Library Sends Out Questionnaires

These and other questions are offered to get the student viewpoint on that most valuable reference asset, and retreat from the hurly-burly of campus life, to better serve you, the student.

Responses from the questionnaires will be tabulated and posted in the library stacks. Responses on last year's questionnaire and make it more useful to your academic career.

Speaker Calls For Reforms

ROB MORETTI
SACRAMENTO — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti announced four critical areas for legislative priority in a statement opening the 1974 Legislative Session.

Moretti called for strong action to deal with the energy crisis, tax reform, crime prevention and consumer protection.

"At the moment, California is in the midst of an unnatural disaster — an energy crisis which could have been prevented, but wasn't," Moretti said.

"The energy crisis has been caused by an oil industry that placed profits above public responsibility and by an administration in Washington which all too readily followed the directives of the oil barons without consideration of alternative policies or the well being of the people." Moretti called for two key bills near-campus police at the fork in the road to the physical plant. "There is a circle drive for easy access and the center is always open.

Start bringing your old newspapers and cans tomorrow. And if you really care, get your neighbors involved. Help them by bringing their contributions for them. Everyone helps.

Funds raised from the center will go towards scholarships and possible construction of an outdoor tennis court.

CSEA Prepares Court Action

John Plau, the President of California State College, San Bernardino, has refused to meet and confer. CSEA representatives as the third level of review in a grievance filed at the Cal State San Bernardino campus.

A request to meet and discuss the grievance procedure. In refusing to meet and confer, Plau is following the actions of the Dean of the Office of Admissions and Records and the Vice President for Academic Affairs, the first two levels in the grievance. All three levels have refused to recognize the grievance as formal.

The grievance was filed by four clerical employees in the Office of Admissions and Records because of poor supervision, favoritism, but most importantly, harassment by the Dean, most notably foul-mouthed tirades directed at the employees.

The grievance was filed after numerous informal attempts to settle the issue had failed.

"The Administration is arguing that we haven't gone through formal stages," stated William B. McLeod, CSEC Southern California Coordinator. "This is ludicrous since the employees made numerous attempts to solve the problems through the Dean, Vice President, and Personnel Officer. "The Administration is simply closing its eyes to the problem, hoping it will go away, but it won't until President Plau takes action!"

General Manager Walter W. Taylor stated, "Our legal staff is presently preparing to take President Plau to court if he does not comply with our meet and confer request as the third level of review. No one will treat our members in a shoddy manner."

Editorial:

COMMON SENSE CONSCIENCE
By Tony Weathers

One would think that an environmental sewer such as Southern California would have a fairly sophisticated bus system to help reduce the disgusting air pollution produced by automobiles.

Unfortunately this is not the case. Take San Bernardino's Municipal Transit System as a case in point.

Have you ever wondered why it is that the State College bus runs only once every 45 minutes? Why the buses stop running after 6 p.m., leak inside when it rains, and are often ten minutes ahead or behind schedule?

It's because YOU DON'T ride the bus to school!

And the people who do are politically powerless: the poor, racial minorities, the young and the old.

As a student or employee at Cal-State, you are a member of an elitest constituency that can demand and get responsive action by local government in providing a viable alternative to the auto.

The obvious and wasteful conspicuous consumption that has characterized the United States since World War II is dying; as anyone with an eye on the future can see.

No longer are people going to have the extravagant luxury of living long distances from where they work and study, solving the transportation problem by commuting in a way that has devastating consequences on the environment.

If you are not part of the solution, YOU ARE THE PROBLEM!!!

To help become part of the solution, start riding the bus. You can probably think of a lot more areas for improvement after riding for a while, but here's a partial list of complaints:

1. Not enough buses running.
2. Poor adherence to time schedules.
3. Jerky-rumpled bus routes that take way too long to go short distances.
4. Inadequately marked bus stops.
5. Buses do not run on Sunday, have limited runs on Saturday, and do not run after 6 in the evenings.

These criticisms are not parochial, but apply to all bus systems in Southern California, including the RTD (Rapid Transit District, a misnomer) in L.A.

Only by public outcry and resistance to such slovenly bus service will things improve. Write your local city council, County Board of Supervisors, and state legislators; demand action.

There is no excuse for further delay in provision of efficient and adequate bus transportation in this smog-infested area except elected-official incompetence.

The City Council of San Bernardino was advised of the above recommendations for improvement in their bus system in early September and still no action has been taken.

Maybe the time has come to follow the example of the Mayor and the whole goddamned San Bernardino City Council for nonfeasance.

Letter to the Editor,

I would like to commend the paper for the thorough job of butchering that I performed on my "Venceremos" article of 12-7-73. The article appears awkward and inconsistent and I now feel I can no longer sign my name to anything I write to this paper. I must admit that the parts left unprinted are probably best left unprinted, but I would also like to remind the persons responsible for this "pantry-waist" stunt to pride themselves in Eating My Shorts.

