BETTER TO HAVE NEWSPAPERS WITHOUT GOVERNMENT THAN GOVERNMENT WITHOUT NEWSPAPERS

Join A Food Co-op And Save Money

LET'S FORM A FOOD COOP AND SAVE $$$

TIRED OF PAYING OUTRAGEOUS PRICES FOR FOOD??? Let's form a food coop. If you are interested fill out the form at the end of this article and drop it in the food coop box in front of the library and in front of the cafeteria.

Here's how it will work. Each member will buy one share at $5.00 per share (this $5.00 is fully refundable whenever you want to drop out). Each week you submit a list of the amount and type of food you want to buy.

We will compile a list of the total amounts and buy in bulk, thus assuring each member quite a savings.

When the food is purchased it will be divided according to the list you submitted.

Each member will then pay for what he buys and the following week we will repeat the process.

If you are interested fill out the form and we will get an idea of how many people want to join the coop. If it proves feasible we will have a general meeting and form the Coop.

Joe Bush Comments On Student Union

by Jaga Nath

Did you know that we have a student government at GSCSB? Well, I did a little bit of investigating, and I found out that it's true. Not only is it true, but our student government leaders are active, energetic, and sincerely concerned with getting their constituency, the student body (us, dear readers), their due.

I had a long, congenial chat with Joe Bush, ASB Vice President. He calmly and realistically discussed with me some of the "bones of contention" involved with the proposed student union.

Student Union, you say? What student union? Well, I know we're all busy with other things, but it is kind of nice to know that some of our fellow students are busy looking after our interests. Interests? Yeah, about $740,000 worth of interests. That's the projected cost of the 15,000 square foot proposed student union. To be built with our money.

In 1965-66, the administration established a student union committee, composed predominantly of students, to look into it. In 1968, it was concluded that a union was necessary and feasible. (Every campus has a student union!) It took until 1971 for the student body to give their approval, and since then, five dollars per quarter per student has gone into this student union fund. There is now $70,000 in this fund.

All of the money for the proposed building will eventually come from the students, partly financed by a bond sale to be paid back through the student union fund.

A student union, approved by students, used by students, built with students' dollars. Seems like students ought to have a lot to say about what goes with it, what is built there, how it is managed. The Foundation (administration biggies) is now considering management of the student union "for financial reasons." Hm. What does that mean?

VP Joe Bush raps on Student Union

Anyway, Vice President Bush wants an auxiliary board, controlled by students, to run the union.

There are many other "bones of contention" involved. What kind of rooms should go in the building? A snack bar or just bending machines and microwave ovens? These are some of the issues that are now being hashed out.

It's our money, our student union. If you care at all about what happens, let it be known. Write in to your school paper. Talk to your senator, or even to Vice President Bush. It's their job to listen to you.

I personally feel that a student union is much needed. I know I would appreciate its being around. We are growing as a school and as a community, and we need a place to just relax and be together. I want it to be done right. I think it should have a meditation room. If the planners have any foresight, I think they'll include that. It's a growing need. There are many possibilities, many desires and needs. The thing is in its planning stages now. Let your representatives know how you feel. Otherwise, how can they represent you?

P.S. After my talk with Vice President Joe Bush, I must give him a strong vote of confidence. He's doing a good job.

IOC Improves Image

The Inter-Organization Council (IOC) is one campus organization which is continually striving to support the growth of student activities here at Cal State San Bernardino.

It was only last December that IOC was a floundering, incompetent council. To remedy this situation several members of the council took the initiative to impeach President Isabel Ebert due to her lack of performing the necessary duties of the president of IOC.

The purposes and functions of IOC are: "chartering student organizations, providing communication between the clubs and student government, coordinating club activities, handling common problems among clubs and aiding clubs in the development of worthwhile programs through financial assistance."

Newly elected President Arnold Resendez, formerly vice-president of IOC, has taken sufficient measure to improve the functioning of the council. In the December 6, 1973 meeting, IOC established a new regulation for clubs seeking assistance from IOC. The regulation states that a club must have a representative present at two IOC meetings prior to receiving financial assistance from IOC. This means that all clubs on campus who seek help from IOC for their activities should elect a representative to regularly attend IOC meetings. The council has agreed to give special consideration to newly organized clubs on campus, also, to representatives who have missed meetings due to "special circumstances."

