GIFT TO THE COLLEGE—Jack H. Brown (standing), director of the Western Association of Food Chains, presents to President Anthony H. Evans a $4000 check for scholarships.

Food chains give $4000 in scholarships

Four $1000 scholarships for full-time students in business administration were presented to Cal State, San Bernardino March 9 by the Western Assn. of Food Chains.

The check was delivered to President Anthony H. Evans by Jack H. Brown, a director of the association and president of Stater Brothers Markets. Brown also is a member of the Board of Councillors, a community advisory group for the School of Administration.

The association, an organization of leading food chains in the 17 western states, also supports the food marketing program at USC.

"Many of us in the food industry feel close to the state colleges because we too have had to work while attending college," Brown said. He praised the college as being "on the horizon of greatness."

President Evans, who has been working vigorously to establish new links with the community, expressed appreciation for the association's "very warm support of the college."

Inauguration of President Evans Set for Tuesday, May 17

The pageantry of the inauguration of a college president will be experienced by Cal State, San Bernardino for the second time in its 18-year history when Dr. Anthony H. Evans is formally installed in office Tuesday, May 17.

The ceremony planned for 1:30 p.m. in the college gymnasium will be followed by a reception in the Commons. The simplicity of the scheduled events reflects the serious financial situation of the state, the CSU and the college.

Dr. Evans assumed the Cal State presidency Nov. 1, 1982, succeeding the founding president, Dr. John M. Pfau. He came to the San Bernardino campus from Eastern Michigan University, where he was vice president for academic affairs and provost.

The chairman of the Board of Trustees, John O'Connell, and the CSU chancellor, Dr. W. Ann Reynolds, will invest Dr. Evans as president of the college. Other members of the Board of Trustees and presidents of colleges in the CSU and throughout the area are expected to join in the colorful academic procession.

In addition to the marching faculty, the student body will be represented in the procession by students who have achieved 4.0 grade-point averages in their academic careers.

The college's first mace, the official symbol of the authority of the college, is being designed and fashioned by faculty and students in the Art Department. The Music Department is providing the traditional music.

The guest speaker for the inaugural ceremony will be Justice James Brickley from the Michigan Supreme Court. President Evans will give his response to the charge given him by the CSU.

Speaking briefly will be Dr. Joe Bas, chair of the Faculty Senate; Kathy Fortner, president of the Alumni Assn.; Elise Traynum, president of the Associated Students; and Janice Lemmond, representing the staff. Mrs. Lemmond, procurement and support services officer for the college, was the staff representative on the Presidential Selection Committee. She also is a Cal State graduate.

The ceremony and the reception honoring President and Mrs. Evans are open to alumni and the community. Classes will be cancelled for the afternoon to allow faculty and students to attend.

Awards Brunch launches busy day; Alumni honorees to be revealed

The fourth Annual Alumni Awards Brunch will launch a full day of activities on campus, including the Micro-technology for Everybody (ME) Festival and the Health Fair Expo.

Outstanding alumni and an alumna of the year will be revealed at the brunch, which will begin at 11:30 a.m., Sunday, April 24 in the Upper Commons.

The Nursing Chapter of the Alumni Association will officially receive its charter during the event. The chapter began last spring.

Guests at the brunch will have the opportunity to visit with President and Mrs. Anthony H. Evans. The event is open to all graduates, faculty and friends of the college.

The cost is $5 for adults, $2.50 for children. Reservations should be made by Tuesday, April 19 by calling the Alumni Affairs Office, (714) 887-7526.

The tram will be operating that day for campus tours and commuting to and from the various free events planned in conjunction with the ME Festival.

The Southern California Health Fair Expo, a massive health screening project, is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Student Services Building. This annual event, one of several happening in the area during April, features free health tests, an optional blood chemistry, exhibits and demonstrations.

Reynolds expresses Faith in college

CSU Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds, making her first official visit to Cal State, San Bernardino Feb. 28, described the college as "a beautiful rose bud that needs to open and unfold."

The chancellor, who has been making the circuit of all 19 campuses since her arrival last summer, shared her perceptions of the college and her concerns about the financial problems of the state and the CSU system during visits with faculty, students and community leaders.

"This campus is in the best position to recruit students," she said when speaking of the growth potential in San Bernardino and Riverside counties. The San Bernardino campus has never been considered for closure. "You have unrealized potential for growth," she told the faculty.

