Keeping you in touch with IE news ...
Congratulations Riverside NAACP on your 50th Freedom Fund

This week the Riverside NAACP held its annual Freedom Fund Gala, the organization’s annual awards celebration and fundraiser. More than half a million members strong, the nation’s oldest and largest civil rights organization’s principal objective is to ensure the political, educational, social and economic equality of minority citizens of United States and eliminate race prejudice. This year the Riverside Branch celebrated its 50th Freedom Fund in the chapter’s 72-year history.

The modern NAACP is rooted in the Niagara Movement, a group led by W.E.B. DuBois, which expressed opposition to the racial segregation and growing disenfranchisement at the turn of the last century. The first meeting took place in July 1905 at the Erie Beach Hotel in Ontario, Canada, a location that I visit every year during our Footsteps to Freedom Underground Railroad Study Tour. The small group of 29 were concerned that the laws restricting voting rights, policies of inequality, and the Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of “separate but equal” in Plessy v Ferguson, would continue to further institutionalize racial discrimination in America.

While the Niagara Movement was short-lived, its founder soon connected with a group of sympathizers who stepped forward after the 1909 race riots in Springfield, Illinois. When this racially diverse group of civil rights activists joined with what was left of the Niagara Movement, the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) was born. The new organization focused on legal strategies designed to confront the civil rights issues of the day with a stated goal to secure all people the rights guaranteed in the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments of the US Constitution. Their first victory was winning a Supreme Court decision in 1915 against the grandfather clause used to prevent Blacks from voting in many southern states.

When I asked Riverside Attorney and Community College Trustee Virginia Blumenthal her thoughts on the continued relevance of the NAACP, she explained, “Even though much progress has been made since the original formation of the NAACP, we need the ever-vigilant eyes of organizations like the NAACP to maintain the heightened awareness necessary to keep us moving forward with the desired purpose.” And as long as there is a national debate regarding voter identification laws and other voter suppression tactics since the Supreme Court voted to strike down key provisions of the Voting Rights Act last year, there is much civil rights work that needs to be done.

Speaking to the gala audience of close to 500 community members Ms. Blumenthal said, “in order to ensure the equality of all persons in the political, educational, social and economic arenas, we need to address the hard topics like broken families, out of wedlock babies, and school dropouts. When we can address and make progress in these areas, then we can eventually achieve that equality for all persons. If you are not a member, why are you not a member? If you are a member, are all of your neighbors and family and friends members? And why not? Complacency is not acceptable in our world. Active membership is required.”

Janet Goeske Foundation Celebrates 30 Years of Service

Riverside

Janet Goeske Foundation & Senior Center is proud to announce that we will be celebrating our 30th Anniversary on Sunday, May 18th from 12:00pm – 5:00pm. Community members of all ages are invited to join us at the Janet Goeske Center (5257 Sierra Street, 92504) as we commemorate this special occasion with a Vintage Carnival Extravaganza.

Janet Goeske, our founder and namesake, was a strong advocate and forward thinker when it came to senior issues. Because of her passion and ability to get things done she was appointed to several federal and state commissions on aging. One of her key initiatives was a program designed to inspect and report on nursing home conditions, today was modeled after her work.

Janet Goeske Foundation Celebrates 30 Years of Service

At a time when Riverside had no dedicated senior centers, Janet envisioned a facility where those in their “advanced youth” could socialize, stay active, and find the resources they needed to improve their quality of life. “It’s wonderful when people come here and become happier,” she said. “I think it really helps us be healthier. I guess that’s what keeps me going. There’s always so much to do, so many opportunities.” On Friday, May 18, 1984 her vision became a reality.

In celebration of Janet and 30 years of service “The Center” will be completely transformed for the day [May 18th] to accommodate a myriad of activities, including: Food Trucks, Carnival Games, Family, some of whom were present at the original dedication of the Janet Goeske Center in 1984, are scheduled to attend as well. Tours of the facilities will be available in both English & Spanish for those who wish to learn more about us. One lucky person will win a Lifetime Membership (complete with community discounts and member rewards) generously provided by Riverside Medical Clinic. Other Door Prizes will also be announced throughout the day.

Come One, Come All! Join us as we celebrate turning 30 and say “THANK YOU” to the local community which has embraced and supported the Janet Goeske Foundation and our community seniors for so many years.

With Continuing Drought, Water Awareness Month More Important Than Ever

Riverside

May is Water Awareness Month, and with California’s drought conditions worsening, water providers like Riverside Public Utilities (RPU) are hoping that customers throughout their service territory take heed and learn how to reduce water use now to conserve supplies for the future.

