CSUSB
This Years’ Convocation

by Kellie Reynolds

In this year’s convocation to the faculty and staff of Cal State San Bernardino, President Anthony Evans was quoted as saying “students are preoccupied with money goals...self centered...and less interested in public services.” The quote, taken by Barbara Anderson, appeared in the September 12 issue of The Sun.

In an interview, President Evans said that the statement was “not meant to be critical or debunking.” He was simply stating some facts that he had obtained from the research of professor Alexander Astin of UCLA. According to this study, there has been a noticeable shift in the goals of America’s youth. Students are pursuing an education that is geared to high paying positions. When asked what he thought was the reason for this shift, Evans replied that it was due to “environmental and economic” factors.

Evans also said that he felt that students today are traumatized with vocational goals; they cannot see beyond their first careers and into the distant future. He takes this as “a special challenge and an opportunity” for the future.

Concerning other matters touched on in his convocation address, Evans stated that students are less prepared for the academic rigors of university life than previous generations. In an interview he gave two reasons for this remark. First, that professionals and educating institutes are less demanding of their students. Second, that society has “major detractions” such as drugs, violence and television. He clarified this by saying that while all too many students are not sufficiently prepared there are still many who are.

In regard to the school itself, Evans related three basic issues: campus buildings, school spirit, and inter-collegiate sports. The primary goal, said Evans in constructing campus buildings is a new faculty office building. The reason for this he said, was that more students could be admitted to Cal State, new classes could be added and new dorms and apartments could be built.

When asked to describe the school spirit at Cal State, President Evans replied that it is “fairly typical” for an institution with a mixed amount of residential and commuter students. He feels that the numerous new campus clubs and the new sports program can only continue to promote school spirit. This year Cal State introduces a brand new inter-collegiate sports program, thus adding eight new sports to the school. The program has been extremely successful and will continue to grow with the support of the students and faculty. Says Evans of the program, “we’ve made a good start,” the inter-collegiate sports program will “enhance the vitality of student life.”

Overall, Cal State San Bernardino, is improving by leaps and bounds. This is the first year for many accomplishments. Things have been happening to the school from a university status to new programs and majors. President Evans describes the school as healthy and that it “seems to be growing more robust daily.”
The Communist are your Friends
by Dan Schrander

"The Communists are your friends," said Albert Arene, the main speaker at the United States Out of Central America (USOCA), Wed. Oct. 10, in the SUMP. Arene said that El Salvadoran, is a Political Diplomatic Representative for the Democratic Revolutionary Front (FDR), a leftist revolutionary group, who uses violent means to resist the conservative government of El Salvador.

Although the FDR uses violent means to resist, he said, they prefer to use political means to solve their problems.

He went on to add that his group will be meeting with President Duarte on Mon. Oct. 5 to continue the negotiations.

The main topics discussed by Arene were political and social issues, and United States intervention policies.

"The United States is the real power behind Duarte," Arene said. "We do not know the Soviet Union. We only know the United States."

Several conservatives in the audience gave colorful and negative responses to Arene's statement.

The FDR wants free, democratic elections for the people, Arene said. "No one who cares about freedom and liberty can ignore the plight of El Salvador."

Arene's main concern at the meeting was to ask Americans to work to stop U.S. intervention in El Salvador.

We need a chance to win freedom for ourselves. "The American Revolution was not important just for us, it was important for ourselves. We want the same chance."

He said that the United States is definitely heading for another Vietnam if it does not pull out of Central America.

"Time is running out," he said. "If we fail, El Salvador will be a bloody mess. It will be easy to get into, but hard to get out of."

He said that the FDR has proposed an open dialogue with President Duarte with no preconditions, and with an open agenda. But he has been reluctant to do this.

He added, that the U.S. is increasing tensions between the FDR and the government, he added. The European allies are laughing at the U.S. because of their intervention in Central America.

Arene also expressed concern, not only for the revolutionary forces that are being killed, but the thousands of civilians, and even government troops.

