$1.4 Million Computer Expansion

by Nicole DuCharme

The field of computers and information management is the focus of a new program being introduced at CSUSB this fall.

Dr. Jack McDonnell, chair of the Department of Marketing and Management Science, said in a news release, "Computerization need not be a threat to the careers of managers but, it is a tool to be used in making decisions."

Now, because of the growing need and interest in the field of computers, two new computer labs are being opened in the computer center.

The IBM lab is already open. This lab will primarily benefit students in the School of Business and Public Administration. Yet, at the same time, they are available for use by any CSUSB student. The $100,000 lab houses 23 PC computers and 1 IBM XT computer. Two of the computer stations have a second 360 KB floppy disk drive and printer interface and one connected to a NEC letter quality printer.

But, the real excitement down in the computer center is generated because of the new Macintosh lab scheduled to be opened by mid-quarter. In room PL 5.20 new Apple Macintosh computers will replace the 12 10T terminals. The new computers are a much more advanced model and one of the most popular microcomputers on the market today.

The Macintosh has been affectionately referred to as "The computer for the rest of us." It is useful for graphics, word processing and studying. Frank Slaton, the Manager of the computer center, is very excited about the progress being made with the labs. Slaton said, "The Macintosh lab should be open by mid-quarter. There are two main purposes: as computer terminals used for research and programming and for upper division classes (495) word processing."

Slaton went on to say, "The ability to rewrite on the Macintosh bypasses so many extra rough drafts. Upper division writing should become exciting. A skill is learned that can be used in any career."

The student who isn't studying business or Computer Science can still find the Macintosh lab beneficial to use for study, depending on the needs of the courses they're taking. Programs are designed for tutorial work in the sciences, math and foreign language.

Since Easter, $300,000 has been invested in the computer center making it very advanced and offering almost everything needed to obtain complete computer knowledge. Ultimately there will be $1.4 million spent.

The PDP 11/45 was upgraded to a PDP 11/44 which increased its core memory from 256 Kilobytes to 1 Megabyte. This computer is used primarily by Basic and Pascal students. A large main frame computer, the Cyber 720, is available for use by advanced Computer Science students for statistical analysis simulation. The Cyber 760 is the largest terminal and is used to hook up with computers on all 19 CSU campuses.

The IBM lab will be available for independent study when classes are not scheduled there. The Computer Center is open on M-Th from 8 a.m. - 9 p.m. on Fridays from 8-4 and on Saturdays and Sundays from 10-5. Reference manuals and student consultants will be provided to assist users with the operation of the systems.

The staff in the Computer Center are excited about all that is happening in the basement of the library where the Computer Center is housed. It is not only for Computer Science students but for the entire student body.

*Note: Apple, the makers of the Macintosh, have made an agreement with the entire State University system in which the schools have agreed to purchase $10 million worth of Macintosh computers for sale in campus bookstores. The Macintosh will soon be available at the CSUSB bookstore for a sizeable discount.
Unparalleled Opportunities

The nature of the Inland Empire provides Cal State with "unparalleled opportunities" for growth and service, President Anthony H. Evans predicted in his state of the university address, which marked the beginning of Cal State's 20th year. The coming year will be even better than the last, which already was a banner year, he said. "Fivolous achievements" of the past year were the rare, 10-year accreditation granted to the university by the Western Assn. of Schools and Colleges, "an accomplishment in importance was the approval of funds for the planning of a new, fully-equipped office building," he said. The growth of the region, marked as one of the fastest expanding in the country by Chase Econometrics, plus the pool of untapped students provides unlimited potential for higher education, the president said.

The San Bernardino-Riverside County region has one of the lowest rates of high school graduates and college-bound students. The percentages of students going on to college—whether a community college, the California State University or the University of California—is lower than the state average.

Throughout the state, 43% of freshmen in the 15-19 age bracket attend a community college in the Inland Empire, compared to 32% Statewide. Nine of this percent of freshmen is a CSU campus and 6% enrols at UC. In the Inland Empire the statistics are one-half percent at CSU and 66% at UC campuses.

"Our indigenous population also affords spectacular opportunities for service, growth and development," said Dr. Evans. One-fourth of the area population is minority. National statistics show one out of eight blacks and one of 14 Hispanics earn a college degree, compared to one of four Anglos.

