Duty to answer several points in which we handled the elections of last week. She objected to the levity with which we treated the offices and the officers and she also expressed concern over the way in which the "results" were interpreted by the students. My article "Election Results" was not intended to mislead, denigrate, malign or otherwise adversely affect the peace and tranquility which this campus has enjoyed these many years. I sincerely believed I was providing the students of CSCSB with a few moments of much-needed relief from the many deadly tones with which they have been inflected by their professors. Secondly, my article was intended to create student interest and perhaps participation in the elections. Ruth Spears's paternalistic attitude in regards to the students of CSCSB is inappropriate. Unlike Ruth, I believe the students of CSCSB have the requisite sophistication to read my articles without being in any danger of being misled by the rhetoric and other malformations of the facts.

If students are so easily influenced by newspaper articles, whether in the Pawprint or in other less superior publications, then our country is in trouble. When our students leave this college and go out into the hostile world, they will be exposed to rhetoric and falsehoods many times more insidious than the mild brand we dispense here, and if they cannot distinguish between fact and fiction now, what will happen to them later?

One of the purposes of education is to enable us to sift the garbage from the can, and one of the most basic assumptions of the Pawprint is that our readers are mature, reflective, discerning, knowledgeable thinking beings. Given these two conditions, no one should fall prey to any unwitting mis-information Pawprint should chance to publish.

If any of the students I mentioned in my article were offended, I regret the inconvenience, but it should be pointed out that when people enter public office they must expect to receive a certain amount of kidding and even criticism. This would be a dull world (and a most dangerous one) if we must only praise public officials.

Sincerely yours in fraternal brotherhood.

Dear Mom

Gee! this is a swell school. There are a lot of really good things and people here. It's windy some of the time and buildings are far apart, but otherwise I like it here. They have a cafeteria here and it serves as a meeting center for a lot of people. Everybody sits around drinking coffee and talking about college things. And sometimes you can see somebody eating the food there. The restrooms are clean and very near the cafeteria.

They had some bands here last week and they played some very loud music a lot of people sat on the floor and listened to the music. Some people were

'Lovers' first Fall production

By Frank Campbell

A whilom dramatist once put it this way: "All the world's a stage . . ."

It held true then and it's true today. Just look around you, campus. Ever see such a variety of costumes?

Enough of such tomfoolery. On with the show!

This week, the Drama Department at CSCSB will present "The Conscious Lovers." How did it come about? Dr. Barnes, department head, puts it this way: "There have been about 16 or 17 students who have worked their tails off."

"We have some great talent on campus," he said. "For example, last year John Archer won the best actor's award and Diana Knapp won the best actress award. They both have great potential."

Dr. Slout feels that the CSCSB Drama Department is a cut above the average. "Our faculty," he said, "shares a sense of enthusiasm that larger institutions don't have. We have close personal contact with our students."

"We are particularly interested in seeing original material by students, whether in the Drama Department or not. Of course, it would have to have workability, but we'd really like to produce an all CSCSB production."

"We've never attempted musicals here. I think it would be great if we could introduce a musical with the material written by people on campus."

Back to the "Conscious Lovers." An interesting sidelight is that an estimated 1,200 hours were spent in assembling and constructing the costumes for this 18th Century play. Those 1,200 hours were put in by five members of the Drama Department.

That's a lot of time. Fifty days.

Noah spent less time than that getting the Ark afloat.

Priests, fascists and people

by Bob Corderman
Chief Staff Writer

"Solutions proposed by the American intellectuals are surprisingly fascistic in their disregard for human dignity," so Father Theophane A. Mathias of Madras, India commented in his lecture on "Population Problems" stressing a human approach.

Among the American "fascistic" answers, which he labeled "both impractical and counter-productive", were to tax Indians according to the number of children they have; establish two types of marriages, those with children and those without; and he even cited one American population expert as saying "the Indians and Chinese are beyond help, so we should just leave them alone and allow them to die off."

Father Mathias stated that the "tax" proposal wouldn't work, due to the fact that most of the Indians affected by this plan are too poor to pay a national income tax already, this making an additional tax totally unfeasible. In his words, "the government would have to loan them the money before they could pay the government tax."

The main problem with the "marriage" theory is enforcement: "Who's going to arrest somebody for having a child?"