RPU, which serves more than 64,500 metered customers in and around the City of Riverside, is water independent, getting all of its water from underground aquifers throughout the region. This allows the utility to maintain lower water rates for its customer-owners as it does not have to import more expensive water supplies from the continually overstressed Sacramento Delta or Colorado River.

“While we still maintain interconnections to these water sources for both our and our neighboring water supplier’s emergency preparedness plans, groundwater remains the only resource for RPU customers,” said the utility’s General Manager Girish Balachandran.

Although RPU’s groundwater resources remain abundant enough to serve their customer’s needs today (supplying a daily average of more than 62 million gallons last year, including a peak day supply in August of nearly 95.4 million gallons), without the normal storms in the local foothills and mountains that help replenish those underground supplies, they too could become overstressed and wells could literally run dry.

“That’s why it is so important for our customers to make the effort to become water aware, avoid water waste, and take advantage of programs that can help them to do that,” Balachandran said.

Just last week, Riverside’s City Council voted unanimously to continue a 1.5 percent conservation surcharge on RPU water customers’ bills that helps fund a variety of water conservation rebate programs that customers can use to reduce their water use.

“Simple steps like fixing a leaking toilet, installing low-flow sprinkler nozzles, showerheads, and faucet aerators can save thousands of gallons for one house alone,” Balachandran said. “If all of our customers did this, it could save millions of gallons annually system-wide.”

RPU’s incentive programs include rebates for replacing lawn areas with artificial turf or low-water use plants and landscaping; free low-flow sprinkler nozzles; and rebates on installing Weather Based Irrigation Controllers, high efficiency toilets and clothes washers. Kimbrew Is No Friend of Riverside’s NAACP

California Friends of the African-American Caucus, which claims 20.1 million friends as regular followers, started a flurry last week when its headline attacked the local Riverside branch NAACP President Woodie Rucker-Hughes and the Executive Committee for nominating and giving its law enforcement award to District Attorney Paul Zellerbach.

Now before I go into my opinion I want to share some background information on the one doing the complaining. I have never met him personally but I do know people who know him as well as my own investigation. I will start with an article from The Wave Newspaper’s columnist Betty Pleasant that is published by Pluria Marshall whom I have known for many years:

That ex-convict Basil Kimbrew, who was arrested, tried, convicted and imprisoned for engaging in political hanky-panky in Compton several years ago, is at it again some more!! Through his “California Friends of the African American Caucus” website, he twice blasted this week some scurrilous accusations and innuendoes against a Compton official, who, in my opinion was simply doing his job, and tied him to a popular Los Angeles woman with impeccable credentials and character to some kind of evil deed. And for what reason? Politics. I am so angry about this that I’m finding it difficult to write about it without using the full range of my expression — a range that includes words that would not be permitted in a family publication. (December 5, 2013)

Now with that as an introduction to this “friend” of our community you can look him up in the Los Angeles Times and Compton Bulletin where he served on the Compton School Board. In regards to the Riverside NAACP issue, it is alleged that Basil has a political affiliation with Zellerbach’s opponent in the race for District Attorney. I do not know if Basil is a member of the NAACP, if so, he could have gone to the branch and registered a complaint against the decision to give anyone an award. No, he decided to put the branch on leadership.

I want to inform Mr. Kimbrew that we are not a little hick town on the outskirts of Los Angeles that you can push around. Our leadership, individuals like Woodie Rucker-Hughes, is well prepared with experience and high moral character and values. Rev. Leon Sullivan, one of the giants from the civil rights era, trained Woodie. I know this firsthand because I sat in the room with them during his visits to Riverside to meet with her when she served as his Field Director for OIC. I also know the church she attends, as do many of her executive members. I also know where she works because I have visited her there many times.

So Mr. Kimbrew, take my advice and issue the Riverside Branch of the NAACP a public apology and send a copy to the state and national office. Oh and send a copy to a real award winning news publication, the VOICE in Riverside. If you do that then I know that the real citizens of Riverside will read it. If you do not, then I would advise you to pack up and leave Moreno Valley like you left Compton and Carson.

Let me see if you are big enough to change your ways of sleazy political tricks, it is your choice.
Not fine with them
As tens of thousands of Black Californians face IRS penalties for failing to secure health insurance, a new spotlight is turned on shortcomings in African-American outreach.

By McKenzie Jackson
California Black Media Contributor

Ronail “Stretch” Shelton is about to be a little lighter in the pockets.

