CSUSB
Fall Class Schedule Changes

With the Fall 1984 class schedule, the campus is changing from its traditional four day pattern of scheduling courses. After a study of our past practices and the growing need for additional classroom space, and ad hoc committee of faculty, staff and students recommended a change which would make fuller use of the campus on Friday and preserve our practice of independent study for each class. Changes the editor has in mind along with a few others.

The new format will schedule courses in three day and two day blocks, with Monday-Wednesday-Friday courses meeting two days for seventy minute periods and a fifty minute period on Friday, and Tuesday-Thursday classes meeting for two one hundred minute periods.

After 4 p.m. most classes will continue to meet in the previous pattern of Monday through Thursday, either two nights a week for one hundred minute blocks or a 200 minute block once a week.

Check the starting and ending times for each class carefully when selecting your schedule in order to avoid overlapping courses. Some laboratory, studio, and activity courses do not conform to the typical pattern for lecture/discussion classes. A chart will be available on page 39 of the Fall Class Schedule for your scheduling convenience.

“We are no longer printing a preliminary Winter and Spring schedule. Check with School and Department offices if you have questions regarding future offerings and course cycles,” advised Prichard.

MANAGEMENT LECTURER DIES UNEXPECTEDLY

Dr. Peter Bouvier, 41, lecturer in management in the School of Business and Public Administration, died unexpectedly in his Redlands home late Wednesday or early Thursday.

Dr. Bouvier, who joined the Cal State faculty on a part-time basis last September, had taught at Nichols College, Viterbo College, the University of Redlands, the University of Massachusetts at Boston, Sienna Heights College and the University of Ottawa.

He earned his B.A. from San Francisco State University, his M.A. from UCLS and his Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh.
Outstanding Alumni Honored

Five outstanding alumni of Cal State were honored by the Alumni Association at its fifth annual awards brunch April 29.

Furlong Davis of Lake Arrowhead, a nurse-practitioner, was named alumnus of the year. Honored as alumnus of the year were Thomas Ahrens of Mission Viejo, vice president of Wells Fargo Bank; Ruby Rhodes of Rialto, counselor at San Bernardino High School; Wallace Johnson of Redlands, special education teacher in Redlands; and Lt. Col. Edward Sheeran of Highland, commander of 63rd Aircraft Maintenance Squadron at Norton Air Force Base.

The awards, recognizing contributions to the community, the college and the Alumni Association...

NEWSBRIEFS

Memorial Day to be Holiday

Classes will not meet Saturday, May 26 and Monday, May 28 in observance of Memorial Day. The Library will have regular hours Saturday and Sunday, and close Monday.

Local Families Needed for European Exchange Students

The ASSE International Student Exchange (ASSE) is seeking local families to serve as hosts for 15 Scandinavian, German, Swiss and British high school students who are part of the ASSE exchange visiting program.

Susan Hayes, Western Director for ASSE, says that the program the non-profit ASSE is affiliated with the Swedish and Finnish Departments of Education and is officially designated by the Swedish Information Agency as an Exchange Visitor Program.

The students, 16 and 17 years old, are fluent in English and are carefully selected for the program based on their high school performance, good character, and interest in the ASSE program. All of them are covered by comprehensive medical and liability insurance and have adequate money for personal needs for meals and housing.

The ASSE family will present their family’s official welcome and present American culture at a dinner party on Saturday, May 26 and Sunday, May 27.

Free Physicals for Cusdonians

If you have found yourself becoming better acquainted with the janitorial staff lately it is no surprise. March 9, a single daytime shift went into effect for the entire custodial operation on our campus. When asked why the change was implemented Mr. Overton, who is initially responsible for the operation, had this to say.

"Sometimes we have to work around people but there are no days when everyone is going to be around people. The change has brought us closer together and we seem more like a family."

The routine change has reaped many positive results. Previously the day staff consisted of seven workers who had to work now. Generally, the change has greatly decreased the burden of their work. The change has actually been requesting from the faculty and students a substantial amount of help.

Attention All Teachers and Prospective Teachers

Next week, during Career Week, the Career Planning and Placement Center is holding a Careers on Education Day. On Wednesday, May 30, Directors of Personnel from eight local schools will be on campus to answer any and all of your questions concerning working as a teacher or an administrator.

Presidential Advisor to Speak Wednesday

Professor Don Walsh, a member of President Reagan's National Advisory Committee on Oceans and Atmosphere, will speak at 6 p.m. Wednesday in BI 22.

