Reagan Advisers Split On Affirmative Action

Washington—President Reagan's key domestic advisers held an impressionistic debate yesterday on affirmative action in federal contracting, with some accorded to send him three policy options but others who could not agree on a single recommendation, administration officials said.

This will be for Reagan to decide whether to make any changes in the requirement that federal contractors set numerical goals for hiring women and members of minority groups. The rules affect 53,000 companies employing 23 million workers, 73,000 separate installations.

"There were no consensus recommendations," said a White House spokesman who attended the 90-minute session of Cabinet members and other advisers. "An option paper will go to the President."

Attorney General Edwin Meese presided over the meeting of the Domestic Policy Council, convened to consider one of the most sensitive civil rights issues facing the federal government.

The issue is whether to make sweeping changes in the executive order and the Labor Department regulations under which government contractors must set hiring goals for women, African-Americans and other minorities.

In general, these rules require contractors to set numerical targets for all those groups. They are designed to ensure that contractors who have already done well in hiring women and minorities do not have to make much change in their personnel policies.

In contrast, labor organizations want contractors to be required to set goals. The current regulations say contractors can satisfy their obligations by using their own personnel policies.

In a related issue, the President yesterday extended a top staff appointment issued in the Roosevelt Room of the White House for yesterday's press conference to the end of the month. The President gave the appointment, by means of goals and timetables, to Assistant Secretary Bill Brock, who administers the program for government contractors.

"I am extremely concerned about the atmosphere surrounding the affirmative action program," said William Bradford Reynolds, the assistant attorney general for civil rights, as he departed from the meeting.

"I am concerned about the need of setting goals and timetables."

"I would hope that the President would eliminate all deadlines, according to officials present.

The Secretary, Bill Brock, whose department administers the program for government contractors, argued against major changes in the 1966 executive order, the officials said. Among those present who opposed change were those whose position was Samuel R. Pierce Jr., acting undersecretary for administration, and urban development, Transportation Secretary James B. Johnson and Margaret M. Heckler, the secretary of health and human services.

Participants in the meeting said they were considering these options:

To issue an executive order permitting the "voluntary use of affirmative action programs" in federal contracting, so long as they do not discriminate against any race, sex, or national origin.

To issue an executive order explicitly permitting the use of mandatory goals and timetables, but that the new order would state that it provided no "legal basis" or authority for the use of goals.

To make no change in the executive order, but revise labor Department regulations to prohibit mandatory quotas.

"The President's key domestic advisers have not been able to agree on a single recommendation," said the President's assistant for domestic affairs.

Congressmen George E. Brown Jr. and Charles J. Clayton, who represent California in the House, were among those present yesterday.

Mr. Crooks said he had been impressed by Mr. Reynolds' arguments for the executive order and the current regulations, but that the decision made it will be weighed by Congress, he said.

Pastor Challenges Black Press & Church To 'New Relationship'

Oakland, CA. A pastor from Pasadena, who is a former marketing executive has challenged the Black press to "build healthy relationships with the church," which is rekindle interest in the Black community. The pastor, who is not named, wrote to the Black Press, expressing his concern about the current state of the Black community.

"Pastor, marketing in overlooking the church, which has been neglected by the Black press for many years because it has been overlooked by the church, which accounts for more than 60% of the Black vote," he wrote.

Pastor said the press got out of sync during the 1960s when it started listening to the church leaders who disapproved of the church and who wanted to change the heritage. Pastor said the press are now in the same boat.

"I'm writing to you to inform you of the fact that the Black press has restored its relationship with the church, which is the most solid and important institution in the Black community," he said.

"No pastor, marketing in overlooking the church, Black newspapers have hesitated their ability to deliver the church to the market to advertisers. This has cost them money. A new relationship with the church is simply in their own best interest."

"We have conducted considerable research into the influence of the Black church in the market. In fact, one co-author of The Black Press Report, the study, conducted at the 103rd session of the National Baptist Convention, US.A. In Los Angeles in 1962. It is interesting to find that not one of the hundreds of local church leaders we interviewed mentioned their local community newspaper as a significant source of information.