Renaissance Festival

As a part of the Renaissance Month observance at California State College, San Bernardino, original drawings from that period will be on display in the Art Gallery through February.

The show represents selections from the Sonnenschein collection, owned by Cornell College in Mount Vernon, Iowa.

A reception at 6 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 10 in the Art Gallery will introduce the exhibit and conclude an afternoon of Renaissance activities sponsored by the School of Humanities. Preceding the reception will be a 2:30 p.m. matinee performance of "Mandragola," by The Travelers Company from Hollywood, and a 5 p.m. lecture on Machiavelli by Fredi Chiapelli, director of the UCLA Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies. All activities are in the Fine Arts Building, site of the Art Gallery. There is a $2 admission charge for the play but none for the lecture and the Art Gallery reception.

"The definition for Renaissance used for this show is a very broad one," according to Don Woodford, associate professor of art and director of the Cal State gallery. "The exhibit includes work of the Mannerist period, immediately following.

"Viewers can see a clear development from the clean, precise refinement of early Renaissance work up through the exaggerations (elongation, deep perspectives) of the Mannerist period and even to the development of the Baroque style, as represented by artists such as Tiepolo."

Not limited exclusively to Italian drawings, the show includes works by major figures from other areas of Europe such as David Teniers, represented by a sepia chalk study of a boy's head.

Drawings of the Renaissance are the first available today in any number, Woodford stated, because before then, artists were thought of as craftsmen.

"It wasn't until the Renaissance when art took on a new importance that drawings began to be valued and kept as an intimate expression of the artist's ideas."

The Sonnenschein collection, which opens Feb. 1, may be seen during regular gallery hours: Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m.; Saturday, 12 noon to 4 p.m.; and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The gallery is open Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

PEOPLE'S PAPER

Hey People,

If we're going to have a good weekly student newspaper, we gotta' have more student participation in the preparation of the PawPrint.

Just ponder the advantages of involving yourself in such an endeavor:

1. Staff writer for the college newspaper looks good on job resumes as a worthwhile extracurricular activity.

2. Opportunities for training in all phases of newspaper production exist, including photography, writing, advertising, interviewing, and other areas.

3. Opportunity to move into salaried staff positions when vacated.

4. Let other students have a chance to hear how you're thinking through the medium of the press.

As an added inducement to encourage students to write for the PawPrint, 2 units credit may be received for turning in stories.

The PawPrint office is located in the ASB trailer so come over for more details. All students are invited to attend the weekly staff meeting Tuesdays at 9 a.m. and help us discuss how to improve the next week's issue.

We all pay for this paper and if we're going to get our money's worth we need input from all segments of the campus community.

Cum Fly Away With Cal Gay

Cal State's Gay students are conducting meetings off-campus every Thursday at 8:00 p.m. Off campus? one ponders as he reads. The answer is obvious - protection of Gay students from Cal Straight's Administrators.

The Gay Students Union is the brainchild of three many Gay students on campus who felt a vehicle necessary for expressing Gay pride.

G.S.U.'s purpose is to increase awareness amongst those who are Gay and to educate non-Gays in the field of Homosexuality.

Our activities for the remainder of the academic year includes a Gay Pride Week to be held in late March.

Possible speakers include Truman Capote, Jeff Bean - speaker on Gay prisoners, Jan Oxenburgh on Lesbianism, and Morris Knight.

Some flicks under consideration are "The Queen," "Boys in the Band," and "Some of Your Best Friends."

Other activities include a drag show in the lower commons during lunch and Gay-Straight Raps and seminars on the fifth floor of the library.

Climaxing the week will be a dance with possible guest appearance of Sylvester.

All indications promise to a very fruitful week.

G.S.U. is presently investigating the conditions for Gay prisoners in San Bernardino County prison and establishing a Gay Rap Line for the Gay community in San Bernardino.

Resulting from our previous meeting is G.S.U.'s own motto - "Come Fly Away With Cal Gay."

