The Ceramics department has received a new image-in the form of a new Ceramics sign in front of the Ceramics shop in the Visual Arts buildinng. The sign, reading simply "Ceramics," is made of ceramic slab, and is high-fired with a gold luster. Designed by Robert Downs and Barbara Goldstein, the sign was created by eight advanced students: David Cochetefeld, Evelyn Crawford, Howard Duckworth, Kathy Lee, Dora Pickery, Mike Scorzell, Mark Vergefront, and Anje Wenzl. Each student was assigned an individual letter. Department Tech Bruce Decker was also extended a special thanks for his involvement and assistance.

The Ceramics and Glass Club sponsored a ceramics workshop, held November 16-17. Fred Olsen, author of "The Kiln Book," supervised the "hands-on" workshop, where the attending students built a 16 cubic foot updraft salt kiln.

Also, the Ceramics and Glass Club will be holding a Christmas sale in front of the library on Wednesday, November 28, and Thursday, November 29. Items to be sold will include hand-made ceramics, blown glass, hand-made wood objects, and graphic prints. A 10 percent discount will be given to all faculty and staff members. So don't miss outtake this opportunity to do some early Christmas shopping. You might even find something special for yourself.

Computer Director Named

Frank Slaton has been given new administrative responsibilities at Cal State, San Bernardino and has been designated as director of computing.

Slaton, a certified public accountant, a data processor and an internal auditor, came to Cal State in February 1975 as manager of data processing services. He has taught evening computing classes there before the computer center grew to its present proportions.

The new title will formalize some of the service Slaton has been providing to the campus community in the past. He will provide assistance to all computer users on campus, both microcomputer and those with terminals attached to larger equipment. Part of his responsibilities will include development of training courses for faculty and staff and furnishing of technical advice in the selection of equipment and software for administrative and academic uses. He will also be the liaison with the CSU Chancellor's Office on computer matters.

Slaton, retired from the Air Force, holds a B.S. degree in accounting from the University of Kentucky, an M.S. in computer science from Stanford and an M.B.A. from Cal State, San Bernardino. He has published articles and has given numerous demonstrations on the use of computers and robots and is the originator of the successful ME (Microtechnology for Everybody) Festival held at Cal State the past two years.

Slaton and his wife, who have four children, live in Redlands.

Lifestyle:

What a difference a door makes

The Life Style reporter decided to bypass people this week and interview the new automatic doors in the library.

"My joining the campus this quarter certainly is a modern and helpful addition for the university. I am located at the library's north entrance between heavy and sluggish doors. I feel so trim and streamlined when I look over to the entrance and exit doors for the building."

The doors were anxious to relay money details.

"It is amazing to report that $20,000 was set aside by the campus for the project. Thanks to Dennis Stover in the Physical Plant Operations Office and to several others in the Purchasing Office the University spent less then $15,000. What a bargain!"

"Don't forget my neighbor around the corner. She has class; double doors and both are automatic. Everyone using the elevator for the second and fifth floors passes through my neighbor on the north east corner of the library."

library."

Oh, for you "people oriented" readers the individual pictured is Steve Coffey who is a graduate student in psychology.

This interview is provided by the Services to Students with Disabilities Office in an effort to increase awareness about architectural barrier removal program on the campus. Questions and comments are invited. The office location is PL 107 and the number is 887-7662.

New A.S. Positions

by Robin K. Porter

A.S. President Sheryl Hammer is looking for an assertive, independent thinker to begin training as the legislative director who will take Ken Whitson's position in the spring.

Applications are now being accepted in the A.S. office (in the Student Union building). The director is the president's spokesperson and representative in statewide issues pertaining to the Cal State University system.

By attending statewide meetings one weekend a month the legislative director gains experience dealing with students from all parts of the state. CSSA (California State Students Association) meetings are held at different campuses during the year and all expenses are paid by A.S.

Miss Hammer appoints one individual from all applications received. The application deadline is Nov. 30.

"This is a very important position for Associated Students (A.S.). You need to be the type of person who gives a good impression," said Miss Hammer.

"We want someone for this year and next," she added. The annual stipend is $750 which is paid in thirds, one third each quarter.

Another incentive to apply for this position is that each year the legislative director travels to Sacramento and will possibly be sent to Washington D.C. to lobby at the state and national level on behalf of Cal State students.

Other A.S. positions will be opening during the year and interested students should inquire at the A.S. office. President Hammer stated that more people are needed for involvement in everything from dances to aerobics and to serve on committees with faculty and administrators.

"Having a position with A.S. can build leadership and character and be a lot of fun! I would highly recommend and challenge everyone to get involved," she said.

High School Speech And Debate Tournament

by Linda Riddell

December 14-15 marks the date for the First Annual CSUSB High School Speech and Debate Tournament.