He probably derived the term "fascistic" from the "let 'em die" proposal, but he insinuated that it is not surprising to find such a recommendation.

FROSH PARENTS

Parents of freshman attending California State College, San Bernardino will have an opportunity to learn something about the college during a special program for them Thursday evening, Nov. 11.

The Parents Night program, initiated last year, is designed to introduce the adults to the college and to give them some idea of the kind of education and the kind of people their children are involved with, explained Dr. Russell DeRemer, associate dean of activities and coordinator for the event.

The program begins at 6 p.m. with a tour of the campus. Parents are to meet the student tour guides on the south steps of the new Library Building.

After a reception in the patio of the Physical Sciences Building, the parents will hear President John M. Pfau, Dr. Kenton Monroe, dean of students; Breck Nichols, president of the student body; and Dr. Charles F. Kellers, chairman of the Faculty Senate. Faculty representatives from all divisions plus members of the student personnel services will be present to meet parents and answer questions.

THETA PSI OMEGA

The girls' service organization, Theta Psi Omega, has diminished to a size that is unable to continue effectively as a united club. In the past, the organization has been responsible for the selection of senior woman of the year, scholarship grants, and college and community projects. These endeavors were supported by activities such as bake sales, fashion shows, and various contests.

In order to reorganize the club, it would require a group of girls with the time and interest to make the club a success on this campus. Anyone interested, please contact the Activities Office for the constitution and various materials belonging to the original club.

Lopez joins EOP team

By Val Jaramillo
Staff Writer

A recent addition to CSCSB’s staff is Mr. Pedro Lopez, who holds the position of coordinator of the tutorial and counseling service offered by the Educational Opportunity Program. He is a recent graduate of UCR, and holds a BA degree in Social Science. Having been an active participant in the EOP while at UCR, he is well qualified to assume his new duties here.

For those of us who know little of EOP, Mr. Lopez was kind enough to outline the main points of the program. EOP was designed to aid students of ethnic and/or racial minorities in coping with a college curriculum. Tutors are provided for the students to assist them in various subjects, and two counselors are available to provide guidance in non-academic problems.

Mr. Lopez stated that there are now 81 students enrolled in the Program, the majority of whom are Freshman. Usually these students spend a year in the program, after which they are re-enrolled as regular students.

According to the EOP office, the students are sometimes reluctant to utilize the services provided for them. Mr. Lopez attributed this lack of participation to the fact that the students may feel they are being treated in a preferential manner. This should not be a factor, however, since similar services are offered for other students as well.

In conclusion, Mr. Lopez suggested that EOP students take a more active part in student affairs and student government to increase their involvement in college activities. He also expressed the hope that any student who wants more information on the program will visit him or other members of the EOP staff in SS 128.

Karate offered

By Carolyn Sanna

If you are looking for a class which will interest the mind and discipline the body then the Physical Education department has the perfect class. Karate, taught by Mr. Anthony Gneck, who is also a student at CSCSB.

Pawprint was able to find some very interesting facts about Karate and Mr. Gneck.

Mr. Gneck has been involved with Karate for 16 years, ever since he was 17. He has his 6th degree black belt, which means he is one of the highest rated Karate instructors in the area. There are four stages in Karate and these are

Site: 1
- 1st belt (white)
- 2nd belt (yellow)
- 3rd belt (green)
- 4th belt (blue)

The 6th degree black belt is considered the highest level of achievement.

Carpool: clean results sought

By Patty Gorman
Staff Writer

Many Students at CSCSB want to do something about pollution. But either leave it to the ‘other guy’ or treat it with the question mark attitude. We fail to see one of our answers sitting right before us. It comes disguised in the words: CARPOOL.

Eighteen people, (3 faculty members, six community women, eight students, and one Key punch operator), enlisted their efforts in the carpool operation during registration this quarter.

Of the 636 who signed for the carpool, two-thirds of them were matched. Yet only twenty carpool stickers were sold this quarter, compared to one sticker sold last spring quarter.

Dr. Elliot Barkan, head of the carpool here and also a member of Operation Oxygen believes that people feel if they join a carpool, they’ll have to carpool every day. He explains, “If you want to go shopping one day, take your car - do carpool four days a week. That’s progress!”

