Salaries for Top Administrators Termed "Outrageous"

Last fall the CSUC trustees raised salary and benefit levels for its presidents and top level administrators by as much as 30% placing them in the $80,000-and-above range. Chancellors of the UC campuses now range as high as $95,000. Students and college employees received a 6% pay increase this year.

In response to the administrators' raise Senator Robert Presley (D-Riverside) recently introduced a toughly worded Resolution which he said "should put higher education in the state under control, that such salaries shall be subject to Legislative review."

Presley's Senate Concurrent Resolution 48 stresses that the fiscal integrity of the state's postsecondary educational institutions is a vital legislative function, and adds: "That fiscal integrity has been increasingly threatened by the establishment of exorbitant salary levels for many of the administrative positions at the California State University and the University of California."

The resolution would not have the binding effect of a law, but Presley pointed out "its passage will send them a message."

Presley last fall voiced strong criticisms of the UC system, CSUC and the state's Community College system for salaries for top administrators which he termed "outrageous."

Presley said he fully agrees that the state's higher educational system should remain autonomous, and pointed out that California's Constitution protects the independence of most UC operations. "But this autonomy must be based on reasonableness, and I feel they have decidedly stepped beyond the bounds in setting top salaries in the $100,000 to $200,000 range, when they are not set by elected bodies."

Blackey Named Outstanding CSCSB Professor

"I'm not the only one here who met the qualifications. I guess I just had an edge," commented Dr. Robert Blackey, professor of history and a member of the Cal State faculty since 1968, after he was chosen as the outstanding professor for 1984.

Blackey, currently chair of the History Department, will represent the San Bernardino campus in the CSU program established by the Board of Trustees to recognize excellence in teaching. Two outstanding professors will be named for the system by a statewide committee.

In addition to classes in the History Department, Dr. Blackey is teaching in the upper-division writing requirement program. Nationwide, his impact on teaching has been as a chief reader for the advanced placement examination in European history for the Educational Testing Service. He is the author or co-author of four books dealing with revolutions and the editor of a regular column in the newsletter of the American Historical Association. In addition, he has published articles on English history and essay test construction.

Additional responsibilities on campus have included six months of service as the colleges' first relations with school officer, two terms as chair of the College Retention, Promotion and Tenure Committee, and coordination of various self-studies carried out in the accreditation process.

Robert Blackey was recently named Cal State's Outstanding Professor.

New Student Union Security Policy Implemented

"Last Thursday night was very successful" commented Student Union Coordinator Sherri Deutchman on the impact of the new security policy for the Union on Thursday nights.

Problems of overcrowding beyond the Fire Marshall's mandatory capacity of 525 and fighting has evoked the new security policy, according to Deutchman.

The Student Union is officially closed on Thursday nights and the Union "officially (becomes) an Associated Students' private party. Only CSCSB students and on a quest will be allowed in..." according to the "Thursday Night Dance" policy issued by Deutchman and Associated Students.

Guests are now required to pay $2.00 at the door and $1.00 to get in the dance in the SUMP. According to Trish Grimes, Associated Students Treasurer, "The purpose of charging at the door is not as a fundraiser, but rather a deterrent to keep non-students out of the Student Union on Thursday nights. We brought in almost $100 dollars last Thursday. We are hoping those figures will go down, not up."

Unauthorized publicity and word of mouth has attracted many non-students to the Student Union Thursday night dances. The Cal State students "evidently don't like high school and Valley College students to come to the Student Union," commented Deutchman. Most of the fights that have occurred at the end of last quarter and the first Thursday this quarter have involved non-Cal State students.

Most of the fights have occurred later in the evening so the managers of the Pub and Snack bar, Deutchman, campus police, and the Associated Students determined that on Thursday nights the last call in the Pub will be at 10:45 and the Pub will close at 11:00 p.m. According to the "Thursday Night Dance Policy" PFM will give away free popcorn and coffee, and will have a special 1/2 price discount on sub sandwiches and drinks.

Deutchman indicated that although the room capacities security policy would not change, the hours of the Pub are subject to change.

Because the Fire Marshall limits only 525 people in the Union, only one door is used to control the crowd. The occupancy for the Pub is 95. A waiting line in the Snack Bar and outside the Pub is being used to avoid overcrowding.

Police presence in the Student Union has been increased due to overcrowding and fights.

CSU: A Massive Industry

With a state appropriation of just under $1 billion, The California State University generated $5.2 billion in business volume in 1981-82, results of a massive survey showed today.

CSU's impact as an "industry" was based on direct expenditures by the system's 19 campuses and their faculties, staffs, students and visitors as well as additional expenditures created by a multiplier effect.

The finding is among many emerging from a year-long analysis of the economic impacts of The California State University introduced to the Board of Trustees' Committee on Educational Policy at a meeting on the campus of CSU, Los Angeles. It will be discussed at the Committee's next meeting in January.

"For the first time we are able to document what we have long known—that our State University campuses, functioning for the furtherance of knowledge and professional preparation, also create a substantial positive economic force throughout California," Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds said.

"College graduates tend to generate jobs for others. They form a pool of community and economic leaders. They advance knowledge and the arts. They participate as voters. They elevate the health levels of themselves and of the population. They are less likely to commit violent crimes. And they contribute positively to economic growth."

