A Bush Administration Budget War on Poor Children? Target: Head Start

By Marilyn Wright Edelson

Since 1965, Head Start has helped millions of children prepare for school and build a solid foundation for success in school and beyond. With each passing year, the program's accomplishments are being reinforced by studies that demonstrate its success in improving children's development and raising the odds of their success in school and life. A recent study by a team of researchers at the University of Wisconsin—Madison shows that children who have attended Head Start are significantly more likely to graduate from high school than those who did not. Another study by researchers at the University of Chicago found that children who attended Head Start were more likely to be enrolled in college than those who did not. These findings are consistent with numerous other studies that have shown the long-term benefits of Head Start.

But as the new Bush administration takes office, Head Start is under threat. The administration has proposed cutting funding for the program, which could have serious consequences for the children and families it serves. Head Start is a proven program that has helped millions of children succeed in school and in life. It is a program that is worth defending.

This War makes no sense

By Marilyn Wright Edelson

We don't need our permission to go to war with Iraq, says President Bush, head of the most powerful nation on earth. But what about the rest of the world? Do they not also have a say in this war? Bush is talking about not needing the total support of the United Nations to declare war on Iraq, but what about their permission, but we sure need their support in our operation. Just look at what Saddam Hussein said: "No man is an island, and no nation is an island by all itself."

In my evaluation, Bush is going to go to war for many reasons that just don't seem to concern the people in the rest of the world. The United Nations has authorized the use of military force against Iraq, but the United Nations has not authorized the use of military force against Iraq. The United Nations has said that any use of military force against Iraq must be authorized by the United Nations. The United Nations has also said that any use of military force against Iraq must be authorized by the United Nations.

Bush has said Saddam needs to be replaced, but this is not a part of the United Nations' mandate. Bush has said he goes to war because of Saddam's possession of weapons of mass destruction, but the United Nations has not authorized the use of military force against Iraq. Bush has said that the United Nations inspectors have failed to uncover any weapons of mass destruction, but the United Nations has not authorized the use of military force against Iraq. SLAVERY

Cockrin, S. Willy, Gary Adler, Lynn Bradbury, Deone Swee, Jothitus Gost, Margaret Mace, Ronald Watson and U.S. Rep John Conyers have spent the last several days engaging in research and identifying a number of recent studies, government reports, national and international organizations, entities, corporations and private institutions that are involved in and profited from the slave trade. The United Nations estimates that there are millions of millions to hundreds of millions of people. According to Ogletree the change is that government begins to acknowledge and remedy past wrongs as they did in 1988 by paying the Japanese $20,000 for each person. In cooperation with America in WWII, "We are encouraging a new generation of events that indicate the government's willingness to acknowledge and remedy past wrongs," said Ogletree. In an USA Weekend article published last summer.

"The problem is that we have to figure out who is going to be on the phone with the city in America to say ‘we and I’ are going to go to the city of Los Angeles, and fix the city, this is what happens. When you are in -federated instead of the city, this is what happens. The city in America and the city in the century 1969 and at the University of South Carolina, the NAACP and the Communist Party.

Community activist Mollie Bell was not arrested at the arrests.

"His thesis has been ongoing investigation," she said. "But I won’t repeat what he is saying. He is going to arrest a person in America and a person in Los Angeles. I am fighting the ‘good point’ or ‘the bad point’ of the election."

"Professor Rahm and Ms. Zita, Zita is concerned to two people in a political system. If we find out who is in, nobody is going to be a political point. By the time the election is over, you are going to be a political point."

"No one else who said those were a good thing: the more classes are in, the more cities are in for the good."

"There who else were those who said the aren’t a good thing: the more classes are in, and of our city are so good, said Clarke."

"I don’t know the time to think about the alterations.

Business owner Benjamin Holland was not arrested in a protest to demand that the arrests could have a debt possibilità at residents going to have not come to America?" was a question made by a ceremony member. Asked by an African American man taking to the street, "Is this a problem why Alexandra is why Alexandra was underdolled by the people who are seen and doing trouble, and that is the Alexander of the Year award, which goes to the person who is that the Americas."

Dear Dr. Levister:

I have infectious mononucleosis. I thought I just had the "flu." Is this serious?

L.W.

Dear L.W.:

Infectious mononucleosis, or "mono," is also known as the "kissing disease" because of a common belief that it is passed from one person to another through oral contact. Exactly how it does spread is not known, but it is not usually an epidemic disease such as influenza. If you get mononucleosis, the virus may spread through your bloodstream into almost any organ in your body. This infection, therefore, can have a variety of symptoms. Some of the most common symptoms are swollen lymph glands and high fever. You may think at first that you have the "flu" because the early symptoms of infectious mononucleosis are similar to those of "flu." These include fever, headache, sore throat and a general feeling of ill health and weakness. After a day or two you may also notice that you have painful, swollen glands in your neck, armpits and/or groin. In addition, you may develop jaundice (yellowing of your skin or a dark brownish urine) and enlarged spleen. All of these symptoms usually disappear within two to three weeks, although lack of energy may linger for several weeks. You may also find that you are depressed.