He will discuss the Reagan Administration's ocean policy for a maritime economic zone. Walsh, president of the consulting firm International Maritime Incorporated, was director of the Institute for Marine and Coastal Studies and professor of ocean engineering at USC. He has published more than 85 articles and presented the "Legion of Honor" medal at the White House from President Dwight Eisenhower for their submergence explorations in 1960. The program is arranged by Dr. Richard Ackley (National Security Studies.)
Elections

The election of Committee for Clubs officers will take place at the Committee for Clubs meeting on Wednesday, May 23, at noon in the Student Union Senate Chambers.

"All formally recognized clubs are urged to send representatives. Contact me if your group has only temporary recognition," advised Clare Sharafinski, Activities Advisor. Formally recognized clubs are entitled to one vote per club representative. The three officers, chairperson, secretary, and treasurer, must be from three different clubs.

Each potential candidate is required to write a campaign statement (75 words in length) describing his/her desire and qualifications to assume the responsibilities of a Committee for Clubs officer.

Three additional positions will be reserved for members of the Associated Students Activities Committee, and will be appointed this spring by the A.S. Activities Committee Chairperson. The duties and responsibilities of these representatives are to provide helpful suggestions and advice in planning and coordinating campus activities. See Dexter Wash, A.S. Activities office, 887-7498.

The Committee for Clubs established by A.S. Executive Order as a viable mechanism to advise, coordinate, and provide financial assistance for the activities of campus clubs and organizations. The Committee for Clubs is currently functioning as an Administrative Committee of Associated Students.

The Committee for Clubs' functions are:
1) Review and decide upon monetary requests from student organizations;
2) Advise and coordinate the activities of campus clubs and organizations;
3) Provide communication between the various clubs on campus;
4) Aid in coordination of jointly sponsored club activities.

Each organization recognized under the procedure for formally recognizing student organizations on this campus is eligible for membership in Committee for Clubs. Each organization is entitled to one voting representative to elect Executive Board members.

Club Of The Year Nominations Now Being Accepted

Nominations from Clubs for Club of the Year awards are now being accepted by Clare Sharafinski, Activities Advisor.

The Club of the Year Award represents Activities Office recognition of superior achievement by a student club or organization. Competition is open to all recognized clubs and organizations on campus. The winner of this award last year was Psi Chi.

The Club of the Year Award is decided by these criteria:
1) Number of meetings during the year.
2) Special events sponsored (fundraisers, lectures, luncheons, etc.)
3) Participation in college-wide events (e.g. Fall Festival, Open House, Springfest, etc.)
4) Community service projects;
5) Number of active club members; and
6) Compliance with college regulations and procedures.

"If your club or organization wishes to compete for the Club of the Year Award, please complete the nomination form as soon as possible and return it to me in the Activities Office, SS 122, by Wednesday, May 23. The winner will be announced at the Club Merit Awards Reception May 31 at 2 p.m. in the Lower Commons. All club members and advisors will receive an invitation to attend. The winner of the Club of the Year Award will be announced at this reception, and the Uni Phi Club will be presenting special awards.

Springfest

by Greg Timpany

It looked like a scene from Balboa beach, but in fact it was the Springfest. This year’s Springfest carried a “Beach Party” theme, and a majority of those who attended appeared as if they were on their way to Hawaii. There was food, music, exotic dancers, food, games and more food. A majority of the clubs participating this year offered some sort of food.

The San Andreas Geographical Association (SAGA) was offering Teriyaki Beef Strips. According to SAGA president Blaine Osborn the money raised was going to be used to finance upcoming projects, including a trip to Solar One in Dagget. The Black Student Union (BSU) was offering chili dogs for sale. The Finance Association was present with their “get rich quick” coin toss game.

The Cal State Organization for College Women cornered the market with their Dunking Tank. Many students and administrators dared to take the plunge. Included in the group were Deans Wilson and Kajcien ski, and students Dexter Wash and Chris Phelps. The Cal State Marketing Association’s president, Mitch Slagerman, and a group of diehard followers, camped out overnight to ensure a good location for their “Tio Elmo’s” booth. The CSMA also sold handicrafts for the Association for the Retarded Citizens. According to Mitch Slagerman the troubles were well worth it. The CSMA booth was awarded “best booth in the Springfest.”