The study, comprising more than 200 pages, was prepared for the California Postsecondary Education Commission which is assembling a summary of the economic impact on the state of all public and private colleges and universities.

With 1981-82 as the base year for many of its findings, the CSU survey noted that the campuses generated far beyond their state appropriations in terms of influencing employment, income and effective demand for goods and services in the business, governmental and individual sectors of the economy.

For every $1 of CSU-related expenditures by the campuses, by faculty and staff, by students and by visitors, a total of $2.37 of business volume was created in California, the findings show.

Principals in preparation of the study were Sally Loyd, Dr. William J. Mason and Dr. David Leveille of the Office of the Chancellor and Dr. Alex Cassuto of CSU, Hayward, with assistance of Dr. Marion Beaumont, a consultant from the systemwide Academic Senate.

Other highlights of the report include: For every job in The California State University, as many as 4.4 jobs are created outside the university due to demands for goods and services. In 1981-82, total employment attributable to the presence of the CSU was 240,466 jobs, though CSU and its auxiliary organizations employed only 44,226. 1978-79 graduates will earn an additional estimated $2 billion (present value) during their lifetime due to their college education. They will pay an additional estimated $100 million in state taxes and nearly $500 million in additional federal taxes than individuals whose education stopped with a high school degree. Comparable amounts are generated yearly with each

Chancellor Proposes Constitutional Status

California State University Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds today hailed the introduction by Sen. Alfred Alquist (D-San Jose) of legislation calling for state constitutional status for the 19-campus CSU system. The announcement of the proposed amendment was made at a meeting of the Board of Trustees in Long Beach by Reynolds and Board Chairman John O'Connell, former President of the Bechtel construction firm and CSU, Chico alumnus.

"The constitutional amendment would officially recognize that the State University and its lay Board of Trustees are ready to assume full responsibility for the operation of our campuses," Reynolds said.

"The California State University," O'Connell pointed out, "is now a mature system with a demonstrated record of effective and efficient management. The system and its board members are willing and able to assume full responsibility. Constitutional status would mean that our campuses could be operated in much the same way that local boards run community college districts and the way in which the Regents administer the University of California. Although restrictive, costly procedures and controls would be eliminated by this action, the CSU would be subject still to fiscal accountability through the state budget process."

O'Connell and Reynolds urged the state Legislature to give careful consideration to the proposal which, if passed by a two-thirds vote, would place the issue of constitutional status on the November 1984 ballot.

"California voters should be given a chance to hear the case for constitutional status and to vote upon it," Reynolds observed.

Constitutional status for the State Universities was first recommended in the 1960 Master Plan for Higher Education and later by a blue ribbon constitutional commission after a two-year review of the issue.

"Institutions in other states with constitutional status are among the finest universities in the country," stated Reynolds.

Needed: Volunteers and Interns

Merrill Community Services, Inc. contracts with the county of San Bernardino for the delivery of school based prevention and outpatient drug free treatment services. Because of our recent expansion of services to the community we have an urgent need for interns and volunteers. MCS can offer you valuable on-the-job experience in the development of lesson plans and the delivery of classroom presentations; assisting with parenting workshops; working with small groups; and both individual and family counseling sessions.

The experience gained through our agency will make a genuine contribution to your educational experience, and an impressive addition to your resume. If interested please contact Shirley Chaney, School Coordinator at 823-0609 or 823-0600.

New "Rights On Arrest" Cards From the ACLU

The American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California has just issued an updated version of its popular pocket-sized "Rights on Arrest" cards. The cards, which are available in English, Spanish and Chinese, provide useful, accurate information about an individual's basic rights when confronted by a police officer.

The information on the cards was compiled by ACLU-NC staff attorney Amitai Schwartz in light of recent court decisions. Written in easy-to-understand language, the cards are a useful tool for everyone to have on hand.

The "Rights on Arrest" cards are being distributed by the ACLU-NC as part of its continuing effort to inform people about their basic rights.

Individual copies are available free of charge. Orders of 50 or more cost $5 for 50. To order, write "Rights on Arrest", ACLU-NC, 1663 Mission St., San Francisco 94103 or call 621-2488. Please specify which language and quantity.

Low Cost Legal Help Offered To Area College Students

Low-cost legal service is being offered to college students in the Riverside-San Bernardino area by the Graduate Student Council at the University of California, Riverside.

Through the College Legal Clinic, a network providing several area colleges with help from volunteer attorneys, the council is offering consultations, emergency assistance, and referral to UC Riverside undergraduates and students from the surrounding area for a $10 annual fee.

UC Riverside graduate students are obtained at the UCR campus once each month in the office of the Graduate Student Council, 1119 Library south, or each Thursday night at Cal State Fullerton, one of the participating colleges.

The clinic was established because college students often need the advice of a lawyer but can't afford to see a private attorney, said Lisa Duran, vice president of the UCR Graduate Student Council. The other participating schools are UC Irvine and Cal Poly Pomona.

More information is available from UCR at 787-3740. An information line about the clinic, doubling as a 24-hour legal hotline, has been established in Fullerton, at 870-5757.

Report On Kendall Drive Available

An engineering report, "Negative Declaration and Initial Study-State Route 206 (Kendall Drive)-Lane Addition," is available at the reference desk of the Pfau Library. Construction plans include the addition of two lanes, a two-way left turn lane, traffic signals and a bike lane. Costs of the construction, which is slated to begin in early 1986, is about $565,000.