Accusations such as lack of school spirit or campus involvement cannot be directed at G.S.U.

Everyone is welcome to G.S.U.'s first Gay-Straight Rap in P.S. 107, Tuesday, February 4, 1974 twelve noon.

Further information on G.S.U.'s meeting location and progress can be obtained from Richard Bennecke in Trailer 3C - Extension 516.

Let's Get the CLEP

Open Letter To All Concerned

I would like to bring to your attention for possible further discussion at the Statewide level, information about the College Level Examination Program, (CLEP) test. This test is a Credit-by-Examination test designed by the Carnegie Foundation to replace the original College equivalency General Educational Development (GED test). This CLEP test has been administered by the United States Armed Forces Institute (USADI) directly to the Armed Forces since 1965.

College credit towards graduation of up to 30 units of lower division credit has been offered for satisfactory completion of the General Exams in five area examinations of general educational subjects counting six units each. This test is now accepted at over 1,000 colleges and universities across the country including most of the "Ivy League" schools and all nine campuses of the University of California, but not in the State College System. Their is no plausible reason why it should not be accepted. After World War II and the Korean War, over 500,000 veterans took the GED test and received college credit for it. The CLEP test has much higher validity than the GED and was designed specifically to supercede it. Therefore, why is it not accepted in the State College System?

Credit by examination is no new phenomenon. Nicholas B. Katzenbach a former member of the Cabinet under President Kennedy, received a full four year degree from Princeton by examination. I do not therefore feel that thirty units of credit is asking too much. The CLEP test is not only available to veterans but civilians as well. There is a greater sense of urgency for veterans because the Viet Nam era is over and those Vets who are serious about returning to college will do so in the immediate future. This means that since the CLEP is applicable to only lower division credit, it will be meaningful for veterans only if implemented in the next two years. In this time absolutely nothing has been accomplished at the State level in the system except procrastination. This matter needs URGENT attention NOW!

A lot of lip-service and glad handing has taken place in behalf of innovative education. In a system in which challenge examinations have shown themselves to be impossible to administrate because of instructor apathy; in view of the rising cost of education; in view of the rising tax costs for the support of educators; the CLEP test is a viable answer, and one which needs to be enacted immediately.

At this time a non-committal policy of credit in subject areas, but not the granting of credit towards graduation, is in effect on this campus. Such a policy is meaningless.

Such a deviation of the State College System from the majority of other institutions is not only discriminatory, but a disgrace. The CLEP must be implemented on all CSUC campuses immediately, to the name and honor of an educational system which cannot see fit to grant a small educational indulgence for the constant and faithful service our Veterans gave to this country with so little reward.

Respectfully,
Robert C. Hibble

Congress is now considering a bill that would extend Veteran benefits under the G.I. bill an additional year.

This bill would make available additional money to Veterans who are working on their M.A. or higher degree.

The best way to get this bill approve by congress and the President is to write to your elected officials.

Start right now and send a letter to all the local members of congress and even the President himself.

At the present time anyone who has served on active duty in the military forces of the United States is entitled to receive money from the Veterans Administration to offset the high cost of education.

The average veteran receives two hundred and twenty dollars per month for full time attendance at college.

These monthly benefits at present only last for thirty six months.

If the new bill is passed by congress, it will extend veteran educational benefits for an additional twelve months.

This would enable a Veteran to continue receiving educational benefits after he earns his B.A. degree.

So if you are a Veteran, or if you know a Veteran, Write your elected officials today and ask them to support this important bill.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The Veterans Office of Cal State publishes a newsletter that is sent to all veterans attending Cal-State. Usually the newsletter contains some good hints on how a Veteran can insure that his educational benefits will arrive on time or how many units constitute full time attendance.

The January newsletter that was handed to all Veterans during registration contained an article by one Captain Krommenhoek that asked all former servicemen to consider reenlisting into the National Guard and becoming a weekend warrior. The Infantry Captain tells about all of of the monetary gains that can be had for just a few hours of your time each weekend.

Captain Pete does not tell you that once you put your name on the dotted line again you're back into the same machine that took all your constitutional rights away once before. If the Veterans Office is really concerned with the well-being of the Veterans they would not print propaganda of this type.