The tournament will offer a novice and an open division for five individual events: Extemporaneous, Dramatic Interpretation, Humorous Interpretation, Oratory, Expository Speaking, as well as novice and open divisions of Debate, states Jay Danley, Forensic Tournament Director and also one of our part-time faculty members in the Communication Department.

The Communication Department is looking forward to hosting this event since it promotes the department and will give higher visibility to our university as well as put us on the map for future tournament sponsorships.

300 students from high schools ranging from Las Vegas to San Diego will be competing. The winners will receive a plaque and awards will go to everyone who makes it to elimination.

The competition allows students the opportunity to broaden their background in intellectual creativity and increase their critical thinking skills while enhancing their spirit of competition.

The debate will be done "Oxford style," two debators on two The policy question this year will be, "that the Federal Government should provide employment to all employable US citizens living in poverty."

This tournament also gives high school students a chance to experience the college atmosphere during their two-day stay and the tournament itself will be a service to the community providing educational experience for the local high school youth.

The winners will be in good company since L.B. Johnson, Richard Nixon, and John Kennedy, some of our more recent presidents, were also great debators.

James Foiles of San Gorgonio High School will be assisting Jay Danley in running this tournament, and the judging philosophy for the critics working at the tournament will be made available to each school at the time of registration. This permits the students a better opportunity to adapt to their audiences.

The tournament will take place in approximately 70 of CSUSB's classrooms across the campus and will enlist volunteers as judges, hostesses and administrative personnel. The Communication Department looks forward to hearing from those volunteers who will dedicate their time in the spirit of goodwill. Please contact Fred Jandt, Chair; Jay Danley, Forensic Director; or Linda Riddell, Communication Secretary at 887-7685, as soon as possible. Your time will be greatly appreciated in helping us make this tournament a huge success.

Children's Center

by Dianne Hamre

On Nov. 15 Pamela Dortch, director of the CSUSB Children's Center, led a parent workshop on the prevention of child sexual abuse.

The workshop, held in the Lower Commons from 7-8:30 p.m. was attended by 13 parents. It was the second of two conducted to inform parents of the sexual abuse prevention training children receive at the Center.

"If you don't teach your children what to do in this situation, someone else will teach them what they want them to do," Ms. Dortch said.

She stressed that the Center teaches the children that their body belongs to them and that they have the right to say "no." Children are taught the difference between "okay" touches and "not okay" touches and are encouraged to speak up if they feel something is not right.

Guest speaker Marilyn Greening, a social service worker in child welfare, reinforced the importance of what is being taught at the Center

"The defenses your child learns now will be with him or her even when you can't be," she said.

The parents viewed a filmstrip titled "Speak Up. Say No!" by Elaine Krause, that will be shown to the children as part of the program.

For more information about the prevention of child sexual abuse, you may contact Ms.

Dortch at the Children's Center.

Graphic Artist Group

by Elrond Lawrence

After a year of writing to get on its feet, the Graphic Artists Group is now concerned with establishing itself as a noticeable part of the CSUSB campus. By offering its services to boost different clubs' images through logos and buttons, the Graphic Artists Group is something that should interest all other clubs.

The Group, now in its second year, has a twofold purpose-to help expose future Graphic Artists, i.e. Freshmen, Sophomores, to the different forms of Graphic Arts, and to help clubs communicate their ideas and purposes through logos. The Group plans to create posters, illustrations for posters, and even buttons. The prices will vary, depending on the individual clubs' needs, and on the size of the Group at that particular time.

The Graphic Artists Group has also nosted a few activities this quarter, with more planned in the near future. The Group had booths in both the Oktoberfest and Unifest festivals. The financial results of the booths were not up to the Group's expectations, but, in the words of President Teresa Garcia, "we don't get discouraged so easily."

The Group has now planned a Tamale Lunch Sale, to be held in front of the Library on November 28, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Homemade tamales will be sold, as well as buttons.

The Group would like to become more active on into the year, and to do that bring up the need for more members in the next quarter. All students with an interest in Graphic Arts are welcome the only thing asked now is that persons interested in joining leave a listing of their Winter Quarter schedules in the mailbox in the Visual Arts building. This is so a more convenient meeting time can be planned, as opposed to the current time-4 p.m. on Thursdays in the VA building.

So, if you have an interest in Graphic Arts, or if you are in a club that is looking for a special image, contact Teresa in AV (ext. 7298)-it may be a small step that makes a big difference.

An opening forum will be held Tuesday, November 27 from 10-12 and again from 3-5 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building. Everone is strongly encouraged to attend.

Stress Management Seminar

Do you manage stress, or does stress manage you? While a little stress in the life of a college student is normal, an excess of stress can be harmful, both emotionally and physically.