Army and Air Force Hometown news

Master Sgt. James R. Santianna, son of Rocco J. and Marie Santianna of New Jersey, has been named outstanding senior non-commissioned officer of the year for the 20th Tactical Fighter Wing at RAF Upper Heyford, England. He is a 1980 graduate of California State College, San Bernardino.

His wife, Air Force Capt. Debra W. Santianni, is the daughter of William T. Wright Jr. of 610 Central Ave., Fitzgerald, Ga.

Magazine Seeks Prose, Fiction

College alumni and students are invited to submit their prose fiction and poetry for consideration for the 1984 edition of The Pacific Review, a campus literary magazine.

The deadline for manuscripts is March 1. Material should be sent to the School of Humanities Office, PL 233.

Finance Association Meeting

The Finance Association has scheduled an important meeting concerning all finance majors. Topics to be covered are extremely vital to the furtherment of all finance majors' academic prowess at Cal State. Meeting will be Wed., Jan. 25 10:30 a.m. in the Senate Chambers.

Senate Fellowship Program

Senate Rules Committee Chairman David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, announced that February 1, 1984 is the deadline for applicants to the 1984-85 Senate Fellowship Program.

The nine month program begins in Sacramento the first week of November, 1984. A Fellow's tenure can be extended up to three additional months.

College graduation by the commencement of the Fellowship is required. Individuals with advanced degrees, or those in mid-career, are also encouraged to apply.

Senate Fellows are assigned to the personal or committee staffs of the Senate members. Responsibilities include legislative research and bill analysis, constituent casework, and other administrative duties.

Application forms and information brochures are available through college and university Career Planning and Placement offices, or from the district office of the applicant's Senator. Additional information and application forms can be obtained by contacting the Senate Fellowship Program Office, State Capitol, Suite 409, Sacramento, Ca., 95814. The telephone number is (916) 324-5927.

Book Co-Op Payback Deadline Extended

The Associated Students' Book Co-Op will sell books for one more day and then officially conclude its business with paybacks and book returns on Monday, January 23, but A.S. President Rod Hendry extended the deadline for picking up books or money to Friday, January 27 at noon. After January 27 unsold books and money received from sales, but unclaimed, will become property of the Associated Students and be part of the Book Co-Op operating fund. Fred Grammer, Book Co-op co-ordinator, indicated the Co-Op would be in operation again during finals of winter quarter. Books will be taken in then with students setting their own prices. Take-ins will continue through the quarter break and into registration. Sales will begin during registration and continue into the second week of classes.

"We feel the Co-Op is an especially valuable A.S. service," stated Grammer, "We all hope all students will realize it is available and take advantage of it." Information about the Co-Op can be obtained by calling the A.S. office at 887-7494.

Dr. Rita Manning will speak at the Philosophy Club party this Friday.

DR. MANNING TO SPEAK ON LINK BETWEEN PORNOGRAPHY & SEXUAL VIOLENCE

Dr. Rita Manning, Philosophy Club faculty advisor, will speak on the possible causal link between pornography and sexual violence at the Philosophy Club party Friday night, Jan. 27 at 7:30.

The talk will include a reading of her thesis followed by an informal "conversation about the moral and political implications," as well as a "critical review of the studies on the subject" according to Dr. Manning.

As with previous club activities, all students, regardless of this major, are invited to attend. Carol Dolan club President adds that an informal party will follow the talk and discussion.

Norma Zimmer is hosting the party at her home which is located at 515 Sonora, San Bernardino.

Directions to the party can be obtained on the second floor of the library or by calling 883-5588.

GLU Sponsors Movie

The film, "Pink Triangles," a documentary designed to explore prejudice against gay men and lesbians will be presented by The Gay and Lesbian Club.

The film's title was derived from the triangular-shaped patch gay men were forced to wear while imprisoned in Nazi concentration camps during WWII. The patch was to identify homosexuals, which the Nazis believed were a disgrace to the German state.

Today's attitudes toward homosexuality are addressed and re-evaluated through a series of interviews. A historical perspective of the issue is also discussed.

The film will be shown Tuesday, January 24 at 7 and 8 p.m. in the SUMP, and Wednesday, January 25 at noon and 1 p.m. in PL 27.

Admission is free.

BOD

In coming weeks this column will give a brief overview of the actions of the AS Board of Directors during the past week. The BOD, composed of elected student representatives from each of the academic schools (administration, dual and interdisciplinary majors, education, humanities, natural sciences and social and behavioral sciences) is the primary legislative body of the Associated Students and has primary responsibility for the fiscal affairs of AS including disbursement of over $91,000 in student fees.

BOD Agenda

Students are encouraged to attend A.S. board meetings, currently being held on Wednesdays, 2-4 p.m. in the Student Union Senate Chambers, and to voice their opinions to the BOD representatives. An agenda for the meetings will be published weekly in the Chronicle. Those wishing to have items placed on future agendas should contact AS Vice President, Steve Winker at 887-7494.

CSSA

In maintaining the A.S.'s commitment to keeping students informed; this column will contain issues, concerns, and bills which are being dealt with at the state level. The Associated Students represents you in these matters through the Calif. State Students Assoc. (CSSA). The CSSA is composed of the nineteen Calif. State Univ. Assoc. Student presidents and/or their representatives. They meet monthly to discuss items or bills before the Legislature and issues or actions of the Chancellor's office and the Board of Trustees (the governing board for the CSU system).

