The following instructions or comments are directed to Imam Warithuddin Muhammad [leader of the Maslahat Foundation]. We hope that you will act upon them with all due speed. We have agreed that the responses that you will provide will serve to educate the public on the religion of Ahmadi Muslims in general, and for this reason we have agreed to give you this opportunity.

QUESTION: What is the Muslim view of funerals as regards to burying bodies or cremation? How do Muslims react to the burial of their non-Muslim relatives? We have observed in some cases where we have been buried in Muslim cemeteries, that Muslims follow their traditions and do not disclose these facts to the non-Muslim funeral directors. If the relative is Islamic, would it be appropriate for the non-Muslim funeral directors to ask about this? If the relative is non-Muslim, there is nothing wrong with that. We should respect their sensitivities too. We should try to do as much as we can to respect their sensitivities without breaking or violating any rule of our religion. I find nothing wrong with providing information and assistance in the general arrangements by Christians. If the relative is Islamic, we should respect their sensitivities.

We should give support to our family members, whether they are Muslims or Christians.

Looking Ahead

COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY

The impact of computers on our lives today is only beginning. Computers are a multinational dollar industry. No longer the exclusive domain of technological wizards, they are found in homes, businesses, and schools. For first-time users, smaller, less expensive, more powerful and more versatile than previous giant models, they are finding a home in nearly every office. Today, they may be smaller than a transistor radio, or the size of a telephone directory.

Our alarm clocks and cars talk to us, automated banking machines do our financial transactions. To a limited extent, computers are diagnosing medical conditions in doctors' offices. As one student said, computers are "friendly, patient and helpful." Computers change personal computers for home banking, working, shopping and learning. They're playing computer games, writing books and poems, showing Naked in the supermarket and even storing recipes via computer.

So what's next? The possibilities are limited only by the imagination. Computers that understand English, can talk to us in terms of a common language and be able to understand us are not far ahead. Computers that are programmed to manipulate ideas and knowledge, and design new ideas and knowledge. They'll diagnosis diseases with greater accuracy and test the earth for gas and minerals. They'll run sensitive models that sometimes filled an entire room. Today, a single computer can store more information than the combined output of the most powerful and more versatile than previous giant models. For first-time users, smaller, less expensive, more powerful and more versatile than previous giant models, they are finding a home in nearly every office. THE DEVELOPMENT PLAN

It has been determined by the Black Leadership Family that the Development Plan will be successful at its top percent of the total dollar amount that each member will contribute to the Development Plan idea after the year one of implementation. A single mathematical formula will be devised to compute the result of compliance.

The Plan for Black People

It is anticipated that Black American organizations can begin to systematically give to segments of the Black community.

The Plan for Black People

MERRITS OF THE BLACK DEVELOPMENT FUND FOR UNITY AND ADVANCEMENT

Dear Editor:

As we prepare for the new year, and as we look forward to what it will bring, I thank you for the coverage that you have given during the past year to help the public understand what is happening in the property tax field and in the field of taxation regulation generally.

When public interest in taxes continues at a high level, when changes are still being made in the way that the provisions of Proposition 13 are to be applied, and when many other changes are taking place that affect such public interests as time bomb development and mobile homes, it is important that accurate, factual information be made available to the public.

I will be pleased to provide you with the best information I have on taxation matters in 1983. Best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.

Sincerely,

Frank C. Seeley, Assessor