"Pastor said he began his long and distinguished career in communications a number of years before he entered the ministry. He served as a reporter and columnist for the Pittsburgh Courier. He served more than five years as Research Director and then Account Executive for Westwood Broadcasting in Philadelphia and was Associate Producer of "The Mike Douglas Show." He was then an Agency Executive with the large New York advertising agency of N.W. Ayer. During the mid-1970s, he served as Director of Communications for the Mid-Atlantic Region of the U.S. Department of Justice, serving as minority-owned cable franchisees on the East Coast. He is also the author of "The Black Press Meter.""}

Halloween Treats Can Be Tricky

Riverdale - "Halloween can be fun, but care should be taken to keep it that way," said Dr. Maurice Massay, the Director of Health Education for the County of Riverside Department of Health. "In the past there have been many cases of children being hurt during Halloween. Many of these accidents and injuries need not have occurred if the parents had exercised caution and trained their children to be careful," emphasized Dr. Massay.

"Steps that parents can take to protect their children are:

1. Children should be simple and effective," said Dr. Massay. Parents should check the treats their children collect,

a. some of these treats could contain some nasty tricks. Sharp objects such as ground up glass and piece of razor blades have occurred if the parents had exercised caution and trained their children to be careful," emphasized Dr. Massay.

The San Francisco 49ers missed the Rams defense from their first play from scrimmage. The 49ers four times in the first half, running back Roger Craig was the major part of the offense. Craig finished the game with 63 yards rushing and 132 yards receiving. Quarterback Joe Montana completed 22-for-30 for 360 yards and 3 touchdown passes.

In the second half the Rams Defense settled down and kept the 49ers out of the end zone.

For the eighth straight game the Rams had no scoring offense. Rams Quarterback Dieter Brock at a Ram's record 30 competitions, and passed for 344 yards and two touchdowns. Running back Dickerson rushed for 61 yards.

The Rams are still 7-1 and are 3 games ahead of the 49ers in the NFC West.

Ab Brown
Roast & Toasted

by Barnett Grier

The Riverside Black History Committee presented "A Roast 'N Toast of Mayor Al Brown" of the City of Riverside on October 11, 1985 in the Augusta Room of the Renaissance Room, Riverside Convention Center.

The Master of Ceremonies for the event was Riverside Community Supervisor Norton Bond. He did an excellent job. The theme was the "quality of a man is measured by deeds, not much words - so let the crown be his story.

The Toasters were Jesse Young, Women Pastor, Pastor Fields, George Williams, Councilman Sam Diggs, Art Pick and Bob Jone. So everybody got in their "talks" on the Mayor.

"Imagine the Mayor wanting more power a turkey, they will never let them vote."

"A fisherman, what is a fish in the bathtub, he couldn't.

"He needs all the resources himself, that the Mayor's Prayer breakfast can contribute."

"He's a wise vessel. What?" thanks to Sam Diggs, he says he can't have everything and this is one of them. He's confused about the whole matter. He has been going around kissing the mothers of babies instead of the babies in a politically safe. While does he think is the popular Mr. 7779-5588."

The Designated Toasters were City Manager Douglas Wolfs and County Supervisor Wali Abelman.

The Community Toasters including the audience, the volunteers were Dr. David Harris and Dr. Barnett Grier. There was one concern that was shared "why did the Mayor have as a first name his degree "Al"? What is the case that his parents doubted whether he would make it to college?"

The uneducated had to wonder whether or not the Toasters had succeeded in washing the damage done by the Toasters.

Everybody laud to admit one thing: All saw Roasted Brown, well.

We have to admit also that Al is a good man with a very big heart. He has a good supportive family and Al make us all, the citizens of Riverside, and that we are part of his extended family.

Parental Pairs: Peer from South Africa - Mrs. B.C.

Aniertcan American Institute for Free Labor representatives for free trade unions in South Africa was on hand for the festivities. Mrs. A. Mobefe, a graduate of picturesque Botswana, was on hand for the festivities.

Jonathan Casey reports there was a reception for the fraternal labor delegates from California. In an Oregon study, clothing purchase practices of nearly 500 14-11 year-olds were examined. The age groups studied included seniors (ages 16-19), intermediates (ages 13-15), and juniors (ages 9-12). Both boys and girls were in the sample, with girls predominating. The findings were recently published in the Home Economics Research Journal and are summarized as follows:

- Parental influence on purchases decreased as age increased.
- Items advertised on television or in store displays were purchased more often than items advertised by other media.
- Older 14-11 year-olds used label information more often than younger members.
- Parent influence on purchases tended to increase as age of members increased.
- Department stores were used most frequently for clothing purchases. Specialty stores were utilized more as age of member increased, while use of mail-order and discount stores dropped as age increased.
- Peer influence appeared to be associated with analysis of wardrobe needs.
- Greatest satisfaction for the amount of money spent appeared to depend on similarity to peer's clothing rather than on purchases suited to individual shapes and preferences.