Other clubs and organizations on hand included MECHA, the Business Management Club, Sigma Beta Upsilon, USOCA, the International Students Association, the German Club, and many more. In addition to the food and drink there was live music. Many students took their lunch to the grass knoll outside the Commons and listened to the sounds of AUGUST and COMMON BOND. The latter being a Christian Rock trio from the L.A. area. Their sound was that of a seasoned outfit, blending elements of blues and more mainstream rock into an interesting sound. Their next area performance is at Knotts Berry Farm on May 25. They are well worth the drive to see.

The addition of booths, as opposed to just tables, gave the fest a “Carnival” like atmosphere. According to Activities Coordinator Clare Sharafinski, the fest was the “best of the year.”
Exotic dancers were a special attraction at this year's Springfest.

CSCOW's dunk tank was a huge success.

"Caught in the Act"

by Greg Timpany

I am back in action this week with "Caught in the Act" by Styx. This is the latest release by our Stygian heroes. The album was recorded during last year’s "Kilroy Was Here" Tour. Being a fanatic about "Paradise Theater" albums, I jumped at the chance to do a review on this album. I have not been following the band closely since they released their "Pieces of Eight" album. This album, however, brings back a lot of the raw energy missing on their last three albums. In addition to being energetic, "Caught in the Act," presents a good cross section of the band’s material.

Side One leads off with "Music Time." I don’t think that this cut is live, but never-the-less it is an up-tempo rocker. The next track is an alive-version of "Mr. Roboto." This song reminds me very much of past Queen material with its layers of vocals. Tommy Shaw steps up to the plate with his "Too Much Time On My Hands." I wish I had his problems! The side ends with a relaxed version of "Bebe." This track comes complete with the Dennis De Young trademark of flowing piano work and soaring vocals.

Side Two follows with a soliliquy by James Young on the subject of Backwards Masking. This makes for an effective intro for "Snow Blind." Mr. Young steps out with his six-string on this track. Next we take a trip back into time to visit the "Paradise Theater." Dennis De Young once again proves his vocal and piano capabilities on "Best of Times." The side takes a trip even farther back into the archives for a classic version of "Suite Madame Blue." This version mixes the classic power guitar with swirling synthesizer lines.

Side Three keeps up the pace with a white-hot version of "Rockin’ The Paradise." This is followed by an organ solo from Dennis De Young, which leads into "Blue Collar Man." Tommy Shaw’s vocals give the song a strong sense of urgency. James Young follows with a growing version of "Miss America." Young’s angered vocals blend well with his down-and-dirty guitar style. The side ends with another De Young ballad, entitled "Don’t Let It End."

"Foolin’ Yourself," opens side four. This is one of Tommy Shaw’s better songs. It provides a much needed break, in the form of flowing acoustic guitar lines. The acoustic guitars are coupled with fast moving synthesizer lines, and passionate vocals on "Crystal Ball." Bringing the album to a close is an extended version of "Come Sail Away." The song sounds as good as it did when it first came out in 1977.

This album has retrieved my interest in Styx which has been lost somewhere in Hades for the last couple of years. An added bonus for the real Styx fan is the abundance of good concert pictures. This is a band that takes its strength in the form of three very competent songwriters. A weakness that could pull them apart is letting one person take control of the band. In the case of Styx a little competition amongst songwriters is healthy.

Women Artists in History Presentation

An overview of women painters, sculptors and photographers was given by Dr. Wendy Slatkin last Thursday at noon in Room 110 of the Visual Arts Building. The presentation was entitled "Women Artists in History."

A member of the art history faculty at UC Riverside, Dr. Slatkin is the author of "Women Artists in History: From Antiquity to the Twentieth Century." She has been visiting lecturer at the University of Uppsala, Sweden and has taught at Rutgers University.

She earned her B.A. degree from Bernard College in New York City, her M.A. at Villa Schifanoia, Italy, and her Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

SENIOR ART SHOW OPENS TODAY

Works in photography, graphic arts and painting by five art majors, will comprise the Senior Show opening Wednesday, May 23 in the Art Gallery at Cal State.

Exhibitors are Grace Fermer of Redlands, with graphic arts; Wilhelmina Kersey-van Stigt Thans of Riverside, photography; Donna Morn of Loma Linda, painting; Karen Wilmot of Redlands, graphic arts; and Karen Wood of Big Bear Lake, painting.

A reception to honor the artists will open the exhibit at 7 p.m., Wednesday, May 23. Show hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The exhibit will close June 1.

Mrs. Fermer, a graphic artist for a Redlands firm, will exhibit a graphic design package for a fictional, nonprofit company.

