Rush raps faculty

By Debbie Cooper

"I have more respect for the Student Senate because they get more things done," stated Skip Rush, ASSL President, referring to the recent defeat of a measure to place students on the Faculty Senate.

Rush added that it was very unfortunate the measure didn't pass. He went on to say that, "not having students on the Faculty Senate broadens the gap between the faculty and students."

The referendum provided for the election of three CSCSB students to the Faculty Senate and the resignation of the legislative body to the "Senate." The measure, which was defeated by three votes, also included new election procedures for the Senate. The 95% faculty participation in the referendum showed the genuine interest of the faculty," stated Dr. Alfred Egge, Chairman of the Faculty Senate Elections Committee. He added that it was a good return for any voting body, showing that the issue is not dead, but very much alive.

"The issue is still undecided," stated Kenton L. Monroe, dean of students.

"Since there was no clear landslide decision, you can only draw the conclusion that the faculty is very closely divided," he added. Dr. Egge stated that the faculty has come a long way in recent years towards giving students more of a voice in committees and at Faculty Senate meetings. The outcome of the election has raised questions concerning the operation of the Faculty Senate, voting qualifications for faculty members, and the suggested tokenism of the measure.

According to ASSL President, "We are going to contest the election on the basis that there was some disenfranchisement of full-time faculty members." He also added that there is a question as to the constitutionality of part-time instructors not being allowed to vote.

When asked about tokenism concerning the placement of students on the Faculty Senate, Dean Monroe stated, "I couldn't agree with that because these students would receive the same full voting privileges as all other faculty members on the Senate...To have a vote is as meaningful a position as you can have in any decision making organization."

"If there is one among you...in any organization, that person can do as much as if there was 49, or 50%, representation in a body," replied Dr. Egge.

"Students have been very effective...in past times, even when they were not on the Senate," he added. "I think that one change which should occur is the strengthening of the student organizations."

The presentation of the referendum was a step in the right direction, according to ASSL President Rush. The privilege of voice in the debate is also very important, he noted.

According to Dean Monroe, a new Ad Hoc Committee has been established to review the entire situation and will make some recommendation concerning the election.

"It is hoped that the committee will evaluate the existing college governments and determine how to improve and determine how to improve them..." stated Dr. Egge. However, Skip Rush stated that since the Faculty Senate meets only once a month, there are no such committees to report. It will be difficult to get any results.

Some criticism was made of the difficult to get any results. Faculty Senate in general. The President stated that, "It was appealing at the way they function as an advisory body. They are not dealing with the issues as best as they can."

In any instance, the above results were made to the students themselves. Dr. Egge stated, "I'm not..."
Mayor digs cemetery

A graveyard, to be used by Cal-State students, is now under construction at the corner of Kendall Drive and State College Parkway, city officials announced early yesterday. Located jointly by the City of San Bernardino and the school, the graveyard is being constructed by Goldiggers, Inc. of Rialto at an estimated cost of $48,500, approximately $25 less than the next lowest bid. It was noted.

Explained Mayor Al C. Billiard. "Originally, the city had made plans to install lighting, but the installation of traffic signals at the intersection of Kendall Drive and State College Parkway ... But when the City Council was told that it would take about $50,000 to install the signals, they looked for a less expensive alternative."

Emphasized Billiard, "Because the intersection had become the scene of traffic congestion during peak hours about the beginning of fall classes, the Council felt that it had to be fixed immediately."

"It was at this point," he continued, "that I received a telegram from the Governor’s Office proposing the construction of a cemetery, to be jointly funded by the City and the State."

According to the Mayor, the Governor’s Office seemed "very anxious to provide students with a resting place."

"Having state support, the proposal was unanimously passed by the City Council," he noted.

Billiard chuckled. "I knew at that time that it was not so much a cure for the traffic problem, but the proposed construction would take care of this in the long term."

However, Council felt that the passage of the motion would bury the whole thing. As it was observed with a smile:

"No one has told me that the cemetery will be completed by Christmas. This worries me," he added.

The mayor stressed that "all accidents continue at their present rate, by Christmas we’ll have more bodies than plots. Then what do we do, spend another $45,000 on additional space?"

"At this point, I think it would have been much simpler, and $47,000 cheaper, if the City and State had jointly borne the $50,000 for traffic signals, and installed such immediately."

Billiard was emphatic. "The State has made the situation even worse by allowing Campus Police to direct traffic. Since their appearance, traffic flow has taken on an entirely different face. Few motorists understand the meaning of spread lights, outstretched arms, and the touching of noses."

"Whatever happens, I’ll be damned if I’m going to spend my Christmas looking for additional cemetery plots," Mayor Billiard concluded.

Good Luck, SAC

Late this week, an "underground," i.e., unofficial, publication will appear on campus. Produced principally by members of the Student Action Committee (SAC), the publication will be a "free" medium of exchange wherein any and all may publish what they believe," according to Nancy Saunders, former Pawprint assistant editor and now working for SAC on this new publication.

In her resignation published last week, Miss Saunders described the Pawprint as an "alternative newspaper," that of students at least, will be impelled to read instead of rereading and throwing it down."

