep the enemy from finding out what the U.S. knows; that often involves concealment of material fact from the American public. It's frustrating, but it's a fact of life during wartime. Incidentally, President Johnson has acknowledged that the pause in bombing allowed rebuilding of defenses. BR

CREDITS-INDIVIDUALITY-FUN

Under the leadership of Mr. C. M. O'Gara, 22 students are fulfilling their physical education requirements for graduation in spite of a lack of facilities such as gymnasiums and playing fields. They are involved primarily in an individual, semi-autonomous program in which they can achieve whatever goals they desire. The activities chosen can be a routine of daily exercises, participation in a group or individual sport or a combination of activities.

At the beginning of each quarter the student states his objectives, which may be to improve his physiological level, learn new sports skills or improve old ones, exercise social skills, or another of his own choosing. Each is then committed to spend a minimum of two hours weekly at some form of physical activity in keeping with that goal. He keeps track of his progress through the quarter by periodically checking in with the Physical Education department.

The physical education students have also participated in co-educational group activities such as swimming, sauna (?), and bowling. In keeping with the season, many students have been getting ready for the rigors of the ski slopes.
