Chief Johnson Quits Job; Kadyk Named New Director

By Don Lannon

"Carl Johnson, campus Security Chief, has officially given me his resignation, effective the last day of this month," announced Kenton L. Monroe, Dean of Students, early this week.

Kety, a CSUSB graduate, will replace Johnson as the new Director of Campus Security, a title which, according to Dean Monroe, "is more consistent with the environment of a college."

Kadyk is an outstanding young man. He has been a security officer here for the past year. Prior to this, he had more than two years of part-time experience in law-enforcement," Monroe observed.

The Dean noted that at the present time the campus security force consists of six officers and two student assistants.

"The assistants," Monroe stated, "are equipped with two-way radios and have hook-ups with the full-time security officers. They (the assistants) patrol the parking lot areas."

Explaining the Dean, "We need somebody in the parking for the maximum number of hours possible to prevent... or decrease the likelihood of... theft and vandalism."

"We need more men," Monroe complained. "Most of the time we have only one man on duty."

"Purses, wallets and the like are being constantly stolen," he added, "and vandalism is common. But, with only one man on duty, there is no way that we can prevent these things from happening."

Monroe said that provisions were made in the July 1968 budget "for two additional positions," but that they were rejected by state officials.

"Not only did the request for two additional officers fail, but we lost one regular man as well," the Dean remarked.

Despite last year's setback, the college will request two additional officers in the 1969 budget.

Monroe believes that if we get the two additional men, we will be in a much stronger position to do a better job."

The Dean emphasized that "members of the campus police force are sworn-officers," and that "they have the same legal authority as any other police officer in this state."

Stated Dean Monroe, "Campus security officers carry weapons only after sunset, on weekends, and on holidays. These are times," Monroe stated, "when there are special dangers present on campus." He cited as examples frequent night visitations by gangs as the Hell's Angels, and Diabolos. "Security officers have not yet found it necessary to use their weapons," Monroe asserted.

Dean Monroe concluded, "Within the next two years, we hope to have at least two men on duty throughout the day and night. This should strengthen our position."

Jobs Open

Students who are still seeking part-time jobs are invited to register or reregister with the College's Placement Center, L-116, according to Doyle J. Stansel, Placement Director.

"At this time a number of good part-time job opportunities are available and we need to know which students are actually seeking jobs," says Stansel. However, many jobs have special requirements as to experience and hours.

Those who are interested in vacation employment during the Christmas holidays should begin their search as soon as possible. Stansel reports that very few vacation jobs have been listed with his office. Most students will find employment during this break between quarters by an open-door-to-door job hunt, he suggests.

Nagy: The East-Central European countries are no longer individual members of a socialist block, but are members of a 'socialist commonwealth.'

Nagy Indicts Russians for European Imperialism

By Ben Jacques

Speaking on "The Fight of Intellectuals for Freedom in East-central Europe," Dr. Ferenc Nagy, former prime minister of Hungary, last Tuesday traced the development of the struggle in communist-block countries for "freedom of thought."

With the recent Soviet Union armed invasion of Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Union has come "open imperialism," he said. "Russi invaded Czechoslovakia because if she could not defeat the efforts of intellectuals and intellectuals there, she could not do so at home. The East-central European countries are no longer individual members of a socialist block, but are, Nagy said, members of a 'socialist commonwealth.'"

Nagy, who has been in exile from Hungary since the 1956 Hungarian Revolution, said the revolution "was prepared by intellectuals who had become disillusioned" with the communist regime. After its "tragic end" the discontent spread to Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania, Czechoslovakia and other countries. He noted that Rumania had openly refused to break diplomatic relations with Israel during its 1967 war with the Arab countries, and had, against the wishes of Russia, set up diplomatic relations with West Germany.

As in Russia under Stalin, when the Soviet people found they were not being ruled by a socialist dictatorship of the people, but rather by a selfish regime intent on increasing its power, separate from the democratic Marxist ideals, so in Czechoslovakia the world could see the "brutal treatment" given the Czech leaders by the unmasked "new aristocracy" of the Soviet regime, said Nagy.

Nagy spoke briefly of the consequences of the 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia. He said that Hungary, by her open opposition to the invasion, made the Soviet Union "reject" Hungary as a member of the Bloc, and said that in future the Soviet Union "will remain united in oppression," he said, giving as strong support the fact that Moscow could not find among the Czech people anyone to replace party-leader Dubcek.