The U.S., Advisors and Aides are taking over the entire country, said Salvadoran Sanabria, aide to Arene. The right wingers in the United States are the ones who are responsible for the death squads, and the use of napalm on innocent civilians. They are the "Hitlers."

He added, that one of their demands is that those responsible for these things be put on trial for war crimes.

Arene said, that El Salvador is the oldest military dictatorship in Central America, and there has always been a division of classes between an oligarchy, and the people. They want social and economic equality for all.

During the question and answer period, Arene was asked what the main source of arms is for the FDR. He again denied Soviet aid, and said that their main source of weapons are from the U.S., captured in the field.

Although a few conservatives were members of the audience made some derogatory remarks, and one man in the room stated later that what was being said at the meeting was "subversive garbage, there was no possible."

Student Union employees received a few complaints because they showed a group like USOCA to use the student campus. Arene also expected no difficulties at the gathering, however, an armed officer was stationed inside the SUMP while the meeting was in progress.

J.W. Gross, an officer on the Campus Police Force, said, the Campus has not seen any trouble of a political nature since the 1960's, and he expected none that night.

New Design Professor:
Janice Gololjuch

by Robin K. Porter

Professor Janice Gololjuch is happy to be teaching photography at CSUSB because of Southern California's beautiful weather and the "fantastic" teaching position she started this summer. Miss Gololjuch is the first full time professor of commercial art (officially known as graphic design) and the first full-time woman art professor in CSUSB's history.

"She gives a lot of energy to the program because of her enthusiasm and skill in commercial art," Professor Gololjuch is the first full timer in the program, so it will be a big shot in the arm," stated art program development chair Don Woodford.

"My favorite art is contemporary, avant-garde," says Miss Gololjuch. She heaved a large cardboard box onto her desk to illustrate.

The box contained 2,160 self portraits each about 2-by-3 inches in size. The professor arranges them in a 12-by-6 foot grid patterned mural for exhibits. Each photograph is hand painted and colored.

Miss Gololjuch completed this mural in three months while teaching summer school at the University of Montevallo, Alabama.

She walked toward a set of three photographic collages titled "New York, New York."

"These photographs are about a young girl who wishes to become a famous model. She travels to New York and discovers eroticism and exploitation," noted Miss Gololjuch. She stated that it is Career-wise, she has taught photography and/or commercial design at Salisbury State College, Middle Tennessee State University, Tenn., University of Montevallo, Al., and at clubs and high schools (through continuing education programs and at summer schools).

Her education includes: an M.A. of fine arts in advertising design, Syracuse University; M.A. of arts in art, State University of New York at Albany; B.A. of arts in art, State University of New York at Albany; Associate of Applied Science in advertising art and design, State University of New York at Farmingdale. A grant to fund an individual artist's book was presented to Miss Gololjuch in 1981 by the National Endowment for the Arts. She published her book, Intimacies-Photographs, that same year.

Her next one-woman photography exhibit will be at Loma Linda University November 9-14. Professor Gololjuch says of her photography, "It is most influenced by the photography of Deborah Tuberville and Sarah Moon."
Management Courses

Management skills will be the focus of two fall seminars offered by the Office of Extended Education this fall.

"Teamwork Dynamics" will meet 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday, Nov. 2. Goal of the seminar is to aid managers in developing skills in assessing and managing employee behavior and developing a team approach to organizational problem-solving. Fees for this course are $65. Lunch and materials are included.

Performance Appraisal as a Motivation Tool will be held 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday, Nov. 9.

Co-sponsored by the Small Business Administration, this workshop will review performance appraisal goals and standards, reward systems and interviewing and listening skills. Fees are $55 and 6 continuing education units may be earned. Lunch is included.

Both seminars will be taught on the Cal State campus.

Further information is available from the Office of Extended Education at 887-7817.

Ice Capades

World-famous skaters lend their talent and grace to this year's Ice Capades. The dazzling stars include World Champion and Olympic Bronze Medalist Charlie Tickner; U.S. Professional Pairs Champions Chris Harrison and Lisa Carey; U.S. National Silver Medalist Barbie Smith; World Professional Champion Robert Wagenhofer; adagio artists Tony Paul and Terry Fagan; new star and three-time Canadian National Champion Kay Thomson; "Double Visions" team Ted Masdea and Brian Wright; and vivacious soloist Jennifer Lynn.