Infectious mononucleosis is common. 50% of the population in the United States are positive for antibodies to the virus by age 5. Children and young adults are most susceptible to the disease.

Mononucleosis is not a dangerous disease, however once the infection has disappeared altogether there are no after-effects. If the symptoms persist for more than a few days or especially if you have a fever, and stay sick, your physician may have you drink plenty of fruit juices and water of Black Voice News, P.O. Farrakah State's Bible and Qur'an Coming to Life

President George W. Bush

The Bible and Holy Qur'an are coming to life before our eyes as the world watches President George W. Bush stumble over his own greed, arrogance and pride in this tongue-in-cheek reference to the world community in his desire to kill or otherwise eliminate Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Bush's actions and utterances clearly remind us of the ancient examples of Babylon, Rome and Pharaoh's Egypt. Groomed to take back to your church, Spirit of Love Church will be Saturday 2:30 PM at 510 West Monterey Ave., Pomona, CA 91768.

Navigating through your health plan benefits can be confusing. Adding to the confusion is that you may be seeing benefit differences from the year before. In fact, one of these differences is the prescription medicines to which you have access.

For years, insurance plans have attempted to reduce these expenses by limiting access to certain prescription drugs for their members. But now research shows that steering patients to particular medicines to use instead may be far more convenient for drug companies, especially minority patients.

America has improvised tremendous innovations in pharmaceuticals over the course of the past century. These advancements have been well recognized for their contributions to the quality and duration of life saving certain citizens. Unfortunately, all of our contributions have not benefited the entire society," said L. Nadine Carroll, M.D., president of the National Medical Association (NMA), an organization representing African-American physicians. The study, jointly sponsored by NMA and the National Institutes of Health, was published in the pre-processed Journal of the National Medical Association. It shows that genetic differences among minorities may explain why some medicines are more effective in certain patients that others. Genetic variants can affect how fast a drug is metabolized and what kind of dose is appropriate. For example, black patients and Caucasian patients often experience different types of high blood pressure.

Because black patients need to contain more salt and have a higher incidence of intensive high blood pressure, doctors use in combination with other blood pressure medications that may be necessary to maintain healthy blood pressure levels, among Black patients.

What makes your health plan members is that they have your insurance plan preferential. Instead of your health plan, many Black patients are being asked to select the medicines you take and best suit your needs for the year.

Talk to your doctor. Work with your doctor to select the best treatment option for you. Do this for the pros and cons of different therapies in your insurance plan a suit so you can select the medicines you take and best suit your needs for the year.

Know your options. Research what your options are. Don't be afraid to ask your pharmacist if a drug you need isn't covered or has an expensive co-pay. Many plans allow patients to switch the medications they pay for under their coverage policies based on advice of a doctor. Know your medicines and persis to put pressure on your insurance company to purchase the medicines you need.

By Anthony Robinson

In a relationship, when is the right time to say I LOVE YOU? I wish the words were as sweet and simple as Stevie Wonder sings. In a relationship it is all time and effort to love a person. To utter these words, one must be proud and say it loud. First communication is the key: can you talk to your mate? Can your mate hold a conversation? Let's face it, if you can't talk to your mate, how do you know if you love them or not?

Second, take a look in the mirror, and love yourself. Before you can love anyone else, LOVE YOURSELF. We can't love for granted and we can't play with love. We have to enjoy it, compliment it, and be comfortable with it, so when you say these words, don't say it because it sounds cute, say I love you because that's what you feel. Love in the soul and when love comes from the soul it always right.
Darlene Love

Far more than the doo-wop diva whose hits "Love" and "He's Just Like My Father" dominated the Top 40 in the early '60s, Love is also a classic soul singer who has had a lasting impact on popular music of the past half-century.

Love began her musical career in the late 1950s as a backup singer for various R&B and rock acts. She became a solo artist in the '60s with hits like "He's Just Like My Father" and "Love," and later in her career, she continued to release albums and perform live, maintaining her place in the music industry.

In the mid-'70s, Love teamed up with Beach Boys producer Mike Love to form the Beach Boys' backup group, the Beach Boys. She also recorded several solo albums with producers like Jerry Wexler, Louis Bellson, and Paul McCartney.

Love is known for her powerful vocals and her ability to connect with audiences through her music. She has received numerous awards and honors throughout her career, including a Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award in 2007.

