Hearing to be Held on Overcrowding

Subcommittees of the California Legislature Assembly Ways and Means Committee and Assembly Education Committee will conduct a joint hearing to be held Wednesday, November 19.

The hearing will consider testimony on the extent of overcrowment in the State Colleges, the ramifications on other segments of higher education, and how the problem can be prevented in the future. Seated convenes at 9:30 A.M. in Room 115, State Building, 217 W. Fifth Street, Los Angeles.

Recent reports which indicate that many thousands of qualified students are being turned away for admission to the State Colleges have brought about the hearing. The hearings in these reports are serious questions to the institutional and fiscal impact of the students of this state.

Anyone interested in testifying at the hearing should contact the Assembly Education Committee office in Sacramento, Room 4132, State Capitol at the earliest possible date.

Chalk-in Slated

At the Friday there will be a chalk-in in the free-speech area. Chair and sidewalk will be available to anyone with something on his mind, said Muner Hanafi, chalk-in planner.

The international Festival has been tentatively scheduled for December 4, from noon on, in the five gues, People who can folk sing, lead folk dancing, cook a foggy dish, or lend decorations (blankets, lace Nets, etc.) are desperately needed. Interested persons should attend the Cultural Affairs meeting Friday the 18th at noon in the Library Conference room.

The poetry reading scheduled for last Wednesday has been scheduled for Wednesday, November 19, in the Little Theater.

Polish playwright Slawomir Mrozek shows himself to be an unorthodox master of the grotesque and sharp perception of politics in "The Martyrodom of Peter Ohye." One of "Three Plays for Now" opening tonight in the Little Theatre at 8:15.

Seventeen students of the Players of the Pear Garden have been in rehearsal over a month for the Cal State play "The Martyrodom of Peter Ohye." With him plays a 14-year-old high school student, Nick McClellan.

Performances continue to morrow evening as well as next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. November 20-22. All curtain times are at 8:15 p.m. except for the Christmas break, according to Ben Jacques.

Student tickets are still available for this evening's premiere and for other coming dates. They may be purchased at the door or reserved in advance through the ticket office, in Pioneer Park 6:30, off campus. Student, faculty and staff admission is 75 cents, 1.25 dollars for others.

"Three Plays for Now"

The much-discussed student publication "control" policy was settled at a recent California State College Board of Trustees meeting.

Slightly, the original proposal concerned solving the problems of the student press by establishing the appropriate "methods of control."

The trustees will now establish the position of "student press guidelines" to be worked out by the student press organizations.

Smog

People's Lobby

Signature Drive

The People's Lobby drive to end smog is taking more definite form as one of the greatest draws nearer. This weekend the initiative drive gained the support of California State College, San Bernardino's faculty with four profesors actively gathering signatures at super-markets.

Ten members of the student body are actively involved in a weekend signature-gathering work. The general interest of the People's Lobby drive is to end smog by placing the burden of smog control on industries which are responsible for smog emission and on automobile manufacturers, which produce smog-emitting automobiles.

Specifically they intend to do this by bringing to the voters two initiatives: a constitutional amendment guaranteeing the citizens a clean environment (land, sea and air), and a piece of legislation giving a five-year program for bringing the smog level down to one percent of its present level.

Several lawyers have attested to the legality of the two documents, (con't on page 3, col. 5)

Student Power

Should Students Affect CSCSB Policies?

Should students be represented on the Faculty Senate? Serve on important College governing committees such as the Committee on Curriculum? If so, what should their role be?

Questions on these matters will be asked students next week in a questionnaire prepared by the Ad Hoc Committee on Student-Faculty Policy-Making, according to Professor Elliot Barkan, chairman.

The questionnaire will focus on student representation to the Faculty Senate and to the standing committees — the most sensitive ones, says Barkan. These three committees are Tenure — Promotion, Tenure, Curriculum, and Admissions and Academic Standards.

For several months this ad hoc committee has been studying what part students should have in determining College policies and decisions affecting them.

Besides deciding whether or not students should serve and decision-making bodies and the nature of that possible representation, procedure for electing students to the governing bodies would have to be decided.

The present student body is, further, part of an overall analysis of all College governing processes, administration, faculty, and student.

By questioning students about these matters, the ad hoc committee hopes to realize the feeling most students as well as faculty members have about College decision-making, an important consideration for recommendations the ad hoc committee makes to the Faculty Senate by February 1, 1970, according to Barkan.