Look to this column in following issues to learn more about the governor's budget and the proposed $42 fee reduction, the position of the CSSA on such issues as a foreign language requirement, a computer access fee, or any other issues which may have an effect on students.

Did You Know?

Do you know what is provided by your Associated Student fee? Consider some of the following: activities expenses (speakers, videos, dances etc.); Committee for Clubs budget (money to help clubs put on events and activities); student services-emergency loans, IEALC (Library Cooperative), legal assistance, Evening Services Office, Child Care Center parent fee subsidy, Career Week, Housing Office (money for activities and events); Freshman Intro; student newspaper, intramurals, ESCAPE programs, CSSA dues, costs for yearly elections, the book co-op, the operational expense of running the Associated Students office, and other services.

If you're not sure what some of these programs entail, what they involve, or how you can benefit from them, read this column in following issues.

Library Answers Student Frustrations

Frustrated, confused, and tired of looking through mountains of books that have nothing to do with your research? Your term paper is due tomorrow, you haven't found one bit of information regarding your subject, and the library is closing in fifteen minutes. Has this ever happened to you?

Fear no more. The John M. Pfau Library provides several avenues for finding information. To make life liveable within its confines, the library offers a staff of 29, workshops, guided tours, and informative handouts.

John Tibbols, librarian and head of Patron Services, elaborates, "Well qualified members of the library staff can be found on each of the four floors to help you with your questions. Each fall a workshop is given pertaining to research paper construction and resources. Guided tours are offered to individuals, small groups, and entire classes. Individuals may request mini-tours at anytime." Tibbols stressed that larger groups should reserve a time in advance. Classes are given specific subject orientations on instructor's request, so give your professor a nudge and get in there!

Lyn Young, a paraprofessional librarian assistant of sixteen years, can be helpful in finding unique publications. She states, "The library has a duty to provide its patrons with a broad spectrum of information. It is not in the business of censoring, just in making accessible many sources of information."

The library has something for everyone. This includes 400,000 books, more than 2,000 periodicals, and 30 newspapers. The newspapers range from The San Bernardino Sun to the London Times. C.I.A. documents and records of the Joint Chiefs of Staff can be easily located for those enrolled in the new Strategic Studies program.

Specialty reference books are in abundance. Information U.S.A. contains a chapter on "How To Find A Free Expert and Free Information on Anything." An excerpt from U/S Statistical Report on the American People reveals how to "adopt-a-horse." The U.S. Department of Interior offers wild horses and burros for adoption to qualified applicants. Wondering if you're qualified? Before you build a stable, consult the book.

The library has much more to offer than just books. Musical recordings and scores, maps, and curriculum materials are just a few of the offerings. Did you know that on the fifth floor there is a topographical lunar globe?

Special facilities such as study cubicles, group study rooms, typing rooms, listening facilities, photocopying machines, microfilm rooms, and a map room are accessible to all.

Being student-oriented is the goal of the CSCSB library. John Tibbols emphasizes, "Our main priority is to support student needs and to reflect the curriculum. Second is to supply research materials for the faculty. A low third priority is to have recreational reading materials on hand for our patrons, including newspapers, Victorian novels, and various magazines."

Oh, yes, don't forget that library book you checked out last quarter and neglected to return.

These are just a few of the many periodicals available to students in the Pfau Library.

Library Offers More Than Books

by Lyle Hutchins

Have you read any good books lately? The John M. Pfau Library has more than 400,000 books and periodicals from which to choose.

"We have the highest ratio of books per student in the California State University system," said John Tibbols, Head of Patron Services for the Pfau Library. Tibbols explained that the average ratio in the CSU system is fewer than 50 books per student, while here at CSCSB, the average is more than 100 books per student.

In addition to books and periodicals, the Pfau Library offers more than 6,000 selections of recorded music, which may be enjoyed in any one of its 15 listening rooms.

When asked what other services are offered to CSCSB students by their library, Tibbols replied, "I hope the students will come in and find out. I think that using their library will make their college experience more complete and rewarding."

Although a cut in library funds has forced a reduction in staffing, there has been no reduction in the amount of hours the library is open to students. Those hours are: Monday-Thursday 8 a.m.-10 p.m., Friday 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Sunday 12 noon-8 p.m.

Video Facility Available To Students On Campus

by Jena Plourde

There's an invasion taking place...

High technology in communications.

Place: here.

Where?! In the John Pfau Library...down in the basement where the Audio Visual Department is located.

Director Dr. Robert Senour said that in the "eight years I've been here the emphasis has gone from chalkboards and over-head projectors to micro-computers and video equipment."

"Simply be aware of the world you're going to live in," said Senour, who has a Masters' Degree in Learning Psychology and a Ph.D. in Instructional Technology. "We are moving to an information storage-retrieval-and-use society." Learning about the equipment in the A.V. Dept. will familiarize you with the rapidly invading technology of communication.

"Students can use anything and everything we have here on campus," said Senour. "We'll also give you technical assistance—we'll help you write scripts if they're needed, set up the equipment for you and help you run it. Or, you can check out something you do know how to use and watch a program that teaches the use of other equipment and how to run it."