Nagy spoke briefly of the Moscow trials of several Russians who demonstrated against the Russian invasion and of the efforts for free expression by intellectuals and artists in the Soviet Union, noting that not since the 1917 revolution had there been any period of creativity.

"Turning to the peace talks presently going on in Paris, Nagy hoped the United States would not overlook the new Soviet threat to Europe in its desire to effect a peace in Southeast Asia, and said that if the West did, it would be a "bigger mistake than Munich," he called on Western students and intellectuals to make known their support for the 100 million people in East-central Europe in efforts to influence Western diplomacy.

In comments after the address Nagy spoke of Hungary, stating that the population increase in Hungary was the lowest in the world because of the low birth rate and the high abortion rate. The main problem, he said, is the "survival of Hungary." People do not think it is worthwhile to have children, he stated. This "sad philosophy" was the result of the cruel and repressive treatment of Hungary by the Soviet Union.

"Earlier progress in Czechoslovakia had come, noted Nagy, when liberal party members, chief of them, Alexander Dubcek, had allied themselves with writers, poets, professors and scientists who were working for changes in the socialist system. The Czech people did not want to break out of the socialist union, but to "develop their own socialism in their own way as required by their distinctive cultural and historical background."

Russia's "brutal treatment," he said, set the reform movement back, said Nagy, but "I'm not afraid at all for their future... The nation will remain united in opposition," he said, giving as strong support to the United States as they have given to the United States, he added.

The Death of American Political Freedom! This is the point S.D.S. tried to dramatically make with their look sartorial and symbolic burial. At noon. The victim was shot in the cafeteria and then born on a litter around the campus. He came to rest 30 minutes later in a grave near the Free-Speech area.
Apathy Revisited

It seems truly incredible that out of the 1,100 plus students that were affected by the passage or failure of the Student Union Proposal, only 434 bothered to vote on it. Certainly it sounds horribly redundant to classify this very disappointing voter response under the heading of general student apathy, but no other term seems to fit the situation. Where else could we lay the blame? The election certainly was no secret!

It has been suggested that the placement of the polls was discriminatory so that it would have been more logical to set them up in the patio of the Biological Sciences Building. This objection, however, seems terribly superficial. If people couldn’t be bothered to walk the short distance from the science area to the library, then they obviously weren’t very concerned with the outcome of the election.

The lack of voter interest in the Union Proposal is a particularly valid indicator of the minimal regard that students on this campus have toward things that directly affect their lives. In the Union Proposal we were confronted by a specific question. It was a question that had raised a large amount of controversy. It had elicited a substantial amount of both pro and anti-proposal activity. This was an issue that directly affected the students of this campus in an area that most consider crucial; namely the financial realm. Yet, only 40 percent of the student body was sufficiently aroused into two-minute intervals of painless action.

How all this can be true is inconceivable. The fact that student non-interest played an important role seems to have been left out of the failure of last Tuesday’s S.D.S. sponsored boycott of classes is not as clear cut as the affect it had on the Union election. However, the sparsity of response to the walk-out calls into question S.D.S.’s ability to mobilize its adherents.

This organization has played a major part in the student activities on many of this nation’s college campuses. It seems, however, that it will be necessary for them to adapt to the special considerations of this campus if they are to be successful. If S.D.S. is to act at the “pin that pricks the conscience of CSUSB students,” it is going to have to refocus its stabs.

Obviously their rallies and boycott have stimulated very little interest or “meaningful dialogue.” I think the members of S.D.S. should confess to this. The only event that they have staged so far that has at all succeeded was the sponsoring of Senate Candidate Paul Jacobs.

Perhaps this is an indication of the direction in which S.D.S. will have to aim if they are to become a real and potent force in the student life of this school. It has been potent force in the student life of this school. It has been a potent force in the student life of this school. It has been a potent force in the student life of this school.