If you want to learn how to cope with stressful situations, come to the Learning Center in PL 37B November 28 from 12-1 p.m. Learning Assistance Services and Counseling and Testing are co-sponsoring a seminar on Stress Management, the third in a series of Learning Assistance workshops that will be presented during the academic year.

Bridget Tucker and Sandy Hall of Counseling and Testing will conduct the seminar.

For further information see Rosemary Biney in the Learning Center or call 887-7612.

Semi-formal Winter Ball

Serrano Village Council and Associated Students are joining forces to co-sponsor a Winter Ball. This semi-formal dance will be held on January 25, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the CSUSB Commons Dining Hall.

Ticket Sales will begin the final week of November and will be available in the SUMP and the Serrano Village Housing Office. Prices have been set at $10 per couple or $7.50 per person. This evening of entertainment, provided by a disc jockey, includes a buffet.

This social event promises to be a highlight of the Winter Quarter. "We are very excited about this activity and hope that you all will join us," invites Veda Hunn, Serrano Village's Assistant Housing Director.

For further information, contact Veda Hunn at 887-7405 or Don Rodriguez, A.S. Activities Coordinator at 887-7498.

Honoring Banquet

Plans are being started for a banquet honoring all campus clubs, their advisors, interested faculty and university administrators. Officers of the Committee for Clubs outlines the tentative event as an orientation for motivated representatives and a way to give early recognition to those who are building club activities on campus. The event is set for mid-January and information will be forthcoming from A.S. Activities Office and from Club Moderator, Clare Sharafinski. Clubs may contact either office to offer suggestions.

Computers Think?!

Can computers think? Are our minds just complex machines, or do they have unique characteristics unlike those of machines? How do we learn to speak? How does langauge differ from other forms of communication? The Philosophy Department is offering two new courses in Winter Quarter which will study various answers to these questions. Minds and Machines (philosophy 490) will study whether computers can think, and what similarities there are between computers and human minds. This course, of interest to students in Computer Science, Social and Behavioral Sciences, and Philosophy, is scheduled from 2-3:50 TTH. Philosophy of Language (Philosophy 330), scheduled from 4-5:50 TTH, will study the relation between language and other forms of communication, as well as the role of language in human life. Readings in this course will include writings of philosophers as well as non-philosophers such as Helen Keller, Lewis Carroll, and Jonathan Swift. Students in Communication, English, and Social and Behavioral Scieces as well as Philosophy should find this course of interest. Both courses have no prerequisites and are open to all students.

NEWS FEATURE

The university offers a student accident and sickness plan for Cal State San Bernardino students. This plan provides partial coverage if a student requires hospital care or emergency treatment resulting from accident or sickness. This plan is designed to complement the Student Health Center by providing coverage for services not offered at the Health Center.

When the deductible amount is used up, there is a major medical benefit that covers 80% of the costs up to $20,000. The deductible amount is $2,600 including the basic benefits ($2,500).

Brochures and further information may be obtained at the Health Center or at the Associated Students Associated Students Office in the Student Union.

Cost is $122. That covers the student from September 1984 to September 1985, or $33 per quarter. A student may also insure his spouse and family.

The Student Health Center is very satisfied with this plan and the company that underwrites it. It is a very good plan for students with no other insurance coverage.

Question: When should a preast lump be biopsied?

Answer: This is a very important question--especially since breast lumps are discovered by women who have been taught self-examination, or by physicians. In truth there is no simple rule. The doctor's judgment is a very important part of the decision.

If there is a history of cancer of the breast in the familymother, grandmother-then risk is higher. If there is any question about the lump, then mammography, a breast imaging, is very helpful. Should either of these tests be suggestive, most physicians would recommend excision of the lump for biopsy purposes.

Remember, early detection and early surgery gives the best chance of a cure.

Tired of Smoking?

The Health Center will be offering a program to stop smoking next quarter in mid-January. There will be no charge for the program. Days and times will be announced at the beginning of next quarter. For any further information, please contact the Health Center on Tuesdays, from 11-2 or Thursdays, from 8:30-11.

For instance, groups of staff frequently call in their food orders before leaving the campus for lunch, and members of the drama clut converge at the Nickle several times a week to play cards and unwind.

This cozy family establishment offers simple, but good food; wine and beer, for those of age; pool and a juke box that offers selections by Micky Gilley, Kenny Rogers, The Romantics, and oldies-but-goodies by the Righteous Brothers.

Bill Patrick, the owner, is a warm and friendly guy who came to California from Indiana twenty-five years ago. Bill has been operating The Nickle for twelve years and considers his place to be a "family" establishment where anyone can bring their kids, wives, or girlfriends with little cause to worry about disturbances from rowdys. He emphasizes the informal family-type Lee played at Bloomington High and La Tonya Johnson at Rowland High in Rowland Heights. Completing the roster is Michelle Williams, Bloomington High; Rhonda Smith, Franklin High in Stockton; and Sherry Sturkey, Kearny High in San Diego.