Comedy and novelty performers include internationally-known ice-clowns Biddy and Baddy; Steve Nelson, performing incredible stunts; and Dave 'n' Joey in a hilarious romantic parody.

Ice Capades...you'll like what you see.

SOCIETY CLUB ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING
OCTOBER 25, noon RM. A STUDENT UNION

The International Club

The International Club wishes to say hello to the students at California's newest university. We are open to all students interested in broadening their understanding in foreign politics and cultures of other nations. Our club was chartered in 1969 and is currently advised by Brij Khare (AD 169) and Dr. Raul Khan (AD 162). President Basel S. Dajani will be conducting a club meeting at 11 a.m. Thursday, October 18 in Room B of the Student Union. Included in the first meeting will be a short movie portraying the African refugee situation and selection of officers will also be discussed.

We are looking forward to meeting you and hearing your ideas.
CAREER PLANNING

The Career Planning and Placement Center offers a variety of services designed to help students while attending college as well as after graduation. Whether you are looking for a part-time job or trying to identify career interests or preparing to interview for your first full-time job, the Career Planning and Placement Center staff can assist you. The Center is located in the Student Services Building, Room 116. The Center's hours are from 8 am to 6 am, Monday through Thursday and from 8 am to 5 pm on Fridays. Our telephone number is 887-7551. The vast majority of services are available to all students, regardless of major or class level. Several of the major services include: job announcement postings (located on our Career Employment Opportunities Board just outside the Placement Center), assistance in resume writing, advisement on job interview techniques, career counseling and vocational testing, placement file service, and Graduate School Reference service. In addition, two vacancy newsletters: Job News (listing vacancies in Business, Industry, Government, Higher Education, and Counseling), and the Educational Newsletter (listing vacancies in the teaching profession) are available. Two separate telephone tapes are also available to placement registrants – one for business, industry, and government registrants, and one for educational placement registrants.

The Center also co-sponsors (with our Counseling Center) a series of quarterly interviewing workshops entitled “Asserting Yourself in the Job Interview”. The Fall Quarter workshops will be held on Monday afternoons on October 29, November 5, 12, and 19. All workshops will be held in the Student Services Building, Room 171 and will run from 3:00 pm - 4:30 pm. The focus of this group workshop will be interview techniques through the use of video taping of mock interview situations. All students, regardless of class level or major are invited to participate. Sign ups are not required, and participants may attend any or all sessions as their schedules permit.

The Center also makes arrangements for employers to visit our campus to conduct job interviews. The requirements and schedule of recruiters for the Fall Quarter follows:

On-Campus Recruiting: Fall Quarter

The campus recruiting schedule for the Fall Quarter has been established. Students desiring to participate in on-campus interviews must be registered with the Career Planning and Placement Center and have attended a half-hour informational orientation session. Unless otherwise specified; Senior, Graduate or Alumni status is required to interview with those employers requiring appointments. All students may visit with recruiters on the south side of the library who do not require individual appointments. Appointments to meet with recruiters must be made at least two days prior to the interview. A copy of a final resume must also be submitted at that time. Changes in the calendar will be posted as soon as new additions are confirmed. The recruiting calendar is as follows:

HEALTH CORNER

The Key is EarlyDetection

This is a weekly column. If you have any health-related questions that you would like answered, drop your questions in the box in the Health Center Lobby.

What is the difference between bronchitis and emphysema?

Bronchitis is an inflammation of the airways with production of mucus resulting in partial blockage. Emphysema involves actual destruction of lung tissue, in particular, the walls (alveoli) and blood vessels in the lungs. With this destruction of the alveoli, the lungs lose their elasticity and the amount of air expired is decreased. This prevents adequate oxygenation of the blood, resulting in shortness of breath or exertion.

Together, these two conditions are often grouped under the label of "chronic obstructive pulmonary disease" (COPD). However, they are anatomically and physiologically distinct.