But when reason failed to charm
No longer was he avide to savor
The death-dey
For when one truly fights for peace
Any weapon is okay

I pity our poor president
Chide him as I may
He is only a man, a soul, to a bankrupt’s grief
With only the comfort of a president’s meager
Don Blair

Union Failure

Editor:
I was amused (and pleased) to see the few anti-union posters helped to defeat a blitzkrieg of pro-union propaganda issued by the A.S. Government in the form of posters, mail circulars, and Pawprint advertising, and at a cost of some $250. The time and materials supplied in making the anti-union plan posters were donated to the cause.

Another interesting point is the fact that SDS names were on the pro-union petition in the Pawprint, and only 229 people voted yes on the petition.

Perhaps the anti-union plan posters showed to the student body that there existed, however small, organized resistance to having matters pushed through the student senate regardless of the will of the elected government. Even if there had been no anti-union posters, the blitzkrieg would probably have failed under its own inner tension. The anti-union plan vote shows that a mammoth amount of propaganda will not work, and that having meaningful dialogues would be a more effective method of convincing the student body of the merits of any plan.

Earl Dennis Cornell

Poor Vote

Why didn’t the student body vote for the proposed student union? Is it that they do not feel that they can do anything in this world? Is it that they find the problems so insurmountable that nothing they do will change the world? Or do they find themselves enraged when they think about the problems and then decide that nothing they can do is of any involvement? Or do we just have simple apathy? I do not know. One cannot fathom efficiency when enraged (look at some of the New Left) nor can one think back and mumble about how “they” ought to do something about “them” as typified in the New Right. There is only one solution for those of us who are unable to cope with the problems, and that is to nibble at the little ones which are important and which can be solved. For I recall this means politics at the local level, helping where we can. For some students, it may mean only learning — but learning also means beginning to be responsible. I congratulate all those who worked hard and against the proposal for a student union and those who thought seriously about what it meant to the college to have one, and who acted by voting. Let us hear from those who did not wish to participate in the vote. In these columns.

Dr. James O. Lewis, part consultant to the United States Office of Education has been invited to speak to those who are interested in the issues of the New York City Teacher’s strike. Dr. Lewis will relate to those in attendance an "in-person observation" analysis of that nationally and internationally publicized conflict.

This subject will be of interest to the entire student body, but of special interest to those concerned of those students pursuing an education in the position of employment. Should you be considering a career in the educational field you will want to attend this dialogue for an insight to the profession of teachers and school administrators and their interaction.

Dr. Lewis is now the Human Relations Executive for California Teacher’s Association. To place a man in this position of prominence you may be assured that he was selected on a basis of his extensive qualifications. Not only has Dr. Lewis been consultant to the U. S. gov’t but in addition, he has prior experience as public school teacher, guidance counselor, and a college professor.

The program will offer a period of time for question and answer, there too may be a chance for taking advantage of Dr. Lewis knowledge and find answers to along with their thoughts on the “Strike” and its latent and obvious effects.

If you are curious, or if you would like another viewpoint, please by all means come to this dialogue. This is just one of the many coming events to be brought to you by the CSCSB chapter of Student California Teachers Association in an effort to get you involved now, for your education, or perhaps just an evening. Everyone is invited to attend, and I hope many of you will see this dialogue!!

November 12 at 10:30 in room BS 101. . . do not be late there is a study group for psychology!!

Newman Club

Newman Foundation will sponsor its second fall program on Monday, November 11 in the cafeteria at 6:00 p.m. The topic to be discussed is “Interracial Marriage” with Professors Hiroaka and Ruttenberg serving as panelists and Professor Pink as moderator.

This should be an enlightening evening. Everyone is welcome and refreshments will be served afterwards.

On Friday, November 8 at 7:30 p.m., Newman Foundation will be sponsoring an informal discussion on the role of Newman on the Campus. Following the discussion there will be a social, everyone is invited to attend, and any guitar enthusiasts are encouraged to bring their guitars along with them. This event will be held at 2912 Harrington Ave., Apartment N, San Bernardino.

Financial Aids

Aid for Needy Students

By Tim Murphy

If you are worried about being able to stay in school because of monetary hang-ups, Mr. Doyle J. Stansel, Director of Placement and Financial Aid, would like to help you. "Federal and State aid programs are available if students have genuine need," Mr. Stansel stated. He then went on to describe the programs his office offers.

