Enrollment hits 3000

Cal-State's student population went over the 3,000 mark in the fall quarter, a 13 percent increase over last year's enrollment.

Nine years ago when the college opened in 1965, there were about 300 students -- and three main buildings -- on the campus.

Today, Cal-State has come of age. There are residence halls, a Commons building (including a new cafeteria), gym facilities that have been expanded and an impressive library.

It's quite a change from the campus that the 300 pioneer students remember. And many alumni who have not returned recently to the campus may hardly recognize it.

This year's increase was due, in part, because of the introduction of new graduate and undergrad programs, such as the M.A.s in administration and psychology and undergrad majors in child development and liberal studies.

There was a marked increase this year in graduate enrollments, but the number of junior and senior transfers was also up, said admissions officials.

Loan fund supported

The Alumni Association has contributed $100 to the college's emergency loan fund for students.

In presenting the check to College President John M. Pfau this month, Alumni President Rene J. Jacober noted that the loan fund was used by many alumni when they were students at the college and the service was appreciated.

The bulk of the $100 came from a special trust account of $82 that alumni have sent to the association, requesting that their contributions be earmarked for the emergency loan fund.

The Association Board of Directors, at its December meeting, voted to expend the difference and present the money to the college for the loan fund.

Other organizations also have contributed to the fund and each recipient receives a notice that his loan was made possible by the college and those organizations. The fund provides for loans up to $50 when a student encounters an emergency.

Marlin Brown named to A.A. board

Marlin L. Brown, a teacher in the Rialto Unified School District and a 1970 graduate of the college, has been named to the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association.

He fills a vacancy created by the resignation of Tom McBride, representative-at-large who took a teaching job at the University of the Americas in Puebla, Mexico.

Brown, who has B.A. degrees in both History and Social Science from the college, is a former senior class vice president and president of the student senate.
Dr. Fisk, S.B. 'alumnus'

Dr. Robert G. Fisk, who retired this summer after 11 years at CSFSB, has been named an honorary member of the Cal-State Alumni Association.

The Alumni Board of Directors voted to recognize Fisk, the college's first dean of students, because of his devotion to students as dean and as Professor of Education.

He and his wife, Betty, are planning to move to Cape Cod next June after spending the past summer there. Currently they reside in their mountain cabin near Lake Arrowhead.

Dr. Fisk came to San Bernardino as dean of students in 1962—before there were really any students. He served on the planning staff when Cal-State was a building in downtown San Bernardino.

When the college opened in the Fall of 1965, Dr. Fisk was there, laying the groundwork for student activities and the student body government. His patience, concern for students and their problems were a mark of the man.

He served for a year as dean and then returned to the Education Department. (Before coming to CSFSB, he was an Education professor at Chico.)

A former student who took teacher training under Dr. Fisk said he genuinely loved and motivated his students. He knew them by name, their majors, interests, and zodiac signs.

He began his teaching career after getting a country school credential from Superior Teacher's College in Wisconsin, where he attended during the Depression. Later, Fisk earned his B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Wisconsin. He received his doctorate at Columbia University, N.Y.

He and Betty met during the war in Hawaii, where she was a Naval nurse and he an aviation gunnery officer.

Dr. Fisk, cutting a jaunty figure in his Triumph sports car with a British cap perched on his head, will be remembered fondly by Cal-Staters past and present.

We hope he remembers some of the good times at San Bernardino with the typical good humor that is characteristic of him.
Dues time is here again!

January will signal the beginning of the eighth year of the CSCSB Alumni Association. Funding for Association projects has always come from membership dues and has been used for activities, publications and as the basis for an Alumni Scholarship fund.

Membership is available to all CSCSB graduates. The cost is $5 and provides each member with full privileges in the Association—the right to hold office, utilize campus P. E. facilities and full use of the college library. When funds are available, the Association also contributes to worthy campus programs such as the Emergency Loan Fund.

In January, each member and new graduate will receive an invitation to join in active participation by sending his or her 1974 dues.

Membership applications and renewals should be sent to the Cookout!

The Alumni Cookout, held in July at the college, wasn't a success as far as numbers were concerned, but the 50 alumni and family members who attended had a fun time anyway.

There was free beer, swimming, games, barbeque food and good company— as these pictures attest. Little Patrick Arias, son of Joseph (1967) and Sophie Arias, toddles in the direction of the food as Tom Finch (1968) performs cook duties, below.

A future get-together is in the planning stages.
The following represents the budget for 1973-74 of the Cal-State Alumni Association and it is presented for the information of members and all alumni.

Major expenses include publication and mailing of the Panorama four times a year, special projects and an Alumni Scholarship that is currently being studied by a special committee.