The carpool idea, one of the four suggestions of Operation Oxygen, has been adopted first in San Bernardino County. Our neighboring cities are doing studies on its success before they adopt it. Dr. Barkan has had meetings with companies where carpool methods have been discussed and instructions for forming a carpool distributed. He has received questions about carpools from as far away as Rochester, New York.

Operation Oxygen is a non-profit organization dedicated to clearing the air in the Los Angeles Basin by reducing the number of cars on the road. Headquarters is located in Pasadena. The four suggestions of Operation Oxygen are: (1) Form a carpool and share rides. (2) Utilize public transportation. (3) Ride bicycles and walk. (4) Help Operation Oxygen.

Dr. Barkan is interested in this organization, as he puts it, “Because I can’t stand smog. It’s dangerous and unhealthy for children and other living things.” He went on to say, “Because it (smog) lacks a sense of immediacy, we can’t get people to act.” He believes that it would be different if you had to gasp for air as you walked outside. Dr. Barkan realizes that people are not willing to face reality or if they do face reality, they are not willing to act on it.

The carpool has been advertised by a variety of media including fliers, posters, and people who walked around with signs. Dr. Barkan emphasizes that the success of this project depends on the number of students getting involved. The only time they are needed is the first few days of each registration.

He said carpooling is “not only a method of cutting down pollution-it provides a valuable public service independent of smog.”

As Operation Oxygen states, “The ride you share will clear the air.”

made to leave because you are not supposed to smoke in the gym where the bands are playing.

They have movies here every week and they're free. After the movies I go to some friends house and we smoke cigarettes and drink soda. There are a lot of nice girls here and they like to to the parties too. Oh! it's so fun going to college parties and doing college things.

I used to bring Rover to school so he could run and play with the other dogs, but the administration said that they did not like all the dogs running around and making the grass dirty, and barking, so they want to make everybody put leashes on their dogs. Rover sure misses the other dogs and all the fun he had.

Well I've got to go now we are practicing football today because we only won our last game 42-20.

When the ASB-sponsored film, "Mad Dogs and Englishmen", was shown in PS-10, students didn't waste any time in filling up all the lecture room's two hundred and some odd seats and even both the aisles.

Just three days later the Newman Center made arrangements for Father Theophile Mathias to deliver a talk concerning the population problems of the world, yet only a few dozen bodies dotted the same auditorium.

Another example of America's relevancy-minded youth in action.

as the most important steps towards solving the overpopulation problem of the world.

After a nation educates its population, the people will have a "desire for improvement," that they wouldn't possess normally. Through this "desire", birth-control legislation would have a better chance of being instituted, and a law that would establish minimum ages for marriage would also become feasible. Father Mathias stated that even today a large portion of Indian population doesn't know its age.

He stated that, according to Malthus' population theory, a nation becomes "overpopulated" when there are more people than food to feed them, and as long as countries like America consume fifty percent of the resources of the world, when it only has one-fifteenth of its people, the problems associated with overpopulation will not be solved. "At the present," Father Mathias continued, "Asia has two-thirds of the world's population, but only receives twenty percent of its resources."

The problems of the world's overpopulated nations are compounding constantly. The only question that now remains is "Will people carry on their tradition of waiting until a disaster strikes before doing anything about it?"

Each week Pawprint will publish a partial list of equipment available to Cal State Students from the gym.
Dogs made 'persona non grada'

Dogs may no longer run loose on campus, under a new policy adopted by the Administrative Council and now in effect. The new regulations, based on the city of San Bernardino's leash law, were imposed to prevent problems of health and safety since the number of animals on campus is increasing.

Dogs brought to campus must either be secured on a leash, not more than four feet long, or confined in a vehicle. The leash must be held by a person and may not be tied to buildings, trees or furniture.

The only dogs permitted in campus buildings are seeing-eye dogs with their masters or animals involved in authorized research. If any other special circumstances arise, authorization to have a leashed dog in a building must be secured in advance from the Dean of Students.

All dogs brought to campus must have valid dog licenses, indicating they have current rabies vaccinations.

Dogs on campus in violation of this policy will be picked up by Campus Police and taken to their headquarters in the Heating and Air Conditioning facility. The animals will be held there until five o'clock, when they will be turned over to the City Pound. Owners of impounded dogs will have to make arrangements directly with the Pound for recovery of the animals.