The tragic bottom line for both diseases is that they are almost always caused by smoking. The only really effective treatment is to quit smoking.

How often should a woman have a breast examination?

Early detection of breast cancer is extremely important. The survival rate with localized cancer is approximately 80-85%, and after cancer has spread to the axillary lymph nodes, survival is 66%. The American College of Radiology has the following recommendations:

A. At age 20, self examination of the breasts should be taught and accomplished monthly. Almost 70% of breast lumps are discovered while bathing.

B. Ages 20-49, breast should be examined by a physician every 1 to 3 years, preferably every year.

C. Ages 50-64, every woman should have a baseline mammogram or breast study.

D. Under age 50, mammograms and breast studies at the physician's request.

E. Over age 50, annual mammograms or breast studies.

F. If there is a personal history or family history of cancer, breast studies should be more frequent, even before age 50.

Remember that early detection is the key to preservation of breast tissue, cure, and a long healthy life.

Free Immunizations

Remember this week and next week your Health Center is giving Measles, Mumps and Rubella immunizations free. If you need a tetanus booster it can be given at the same time.

The contraindication to measles, mumps and rubella vaccinations are allergic reactions to eggs, and neomycin. Pregnancy and altered immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) are also contraindications. People that are forty and over usually do not need the immunizations.

We don't want a measles, mumps or rubella epidemic at Cal State: "Come On Down."

Walk for peace in Central America

In an effort to alert the North American people to the plight of Central American refugees inside and outside their countries, the Riverside Interfaith Committee to Aid Central American Refugees, the IMPACT Presbyterian Church in Redlands, and the Campus Sanctuary Committee are helping to coordinate a Walk for Peace in Central America initiated by the Central American Refugee Committee in Los Angeles.

The organizers hope to publicize the plight of the Central Americans and to promote giving sanctuary as an important means of aiding them.

A group of 40 refugees and some North American supporters will arrive in Riverside on Saturday, October 20. They, along with local community supporters, will begin the walk on Sunday, October 21, from the steps of Riverside City Hall at 1:00 pm after a press conference. During their stay in Riverside, they will give presentations at numerous area churches.

At 10 cities along the route, the walkers will meet local community members and give information on the current situation of the refugees in Central America and the U.S. Presentations will be given in Riverside, Redlands, San Bernardino, Upland, Claremont, Baldwin Park, Pasadena, San Gabriel, North Hollywood, and Santa Monica. The walk will culminate in Los Angeles at the Downtown Hilton (7th and Figueroa) where Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte will be meeting the International American Press Commission.
Music Profile: Neil Diamond "Primitive"

by Melissa E. McDowell

Singer, songwriter Neil Diamond came up against a rock at John F. Kennedy High this year, but once again is shining bright.

In February Diamond filed suit against Columbia Records for failing to release his latest album, Primitive. Columbia claimed Diamond's album did not have enough commercial potential. This was a surprising move from a company that has enjoyed the success of Diamond's eleven previous albums, all of which have gone gold or platinum.

Columbia and Diamond resolved the problem with the replacement of three songs on the album originally submitted. The added cuts are all co-written with Carol Bayer Sager and Burt Bacharach, a collaboration that produced Diamond's top ten single, "Heartlight."

The record company's reasoning that the collaboration's magic could work yet another time backfired. "Turn Around," a JLTs-added cut, failed to make the Billboard's Hot 100 chart. The album, however, quickly climbed the charts soon after its release.

Diamond's loss of eighteen years he has produced albums that contain a wide variety of music. Primitive is no exception. The album has everything from his usual ballad style in "My Time With You" to a jazz-flavored tune called "It's A Trip."

Primitive also marks the first time Diamond has used satire to the intensely personal, yet the film succeeds in presenting a both humorous and serious look at schools from the other side of the classroom-the teacher's viewpoint. However, the film sets up the message: a school is run not to educate young people, and only they should matter.
Cheap Dates

by Brad Pivar and Kimberly Obbink

The "Hey-uh-ya-maybe-wanna-go-out-after-class-maybe" special.