The WASC accreditation team endorsed the university's new mission to become a regional university as a positive step forward, the president reported. We are pleased that the WASC team found the institution to be in compliance with all eight standards in the accreditation process," he said. "Our self-study was judged to be a model for the region."

The WASC report also commended the college for institutional integrity and academic freedom; a strong level of student involvement, especially in light of Cal State's being a commuter campus; comprehensive and sound educational programs; effective and well-regarded advisors and faculty evaluation and high quality of service and programs for students.

Areas of strength cited by the president in his comments included the soundness of programs in the School of Education, which underwent a rigorous review in the past year through the automation and professionalizing of the admissions program; adding of new programs, concentrations and certificates to increase the breadth of the academic programs; new off-campus offerings in the High Desert/Victorville area and the prevention of the "smuggling of intercollegiate athletics; notable efforts in planning and use of resources and a healthy progress in grant applications, with $630,000 received in 16 grants this past year."

"Our goal is to educate students for life, to teach them to think, to understand other cultures, to develop tolerance, to cope with change, to turn adversity to one's advantage," Dr. Evans said. "Our ultimate goal is to preserve and expand the quality of the institution. We have a stable environment, adequate finances, stellar staff and faculty and the right mentality."

"We recognize the quality of the institution cannot rise higher than the quality of the faculty. Our most distinctive feature is the quality of our faculty and staff," he continued.

Rockworld's Sweepstakes

Rockworld's second major sweepstakes in over! Students will have another chance to win one of 40 major prizes in Rockworld's College-Only Sweepstakes I. Rockworld's Vice President Blake Herlick states, "Since the contest is limited to college students, entrants have a greater chance to win a dream vacation for the price of a postage stamp."

The college music-video show will give away 16 Windjammer Caribbean sailing cruises, 15 OARS Whitewater Rafting Adventures to 9 Big Sailboats to 40 lucky students in the November 16 drawing. Students can enter Rockworld's College-Only Sweepstakes II by writing down their name, address, telephone number, and college name, and sending it to: Rockworld, 1698 Central Avenue, Albany, NY 12206. Or, students can drop their entries in entry boxes provided by colleges near the Rockworld viewing locations.

Photography Class

Joseph Colley, an international exhibitor, will teach a seven-week "Photography Workshop" offered by the Office of Extended Education at Cal State, San Bernardino beginning Tuesday, Oct. 2 at the San Bernardino County Museum.

Designed for personal growth in photography at all levels, this course will feature field trips to visually unique areas. Class will meet from 7 to 10 p.m.

This course may be taken for noncredit at a fee of $55, or two quarter units of credit, with a $76 fee.
Campus Search for English Leather Musk Man

Why use a professional model who looks like a "college man" for your advertising, when you can use a man who is an enrolled college student? That refreshing piece of philosophy comes from the MEM Company which has announced the national campus search for a man to represent their English Leather Musk men's toiletries in 1985. The lucky winners get cash and prizes.

To enter send one photograph, (black and white or color) to Campus Search for English Leather Musk Man, care of the editor in chief of this newspaper. The photos must have been taken within the last six months and must be no larger than 8" by 10" or smaller than 3" by 5". No purchase is necessary to enter.

The editorial staff of this paper will select 3 male student representatives of this campus as semi-finalists. Each will receive a gift of English Leather Musk men's toiletries. A panel of judges, selected by the manufacturer, will select one campus winner who will be entered in the national finals. The national winner will be the English Leather Musk Man for 1985 and receive a cash contribution of $1000 towards his tuition, a selection of merchandise prizes, and all-expense paid trip to New York to be photographed by a leading photographer. All selections will be based on photographic appeal.

Greg Horner, the current English Leather Musk Man was found through the Washington State University Calender. To date he has appeared in 58 English Leather Musk ads and the results have been phenomenonal. His pictures have drawn thousands of letters and he has been the subject of a "PM Magazine" feature. This response lead to the campus search. For the rules and regulations come to The Chronicle office. They will be posted outside the Chronicle door.