Ms. Kersey-van Stigt Thans will show large photo murals featuring people or animals from her farm.

Working mainly with watercolors on plexiglass, Ms. Morn draws upon symbols such as triangles, squares and lines for her inspiration.

Mrs. Wilmot, a free-lance graphic artist in Redlands, will show a design package for a real estate company which specializes in older homes. It includes logos, letterheads, advertising art and even the "for sale" signs the fictional company would use.

Ms. Wood, who plans a career in pop art, will show large watercolors. Her works, as large as three feet by four feet, feature detailed shapes and intense colors.

"...Celie demands that we acknowledge evil and disappear..."

by Mary Hamilton

For those of use who see horror and/or supernatural fiction as a genre in English literature which deserves to be taken seriously, Stephen King is the most important figure to emerge since Henry James and Edith Wharton perfected the ghost story, during the first half of this century. King's style speaks the native tongue of post-60's America, which tempts us to see his work as being strictly entertainment; but in Pet Sematary he probes psychological depths rarely touched on in speculative literature. In fact, I think that when considered strictly as a supernatural piece, this novel has problems with its structure, the pacing of its intended impact on the reader, because its author has introduced material that doesn't fit easily into a supernatural pattern.

As horror fiction, Pet Sematary progresses in a more or less conventional manner until King begins to deal with the feelings of a parent after the death of a child. This section of the novel is believably poignant; the reader finds himself seriously depressed and upset, as if dealing with a real life situation. It is a passage of uncompromising honesty and sensitivity, a tour de force on the theme of human grief. As literature of value, it is its own justification; as a part of the overall structure of the book, it causes problems. A character in a realistic novel would be able to go through a lot of changes for us, until we were satisfied that he had come through the tragedy and resolved it for himself. The transition from grief to normal life could be handled gently in the book, and would take plenty of space - easily as much as King had written already, making a novel of

COACHING STAFF SELECTED

May 23, 1984

Cal State Chronicle

COACHING STAFF SELECTED

Coaches for Women's basketball, soccer, and men's tennis, have been hired for next year. A former member of the Montreal Olympics will be the women's basketball coach.

Gale L. Fitzgerald, co-captain of the U.S. Women's Track and Field team in Munich, has accepted a position on Cal State's first coaching staff. Ms. Fitzgerald was named New Jersey's outstanding woman track and field athlete in 1972.

Since that time she has coached women's basketball in New York and in California and currently is holding two positions, physical education instructor at Mt. San Antonio College and assistant women's basketball coach at Cal State, Dominguez Hills.

The head soccer coach at Glendale College, Cherri Jean, will join the Cal State coaching staff to introduce men's soccer to the San Bernardino campus next September.

Michael Muscare, an award-winning high school tennis coach, accepted the offer to coach men's and women's tennis at Cal State. He has played independently on the Satellite Circuit. He is a member of the United States Tennis Association.

Muscare, who earned his B.A. in physical education from Cal State, Los Angeles, is working toward his M.A. there, was boys' varsity and junior varsity tennis coach at Glendale High School from 1980 to 1983. His four-year record 71-17 in dual matches, also includes three Football League championshipships, one Pacific League title, and three times first-place finishes in CIF, Southern Section, AAA team playoffs. He took over a program which attained only three wins the previous year.

He has played independently in tournaments in Mexico and in the USA Satellite Circuit. He is a member of the United States Professional Tennis Assn.

Join The Alumni Association

In the Spring of 1985, the Alumni Association of the University of San Bernardino, Central California, will introduce the world of Division III intercollegiate athletics Sept. 27 with a homecoming football game against the University of Redlands. The basketball season will begin on the home court Oct. 17. The tennis schedule is still being finalized by Dr. Price.

In addition to teaching ceramics, Ducey currently coaches varsity tennis at Gladstone High School. He is the owner and director of tennis camps and tennis schools and has been honored by the Red Cross for his volunteer work in teaching tennis.

His father, the late Ted Ducey, was a basketball and tennis coach at Claremont Mudd College from the late 1950's through the early 1970's.

Zein, the 1974 "most inspirational" soccer player at UCLA, was an NCAA I finalist for three years. His coaching career in high school soccer also is sprinkled with award-winning: 10 all-CIF players, two all-West, six "most valuable" players. His teams advanced to the Southern California High School playoffs six times. Since 1978 he has coached at the college level, producing three "most valuable" players, two All-Americans and the 1979 state champions.