To the Residents of the Perris Union
High School District

This is to inform you that I have filed for a seat on the Perris Union High School District Board of Trustees in the election to be held on Tuesday, November 5, 1985.

I was a classroom teacher at Perris High School from September, 1967, to June, 1985. I have been a resident of this school district since 1971.

The experience that I have had will help the Board of Trustees work with administrators to bring about a more cohesive curriculum, to enable the teachers to create a more receptive classroom environment so the students can advance with a better sense of achievement.

Your vote for me is solicited; however, you should vote, regardless of your preference.

Sincerely,
Schumann Cherry

Jesse Washington For Perris City Council

Jesse Washington is an incumbent, he was elected in a special election and needs a full term in order to accomplish some of the tasks he feels are important.

His qualifications are needed in this time of economic uncertainty, and his BA degree in Economics can be very useful to the city of Perris.

In addition to these, he feels the city council needs to move more quickly to handle the high crime rates that are increasing and the city council continues to be cost conscious.

Jesse Washington goes to City Hall to do his job. He is an outgoing person, who supports his community, and wants to help support people, who will work together to get the job done.

In summary, Jesse Washington wants to see better police protection, better public facilities, better programs for kids and more selective as well as more jobs.

Jesse Washington is the first Black City Councilman in Perris and brings a freshness to the Council which is needed.

NNPA’S Tosses Ball in Black Congressional Caucus Conference

Washington, D.C. - Coalition, confrontation and consensus wins the order of the day for several members of the Black Press during the outlining of the well attended 55th annual Congressional Black Caucus Foundation weekend in the nation’s capital. Many legitimate working press members, this writer and all full corduroy, were denied press passes access to the full day of activities programmed by the Caucus. The failure of the CBCF press room to issue access to what they termed “Turf Express” to all press presenters and feature writers opportunity to cover many key events for "black home" consumption by the majority of the congressional involved constituents.

This letter was told that the platform erected to accommodate photographers had been filled due to an acute press space for the annual Arbeits, Banquet and Spouse’s Fashion Show. Therefore writers were out of luck. As to the custom of the CBCF no press table(s) was set aside for the annual award dinner. The National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) attempts to reconcile the love/hate relationship between the two factions which caused the NNPA to excluded from the formal proceedings of the 55th annual CBCF event, the NNPA, through its board of directors, headed by Christopher Bennett, Publisher of the New York Amsterdam News, presented formal resolution to Congressman Malcolm St. John concerning the issue of whether or not the government body of the major Black America, with members in the Virgin Islands and Canada, outlined the major Black factions, in essence to have the NOB hold a formal or semi-formal conference, as was the procedure at the 55th annual CBCF. Questions & Answers by Pastor Woods

Should Sex Education Be Taught In Schools?

Questions

Dear Pastor Woods,

I have two teenagers. They are at the age where their school offers sex education classes. I am somewhat reserve. Should I as a parent allow the school to teach my children sex education?

Concerned Parent, San Bernardino, CA

Response

It is our obligation to see that the reason you have reservations is because you are not confident that the school will teach an ethically and morally sound lesson on sex. I will tell you from first hand experience. I have taken sex education classes in Junior High, Senior High, and College and all of them have been trash. Why? Because there is an underlying theme involved in this subject of sex and it is okay, everyone is doing it, and since everyone is doing it, you should do it. I require most sex education classes as "How To Have Sex and Not Get Pregnant."

The world has no standards or values when it comes to sex. If you don’t believe me just go to the movies or watch T.V. The world says homosexuality, sex swapping, adultery, children and teenage sex is okay if everyone involved agrees! That’s bunk!! The Bible says in Ephesians 5:3, "But all fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, doest he that name among you as savior. 6:18. Plase, fornication." To be perfectly honest, I don’t trust schools to teach our Christian children this particular subject. They do not teach just the pure biological functions of the body, but get on top that are not healthy for your children. Your sex as the parent have the primary responsibility in this area. Also, I encourage churches to have seminars for youth once a year on this subject taught by a qualified professional who will teach them from the stand point of moral function and answer all questions from a Biblical viewpoint.