Elvira at Knotts "Scary" Farm

TV's voluptuous "Mistress of the Dark," Elvira will again headline the world's largest and scariest Halloween party, a six-night event featuring two frightfully new haunted mazes, scores of roaming vampires, werewolves and ghouls, monster rock bands, bizarre and unusual sideshows and appropriately rethemed rides all at Knott's "Scary" Farm's 12th Annual Halloween Haunt. In what has become a Southern California tradition, Knott's Halloween Haunt will be held this year from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Friday, October 19, Saturday, October 28 and Wednesday, October 31 and from 7 p.m. to 2 a.m. on Saturday, October 20, Friday, October 26 and Saturday, October 27.

As the popular "Ghostess" of KHJ's nationally syndicated "Movie Macabre," Elvira provides audiences with a unique blend of surliness, sarcasm and double entendre. During Halloween Haunt, Elvira will again headline a cast of singing and dancing ghosts and monsters performing Toenti's "Ghoul Revue" on the fast-paced "Ghoul Revue" stage nightly in the 2100-seat Good Time Theatre, Elvira will be seen at 8:30, 10 p.m. and 12 midnight on October 19 and 28 and at 9, 10:30 p.m. and 12:30 a.m. on October 26 and 27. And the hilarious "Unknown Comic" will replace Elvira as headline of the "Ghoul Revue" on Halloween Night, October 31, with show times at 8:30, 10 p.m. and midnight.

Immunization Information

If you cannot remember when polo epidemics came every summer and fall... If you cannot recall when measles was a disease that everyone had and some became very sick with... If you never heard of pertussis or whooping cough... If you still think mumps is an unavoidable illness for children... If you think rubella or german measles is no big deal... If you are not sure what diseases can strike adults, demonstrate that these diseases are not properly protected. Some grew up before certain vaccinations became routine in childhood. Others who have been vaccinated assume they are protected for life when they still think mumps is an unavoidable illness for children... If you think rubella or german measles is no big deal... If you are not sure what diseases can strike adults, demonstrate that these diseases are not properly protected. Some grew up before certain vaccinations became routine in childhood. Others who have been vaccinated assume they are protected for life when they may have received an early type vaccine that did not confer long-time immunity.

Protection against tetanus, sometimes called lock jaw, (which is usually a fatal disease) should be repeated at least every ten years and more often if an injury occurs that is suspect. A booster shot that is combined with diphtheria is all that is needed. This can be life saving.

The combined measles, mumps, and rubella vaccine is now given to children at one and one-half years of age. Some people who received the vaccines at an earlier age are now found to need boosters. Contraindications to measles, mumps, and rubella vaccinations are allergic reactions to eggs, neomycin, pregnancy, and altered immune states (AIDS). When people become convinced that the diseases mentioned here were obsolete, they begin to neglect the immunization of their children and cases began to appear of all the old diseases. Only with conscious effort at keeping up the needed shots can we be safe from any of them.

Immunization Reminders

1. Carry a card with the dates of all your shots. Check with the Health Center to be sure that all of them are up-to-date.
2. Check for your most recent tetanus shot. This should be done every ten years unless a high risk injury or accident occurs.
3. If you haven't had a recent Measles, Mumps, and Rubella (MMR) or tetanus immunization, you can get immunized at the Student Health Center. The vaccines will be available the week of October 8 through October 19, 1984. There is no charge for these immunizations. So come on down and let us keep you healthy!
Field Studies in Baja

In you're feeling in a rut, a trip to view the amazing terrain of Baja California may be just what you need. An 11-day Field Studies in Natural History visit to Baja California January 6-16, 1985, offers you a first-hand look at giant cardinal cactus, whale mothers and babies, wandering birds, and other natural life in an environment unlike many.

The class begins January 6 in Punta Banda, a small town 20 miles south of Ensenada on the Pacific Coast. Class ends January 16 in Loreto, where the trail ends at the oldest permanent settlement of the Californias, established in 1697. In between, the camping caravan will visit the desert near Catavina, where granite-walled canyons and exotic birds are only slightly less noticeable than giant boulders, boojum cactus and elephant trees.

On the Pacific Coast, Guerrero Negro offers birding and a chance to see the Pacific Gray Whales flating and birthing ritual in Scannam's Lagoon. On the Gulf Coast, see the rain shadow of desert vegetation, very edge of the sea and wonder at the jagged peaks of the Sierra de la Giganta. An all-day trip to San Javier Mission, a return to the 18th century, is a highlight.