The SAC publication, according to Miss Saunders, will be "counter-revolutionary enough to at least keep a reader awake through the second page." And it will also be "an student newspaper that... have some purpose in the bizarre environment we find ourselves now."

In an effort to aid this bold, new publication, The Pawprint has supplied significant amounts of (back) copy, art, and equipment. With the exception of The Pawprint staff are thus theirs in hopes for the success of this new publication.

The Pawprint believes that the SAC Journal will indeed be some... the wave of the ‘60s... a place to express their opinion. All they have to do is write their ideas down and give them to the Pawprint. From what... may no longer give time to the paper, or present no interest in student activities."

Saunders Editor:

"It is too bad that Nancy Saunders had to quit the Pawprint with the feelings she has today. She indeed feels that as a reporter for the Pawprint she cannot be objective in her articles, that she should resign."

Live-In '70

The overall reception of the Live-In Orientation is positive, according to a poll conducted by the Activities Office. Over 34% of those who attended responded to the questionnaire.

One of the most accepted aspects of the orientation was the informality of the program. Hand-in-hand with the acceptance of the informality came the disapproval of the co-ed system and the parties. When asked if the informal atmosphere will prevail, Richard Bennecke, activities advisor replied, "We can't keep it as informal as possible; we might as well have something set up on campus."

The food served was a sore point for participants, along with the closed meetings of M.E.C. H.A. and B.S.U. as well as too much free time and the irrelevancy of the workshops. All students responded that they had met other new students; therefore, the orientation did serve as a means of becoming settled in a new environment. Sixty-three per cent of the students reported they had met a sufficient amount of faculty and administration. Ninety-two per cent replied they would either attend the "Live-In" again or recommend it to new students. The Activities Office, in accordance to the general approval, expects next year's program to be very similar. There is room, however, for realignment of the agenda. These alterations could come in the form of alternate and more diverse programs, sports events and addition of other activities.

4S: Our opinion

Larry Draker, English Major, Junior: "Government is pretty non-representative. As a whole, it is not being reached by it. The reason is apathy on the part of the students. The government doesn't have much to work with. The continuance of federal funds for the operation of this school is proof that we're getting rewarded for our apathy."

Jim Robertson: Sociology Major, Senior: "It's not very representative but until the school system can change, it must continue to exist. Improvements could be made though, if changes could be made in the Constitution, and by making the divisions more representative. The present leadership does an adequate job under its guidelines."

Linda Trumble, Social Science Major, Junior: "There's a lack of apathy on campus... a lack of involvement... probably because it's a commuter school."

Don Dibble, Psychology Major, Junior: "By and large, student government is necessary for the voices of the students to be heard in an organized manner. Unfortunately student government has not functioned effectively to the present."

Roger Boman, Business Major, Senior: "The system is adequate, yet ours tends to be more of a social-popular function rather than a real voice. It deals with trivial problems rather than the major issues affecting the college and the community."

Byron, where are you?

"Where's Byron" has never been the name of a stage musical, but Byron Palmer who won the Broadway "Theatre World" award for "Where's Charley" will soon be seen as the dashing and courtly southern "Barse-gard Jackson Pickett Burnside." San Bernardino Civic Light Opera's production "Mame."

"Mame," the musical version to the novel and play "Auntie Mame" opens on stage of the California Theatre of Performing Aria November 13 for a limited run and stars Glenda McLeachie as the dashing "Mame." Byron was last seen by Civic Light Opera audiences when he starred in Meredith Willson's "Here's Love" several seasons ago. He is probably best known for his television appearances as emissary on the "Miss Universe and Miss World" contests. Palmer possessing a beautiful baritone singing voice, has had several radio and television broadcasts, and has appeared on Broadway and national company stage credits which includes the title role of "Mister Roberts" and "Auntie Get Your Gun" with Ginger Rogers.

"Mame" which ran on Broadway for over three years is not only noted for comedy but such beguiling musical numbers as "My Boy Girl, "If He Walked Into My Life" and "Mame" which have become familiar through radio and records.

Tickets for "Mame" can be secured from Civic Light Opera ticket office at telephone TU 2-2545 or by mail.

GNP rises

Even though the national output is not appreciating as rapidly as expected, the third quarter of this year, the rise in gross national product of goods and services is not proportionate. Consumers have had additional income from higher social security benefits, government purchases, and the introduction of the "surtax" on June 30. Instead, they have chosen not to spend it as investment, funds are available to savings and loan associations are experiencing large increases. The rate of personal savings is substantial increase in time deposits at commercial banks are seeing a substantial increase in time deposits (time deposits grew at a rate of 32% during the third quarter).

Some experts feel that the current auto strike may have made consumer purchasing. Some believe that they expect a continued rise in consumption, and the U.S. is lowering its "balance of payments." It is strengthening our currency benefits, government purchases, and the money supply.

Unemployment and higher prices. But, in general, consumers are saving because they are finding that time deposits are yielding a higher rate of return than market securities, and at less risk. These consumers seem to be testing the economy for a little longer before they renew their faith in it.

This savings function or "investment in savings" has two good points. It is strengthening our banks, savings & loan associations, and the money supply.