Sincerely,
Jack Benny
Spinal Column

Dear Spinal Column,

All indications, this trend will continue. Do you have any suggestions to help me maintain a balanced diet in these times of inflationary food prices?

Dear Hungry,

It is heartening to note that you are putting some thought into eating better. Here are a few suggestions that may help:

- Completely chewed, fully digested fruit of the wheat plant. But one must be very careful not to get too much junk. Right? So, soak the wheat berries overnight, and cook them thoroughly in water, as you would rice. When done, it is soft like rice, but chewy. Add nothing to it except perhaps a little salt. It’s not delicious. It’s not meant to be.

- It’s meant to very inexpensive, simple, and efficiently get your body what it needs to stay healthy. The best way to eat it is to have only whole wheat berries for one whole day, so your body can best become accustomed to obtaining its nutrients from whole grains. Four handfuls spaced throughout the day.

- Don’t eat meat. Besides being hard to digest and detrimental to spiritual growth, it is expensive.

- “Bali,” you exclaim, “how am I to get the proper protein?” There are so many natural sources of vegetable protein that are superior to meat. Beans (kidney, mung, garbanzo, for example) cooked with rice has a tremendous protein yield. Not polished rice. If you use brown rice, cook it very slowly, a long time, so it is very soft. While basmati rice is very beautiful, the best, if you are going to do a rush, it will all avail itself in Canada Bazaar in L.A. Be sure to cool it down.

- There is much more that can be said about food, but I think that this book proves that all good books to read are Diet for a Small Planet and Recipes for a Small Planet. The words of the early ecologists are also good food for thought.

- It is only natural for you to ask questions in the Spinal-Pain Spinal-Guide. Simply put your letter in the interoffice mail or take it personally to the Pawprint office or mailbox. Here’s a new quarter of renewed positivity and spiraling growth.

Energy offendor

Energy-controlling illumination at San Bernadino Furniture Co. was noted last Wednesday at 9:05 when the store was closed. The use of electricity to promote the sale of furniture after hours seems to add a certain amount of insult to injury in light of the current energy crisis.

Organic Consciousness

Organic Consciousness is a phrase that was coined in the late 1960’s to describe the belief that man must live in harmony with Mother Nature and not upset the delicate balance of the Cosmos.

Before the ecology movement most Americans believed that they could throw garbage in the rivers and lakes and it would disappear. No one paid much attention to the brown stuff that was blocking out the sun.

No sooner had a solution to the pollution problem than rice. When done, it is soft and more complete than meat.

When rice is very beautiful, the best, if you are going to do a rush, it will all avail itself in Canada Bazaar in L.A. Be sure to cool it down.

News Of Note

California State Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti today reminded college administrators that they may be entitled to as much as a $45 refund after the first of the year as a result of a $1.1 billion tax relief measure enacted by the Legislature in 1972.

"Senate Bill 90 is remembered mainly because of the huge dollars to schools the greatest one-year support increase in California history and also because of the demand for homeowners' property tax relief," Moretti said.

He is in contact with all units and private institutions offering programs in law, medicine, engineering, teaching, etc., and receives daily information from potential employers.

We would appreciate your help in both informing your students about this. Each Mr. Duran any information you may have relevant to your particular fields, training and employment opportunities.

The office is located in Trailer 2-D and its extension is 428 or 397.

GAIN EMPLOYMENT

The amount of the tax credit is based on Adjusted Gross Income. For example, the qualified person whose income is under $5,000 gets the minimum $25 credit and the renter whose AGI exceeds $8,000 is entitled to the maximum $45 credit.

Moretti explained that only one credit is allowed to a husband and wife unless each maintained separate residences the entire year. Someone who was a resident on March 1, but for only part of the year, can take 1-12th credit for each month of residence.

An individual cannot qualify if--
- He lives with someone who claims him as a dependent;
- He or his spouse received public assistance grants which include an allowance for housing (1-12th credit can be taken for each full month grants were not received);
- He or his spouse receives the homeowners' exemption; or
- He rents property that is exempt from property taxes (unless taxes (unless a possessor interest) or--

More information on how to qualify for the tax credit and the date of the refund will be available by the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

A first meeting Tuesday, January 30, in room 305-455, "CHICANOS FOR LAW" will work closely with Chicano law organizations in the various law schools and community agencies. "CHICANOS FOR LAW" also hopes to establish a small resource pool of SAT (Law Student Application Test) practice books, law school handbooks, law schools application, financial aid information, and resource people in the various law schools. The organization hopes to provide a simulated LSAT for its members and with the help of the law students, provide valuable insights as to what takes place in LSAT, as well as in autobiographies and a realistic evaluation of what is needed in terms of LSAT scores and GPA. All Chicanos interested in law are invited to attend the meeting and become involved in this organization so that "CHICANOS FOR LAW" can be a useful and valuable tool in your quest to gain admission into law school.