Persons repeatedly bringing dogs on campus in violation of the new policy will be subjected to college disciplinary action.

Dogs Defended

Editor:

The approval of the new CSCSB "leash law" by the Administrative Council is a blatant demonstration of the cynical disregard which this college has for the organs of student government. Their infamous action will not soon be forgotten by the aroused students of CSCSB! Let Friday, November 12 be hereafter known as the day when responsible student government was dealt a mortal blow by the villainous school administration.

Let us examine this classic case of administrative calumny: last month the administration sent to the ASB Cabinet and Senate a "recommendation" to approve a "leash law" for animals on campus. When the ASB turned down their proposal, the administration, foiled in their puerile attempt to legitimize their act of repression, went ahead and passed the "leash" law over the ASB veto.

In effect, the administration asked the ASB Cabinet and Senate, "Please approve this 'leash' law; it's good for you." When the ASB refused to rubber-stamp the law, the administration said, "All right for you, junior. I tried to treat you like a responsible adult, but since you refuse to do what I tell you to, I'll have to do what's good for you."

The irresponsible action of the administration in passing the "leash law" the "leash" law over the ASB" and "leash" law over the ASB's expressed disapproval fully substantiates the charges of those who decry the ASB's lack of power in the affairs of this miscreant college. Let us henceforth refuse to listen to the siren song of those who would delude us into believing that involvement in campus activities is a relevant undertaking.

Chuck Palmieri, ROM, Tom Leitko, James Yee, Van C. Andrews.

Dear Editor:

Recently the Administration of this college attempted to pressure the A.S.B. government into supporting their desired "leash law" policy. This was overwhelmingly rejected by both the A.S.B. Senate and the Executive Cabinet. We feel that this pressure is a gross infringement upon the freedoms of the students of CSCSB.

This proposal was not passed by any body other than the Administration and the Staff. Even the faculty refused to rule on the policy. The Administrative Council adapted this resolution after it had been rejected by the other organizations.

We, the undersigned, believe that this resolution sets a dangerous precedent of Administrative interference into the lives of CSCSB students. The Administration has chosen to ignore the advice of the duly elected representatives of the people who are to be affected by their oppressive policies. In short, it doesn't matter what the students feel about the policies which are to affect their every-day lives, all that matters is what the Administration wishes. Is this to continue to hold true while students live in the dorms and are thus on campus twenty-four hours a day? We fear that this is what shall happen.

We would suggest that this Friday be Student Dog Day on Campus. We further urge that all students bring their dogs on campus without leashes. Take your neighbor's dog to lunch with you here at CSCSB. The Coalition will be providing free crunchy-munchies for all comers.

FROM a cave deep in CIA-occupied Washington, D.C. this is your much-maligned and thoroughly chastened reporter writing to the students of CSCSB in the name of the Powers-Who-Are:

Recognizing my deviant errors for the subversive faults they are, I emerge cleansed and transformed; no longer will I write any words of censure or ridicule, no more will I attack gratuitously or deliberately any figures or authority, instead, only words of praise will you hear from these pages.

THE COUNTRY is running very well today under the very capable guidance of our very competent President and hi very astute Vice-President. Inflation is still with us, but the President is aware of it and is keeping a very knowledgeable eye on it. The war in Vietnam continues, but the President sincerely promises for the five-hundred and thirty-third time that it is being advantageously wound-down as scheduled in accordance with his secret game-plan. At no other time in the history of this great and noble land has this country been so blessed by such leadership as it suffers today.

CLOSER TO HOME, President Pfau has entered the 7th year of his great reign as college president. We must all be grateful for the sacrifices he has had us make in his efforts to provide the type of education offered by CSCSB. Let us all pause for a moment of anguished reflection what-might-have-been.

IN ACCORDANCE with our new policy, we will not say a word against our student body officers. Instead, we will praise and thank them for their personal commitment and efforts in making CSCSB as relevant for students as it is.

WE MUST ALSO put in a good word for:
the cafeteria - the cashiers and other employees are as courteous and helpful as any in the whole State College system.
the campus police - they have never shot a student rioter in 2 years of devoted service.
the faculty - they have never caused a student to change his mind about the worth of a college diploma.
the gym - they have never refused a towel to anyone,
