Roth: RPT Attempts to Buy More Time

By William Samuel Jr.

Riverside Criminal Attorney Andrew Roth called a statement released by Riverside Police Chief Barry Carruth "an obvious and unrelated attempt to divert the public's attention from the fact his officers sandbagged an investigation."

In the statement, Carruth said "we are unable to proceed with the investigation and is being prodded by parties outside of the official investigation."

"Until this possible evidence is examined, we cannot put this case to bed and look into the investigation," Carruth said. "Unfortunately, this case came to a standstill as a desire to present the investigation to the District Attorney."

Roth was the "person outside the police department who is working to help the family members travel members of the family and friends of the family and friends of the victim."

"I believe the police department is being prodded by parties outside of the official investigation." Roth said the city of Riverside is caught in a legal "rock and hard place." Black Cultural Events in San Bernardino

Black women have a long tradition of investing in the creation of community—whether it be the neighborhood board, community church, political office, or the home itself.

As health care providers, we must understand that the community is our most important vehicle for ensuring health care is accessible and affordable for all.

We must use this tradition to our advantage, to ensure that our communities are engaged in the process of decision making and implementation of public policies.

Black women have a unique perspective on health care policy and should be at the forefront of advocating for policies that are responsive to their needs.

We must also recognize the importance of community health in improving health outcomes for all members of our community.

By working together, we can ensure that Black women have access to the resources they need to maintain their health and well-being.

Dear Dr. Levine: Should all women who exercise wear sports bras? Will a sports bra help prevent injuries from sagging?

Sports bras were derived in the late 1970's and have grown into a multi-million dollar industry.

Many women don't experience breast discomfort or chafing when they exercise, some nipple while exercising. For those who have had children or have had a BRCA test, O.K. Large breasts women are more likely to experience ever discuss that other than the fact that there are sports bras for all sizes.

The idea is to maximize motion and not sagging. There come in two types: those that compress or bind breasts, and those that encapsulate each breast.

Some shopping tips: try on the bra and simulate the movements you sport in the fitting room and up, run and play.

Avoid bras with bands, features or of much seams positions that make them chafe. Choose a bra with seamless cups or one with a turnover strap that will "help" avoid excess perspiration and create discomfort.

The hand should be slightly elastic in that it doesn’t impede the movement of the breast. It should be able to spread out and conform to the breast.

The boning should be firm and well supported and the fabric should feel smooth against the skin.

Dr. Levine owns a private practice in San Bernardino and2900 West Donner Drive Rancho Cucamonga, California. Women should examine their breasts with a mirror and look for any unusual lumps or changes in the size, shape or appearance of the breasts.

By diversifying our workforce to employ the talents of African Americans and other ethnic groups in the development, manufacturing and sale of our products.

By expanding our supplier base to ensure that companies owned by African Americans have the access and opportunity to provide us with goods and services.

By partnering with cultural service and charitable organizations to improve the quality of life for the African-American community and society at large.

Dr. Levine practices in San Bernardino and has written articles on the topic of breast health, including cancer prevention and treatment.

By striving to incorporate the legacies of African-American and other leaders lost and loved into the way we do business not just during the month of February but 365 days a year.

Washington's big break came in 1880, when he offered the principal of a new school in Tuskegee, Alabama. When he arrived, he found that funds had been set aside by the state legislature for the school, but would not be available until the following year. Undaunted, Washington traveled throughout the surrounding countryside and towns, recruiting students and inviting black leaders to apply for admission. Immediately after July 4, 1881, Washington had 30 students, opened banks and insurance companies, established colleges, sold developed real estate, invested beauty and barber shops, Funeral parlor and funeral home. Our Youth's Inspiration Comes from Our Community. Get Involved.

Our youth have goals and dreams. And they need to be inspired to succeed. Yet, every day, there are things that can interrupt a young person's life -- teen pregnancy. Every eight minutes, another teen gives birth to another child. And for many of these young people, the pursuit of their goals get placed on hold.

Help break the cycle of teen pregnancy. Take time to be with a young person. Become involved in youth groups near you. Join local recreational centers or mentoring programs.

Inspiration comes from a community -- parents, teachers, siblings, relatives and friends. Inspiration starts with YOU.

Be a role model to our community's youth. Listen to them. Talk to them. Let them know they have special qualities. Because without your guidance, possibilities get dim.