Areas in which she urged increased attention were recruitment of students directly out of high schools and increasing the number of minority students transferring from community colleges.

Dr. Reynolds told the faculty they have within their grasp the future potential of the college. "You are in the position of dreaming dreams for this campus," she said in urging them to work toward becoming a residential, first-rate campus.

The chancellor said she strongly supported President Evan's goal of providing more services in the far-flung areas of San Bernardino and Riverside counties. "You have the exciting potential to do more off-campus teaching in sites throughout the county," she told faculty.

Offering regular college courses off campus does have an impact on enrollment and "this campus needs FTE," she said.

Many of the queries from students and faculty centered around fees and the current fiscal situation.

Dr. Reynolds expressed concern repeatedly for the "critical margin of students" who cannot afford to pay more fees for their education. She urged students especially to make their plight known to the legislators. "The voice not adequately heard by legislators is that of the students."

She said she would work toward more equitable fees, which would be assessed a year in advance so that students could plan for the cost of their education. The fee increase this spring was a temporary, one-time, add-on charge, according to the chancellor.

State-of-the-art in computers Displayed during ME Festival

More than 30 vendors of computer hardware and software will display the latest in microcomputers during a three-day Microtechnology for Everybody (ME) Festival to be held Friday through Sunday, April 22 through 24 at Cal State, San Bernardino.

The exhibit will be open free to the public from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Friday and Saturday, and from noon to 4 p.m., Sunday of the ME Festival.

Seminars on computers in education and business are scheduled throughout the day Friday and Saturday. Examples of topics are writing skills and computers, integrating computers into the classroom curriculum, computers in special education, evaluating educational software, the CPA and the micro, portables and pocket computers, and business graphics.

Experienced business and educational professionals will lead the 16 seminars, which cost $5 each.

On Friday of the ME Festival, Ellen Kowalski, lecturer in physical education, will lead a hi tech exercise class from 12:30 to 12:50 p.m. for computer users who would like to learn how to relieve tension while working at the terminal.

Also that day, counselors and business teachers from community colleges will be on campus for the Community College Interaction Day hosted by the School of Administration.

The South Coast Repertory will present "Bits and Bytes," a musical introduction to computers for youngsters from kindergarten through eighth grader, at 10 and 11:15 a.m., Saturday in the Recital Hall. Free tickets are being distributed to schools in Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

A broad selection of activities are planned for the final day of the ME Festival, including programs in conjunction with the festival, the Health Fair Expo and the Alumni Awards Brunch.

Visitors to the college will have the opportunity to talk to voice-input computers, gain hands-on experience with Apples, view video tapes on robotics and the many uses of electronics, watch a demonstration of satellite dish reception and enjoy a puppet show.

A synthesized music show is planned in the Recital Hall, as well as exhibits of computer resources in the Pfau Library and the Bookstore.

Demonstrations on wood working, glass blowing, bronze pouring and other arts will be going on all day in the Art Department, as well as a student art exhibit on hi tech sculpture. A raku lunch featuring Oriental cuisine is scheduled from 1-3 p.m. in the kiln area of the Visual Arts Building. Diners may begin decorating their raku bowls earlier so they will be ready by lunchtime.

Many other events are planned. Information is available from Frank Slaton, manager of the Computer Center and originator of the ME Festival, (714) 887-7293.

Why did you get This Panorama?

This edition of the Panorama, the quarterly newsletter for the Alumni Association of Cal State, San Bernardino, is being mailed to all graduates of the college.

Cal State is attempting this comprehensive mailing to make contact with its alumni, update its mailing list and encourage alumni to become involved in the college and its Alumni Association.

Many of the addresses used are those students had while attending the college. It is hoped that newer addresses can be obtained from the family and friends who may be receiving this issue.

Persons knowing current addresses for alumni are asked to complete the "Let's Hear from You" form on Page 8 and return it to the Alumni Association, or call the Alumni Affairs Office at (714) 887-7526.

Several alumni positions Now open for nominations

The Alumni Association is seeking nominations for several positions which will be open for election this spring.

The association's Board of Directors will have three representative-at-large positions vacant.

The Education Chapter is soliciting nominations for president, vice president, treasurer and secretary. The Nursing Chapter will elect a vice president, treasurer and one representative at large.

The new Black and Chicano chapters are accepting nominations for all board positions.

Individuals interested in submitting their names or the names of others for a position should contact the Alumni Affairs Office by May 1.