A resident of Los Angeles’ Koreatown section, Shelton is among an estimated 70,000 African-American Californians expected to be penalized by the Internal Revenue Service for failing to have health insurance. Although he is one of the millions of uninsured Americans, Shelton did not enroll in benefits through the Affordable Care Act — commonly known as Obamacare. His failure to obtain health care coverage means the 31-year-old personal trainer is due to be fined $95 or one percent of his household income.

Despite heavy publicity and a deadline extension provided by Covered California (the state’s healthcare exchange), Shelton was still trying to enroll after the final April 15th deadline. A few days after that, he was scrambling to mail personal information to Covered California, but the efforts were in vain. “I talked to someone on [April 15],” he said. “They said I could try to still send something in. That day, their server or something went down.”

He blamed his lack of health coverage on not knowing where to go. Still, the pending fine was news to him. “I didn’t know anything about it until you mentioned it,” Shelton said when asked to discuss his plan to pay the penalty. “Obviously, I don’t want to have to pay it.”

Overall, California African-American non-enrollees who were eligible for subsidy who did not sign-up by April 15 will reach fines well over $7.5 million for not obtaining health care through Covered California, Medi-Cal or some through other means.

In an April 17 press release, Covered California said more than three million Californians enrolled in health insurance plans or Medi-Cal by the cutoff date. The organization also said it “has met the base projection for African-American enrollment.”

According to figures released by Covered California, only 21,974 eligible Black Californians signed up for health coverage through Obamacare. Statewide, 265,000 Latinos, 194,000 Whites, and 83,000 Asians enrolled between October 1 and March 31. Also, six percent of the Medi-Cal enrollees are African-American, the second lowest percentage among all ethnic groups. Thirty-eight percent of new Medi-Cal enrollees are Latino, 27 percent are White, 17 percent are Asian, and nine percent self-identified as “other.”

To many, these numbers are simply unacceptable. California Assemblymember Cheryl Brown said she and other members of the California Legislative Black Caucus believe the target of 22,000 Black enrollees was far too low — especially in light of the fact that Blacks are six percent of the population in a state that had an estimated seven million uninsured residents prior to Obamacare.

“While they were close to their initial projection, clearly their outreach to the African-American community needed to have sufficient funding to achieve larger participation and enrollment,” said Brown, a Democrat who represents the 47th Assembly District. “In addition, there seems to be a problem with identifying and employing the most effective communication networks to reach African-American communities.”

Dr. Michael A. Lenoir, an Oakland allergist and president-elect of the National Medical Association’s Allergy and Asthma Section, said education and outreach will be key to reaching black Californians when the second round of Obamacare enrollment begins in the fall.

As Lenoir sees it, Covered California’s outreach to African-Americans began too late, and did not effectively utilize Black newspapers and radio. Considering the health care exchange’s $85 million marketing budget, he called the level of Black outreach “pitiful.”

“There are no challenges, just will,” said Lenoir, who is also host and executive producer of the “About Health” program on Pacifica Radio. “The effort to reach African-Americans was never robust. I don’t think there was enough outreach to African-Americans on not only what [Obamacare] is, but how to access it.”

With so many questions remaining, Lenoir, whose show broadcasts in the Bay area, said education and outreach will be key. He devotes every third program to the topic, and believes strongly that partnerships between Black health professionals and Black media organizations are crucial. Later this month, his show will begin hosting radio town hall meetings to discuss Obamacare and other health issues.

“I want to be able to reach the African-Americans out there drinking gin and juice,” he said. “My whole career, I have been trying to address the problems of people who listen to the radio.”

Brown, whose district stretches from Grand Terrace to Muscoy, said the Black Caucus recently met with Covered California officials to express concern about the African-American enrollment numbers.

“Covered California indicated they are going to review their efforts and make any necessary changes and provide the funding to improve African-American outreach and increase the number of enrollees,” she said. “We look forward to working with them as we approach the next open enrollment period.”

As for non-enrollment penalties, Brown said reactions to the IRS bill will likely depend on the depth of knowledge about Obamacare. “If people are not made aware of the advantages of having health care,” she said, “they will simply ignore the law and not participate — regardless of the threat of a fine.”

Shelton, the personal trainer in Los Angeles, said he isn’t looking forward to that bill.

“I guess,” he said with an air of resignation, “I will just have to pay it.”