For further information on itinerary, costs, and university science credit, contact Field Studies in Natural History, San Jose State University, Office of Continuing Education, One Washington Square, San Jose, CA 95192-0135 or phone (408) 277-3736.

New Scholarships

The Scholarship Bank has announced ten new scholarship programs that are currently accepting applications from college students. Funds are now available in the following fields:

- College Teaching: The Danforth Foundation offers up to $2,500 per year to students interested in teaching as a profession. Twenty-five percent of the 5,000 annual awards go to minorities.
- Exceptional Student Fellowships: Awarded by a major life insurance company to students in business, law, computer programming, accounting and related fields. These awards require summer interning.

Yes, folks it's time for another year of record reviews. I have great plans for the column this year, including diversifying the record selection. Yes, you heard it here! If anyone has an album that is suitable for review, please leave your name and number at The Chronicle so I can contact you. Alternatively, you can write the review yourself. If you choose the second option, I will need the review one week prior to the publication date.

I always like to start the quarter off with a strong album. This time I have chosen the latest solo project from England's Gary Moore. This album is not for the faint of heart, instead it is for those who can appreciate fine guitar work. Moore has logged many hours and miles with other touring bands, including Colosseum II and Thin Lizzy. This non-stop touring has enabled Moore to develop a style that transcends run-of-the-mill Heavy Metal.

Side One opens with the album's title track "Victims of the Future." The intro is a flowing solo acoustic guitar piece that leads into a fiery track. The song's lyrics cause one to think about the consequences of an escalating arms race. "Teenage Idol" follows and gives an uptempo account of what happens when "a dirty-faced kid sells his car, and buys a hot guitar." "Devil in her Heart," keeps up the pace established by the first two tracks, but also makes it quite obvious that Moore is a far better guitarist than vocalist. The side closes with one of the finest ballads to be heard on a rock album in a very long time. "Empty Rooms," has an excellent combination of sensitive lyrics, and flowing guitar and keyboard tracks.

Moore has always surrounded himself with excellent musicians, and there is no exception on this album. Included in the credits are Billy Squier's drummer Bobby Chouinard, ex-UFO utility man Neil Carter, and Ozzy Osbourn's bassist Bob Daisley. If you are a guitarist looking for inspirational music, then this album belongs in your collection.

Trivia Time
1) In what issue of Guitar Player magazine did Jimi Hendrix first appear?
2) How old was Michael Schenker when he played on the Scorpion's album "Lonesome Crow."
3) To what magazine did Eddie Van Halen give his first nationally published interview?
4) In what year was the landmark album "Montrose" released?

Record Review:   Breaking Hearts
by Elton John

Rock and roll isn't just for kids anymore. For proof, "Breaking Hearts," Elton John's latest album is rock and roll geared toward adults. Once again, John and his partners work together in an effort to attract adults. For proof, "Scary" Farm's 12th Annual Halloween Haunt is now available and priced at $12.50 in advance and $14.00 on the day of event. As this event is a sellout every year, it is suggested that guests buy their tickets in advance.

Elvira

Tickets for Knott's "Scary" Farm's 15th Annual Halloween Haunt are now available and priced at $12.50 in advance and $14.00 on the day of event. As this event is a sellout every year, it is suggested that guests buy their tickets in advance.

Doonesbury

“Get off to a great start with Ford”
The New Cal State University Pep Squad

As Cal State begins a new year, it does so with a new University status, new Intercollegiate Athletic teams, and new Friday classes. None of these can compare to the impact that was felt by the arrival of something totally foreign and incomprehensible to most of us here at Cal State. I'm talking about, of course, cheerleaders.

Yes fellow members of the Cal State community, our university can finally boast an honest to goodness pep squad, composed of seven members of the student body. The young ladies, all sophomores, are: Cathy Gardener, Tracey Gravelin, Cheryl Luther, Keiron McDonald, Laticia Ortiz, Valerie Sainz, and Monique Smith. Selected after tryouts last June, the new squad has prepared for the upcoming year over the summer. Aided by their faculty advisor, Miss Ellen Kwolski, the cheerleaders worked on routines and raised money for some of the expenses that the girls incur by being a cheerleader at Cal State.