Black, Chicano chapters Forming in Association

The foundations of two new chapters in the Alumni Association for black and Chicano graduates of Cal State, San Bernardino will be constructed over the next couple of months.

Planning committees are writing constitutions and by-laws, as well as drafting plans for projects to be undertaken by the Black Chapter and the Chicano Chapter in the years to come.

The goals of the Black Chapter are to encourage black alumni to become more involved in the Alumni Association, to help increase the number of blacks attending the college, to form a support group for black students already enrolled and to act as liaison between the minority community and the campus.

The Chicano Chapter is expected to grow into a network that will encompass the college, its graduates and the Chicano community in Riverside and San Bernardino counties. Among the chapter's goals are to begin developing a support system for all Chicano graduates of the college and to promote education in the Chicano community.

Both chapters plan to elect officers later this spring. Graduates interested in submitting nominees for positions or obtaining more information may call Jean Peacock or Olga Carranza, (714) 887-7673.

Members of the planning committee for the Black Alumni Chapter are: Lois Carson (BA 1967), the committee chair, who is executive director of the Community Action Agency of Riverside County; Ted Carry (BA 1975, MPA 1978), community and resource development supervisor for the City of San Bernardino; Wilma Cochrane (BA 1974), director of Educational Opportunity Program Services at San Bernardino Valley College; Lawrence Daniels (BA 1976, MA 1980), communication supervisor at Norton Air Force Base and past president of the Alumni Association; Olivette Miller (MA 1979), assistant principal at Kendall Elementary School in San Bernardino; and Ms. Peacock (BA 1975, MA 1980), coordinator of the Student Assistance in Learning Program at Cal State, San Bernardino.

On the planning committee for the Chicano Alumni Chapter are: Ms. Carranza (MA 1980), the chair of the committee, who is a counselor for the Student Assistance in Learning Program at Cal State; Eula Brown (BA 1978, MA 1980), admissions counselor; Enedine Chavez (MA 1979), counselor/coordinator for the Educational Opportunity Program (EOP); Marco Cota (BA 1979), outreach counselor for EOP; Keith Gergen (BA 1982), a tutor for EOP; Dr. Tom Rivera, associate dean of student educational support services; and Dr. Gilbert Sanchez, director of student affirmative action.

AT THE RECEPTION—Olivette Miller (MA 1979) examines some of the Alumni Association material displayed at the reception.

Career assistance Available to alumni

The Career Planning and Placement Center offers a wide variety of services to alumni of Cal State, San Bernardino.

A brief outline of services includes job announcement postings, vacancy newsletters, telephone tape service, resume-writing assistance, advisement on job interview techniques, career counseling and vocational testing, career resource library, graduate school file, and a placement file service for business, industry, government, counseling, teaching and education administration.

Alumni who have not registered with the Placement Center are invited to do so. Those seeking positions in business, industry, government or counseling may register by scheduling an appointment with an advisor. Appointments may be made by calling the office, (714) 887-7551.

Appointments are not required for alumni in the teaching profession, who may stop at the center and speak with Lynn Moss, educational placement advisor, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, at the center, which is located in Room 116 of the Student Services Building.

Mrs. Moss also is available from 4:30 to 6 p.m., Monday and Thursday, in the Pfau Library, Room 42.

Services to alumni are free for one full year beyond their graduation date. After this, a $10, one-time fee will be charged to establish a file; the Job News and Educational Newsletters cost $5 each a year; a duplication and mailing fee will be charged for sending files.

Alumni invited to give views On intercollegiate athletics

Alumni are invited to take part in a meeting on "Intercollegiate Athletics and CSCSB" from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 27 in the Multipurpose Room of the Student Union.

Alumni, students, faculty and staff will have an opportunity to express their thoughts about the initiation of intercollegiate athletic competition at Cal State, San Bernardino.

The open meeting, to which the press also will be invited, is one of several steps being undertaken by a special task force. Factors being studied are campus and community support, facilities, coaching staff, finance, sports conference participation and scheduling.

President Anthony H. Evans established the task force in response to interest expressed at all levels, including alumni and the Chancellor's Office. Dr. Ward McAfee, dean of social and behavioral sciences, is chair of the special committee.

The task force is investigating the possibility that intercollegiate competition would make campus life more vital and enhance the college's image and visibility.

Cal State, San Bernardino is the only one of the 19 California State University campuses without such a program.