But wait a minute. Scripts? Sure. There's a small studio down there with microphone, audio recorders, a boom mike and color video-tape cameras. You can create your own short "film" or, if you have a big report due on a subject, you can go on down, learn the equipment and develop anything from your own slide show to a full video program to give the report a boost.

You can check out 35mm cameras and take them off campus to shoot slides, or with some training, take a video camera and a porta-pak off campus to get the shots you might need or just want.

O.K., so you don't know if you're quite ready to go down and tackle creating a feature-length video just yet. But, you would like to go down and watch a video tape already made. No problem.

Besides the 35mm's and video cameras available to check out, there is other equipment and audio visual programs already made. There are 80 cassette players and about "270 calculators about 90% educational material and the audio tapes usually accompany the filmstrips or slides or can be things like interviews with famous people at conventions or appearances.

The video tapes have a much wider range, increasing number by about 400 a year. There is a 1983-84 video tape catalogue containing hundreds of titles for your perusal, ranging from Laurel and Hardy to Shakespeare to documentaries. The documentaries can be anything from Presidential addresses and Congressional debates to natural catastrophes like volcanoes and floods to tapes of military invasions. (Hey, even the Falkland Islands are down there...)

The A.V. Dept. is responsible for more than just checking out equipment and showing how to use it. It has a resident photographer who shoots for multi-media presentations, theatre and we check out every quarter." You can check out slide programs, audio tapes, filmstrips or films and video tapes to watch in private rooms. (You can also bring your own stuff to watch down there.)

The films and slides are campus publicity, and is responsible for taking pictures as a way of recording all artwork that is hung in the campus art gallery.

"I also teach photography—beginning and advanced—at Biola University in La Mirada," said photographer, Carey Van Loon.

Besides the Director, there are two other key people that work in the department. The job of knowing where everything is and if it's in the right place at the right time is that of the Distribution

"We've sure got a lot more equipment now."

Coordinator, Maria Lootens. She not only does all the locating but is responsible for making sure classes like Music 180 have all the individual recordings they need. (About 200 for Music 180 alone.)

Another person to witness the recent technological invasion is the A.V. Dept. Equipment Technician, Jack Hawkins. "We've surely got a lot more equipment now. I've been here eight years and our work load has increased 600% since then," said Hawkins, who services all the audio visual equipment on campus from 35mm cameras to the micro-computers. As for recent developments "we're now using about three times more video tape than film, and when I first got here it was 50% black and white and 50% color on video tape."

The Audio Visual Dept. doesn't have a full major of its own yet, but it does have a Certificate Program. The program awards a certificate in Educational Technology or consult with Dr. Senour on designing a Special Major with an emphasis in Educational Technology.

Even if you're not interested in incorporating the A.V. Dept. into your major, you can still go down and check out some of the equipment or learn how to use it.

You can call the A.V. Dept. at 887-7296 from 8-5, Monday through Friday.

Want to watch the video of the Falkland Island Invasion or make your own rock video? Go on down, check it out and learn something about the high technology society you've come to live in.

HEALTH CORNER

This is a weekly column. If you have any health-related questions that you would like answered, drop your questions in the box in the Health Center Lobby.

1. Can food allergies cause migraine headaches?

Yes. Some foods, such as chocolate and cheese, can cause migraine headaches. That doesn't mean that food allergies cause all migraines, though.

So, if you find certain foods (or anything else) that leads to a migraine headache, you should avoid that food or offending agent. Therefore, there is no good evidence that going on a "food allergy diet" by avoiding all kinds of common foods will lessen migraine headaches.

2. Is ear wax really wax, and what purpose does it serve? Is using a cotton swab for cleaning inside the ear harmful?

A cotton ball may be used to clean the outer ear, but nothing should be inserted into the ear canal. This can damage the delicate lining and/or the tympanic membrane, which is the ear drum. A good rule is "nothing smaller than your elbow should be put in your ear."

3. What causes menstrual cramps? Can stress make menstrual cramps worse? What treatment is used for them?

Menstrual cramps are caused by a substance called prostaglandin. This substance is thought to be produced in the endometrium, the lining of the uterus. Chemically, fatty acids are supposedly released from cholesterol esters to form prostaglandin. There are other pathological causes of menstrual cramps such as tumors, adenomyosis, endometriosis, pelvic adhesions, etc. Medically, menstrual cramps are known as dysmenorrhea. Yes, stress, tension, and problems such as deadlines to meet, and final examinations, can aggravate dysmenorrhea.

The present treatment for menstrual cramps is the use of a relatively new group of drugs known as anti-prostaglandins. These block prostaglandins before they become active. The anti-prostaglandins are prescription drugs, and the most popular ones are Motrin, Anaprox, and Ponstel.

4. Should I use ice or wet or dry heat for a sprained ankle?

Many people, including professionals, have different opinions. In general, when the accident first occurs, ice is the best therapy to keep the swelling to a minimum. After 24 hours, then heat is a good form of treatment. Generally, heat applied externally wet or dry is used for two purposes: a) to localize or "bring to a head" superficial infections, or b) to relax muscle spasms and relieve muscle soreness. For either of these two, it makes little difference whether heat is applied wet or dry. Physicians have personal preferences, but there is no scientific evidence to prove one is better than the other.