The three-member committee under study presently work in the following manner: the Retention — Promotion (RPT) committee functions on three levels, departmental, divisional and college-wide (as does the Curriculum committee), basing its recommendations on the instructor's service as a researcher, teacher and on his service to the College, such as membership on committees. At present only ten, full professors serve on the RPT committee. Final decisions are made by the President.

The curriculum committee initiates and reviews curriculum and instructional policies, including new courses, new majors, senior seminars, and general studies programs. The Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards acts on admissions policies, probation, disqualification and readmittance, grants for scholarships and financial aid, procedures and practices for grading, auditing, class hours and challenging.

Ad hoc committee members are: students — Al Coffeen, Joe McKee and Josh Sager; faculty — Alfred Egan, Elliot Barkan, Clark Mayo and Gerald Scherba.

The Prickley Pear

is Coming

The Prickley Pear, the campus literary magazine, will be published some time before Christmas break, according to Charles Clifflon, advisor to the magazine which presents poetry, short stories, critical essays and articles.

Any member of the campus community interested in contributing to the magazine may do so by leaving a typescript copy in the PrickleY Pear box in the Humanities division office, said Clifton.

All contributions will be considered, and those not accepted will be available to the authors with comments, according to the editors.

Most of the space for the summer-fall issue has been filled, but there is still room for contributions for the winter-spring issue.

Dale Karr, who edited last spring's PrickleY Pear, is also editing the fall issue.

A Terrible Void

I believe it's not so much the often unclear political and moral arguments for or against the war that lead us to an understanding of its despicable insanity, but more personally experiencing the terror and loss associated with senseless death.

As in reeling again and again that those one has known who were killed in the war will never return to the now empty space their lives once filled.

Everyone remembers someone he knew who was killed in the war. Everyone remembers the high-school or college group of friends; the two out of three that died or were maimed, the one out of four, a brother.

And now there are more. Today others are killed, wounded. Then there are the perhaps 30-times more Vietnamese wounded or killed, so distant for the most part, yet so close and vivid to returning American soldiers.

To a large extent the name-calling and ideology-branding is only a screen to separate one from understanding the terrible void of war deaths. No one can honestly condone the brutality of the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese. But neither can it be read into one's objection to American brutality that he condones the other side's aggression. One can act only from that of which he is a part.

Any personal and sincere statement against the Vietnam war could be read as politically suspicious. On the other hand, and what to me seems much more dangerous, refraining to make a strong personal statement of the war activities has never as Constitutionally required been subject to the people's representatives in Congress, or as required by the United Nation's Charter, been subject to the discretion of the representatives of the world populations.

It has been for us a long war, much longer for the victimized Vietnamese. There is much void with us now. And except of individuals acting as they believed, who can speak of honor? This is not our finest hour.

Nothing should prevent one who has felt the awful void of war deaths and known no heart-believable reason from standing against the continued war during this weekend's moratorium.

The Silent Speak

Who are the silent majority? They are people like our men in Vietnam who are fighting and giving their lives to protect a small country composed of human beings from the peril and domination of communism. Yes, that right—500,000 strong who almost unanimously are against the moratorium demonstrations.

Take the word of Tom McDonald of Brewer, Ohio, who says: "I came in the Army as a draftee, and I am over here now, doing what I am supposed to do. I think the people back there are making things a little more difficult over here."

The silent majority are also people like the South Vietnamese. Their leader, President Thi says: "Those defeatists, who continue advocating unconditional troop withdrawals, are the disloyal of the free world because they accept capitulation. People who do not help us defend ourselves against the Communists may one day see thousands of people in their countries massacred like those in Hue. We ought to enlighten those who have never had any painful experience with the Vietnamese Communists. I mean the narrow-minded ones who are unable to see the dangers of Communist to all mankind. They are the Senators and Congressmen who stand for defeatism, the people who will organize a demonstration against the self-defense efforts of the South Vietnamese people and their allies against aggressive communism. I only ask the Americans to have the courage to tell the world—(continued on page 4)

PLAYBOY, currently estimates that 17 million. There have been quite a number of clinical and statistical studies on the effects of the drug (which is not addictive nor does it cause dependency; read THIRTEENTH REPORT, edited by David Solomon) which have shown that even prolonged usage of the drug does not cause any physical damage—and the only possible psychological damage is to the society which the often re-evaluates itself, or think it should be legalized."

MARY CORREIA, freshman—biology: "I don't think it should be legalized because it can lead to use of drugs that can completely ruin a person. It can lead to heroin addiction, and if everyone could smoke it young which is more susceptible. They don't realize the real dangers of drug use. Marijuana is not really bad, but the fact that it can lead to heavy use is its drawback."