Letter To The Editor Of The Pawprint

I find it hard to understand with the current squeeze on gasoline supplies in this country that the State College Police find it necessary to pollute around campus enforcing parking regulations in their eight cylinder stinkers.

Why can't the campus cops WALK or RIDE A HORSE OR BICYCLE around while issuing parking citations? Also, I see no need for the campus police to carry firearms on campus, unless it's for killing rattlesnakes that might periodically come down from the hills. I would appreciate the Pawprint pursuing this inquiry and seeing if action on my suggestions is possible.

Sincerely,

Energy crisis
Gas rationing to come.
Prices goin' up
Can't feed myself no more.
Mama oh mama how do I cope?
Well son... keep up, have hope and Share the energy share the energy share the energy!

I can't be in a car pool. I mean, I have a busy schedule, lots to do, and I have to be able to have a flexible schedule. Have to drive my own car, can't be dependent on someone else's timetable.

Does that sound like a familiar line of thought? I know I've heard it inside my own head. My thinking now, however, is a little different, since I had a mutually inspiring talk with Dr. Carol Goss.

Over Christmas vacation, Elliot Barkan did some thinking and some organizing, and a car pool from Wrightwood was formed. Dr. Goss is one of the eight faculty members (mostly social science professors, by some coincidence?) who share the driving for the forty miles to campus. Doctors Martinez, husband and wife, Herrold, Khare, Barkan, and Goss, and James Thomas and Ward McAfee have worked out a system that is really beautiful, and that we should all perhaps model.

There are a couple of problems that immediately come to mind in a car pool. Different people do have different schedules, different needs and demands. With eight people in the group, every day there are at least two, sometimes three cars, commuting in to campus. One of those two or three cars will be able to accommodate your schedule most adequately. And you don't have to ride back with the same car. With a couple of choices, it can almost always be happily worked out.

What about the money trip? Who owes who how much? It could conceivably become very complicated, and even somewhat heated. The Wrightwood Regional Rollers have come up with a seemingly foolproof system. Play money. Yeah. Each person gets 17 play money dollars, stamped "Ralph H. Petrucci" to give the currency stability, and to denote it as car pool money. It is for use only within the group. Each time you ride with someone else, you pay that person a dollar. Thus, if I am down to only ten dollars, then I've taken seven more rides than I've given, and I'd better get busy and do my share.

Dr. Goss admits that she had her doubts about how it would all work out, but "now there is a community of feeling. You feel ashamed to come by yourself. You know you're wasting energy."

The whole set-up is very informal and relaxed, and I could feel a group-consciousness, a love, coming through with Dr. Goss' words.

This brings to my mind a couple of ideas.

Thank goodness for the energy crisis, for a little bit of dirt! It's forcing us to come together a little bit as people. To unite and share, and feel a little bit that "community of feeling," that brotherhood, a unity of Mankind on this Earth.

You know, it doesn't take a great seer to be able to see that the times are getting harder. We're in for some dirt for awhile. I hope that out of it all, we can learn to help each other, to support each other, to work with each other, to stick together. The Wrightwood car pool should be an inspiration to us all. I hope it stimulates the formation of others.

Food prices are going out of sight and they aren't about to stop. Other communities, especially college communities, have really great food co-ops. Why don't we have one here? If we get together, as people with common needs and problems, we can buy fresher foods at lesser prices. It just takes some energy, some organization, some group consciousness. I have had some experience with food co-ops. If anyone is interested, get in touch with me, through the Pawprint, and let's do it! I think it is a really worthwhile idea.

Dr. Brij Khare flashes "play money" used as payment in Wrightwood car pool.

of raising their own chickens someday. These people will then realize that they are not a minority and the movement to return to the simple life will take a firm hold.

Once this movement starts to pick up steam, the big wheels at General Motors will start thinking about making tractors instead of cars.

One of the best ways to conserve water, energy and soap and at the same time get to know someone else better is to take a shower with someone else.

If you have hangups about taking a shower with someone of the same sex, take a shower with someone of the opposite sex a couple of times and then try a member of your own sex.