Folk, country and contemporary for one good reason to have read the conclusion of Pet Sematary is like the ending of most supernatural fiction: the action is finished by a series of supernatural events.

For the reader who has been agonizing with the central character in the misdirection of the book, the story's change of mood comes abruptly and gruesomely. This may infuriate some persons. For myself, it was a relief to move away from the atmosphere of sorrow into almost anything, but I can't say that I wasn't joyful by the transition. Suddenly I was completely distanced from a personality I had been caring very much about, a few pages back. I believe it would have mitigated my disillusionsment with the book to have been warned of its structural flaw. Before I read it, which is one good reason to have read this review before buying Pet Sematary. Another reason would be to find out if I still recommend it, which I do—emphatically. No flaw could take away the value of this work's emotional insight. It can broaden your feelings for other people, your understanding of that part of life which is called gospel. If you are interested in horror literature as a genre, the book is indispensable as an example of a problem in writing. However, if you are looking for relaxation, thrills and chills—read something else. This one makes you care, and hurt, far too much to qualify as good escapism entertainment.

GUEST ANALYSIS - Nuclear Exchange Between U.S. and Soviet Union

by Dr. Robert Cramer

Experts and nonexperts have frequently debated the ramifications of a nuclear exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union. The dominant attitude has been that the effects would probably be temporary and survivable, and that with the proper preparation a substantial number of healthy individuals would survive and continue to practice the governing principles of the nations involved. Many of us vividly remember the disaster drills we rehearsed in the late 50's. The discussion and debate has included an interesting alternative. If the northern mid-latitudes were rendered uninhabitable it was proposed that people in the Southern Hemisphere would escape the holocaust and would continue to pursue the dreams of humankind. Only the most ardent doomsayers attempted to convince the populace that a global catastrophe of massive proportions was possible.

Several scholars however, most notably Paul Erlich and Carl Sagan, have argued that following a large scale nuclear exchange a nuclear winter could push our species, as well as many others, progressively closer to the brink of extinction. The nuclear winter scenario predicts several long term environmental effects such as: (1) subfreezing temperatures; (2) low light levels; and high doses of ultraviolet radiation.

The biological consequences include massive starvation; and the likely extinction of many of the Earth's plants and animals; the scientists could not rule out the possible extinction of humankind.

The nuclear winter scenario offers no comfort to the nation seeking an advantage by striking first. The scientists further claim that even a unilateral assault would dictate a massive loss of life in the aggressor nation even if the target nation fails to launch a single missile. The biological consequences of an attack, of any kind, would be widespread that although bomb shelters might save some human lives, the Earth's unprotected ecosystems would be free to deteriorate.

Quite Hours are Hypocritical

Just recently for the past two weeks the SUMP dance has been conducted in the Lower Commons Quad, myself like the outdoors dance. But I also feel that the quiet hours are currently in the exist in the dorms, 10 p.m., and the dance continuing until I a.m. are in conflict. I also feel that it is hypocritical for the Housing Office of Serrano Village to expect us in the Village to live by rules that the school doesn't even obey. I have talked to three R.A.'s on this issue with no avail and it seems nobody can do anything. My point is why do these contradictions even exist. Do you and the Activities Office even communicate? If so, please keep the dances at night outside and change the quiet hours in the dorms so as we won't feel as if the school is breaking the rules and violating my rights.

Noise Expected in Learning Center

Dear Editor:

There was an article in your editorial about speaking up for silence in the Library and the Learning Center. I feel there is a misunderstanding about the purpose of the Learning Center. First, it is not a Library and talking is permitted, because it is a place where tutoring is included an interesting alternative. If the northern mid-latitudes were rendered uninhabitable it was proposed that people in the Southern Hemisphere would escape the holocaust and would continue to pursue the dreams of humankind. Only the most ardent doomsayers attempted to convince the populace that a global catastrophe of massive proportions was possible.

The argument also continues next week.

Noise Reduces Computer Students

Dear Editor:

Thank you for the editorial two weeks ago about the noise in study classroom areas. It is amazing how inconsiderate some students can be. I would like to add another area to your list—the computer rooms. I can't believe how rude some students are. Even after asking them to lower their voices, they still continue to talk and laugh at conversation level. I know that working with computers can be very frustrating and a good laugh with friends helps, but that laughter can interrupt others. Maybe the computer center can place signs reminding people to be quiet in the computer rooms.