The Placement and Financial Aid office offers various scholarships such as the Educational Opportunity Grant Program, as well as the Work Study Plan. In using the various aid programs, the office of Placement and Financial Aid tries to aid individual students. The office of Placement and Financial Aid tries to aid individual students.

"Our problem is that we don't understand Communism." This was David Kunen's way of saying it is not when he spoke to some 60 people last Thursday evening on Poland, Hungary and Berlin today.

"Accompanying his lecture was a film shown in two parts entitled 'Penetrating the Satellites.'" The film offers help in career guidance and advice. But there is no doubt that the Placement and Financial Aid office can serve the needs of any student. We urge any student to come in early and have an initial interview.

"Citizen Kane" is one of the critical events in the history of film. The film shown in two parts entitled "Citizen Kane," was exhibited in the Pasadena Art Museum last Thursday evening. It was the object of public notice and comment. The film was made by the late Orson Welles, one of the most famous and controversial figures in the film industry.

"Citizen Kane" won both the Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay and the New York Critics' Award for Best Motion Picture. These qualities in themselves make this picture worth seeing. And besides, the price is right: admission is FREE.

Tuesdays, the Lectures and Public Affairs Committee is presenting "Citizen Kane" in Pl 10 at 8:00 p.m. Directed by and starring Orson Welles, this 1941 release also features Joseph Cotton, Agnes Moorehead, and Everett Sloan.

This flick is best capped by the description, "Orson Welles' first and most famous film." Orson Welles' devastating biography of a newspaper baron, "Citizen Kane," is one of the critical events in the history of film. The film shown in two parts entitled "Citizen Kane," was exhibited in the Pasadena Art Museum last Thursday evening. It was the object of public notice and comment. Sports Nite

S-F Game Featured

If sports and activities related to sports are your bag then the first annual semi-annual quarterly or maybe just occasionally CSCSB Sports Night should be right up your alley.

This event, newly pulled out of the Activities Committee’s bag of tricks, is scheduled for Saturday night in the new gym.

The agenda shapes up like this: from 7:00 p.m. there will be individual sports; volleyball, handball, tennis, card games, and numerous table games. At 9:00 p.m. the Student-Faculty basketball game is slated to begin. It will terminate either at the end of four or eight quarters or at the exhaustion of the participants stamina; whatever comes first.

The faculty team will probably consist of Professors Eberhard, Mayo, McAfee, Roberts, Blackey, Barkan, Schroeder, Pensel, O’Flann, Stein, Deans Monroe and Thomas, and perhaps even Pres. Plou. The student team has not yet been completely determined.

To conclude the evening there will be a record dance from 10:12 midnight. It is to be held in the small gym.

Tennis shoes are required for all activities that will be conducted in the gym.

“This is the first time we have tried this type of event,” Richard J. Bennecke, Activities Advisor, stated. “It is an all-college type of activity since there will be something for everyone.” “This is simply another effort to get the total college community involved in campus activities,” if it is successful,” Bennecke concluded. “We will try to present this type of event at least once a quarter.”

The next large scale activity being planned by the Activities Committee is the Christmas Dance. It will be held at the Mission Inn in Riverside on December 21. Lasting from 9:1-a.m., the dance will be semi-formal and there will, of course, be live music. Cost is tentatively set at two dollars per couple.

More “Gambit” Information

Whether good or bad, plays don’t just happen. Untold hours of planning, construction, and rehearsals go into every production before it is viewed by an audience. Our own Players of the Pear Garden for example, have spent the past four weeks preparing for this quarter’s dramatic presentation, Royal Gambit.

Royal Gambit, about Henry VIII and his wives, requires a skilled, hard-working cast and crew and has fortunately found both. Under the direction of William Stout, it promises to be a worthwhile viewing experience.

Presentation dates are November 15, 16, 22, and 23. Tickets are 75 cents for students, faculty, and staff and $1.50 for general admission. Curtain will be at 8:15 p.m.—don’t miss it!

Peace Corps, Air

Two agencies will be on campus Wednesday for the purpose of informing CSCSB students of employment and how to better raise rabbits, chickens, guinea pigs (for food), garden items and build hosue or beaded gowns, etc. Richard relates how the people in turn, “...showed me how to plow with oxen, make adobe bricks and weave. I went native to the point of dressing like an Indian, learning the native language and eating on packed-dirt floors.”