5. Can you take too much Vitamin A?

Yes. The maximum to be taken daily without supervision by a physician is 10,000 international units. The symptoms and signs of too much Vitamin A are: nausea, vomiting, malaise, drying and cracking of skin or lips, irritability, headaches, and loss of hair. If the Vitamin A is stopped, the symptoms will begin to fade within a week. Except in infancy, pregnancy, lactation, and proven instances of Vitamin A deficiency, Vitamin A supplements are rarely, if ever necessary.

Family Theatre

On Friday, Feb. 10 the Firebird Theatre Company's production of "The Labors of Heracles" will not only introduce the student to classical Greek mythology, but help integrate the concept of how both the arts and sports can enrich the quality of life. The Company makes the play a comedy using volunteers from the audience to play the parts of the various tasks.

Finally, because the Olympic Games are coming to L.A., the Company is proud to offer some historical insights into the origin of the Olympics.

Children, 14 years and under, $1.50; Adult, $3.

Ticket sales begin Jan. 24, on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Walk-in sales at the Student Union Desk between 8:30-3:30, M-F.

Phone reservations will not be accepted.

Mail orders will begin Jan. 24. They will be accepted in order of arrival.

Mail orders must be postmarked by Feb. 1. The tickets will be available at the Student Union Desk until the date of performance. If seats are available, tickets will be sold at the Box Office the night of the performance.

class of graduates; Local governments receive about $224 million in tax revenues because of the CSU presence, and $472 million in tax and other revenues are received by state government because of CSU activity.

The number of Californians completing four or more years of college increased by 1.3 million from 1970 to 1980. CSU accounts for over one-third of these additional university graduates, and that CSU continues to confer more than half the baccalaureate degrees awarded in California was also noted. Additionally, although the 1980 national unemployment rate was 6.2%, the unemployment rate was only 2% among college graduates. States with large proportions of college graduates are likely to avoid substantial unemployment costs.

If CSU graduates typify their colleagues around the country, 95.4% percent of male graduates and 74.3% of women graduates from 1960 to 1981--over 650,000 people--are now in the labor force. CSU alumni probably make up about 60% of the State's civilian workforce.

Financial Aid Deadlines Fast Approaching

The deadline for financial aid priority for the 1984-85 school year is nearing fast.

The deadline for Cal Grant applications is February 9. The Cal Grant program consists of three separate programs with differing qualifications. Check with the Financial Aid office (SS-143, 887-7741) to see if you are eligible.

Other financial aid options are available. Loans, work study programs, grants from the national and state governments, and scholarships are available to eligible students. Most of these have a March 1 priority deadline.

Private sources of funds are also available.

College students expecting to need financial aid or summer employment are urged to write now to the Scholarship Bank. According to the director, Steve Danz, private financial aid donors consider applications on a year-round basis and now is the best time to start looking for fall '84 aid. The Scholarship Bank will send each student a print-out of up to 50 sources of aid that appear just right for each student based on his/her response to a questionnaire sent by the bank.

The Scholarship Bank is the largest organization in the U.S. devoted to finding private financial aid for students, and each year receives over 10,000 requests for such information. According to the director, the bank supplements the work of the college financial aids office by finding private funding sources such as from civic, trade, educational and industry groups.

This year the bank has added 2,500 new summer employment jobs and urges students who wish to find summer work in their chosen professional fields to write for information. The director recently announced the introduction of a new computer, Victor 9000 to handle scholarship data and give students free yearly updated information.

Students with financial need should send a business-size, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Scholarship Bank, 10100 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca., 90067.

Berkeley Expedition

Do you find yourself wishing you'd been there after reading accounts of excavations of ancient civilizations, explorations of underwater worlds or investigations of animal behavior in remote parts of the world? Are you challenged by the idea of searching for solutions to some of the world's unknowns? Would you like to work alongside researchers in the field and make the discoveries other people read about?

If you answer yes to any of the above, you are already a prime candidate for a University of California research team and your next destination could be the history-laden islands of the Mediterranean, a South Pacific coral reef or tropical rain forest in South America for two or three of the most intriguing weeks of your life. The University Research Expeditions Program is currently recruiting people who want to share in the excitement of scientific discovery as active members of small research expeditions in the United States and abroad.

No special academic or field experience is necessary for most projects. UREP participants help cover research expenses by making a tax-deductible contribution which also covers their food and accommodations during the expedition. In return, they are invited to take part in the daily tasks of field research teams, learning basic techniques once at the project site even though they may have no special background in the field of study.

Expeditions open to public participation in 1984 include excavating Biblical era sites in Israel or ancient Maya sites in Belize, observing behavior of the world's smallest penguins in Australia or rain forest mammals in Papua New Guinea, searching for clues to the geological evolution of the Mediterranean or 200 million year old fossils in Nevada, studying the application of Aztec farming techniques in modern Mexico and collecting tropical flora in Brazil, the Virgin Islands or New Caledonia. The contributions for these and other expeditions range from $525 to $1425, excluding airfare (which may be deductible as well).

For a free catalog describing all expeditions planned for the 1984 field season, contact: University Research Expeditions Program (UREP), University of California, Desk 3984, Berkeley, CA 94720 or call (415) 642-6586.

"ANNIE"

"Annie," starring Krista Leonard as the comic strip waif, and Norwood Smith as the billionaire, Daddy Warbucks, opens for a limited engagement, February 17 through February 25 (except Sunday) at the California Theatre of Performing Arts, 562 West 4th St., San Bernardino. Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m. Because of the immense popularity of this family-oriented musical, two Saturday matinees have been scheduled for February 18 and February 25 with curtain time set for 2:15 p.m.