How many of you like to go out and have fun? Raise your hand if you're on a student budget. (You can put your hand down now.) In recognition of the fact that it is especially important for students to know how best to spend every hard earned entertainment dollar, the Chronicle has established “Cheap Dates” as a source of information for those who want to have fun without spending a fortune. We identify these outings as a clever solution to a common situation.

This week's package is one solution to a common problem.

George, a typical college student, has been eyeing Brenda in Music 180 for some time now. He wants to ask her out but can't seem to scrape up more than $20 at one time. What can two young fun loving types do in a thriving metropolis such as San Bernardino for under $20? A clever solution in two parts:

Part A: Feed your face! Fuddruckers 201 N. E Street San Bernardino 381-6485 Fuddruckers is home to what can only be described as "One-heck-of-a-big-burger!" (One might recall a brief screen appearance in "The Big Burger that Ate Cleveland." And you can pile it high with all the fresh produce and melted cheese you can handle for only $3.55. Such a deal! And what better way to break the ice than with an ice cold long neck beer? (They're cheaper by the bucket.) With an atmosphere which is best labeled as "fun" and competitive prices (dinner for two is around $10) Fuddruckers provides an excellent escape from the drudgery of school work, (or housework, work-work, or whatever.)

Part B: Relax! Central City 4 Theatres Central City Mall San Bernardino

It's cheapy time! Yes, what could be more rewarding than seeing that terrific movie at a cut rate price. And why not, it's the same movie. The theatre offers one-half price seating for its twilight screenings, (usually the first of the evening.)

One might have to see the movie before dinner, but so what? If treated properly, this can give a spontaneous flair to any evening. As an example, here is a typical smooth suggestion after an amazing movie: "Hey! Why don't we go grab a bite to eat. I know just the place!" A typical response: "Anything you say, you wild impetuous thing you!"

See how easy it is! So inexpensive too! With dinner for two only $10, and movies only $2 a head, George would have enough left over to be a real big shot at the concession stand, and put a couple of gallons of gas in the car to boot.

Watch for more dining and entertainment suggestions in the weeks ahead. We will be exploring the hot spots in and out of town, with special emphasis on stretching the most out of your entertainment dollar.

Restaurant Review:

Seafood Broiler

by I.M. Hungry

Are you tired of Mexican food, oriental food, and the average steak house? Look no further than the Seafood Broiler, located on restaurant row at 195 Hospitality Lane here in San Bernardino. The Seafood Broiler offers a menu consisting of broiled seafood cooked over extremely hot mesquite charcoal which the American Heart Association considers to be superior to frying.

The menu at the Seafood Broiler offers a wide variety of seafood items, many of which are delivered fresh on a daily basis. Some of the more popular items include Mahi-Mahi, a tropical sport fish that is very light in taste, swordfish, which resembles Mahi-Mahi, and the ever popular King of Seafood, Lobster. The averaged priced dinner is about seven dollars. That includes mixed vegetables, a choice of corn on the cob, potatoes, or rice pilaf, and salad. The restaurant also maintains a full-service bar where your favorite libations may be ordered. Seafood cocktails and other appetizers can be ordered while waiting for a table in the newly constructed outdoor waiting area. The restaurant also maintains a fresh fish market. All fish which appears on the house menu can be purchased at the market.

The restaurant's decor is fairly simple, having somewhat of a New England style to it. Reservations are not accepted, so if planning to attend on a weekend night come early. The busiest periods are Fridays-Saturdays 5-9:30 p.m. There is a cocktail hour from 4-6 p.m. Overall I found eating at the Seafood Broiler to be a pleasant and enjoyable dining experience. The service was good and the food excellent, although the portions were just a little small for my voracious appetite.

Can you swim 500 yards through shark-infested water? Ride a bicycle for 10 grueling miles on the treacherous streets of San Bernardino? Run, hop, skip or stagger the final 3 miles across the arid wasteland north of Cal State? If you can answer yes to one or more of these questions, then you are ready for the ultimate in intramural sports—the "Iron Person Triathlon," scheduled for Saturday morning, October 27. There will be both individual and team competition this year, but in order for the winner(s) to receive a t-shirt, there must be at least five (5) individuals and/or four (4) teams entered. Sign up sheets are now posted on the Intramural Bulletin Board in the Physical Education Building.