The focus now is on NCAA Division III competition, which involves smaller schools such as the University of Redlands and Claremont. Men's sports being considered are football, basketball, baseball, soccer, tennis, swimming, water polo, track, cross country, volleyball, wrestling, gymnastics and golf.

Women's sports under consideration are soccer, tennis, swimming, track, cross country, softball, volleyball, basketball, gymnastics and golf.

The task force plans to report its findings to President Evans by early June. If intercollegiate sports were approved, the competition would not begin before the 1984-85 academic year.

Alumni are also invited to send comments to: Dr. John Hatton, acting dean of students, 5500 State College Parkway, California State College, San Bernardino 92407. Dr. Hatton chairs the task force's subcommittee on campus and community support.

The alumni representative on the task force is Perry Amendt (BA 1975).

Alumnus' secret for success: Don't plan future, go for it

In 1969, Robert Velasquez managed a gas station in Bloomington. Today, he is superintendent of schools for Cucamonga School District. His secret for success?

"I never set out to be a counselor or a principal, much less a superintendent," he said, adding that he has never established long-range career goals for himself. "The biggest force behind me is being at the right place at the right time—and I gambled."

For Velasquez, being at the right place has had more to do with hard work, sacrifice and not just a little courage than it has with sheer luck.

A native of Colton, Velasquez enrolled at San Bernardino Valley College after graduation from Colton High. Two years later, in 1958, he went into the service station business with his father, the late Thomas L. Velasquez.

"Theoretically, what I wanted to do was teach band and choir. But I got sidetracked. Dad was building the second service station (of three) and I felt obligated to try to help out. It was a natural. Being the only son, I felt obligated to carry on the family tradition.

"The business was good between the early '50s and '60s, but it was becoming difficult for any independent person to survive. When I saw the trend indicating it was not going to be as profitable for people in the business, my mind started to work."

In 1969, Velasquez decided it was time to make his move into another career. He was 30 years old. He and his wife, Mary Louise, had three children: Robert, who is now a sophomore administration major at Cal State; Kathy, who will graduate from Eisenhower High School in June and plans to enroll at Cal State; and Cindy, currently a student at Frisbee Junior High School.

"I remember that day in 1969. It was raining cats and dogs, the streets were flooded, water was up over the curb . . . I had a fever and couldn't find anyone to help me.

"I could feel the rain hit me on the back, and that's when I decided this was not what I wanted to do."

Velasquez sold the station that day, taking part of the payment in credit toward gasoline. After 12 years away from school, he decided to return to Valley, where he was surprised to discover he lacked only one class for the A.A. degree.

In winter 1969, Velasquez started at Cal State, San Bernardino. On the advice of advisors who told him bilingual teachers were needed, he changed his major from music to Spanish.

Velasquez, who plays piano, organ and clarinet, supported himself and his family by playing professionally throughout his college career, most of the time four nights a week. He also worked part time for his father.

Other work interrupted study time. Since 1960, he had been in the National Guard, advancing to second lieutenant by 1965. In 1970, he began a two-year stint in the Army Reserve, where he was a company commander for a light equipment maintenance company. This job obligated him to one weekend a month and two weeks during the summer.

Velasquez, who somehow managed to stay awake during classes and squeeze in study time, completed his B.A. in 1972. He took a part-time job as tutor in the Educational Opportunity Program on campus while working toward his first teaching credential.

Velasquez heard about an opening for a bilingual counselor aide in Colton Joint Unified School District. Although the job paid less than his tutoring position, he decided to take the chance it might lead to a good way to support his family.

The gamble paid off, as the position led to a full-time counselor job at Bloomington High School. In 1977, he was appointed dean of students at Rancho Cucamonga Middle School, and within three years was promoted to principal.

Of course, it wasn't quite that simple. Velasquez believes "you can't rest on your laurels," so through the years he had been gathering his many credentials and working toward an M.S. in administration, which he completed in 1981, at Cal State, Fullerton.

Velasquez said he was "a happy principal," and was not thinking about what lay ahead for him. In fact, because he enjoyed the job so much, he hesitated to take the acting superintendent position offered him. But, throughout his career, Velasquez had enjoyed each position and chanced each new opportunity that arose.

As superintendent of schools since July 1981, Velasquez has focused his attention on the job at hand, a complex one in a time of tight budgets, renewed interest in basic skills and increasing demand for teacher accountability.

"Our goal is to provide the best education with what we have," Velasquez said. As he sees it, "you do what you can, and you do the best you can." That's been his secret all along.