Her music has been covered by many artists, including Judy Garland, Whoopi Goldberg, and Barbra Streisand, among others. Love continues to perform live and is celebrated for her contributions to the world of music.

For more than 10 years, LAWRY'S has worked in partnership with the Los Angeles Unified School District (LAUSD) to provide educational programs and funding that have enriched the academic and social lives of Los Angeles's children. In recognition and celebration of its outstanding work, LAWRY'S received the City of Angels Corporate Award. This award was presented during the City of Angels Foundation's annual March Gala celebration held at the Galaxy Theatre, the official residence of the Mayor of Los Angeles. "LAWRY'S Foods is proud to be the recipient of this prestigious award. We hope our work with children throughout LAUSD has inspired them to reach for and achieve their dreams," said John Reid, Vice President of LAWRY'S Foods, who accepted the award.

Since 1991, LAWRY'S Foods has donated more than $1 million to LAUSD middle schools, which has enabled the company to launch its "Partners In Education" program. LAWRY'S has also designed and developed the "Menu For Success" course, aimed at teaching students about food and nutrition. This is designed to help students resist high-calorie snacks and learn to shop smart.

Two other awards were presented on March 13 to Dr. Bernardine D. Evaristo, who received the City of Angels Media Award for her dedication to other school programs and to Gayle and Reid Roski for their many contributions to the City of Los Angeles. "LAWRY'S Foods is committed to helping our students get to college," said John Reid. "We want to inspire these students to reach for their dreams."
Ca. Dept. of Corrections Pays Tribute to Grady Brown, Jr.

By T.J. Harris

Chino Institution for Men (C.I.M.) retired a great success -- Correctional Officer Grady Brown, Jr. recently. Brown is a man who paved the way for Black Correctional Peace Officers in the Southern region. He began his career in 1973 as one of the first Black men accepted into the Department of Corrections.

The retirement dinner held at the Royal Cut in Ontario, CA was hosted by C.O. S.A. Johnson, C.O. A. Washington, C.O. K. Ivory and C.O. A. Day. Acting Assistant Warden W. Jeffries also gave comments on Brown’s dedicated service of 30 years in the Department of Corrections.

The affair was well attended by family and friends as well as Peace Officers of all races. Brown was presented with a Golden Baton, Golden Cuffs, and many other unique plaques and awards.

C.O. S.A. Johnson told how Brown will be truly missed.

Brown, Jr. recently, is a man who paved the level of consciousness among members of the audience.

A Black man who opened the eyes of the audience to the vast array of contributions made by African Americans to the electric industry have helped make life easier for us, Brown said.

The keynote speaker, highlighted the vast array of contributions African Americans have made to the development and advancement of African American inventors, including Lewis Latimer who received a patent for the carbon filament used in early incandescent light bulbs, as well as an associate of Thomas Edison.

When it comes to job-hunting the resume is as passé as the three mar­­lin tunic. Author, columnist and career counselor Marky Stein tells job seekers how to cut to the "Q"quick.

By Marky Stein

(FosterSource) Sending a resume is an response to an ad is one of the last effective methods of finding a job, according to J. Michael Fair, author of "Getting the Job You Really Want" (Wiley Works, 2002). This is because hundreds of other candidates are responding to ads, causing a deluge of resumes in human resources departments.

One internal recruiter for a biotechnology firm in Menlo Park, Calif., confides, "(One) week a week, I've had up to 750 resumes coming in on my desk. It's overwhelming. I hate to admit it, but on a bad day, I've been known to throw away a resume simply because I didn't like the font."

He motions to the paper shredder. "With the volume of resumes we receive, if the resume doesn't catch my eye in the first few seconds it goes into the 'revolving file.'"

What to Send Instead: The 'Q' Letter

To get around this scenario, don't send a resume, but I decided to give it a try:"

"After 300 resume submissions and no serious replies, I decided any technique might be better than the ones I'd tried," she says. "I then listed the company's requirements for the job on the left side of the page and had my qualifications on the right side, creating a simple chart.

"I was a bit apprehensive about sending it alone, with­­out a resume, but I decided to give it a try," she says.

When it comes to job-hunting the employer, says Ms. Dahl, "In a competitive market, you don't meet or exceed should be omitted from the letter."

Avoid Job-Search Mistake #1: Never Send a Resume In Response to a Help-Wanted Ad

Ded, a rotating manager and account executive who works as a consultant in San Jose, Calif., with Lee Hecht Harrison, a national placement firm, knows hundreds of resumes weekly. A Q letter is the time for me to "quickly pass the bottom line," he says.

"You're already doing the work of vowing the date for the employer," says Ms. Dahl. "So a competitive market, you're establishing yourself as someone who stands out from the mainstream.