Joe Long Heads Up The CSUSB Intramural Program

by Eleanor Penrose

The CSUSB Intramural Program, which relies on the Associated Students for its operational budget, is well under way and showing promise for a great year, according to Director Joe Long.

"Seed" money was provided for the program to get started on, and was used over the summer and first weeks of the school year, providing the program with T-shirts showing the 'I Want You' intramural logo. The seed money also financed the programs "Midnighter" party which was held during the first week of school.

The program is now in need of more money and has been allocated $1000 to be used toward game equipment, flags for football, uniforms, films and promotional material. The AS will also provide for the ski area rental, used for the ski race which the intramural program sponsors.

The Student Services budget, also utilized by the program, is used to pay for scorekeepers, officials, and supervisors.

The Intramurals emphasize sportsmanship for team members. "Sportsmanship hats" are given to members with the highest number of points collected throughout the season in the various events.

"The hats are designed to discourage poor sportsmanship, and to provide team members with the incentive to behave themselves," Long said.

The Intramural Program encourages student involvement and provides something for everyone. For those students who enjoy sports, but do not wish to join a team, are welcome to use the school gym on weekends from 1:00 - 5:00 p.m.
Company Offers Job Opportunity to Personal Computer Owners

College students with personal computers may begin a lucrative part time job with future career potential through a new company, Trading Spaces, which operates a nationwide accommodations exchange for student travelers.

Trading Spaces is currently recruiting campus representatives to hook up their PCs and earn fees for the company, Trading Spaces, potential through a nationwide accommodations exchange for which operates a nationwide accommodations exchange.

"We're looking for self-staters who will accept the challenge to build their own business," says Stan Gould, President. "The representatives can set their own hours and pace, and can work around their class schedules."

The Trading Spaces reservations system links over 500 college campuses nationwide through the student representatives who connect their PCs to the host computer, via telephone, to arrange accommodations, a process similar to concert ticketing services.

For employment consideration, send a brief resume of work experience, academic and extracurricular activities to: Trading Spaces, 1611 Verdugo Blvd., PO Box 1397, La Canada, CA 91011. Submittal Deadline is November 1.

Army Officers

Many college graduates are discovering that their degree may be the key to an exciting career as an officer in the U.S. Army.

If the Army were to be compared to a corporation, its officers would be the executives. Through Officer Candidate School, qualified young men and women develop organizational skills and learn how to train and motivate people. They face many of the challenges that civilian executives face, and much more.

A career as an Army officer begins with a 23-week training program which prepares officers to handle mental and physical challenges. Candidates spend eight weeks in Initial Entry Training, where they develop their military bodies. The final 14 weeks are spent in frozen, where the curriculum is divided into three phases: The first phase of training, leadership training, organization and management workshops help to prepare candidates for life as an officer.

Upon satisfactory completion of the program, graduates are commissioned as second lieutenants and are scheduled to attend their respective officer basic courses. Officer basic courses teach newly commissioned lieutenants the technical and specific aspects of the branches to which they are assigned.

Army officers are eligible for a wide range of benefits, including free medical and dental care; 30 days paid vacation; a year membership in military officers clubs; and tuition assistance for postgraduate study.

According to Lt. Col. William D. Bristow, Jr., commander of the U.S. Army, Santa Ana Recruiting Battalion, "Officer Candidate School is time you will cherish. You will be challenged to the limit. Your career as an officer is an extension of OCS, because you will continue to be challenged daily to grow as a professional leader."

Bristow is Army recruiting responsibility in Southern California.

Applicants for OCS must be U.S. citizens. They also must be college graduates and between the ages of 19 and 29 (not having passed the birthdays of their enlistment). College seniors who apply early, and pass all entrance exams, can have their enrollment in OCS guaranteed in writing.