I know a family of five who live in Oregon and this family takes a shower together every Saturday night. Mom and Dad and all the kids (and sometimes their two dogs) all climb into the shower together.

An excellent way to cut down on your gas bill is to shut off all pilot lights on your stove and oven.

If you're afraid to tinker inside the stove for fear of blowing up the whole neighborhood, just call your friendly gas service man.

The gas people are more than happy to come out and shut off the pilot lights. There is no charge for this service.

However if you think you can accomplish the task yourself, here are a few fairly easy instructions.

Each set of burners and the big burner for the oven will have its own pilot light.

Each pilot light should have a small valve at its base.

All you have to do is turn this valve until the pilot light goes out.

The only tools you should need are a screwdriver and maybe a pliers.

The money you save on your annual gas bill will more than pay for the additional matches you will use.

A couple of tin cans in the middle of the fireplace will absorb heat and radiate a surprising amount into the room.

The cans will have to be replaced every couple of days, but this sounds like a good way to get rid of some extra trash.

If you want to add ten years of life to your mental garbage cans, paint the bottom of the cans with asphalt roofing sealer.

Student Opinion Poll

Should Nixon Stay?

This week students at San Bernardino State were asked to give replies to this question:
Should Nixon Stay In Office?

Stanley Macon, Junior

"I feel that the President has his right and left hand in the cash register. This has proven to be very beneficial to him. He has taken advantage of the American people ever since his term began. That's why I say let's impeach the President now."

Barbara Sion
Freshman

"My opinion is one of confusion. With the Watergate Hearings and related information, I have not made a decision as to whether or not Nixon is guilty. My position at the moment can be stated as straddling the fence."

"I think he should just finish his term as long as he keeps supporting Israel. With the remainder of his term he can try to undo the damage that's already been done."

"I don't think he should stay in office because he's lost the confidence of the American people as well as being criminally implicated in the worst scandal in this country's history."

"I feel the courts and not Richard Nixon should decide who is or is not guilty. My personal opinion is that he is guilty based on media reports. I would like to add that I did vote for Nixon in the last election."

"Although politics do affect me, I try to maintain a rather distant involvement. However, if I had to choose between impeachment or resignation, I would prefer impeachment because I think it would arouse public awareness."

Physical Plant Goes Back to 5 Days

In August of 73 the Physical Plant servicing Cal State San Bernardino began its experimental four day work week program. On January 28, after a six month trial run, they returned to the regular five day shifts.

There were two basic reasons for the return, according to the Supervisor of Building Tradesmen Andy Maurel. One was that the "staggered" shift resulted in an unbalanced distribution of workers. Mondays through Thursdays were fir-with 8 employees on hand--but Fridays saw only three workers available to service the entire college.

Secondly, the four-day, ten hour per day shift required that the workers begin at six in the morning--undesirable first because there is little light at that hour, but also since the supervisors' shift does not start until eight. Thus there were two unsupervised hours at the beginning of each work day.

Finally, though a poll of the employees revealed the majority of workers preferred the four day week, the school's administration felt the four day shift was not conducive to the utmost in efficiency. They felt there were no benefits to be obtained from the experimental shift which were not obtained by the conventional schedule.

ZPG Needs Support

The Zero Population Growth organization has had, literally, zero growth in its San Bernardino-Riverside county chapter. According to Ms. Sandra DelGeorge, the area's coordinator, there has not been a successful meeting held in this area for well over a year.

The reason is simple--attendance at these meetings has been so low that the San Bernardino-Riverside chapter has been declared "inactive." Odd when one realizes that many of the problems this area, in addition to other cities, are directly related to what ZPG is all about--population. Many of these problems--pollution, food shortages, rising costs coupled with diminishing produce--may in part be traced back to the crisis of overpopulation.

Why then such a curious lack of interest in ZPG? An interesting question indeed, perhaps one all of us should consider. If you have difficulty in arriving at a satisfactory answer, maybe you should consider getting in touch with the ZPG people in this vicinity. You may write them at 1563 Riverside Avenue, Riverside 92502, if you have any comments, questions or ideas pertaining to their organization.