Krista Leonard has appeared in numerous musicals, including "Oliver," "Annie Get Your Gun," and "Hansel and Gretel." She appeared in the Walt Disney Production, "Mousercise" and recorded several songs for the film.

Smith, who appeared as Daddy Warbucks in the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera production of the musical, starred on Broadway in "The Music Man," "Can Can," "Silk Stockings," and "Guys and Dolls."

Featured in San Bernardino production as F.D.R. will be Tom Hatten, host of television's "Popeye" and Family Film Festival. Hatten toured nationally in the same role for two and one-half years.

"Annie," the seventh longest running Broadway musical, includes the hit song, "Tommorrow," along with such songs as "Easy Street," "It's A Hard Knock Life," "Little Girls," "I Don't Need Anything But You," and "Maybe."

Randy Charnin, son of "Annie's" lyricsist and Broadway director, Martin Charnin, appeared in several CSCSB productions and graduated last June from Cal State.

Tickets for "Annie" can be purchased at the Civic Light Opera Box Office, 2079 North E. Street, San Bernardino, or ordered by phoning 882-2545 or 825-9452.

Record Trivia
Answers to last week's questions:

1) Steve Perry sang with a band entitled Alien Project before he signed on with Journey.

2) 90125 is the catalogue number as well as the title for the new Yes album.

This week's questions:

1) What was Jimmy Page's first major recording project?

2) Who was the original leader of Fleetwood Mac? Carl should know this one!

Operas on Campus

Thanks to the working partnership between the Department of Music and the Inland Art Society, two major Mozart operas are scheduled to be performed on our campus in the Recital Hall during the last two weeks of January.

Don Giovanni will be sung in Italian and be performed the following evenings at 8 p.m.: Saturday, January 28; Sunday, January 29.

The Marriage of Figaro will be sung in English and be performed on the following evenings at 8 p.m. (except where noted): Thursday, January 26; Sunday, January 29 (2 p.m. matinee).

These are not workshops but full productions with orchestra, costumes, and sets. Singers have come from all the U.S. and coaches and directors are associated with the Met and with Aspen.

Tickets are normally $10 per performance, but because of our arrangement with the Inland Opera Society they will be available to students, faculty, staff and administrators of Cal State for $8. Please call the Music Department at 887-7454 to order your tickets. Make sure you identify yourself as an employee of Cal State.

Biathlon WinnerOccasionally Results are Worth the Price

by John Hoge

Pushing myself to sweat or study has never been a part of my fondest memories categories. When I do exercise the discipline necessary to do either the results are occasionally well worth the price.

Such was the case this past Tuesday, January 18 when Joe Long, Cal State's Intramural Director, informed me that I had won the annual Cal State San Bernardino Intramural Biathlon. Our biathlon is a bit different from the authentic race which is composed of cross country skiing and shooting. When snow is available competitors secure skis to their boots and strap on technically sophisticated rifles. They ski a course consisting of typical, rough backcountry terrain pausing only to fire at targets from the standing (unsupported), then kneeling (supported), and finally prone (supported) positions.

Those of you who shoot or ski can understand the inherent difficulties that the competitors deal with when racing. Cross country skiing requires expending incredible amounts of energy and strength, which means the racer is breathing hard and fast. Normally, when cross country skiing, this condition is taken for granted and welcomed since it improves cardiovascular performance. Now add the discipline (and it is a discipline) of target shooting, and you have certain parts of the body working against each other. Muscles which move and assist to maintain the proper amounts of oxygen for performance are commanded to be still.

Stillness is the tool of the shooter and archer, and the biathlete demands it of his or her body. We think "stop breathing, stop moving, I'll breathe again when I run."

Last year I handily outran my immediate competitor but was outrun by another student(s). My shooting is my strong point and thanks to a fellow competitor who pushed me in the run my overall time was decisive this year. Cal State's Intramural Biathlon combines running, rather than skiing, with shooting pellet rifles. Two times are recorded, you're actual finishing time and you're adjusted time for inaccurate shooting penalties.

On the Spring Intramural schedule will be the triathlon, for those who swim, bike and run, and the Decathlon. Cal State's decathlon will consist of shooting, swimming, high jump, rope climb, obstacle course the first day. One week later bench press, standing broad jump, shot put, mile run and one other event.

Intramural t-shirts are awarded to the winners of all intramural events. No student has won the biathlon, triathlon and decathlon in the same year. Any takers?

Long Bullds CSCSB Intramural Program

by Walter Terry

Joe Long has some goals in mind for intramural sports. Primarily he wants to involve as many students as possible in at least one intramural activity and secondly, to get them involved in other events. If this succeeds he will then try to get them to meet other objectives, such as maintaining better health and expanding social contacts.

The intramural program offers a well rounded program with different events, and they would like to see more balanced student participation. Where there is an obvious student interest they can add activities, because the program is funded by students. Special events are offered now are unique and often involve non-athletic students, and Long wants to make it clear that participants don't have to be former varsity to participate. A great many of the students might have never played in varsity, but have a great deal of athletic ability. He would like to see more women students involved in female events, because at this time, there's not much involvement in just female sports. Also if there is an expressed interest, sports programs for students with disabilities will be offered.