"Being an Army officer is a job with tremendous responsibility," Bristow said. "The Army trains its officers to act and react, to take a situation and improve the end result."

Fellowships

The National Research Council plans to award approximately 35 Postdoctoral Fellowships for Minorities in a program designed to provide opportunities for continued education and experience in research for American Indians and Alaskan Natives (Eskimo or Aleut), Black Americans, Mexican Americans and Puerto Ricans.

Fellowships will be selected from among scientists, engineers, and scholars in the humanities who show greatest promise of future achievement in academic research and scholarship in higher education. In this national competition sponsored by The Ford Foundation, citizens of the United States who are members of one of the designated minority groups, who are preparing for, or already engaged in college or university teaching, and who hold doctoral or other terminal degrees may apply for a fellowship award of one year's duration. Awards in the Postdoctoral fellowships for Minorities program will be made in the behavioral and social sciences, humanities, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, and biological sciences, and for interdisciplinary programs comprised of two or more eligible disciplines. Awards will not be made in professions such as medicine, law, social work, library science, and such areas as business administration and management, educational administration, curriculum development and supervision, teacher training, and personal and guidance.

Tenure of a fellowship provides postdoctoral research experience at an appropriate not-for-profit institution of higher education or research of the Fellow's choice. Appropriate institutions include universities, museums, libraries, government or national laboratories, and sponsored not-for-profit institutions, government or national laboratories, sponsored not-for-profit research organizations, and centers for advanced study.

The deadline for submission of applications is January 16, 1985.

All inquiries concerning application materials and program administration should be addressed to the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington, D.C. 20415.

Letters To The Editor
Response to Cheerleader Editorial

Dear Editor;

In response to the editorial (if it can be called that), "Bad Review for Cheerleaders," I am shocked and disappointed that such a tasteless article was allowed to be printed. I not only question your knowledge of cheerleading, but your own lack of enthusiasm in supporting what the cheerleaders represent. It is a shame that the author didn't put the same effort into supporting the young squad as they put into writing the article.

The author obviously has no concept of what cheerleading is or what cheerleaders do. Otherwise they would know that soccer and volleyball games seldom, if ever, have cheerleaders. (Football and basketball are the main sports to be cheered). But due to the fact that our cheerleaders are so enthusiastic about Cal State first year in intercollegiate sports, they choose to show support of all our teams by attending as many events as possible.

It seems that the author got all their ideas from watching college and pro football on TV. Not only are the expectations distorted, but they are totally premature for a first year squad of seven girls in which only three have ever been cheerleaders before. The author describes cheerleading as "performing gymnastics steps, displaying energetic bending, thrusting and lifting." What is not mentioned is that many of these "gymnastics" moves are made possible by male members of the squad which unfortunately CSUSB does not have yet. If the author bothered to do any research, they would have found that the cheerleaders are enrolled in gymnastics and/or dance classes to help them attain the goals they have set for themselves. New programs involve a great deal of time and effort to build and develop, but that seems to be easily forgotten. Our cheerleaders aren't getting paid, or receiving college credit, and yet they have donated a tremendous amount of time, energy and personal expenses into helping the athletic program and our school grow. Do you think that the UCLA or USC pep squads started off the way they are now?

It seems so easy to criticize someone else, but when it comes down to it no one wants to get involved. Well, these girls did get involved and are working hard to become the best they can be. I'm extremely proud of the cheerleaders. I feel they have more guts and dedication than many students here on campus. Instead of criticizing and humiliating them for their efforts, let spend more energy supporting and giving them the confidence they need.

Your truly,
Ellen M. Kowalski
Advisor of the CSUSB Cheerleaders

We at The Chronicle wish to end any controversy concerning the "Letter to the Editor" entitled, "Bad Review for Cheerleaders", printed in the October 10, 1984 issue. As stated in the Editorial Policy which runs in every issue, "Signed editorials and cartoons represent views of the author or artist and not necessarily those of The Cal State Chronicle. We apologize for any confusion which may have been caused by the presence of a byline instead of the usual signature format. It was merely a clerical error.