DAVE LOCKWOOD, freshman—business: "Anyone who smokes marijuana should be legalized. The overwhelming majority of the population legalization is based on the fact that there are no adverse effects from the use of marijuana stem from the fear of the individual who smokes it. Cops are doing a wrong thing by arresting people who use the medicinal marijuana. The worst thing that can happen is a marijuana user is put in jail. The individual who uses marijuana doesn't lead to heavier drug use; any more than chocolate milk does. They say that a large percentage of heroin addicts started with pot; well, a large percentage of them have probably started with weed, like the marijuana smokers."

KATHY McALLOON, junior—sociology: "Marijuana should be legalized, but not so that people can get stoned. Yes, it should be legalized, but not so that people could get it easier. The purpose of weed-smoking activities (ORGY RAPS) It was noted that many campuses already adhere to the policies reeommented. Most are also in agreement to the Canons of Journalism, as they have been used in the past.

Objection was raised, however, to the use of the word "control" which was completely eliminated from the resolution passed. "Methods of control" was the logical guinea-pigs for "methods of control," as in example.

Harper Appointed to Head Constitutional Revision Committee

By MARY WHITBY, Senior secretary

Under new business the following five items were discussed: Tom McBride was appointed as Senate Parliamentarian; Mike Ross submitted a resolution to change the wording to the document concerning standing committees. This change now allows new members to be appointed at the expiration of terms at the end of the current school year — it read before that members were appointed indefinitely to a standing committee.

The Senate approved the appointment of Tom Filpstrip and Roger Wade to the Judicial Committee. Mike Ross was appointed to the Appropriations Committee to fill the vacated seat, appointed to the Appropriations Committee from students who at the expiration of Mike Clark's term, Harper as Chairman to this committee.

It was decided by the Senate that there is a definite need for a Constitutional Revision Committee. Senate President Martin Brown appointed Ken Rentz to chair this committee. It was decided that Ken would select the members of the Committee from students who express a concern and a desire to serve the Constitution of CSUSB.

Under Old Business it was discussed — especially the Constitution of CSUSB. The Harper and Clark Resolutions were further discussed — especially the resolution concerning the legality of the Senate meeting of June 19, 1969. The Appropriations Committee submitted a report which questioned the legality of that meeting and the approval of the 1969-1970 budget. This item will be further discussed next week. Mary Whitby was reappointed as Senate Secretary for the year 1969-1970.

The next Senate meeting will be November 18, 1969, in room 1149 at 10:00 a.m.

Senators absent: Marty Thompson, Sr. Class; Mike Ross, Senator-at-large.

Letters (continued from page 2) and clear sight to remain here until we establish enough military, economic, and political strength." (He also invites Americans entitled to visit his country.)

The silent majority are the American people. The latest Gallup polls show that 77% of the public approved of the way President Nixon has been handling Viet Nam. They are also schools like the College of Orlando, which did not allow classes to be cancelled, did not issue an official statement supporting the moratorium, let not have a local rally, and did not allow the students to support the moratorium.

They are the students like the ones at Florida Technical University and the College of Orlando, who organized and supported a blood donors campaign for veterans wounded in Viet Nam. William C. Caldwell, Dean of Student Affairs at the College of Orlando says: "The College of Orlando, following its long known concepts of Christianity and patriotism, dealt with the moratorium in its own way, and has followed the middle of the road in its teaching while supporting our government and the American way of life."

Think about this ... most of the national coordinators for the moratorium have been identified with Communists or admit to being Communists. Now, if you believe in peace — after you finish your demonstrations — leave and continue those demonstrations on your real purpose and the streets of Moscow, Hanoi, your demonstrations — leave and the way you might show all of us with Communists or admit to believe in peace — after you finish being Communists... Now, if you believe in the American way of life."

Cal State College at San Bernardino is one of five of California's 18 state colleges, still accepting students for the winter and spring semesters, it was announced early this month. The enrollment at Cal State, San Bernardino is 1,723 for the fall term and school officials said yesterday that they can accept 600 more applications for the winter quarter.

Applications will be accepted until March 17 for enrollment in the Spring quarter. The only other campuses still accepting students for the next class period, besides Cal State, San Bernardino, are Stanislaus, Fresno, Long Beach and San Fernando.

College Still Accepting New Students

California State College at Los Angeles became the 16th "closed campus" yesterday when admissions officer Alfred P. Fernandez announced that the college has reached its enrollment capacity of about 23,000 for the winter quarter.