Spirit doesn't come cheap these days; uniforms alone have cost the squad members about $200 a piece, all of which comes out of their own pocket. The uniforms have yet to arrive, and until they do, the team must dress in matching blue outfits which they also had to purchase with their own money.

With this being the first year that the University has had intercollegiate athletics, the squad faces the big responsibility of motivating a school that is not used to cheering, much less attending athletic events. The girls realize the challenge, but they also recognize the opportunity. Member Valerie Sainz sees it as a stepping stone to a possible professional career with an NFL team. "I was a cheerleader in high school and when I found out Cal State was going to have cheerleaders, I saw it as a chance to move closer towards my goal."

For the cheerleaders (Coyotettes?), lack of uniforms has created an identity crisis for the squad, which the San Bernardino Sun illustrated beautifully in the article covering the September 22 league debut of Cal State's soccer team.

"Coyotettes?"

Reporter Jim Long described "Four female students, all wearing baby blue, dabbed in some cheerleading..." Not quite the reception that Cal State's new pepsters needed to boost their confidence. Even so, the cheerleaders appear undaunted.

So, in spite of reporters, slip ups, and anticipated uniforms, Cal State's new cheerleaders are looking forward to an exciting year of supporting our new athletic teams. Let's all get out there and cheer them on.

“Showdown ’84” Debates

Aiming to help students cast a better-informed vote on Nov. 6, the National Student Campaign for Voter Registration (NSCVR) announced plans to organize simultaneous forums on the Presidential elections at over 100 campuses on Oct. 21.

The campus debates, collectively titled “Showdown ’84”, will be held immediately before or after the nationally televised debate between Walter Mondale and Ronald Reagan. The Presidential Debate will be aired on large screen televisions during the events.

“Students are strongly concerned about the issues, but are often uninformed about the candidates’ positions on those issues and the implications of those stands,” observed Gary Kalman, a senior at Clark (MA) University and NSCVR chairperson. “These forums are designed to augment this campaign’s personality politics with substantive discussion of the issues.”

The campus debates will feature prominent individuals analyzing campaign issues such as arms race, the economy, civil rights, the environment, women’s issues, and education policy.

Co-sponsors with NSCVR of the debate include Project Voter, Southwest Voter Registration, Education Project HumanServe, United States Public Interest Research Group (U.S. PIRG), United States Student Association, The Difference, American Association of University Women, Public Citizen, Democracy Project, Environmental Safety, and the Children’s Foundation.

The National Student Campaign for Voter Registration is a non-partisan organization which conducts voter registration and voter education campaigns across the country. A project of the student directed Public Interest Research Groups (PIRGs), NSCVR was founded this February at a conference of 1500 student leaders from 42 states.

Students interested in organizing “Showdown ’84” debates at their campus should contact NSCVR at (617) 357-9016.

The Editors Respond

This is in response to those of you who continue to quote the Bible, using the Bible as a tool against certain groups of people - namely homosexuals, and to those of you who are just plain homophobic.

Why is homosexuality such a big issue? They are human beings, same as heterosexuals but with a different sexual preference. Try speaking to a person with a different sexual preference than you. Open your eyes and ears. You will find that they are just like you. Of course, you won’t like every homosexual you meet - the same as not liking every heterosexual you meet.

There is only one quote needed, if at all it should be needed, for those of you who have continuously quoted against homosexuality and others, using the Bible as your justification: Judge not, and ye shall not be judged; condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: forgive, and ye shall be forgiven.”

Opinion Survey No. 2

by Greg Timpany

Question: Who do you think will win the Presidential Election? Is that the person you would like to see win?

The survey took place in the Student Union on Friday, September 28, 1984.

David Henderson, Graduate, biology major: “I think President Reagan will win, but I would like to see Mondale in office.”

Millie Paulino, Senior, accounting major: “I am a democrat who will be voting for Reagan.”

Rod Hendry, Graduate, english major: “Reagan will win. He is the best of the two major candidates.”

Patty Mendoza, Student Union secretary: “Reagan will win again. He will get my vote.”

Jack Vaughan, Senior, marketing major: “Reagan will win because of the democrats internal bickering.”

Opus the Penguin: Meadow Party Vice-Presidential Candidate: “I think Reagan will take the marbles, but Bill and I will give them a run for their money.”