For those familiar with Riverside’s African American history, names like Stratton, Boykin, Hopkin, Davis, Strickland, Streeter, Jordan, Carter, Stokes, McCoys, Jonigan, Stowe, Clemmons, Grier, Caroline, and Russell are the true drum majors of the Riverside community. These individuals have fought and stood for truth and justice and above all equality for all citizens living in the Riverside area. They are considered pillars of the community and pioneers in Riverside’s history.

Besides being drum majors for their community, they also had another thing in common; they were strong advocates for the Riverside Branch of the NAACP.

Omar Stratton, from one of Riverside’s pioneering families and Riverside NAACP founder and first president, visualized a freedom he would seek through the NAACP, on behalf of all of the “colored” folks living in Riverside during the 1940’s. The Riverside Branch of the NAACP was granted a charter by the National Office of the NAACP on September 26, 1942 and from that point forward, the Riverside NAACP has fought tirelessly for that which they believe is right – that civil rights is for everyone. The NAACP’s mission is to advocate for political, education, social and economic equality of rights for all citizens, as well as eradicate racial injustice.

Current Riverside NAACP President, Waudier “Woodie” Rucker Hughes states of the branch’s history, “our branch is 72-years-old and its longevity is a testament to its effectiveness and need in our community.”

Each branch of the NAACP has their own annual awards ceremony and fundraiser and in Riverside, for the past 50 years, the NAACP Riverside Branch has held their annual gala, the Freedom Fund Celebration each spring, this year with the theme “50 Years Forward...The Movement That Changed the World,” the NAACP again recognized and honored individuals and groups who have made a significant contribution in the community.

According to Ms. Rucker-Hughes, “this year’s honorees truly reflect the epitome of community drum majors. Each one stands alone in regards to their contribution to the community and people of color.”

Ten Questions About the Archiving Project - The Online Library and Museum Heritage Program in the Inland Empire (TOLAMHP)

1. What is The Online Library and Museum Heritage Program in the Inland Empire?
   It is an ambitious, sorely needed project whose primary goal is to preserve the African American history and culture in the Inland Empire. Wilmer Amina Carter Foundation in collaboration with local universities plans to collect, digitize, archive, and interpret African American history and culture.

2. What do we hope to accomplish with this program?
   The program has three objectives: to increase the awareness of stakeholders in the community about the importance of historical preservation, to engage those stakeholders in the process of preserving the information we collect, and to give the public access to the shared information.

3. Where are you obtaining your information from?
   Our plan is to collect and digitize narratives, photos, and artifacts related to the African American presence in businesses, churches, social clubs, sororities and fraternities, non-profit organizations, and political and governmental organizations, to name a few. Citizens have information languishing in basements, attics and memories that need to be dusted off and shared.

4. Is there existing information available about African Americans in the Inland Empire?
   Some mention of a few prominent African Americans who made notable contributions to the area is available, but there is a serious dearth of information when it comes to the day-to-day lives of ordinary citizens and their interactions with the government and other cultural groups, not to mention their contributions to the economic, political, and social landscape. That’s where the meaty story is of a people. For example, everyone knows about Martin Luther King, Jr., but how many people know about the efforts of the Inland Empire citizens who built the largest statue of Martin Luther King, Jr. in the country?

5. Who will this project benefit?
   Several groups. Local universities, colleges and high school students in several academic disciplines, particularly library science, African American and ethnic studies, history, sociology, anthropology, and computer science, will receive internships and scholarships to work with us on this project. Citizens in the community will have the opportunity to participate in the collection and digitization process, which will create jobs in the Inland Empire. The Online library and Museum Heritage Program in the Inland Empire will also serve as a prototype in the city, county, and state for other cultures that set out to preserve their heritage.

6. How are you going to collect all this information?
   The Wilmer Amina Carter Foundation in collaboration with local universities will conduct and oversee interviews, transcribe narratives, and scan photos and artifacts.

7. Where are you going to house all of this information?
   Local universities, colleges and libraries have agreed to digitally host the information and make it accessible.

8. When will you get started?
   The Online Library and Museum Heritage Program is a three year project which began this year.

9. Why should someone become a sponsor?
   This is the moment; this is the time; we have the people and the energy – what we need is sustaining funding that will best utilize the interest and talents of all involved in this project of the century.

10. How do we go about sponsoring this project?
    Join us at our first fundraiser gallery brunch Saturday May 17th 10:30 am at the National Orange Show Event Center. Contact Wilmer Amina Carter by email at amina@ef-cbs.com or by phone at 909-820-4406 or give directly to http://thecbsfoundation.eventbrite.com.