All CSCSB students paying AS fees are entitled to take part in the program as well as the faculty and staff. If someone is interested in a team they only have to sign up on the bulletin board in the PE building across the hall from the equipment issue room. Handbooks for intramural sports can be picked up at Joe Long's office in PE 124, though they are primarily intended for the team captains, and poster with the winter schedule is available to any student who wants one. Specially designed intramural t-shirts may be earned, either by participation or by winning an event. All game equipment is provided by the intramural department for each event, but individuals must provide their own personal equipment.

There is also part-time employment available for students such as scorekeepers and officials in the games. Previous knowledge of the sport is helpful, but pre-season training is available.

Long likes working with the college age groups, because they're mature adults but still curious. And the AS sports committee, which advises and supports the intramural program, is just beginning to reactivate under the direction of Steve Tyrell, but they need more participating people.

Cranston Fights Nuclear Power

Contrary to what the nuclear power industry would have us to believe, nuclear power is not cost effective, safe, or clean.

If elected, Alan Cranston has vowed to close down all domestic nuclear power plants by the year 2000. Such an action would take tremendous support from the American consumers who have been milked by the nuclear industry. Hopefully, by enlightening the American consumers of the astronomical costs that they have had to absorb because of the failings of the nuclear power industry, Cranston can instigate some action even if he is not elected.

For too long the American people have had to shoulder the costly mistakes of this industry. Not only have we been sapped monetarily, we are faced with the tremendous dangers of this type of power.

Losses should be cut short now. The public should no longer have to spend billions more on a costly and dangerous power supply.

How to Get Away With Murder

After five years in prison, Dan White is a free man. His jury found that stress, compounded by a diet of junk food, was excuse enough for a diminished capacity verdict. Not just anyone could have done what Dan White did and essentially get away with it.

The media focus is over, but the sad truth about our judicial system still remains. A white male, with political backing, money, and persuasive lawyers and psychiatrists can pretty much get away with murder—not only one, but two.

Such rank injustices, like White and John Hinckley, need to make us pause and take a serious look at the institution that defines our society.

CSCSB INQUIRY

Questions:

What do you think about the Civil Rights Commission's opposition to affirmative action hiring quotas?

Steven Crandell, Sociology

I disagree with their decision! With the emphasis on "Equal Rights" for women and the way "America" has treated the minorities in the past, if we were to take one of their guaranteed opportunities away, then we're depriving them of what our Constitution stands for! I feel that it should become a law that woman and minorities have the same rights and equal opportunities as the so called "free white man!"

Vaughn Dennis, Business Admin.

Although there may be, still, quite a bit of racial and sexual discrimination in the government and in business, I have serious reservations about programs which would exclude any person for a job or position because his/her adversary was needed to meet a "token." Assuming that both persons were equally qualified for this position, I would hope that the persons included in affirmative action would be given more consideration for a balanced and perhaps an "equaler" opportunity.

However, if one person is chosen over the other solely because this person fills a particular quota is seriously wrong and extremely dangerous.

Kathleen Coles, Human Services

I agree with their decision. The central theme behind hiring quotas is to assure equal opportunities to all; minorities inclusive. But, as all systems have a possible tendency to do so, the original motives and goals can get lost and abused. Hiring quotas limit the selection of persons for a job, possibly excluding a highly qualified person who happens to not be a legally defined minority. Who is the "minority" in such a case? The idea behind hiring quotas is very good and should not be abandoned, but in my opinion (also speaking as a minority—a woman), the hiring quota law's goals have become distorted and abused.

Jeri Reed, Social Science

While I can understand why people are opposed to hiring quotas, the fact is that racist and sexist practices still exist in many areas. If you look at the population statistics of major urban areas, you will find that they are close to half or in some cases more than half black and latino. If you look at the employment statistics for the police, fire and other departments of the same cities, I think you will find that women and minorities make up a small percentage of those employed, and an even smaller percentage in higher-level jobs. I think that hiring quotas have played a large part in any gains that have been made in these areas.

Letters to the Editor

More To Life Than Heavy Metal

Dear Editor,

Greg Timpany apparently assumes that everyone who attends Cal State San Bernardino is a middle class, White Anglo Saxon Protestant male when you consider the fact that his Record Rack column consists only of reviews of bands that play heavy metal or "good ol' Midwestern rock and roll." This tunnel-visioned coverage of popular music is further underscored by his omission or outright putdowns of other forms of music (especially New Wave). Someone needs to inform Greg Timpany that the majority of students here do not listen to the likes of Black Sabbath and John Cougar Mellencamp all the time. They listen to New Wave, as well as Soul, Funk, Reggae,

Jazz, Country and all the fusions and crossovers in between. If you want all the world to be nothing but heavy metal and "good ol' Midwestern Rock and Roll" Greg Timpany, then I suggest you go back to the farm in the Midwest where you belong.

Chris Ellis

"It was written to vent my 'Frustrations'..."

Ms. Ivy you have mistaken the point of my article concerning registration. My article was meant to be a satirical look at a very backwards and inefficient practice. The article was not meant to be prescriptive. I was not in the mood at the time to write an article suggesting improvements for registration procedures. The article was not written to attack any of those people who work at registration. It was written to vent my

"Frustrations" which has been building for the last four years, nothing more—nothing less! By the way, I do thank you for the time you spent reading my article.

Greg Timpany