After hosting Fresno Pacific, the women will travel to Los Angeles to play Occidental College Monday, Nov. 26 at 6 p.m. The Coyotes men's team will be at Occidental at 8 p.m. that same night.

Coach Fitzgerald feels that "we have a good schedule; we play schools our own size with the exception of UC Riverside. I feel our schedule will allow us to get to .500, which is realistic for us. It will take us about three years to get things underway. We hope the community will get behind our program and support it. That will be important for the girls.'

Speaker Review:

Stokely Carmichael

by Stephen Steele

Stokely Carmichael, whom many believe is one of the great humanitarians produced by America has chosen to live outside this country. He has returned to perform the function which he served in the past: to stir up the stagnancy of the American mind. On Friday, Nov. 16 in the Crafton Hills College Performing Arts Auditorium, one thought by many to be among the foremost orators and activists of our time, Carmichael, addressed a crowd of 300-400 persons on the topic of "Scientific Socialism." His name is now Dr. Kwame Ture and with his family he has made his home in Guinea, Africa since 1969. The program was sponsored by Mecha and the introductory speaker mentioned that Ture considerably lowered his present speaking fee in order to accept the invitation to speak at the Yucaipa junior college. The introduction also briefly recounted some of the historical names associated with the Civil Rights movement of 20 years ago--Luis Tiarena, Cesar Chavez, Martin Luther King-in relation to Carmichael who was a radical proponent of Black Power and a prominent member of the Black Panther Party in those times.

Dr. Ture's style of speech was intellectually challenging. His stated purpose was to influence people to think and think rigorously; because there is a marked difference between actually thinking and thinking that one is thinking. To think without possession of factual truth is only a confused substitute for the real thing-this is the type of confusion endemic to a capitalist society for it makes the masses more easily and willingly manipulated without even being aware of it and seeming to choose to do so. He professed the socialist dogma that there can be only two types of economy in the world: capitalism and socialism leading to eventual communism.

One of the inherent evils of capitalism, he noted the injustice of a few people owning and controlling all the wealth of the society, and the buying and selling of people which is especially prevalent in college where the knowledge that students acquire is bought and sold for a higher standard of life instead of being used for the betterment of humanity. He stated that he believes socialism is to be the only just economic system in the world because it alone seeks the advancement of all. He said that the nature of capitalism stresses the aggressive and greedy aspects of human nature, and we are influenced to accept that this is our essence. The focus of energy in America is toward frivolities and away from things that affect other people. The American people know and care more about Dallas and Dynasty than about Beirut, Grenada, or Nicaragua and that though our technology is the most advanced in the world, it works against the masses of the people and for the benefit and enrichment of a few.

The solution put forth is that political education must be constant and broadened to all classes of society, and must be aimed toward the responsibility of benefitting all humaity. The first step is to get people to think; he illustrated the lack of this by comparing the salivation of Pavlov's dogs at the ring of a bell, to the ill-informed, paranoid American who reaches for his gun when he hears the word Communism. Dr. Ture stated that if the history of American foreign policy is anything, it is antisocialist: stating that all the wars we have participated in (except the two major imperialist wars) have been against socialism.

Many in the audience seemed grumblingly uncomfortable at his socialist and class interpretation of the history of American aggression throughout the world. He stated that it was not his task to convince people to agree with him but to make people think and stimulate them to seek knowledge. Once this process is established, he believes people will instinctively recognize socialism as the better system; for the instincts to work productively with and help other people is stronger than the self-centered greed and aggression engendered by the capitalist system.

At the end of his talk he fielded a few questions from the audience about the war in Afghanistan, the conservative resurgence in America and the difference between socialism and communism. The jist of his answers were that all political struggles in the world are related to class struggles between socialist and capitalist ideologies and that the polarization of the right seemed like a majority only because it was a well organized minority and it will eventually influence a polarization on the left that will be a stronger and more effective movement than that which occured in the 60's. As if relating the obvious, he mentioned that when he spoke of socialism he referred to the principles and not to any particular country or political entity; just as when someone speaks about Christianity he does not assume that they are referring to Falwell.

He ended by softly saying, "Power to the revolution," and applauded the audience as they applauded him.

Sports Coverage

Dear Editor:

I would like to congratulate you and the Chronicle staff for the improvement of the "Sports" section in our school paper. I must say that I was pleased to see several articles of our intercollegiate teams, as well as the wonderful photos that were provided in the Oct. 24 issues of the Chronicle. The same issue in which my editorial on the lack of sports coverage was printed.

I am however, disappointed once again because of the lack of sports coverage on our intercollegiate teams: women's volleyball, and cross country, and men's soccer and cross country. I think it's downright disgraceful that our sports teams got more publicity articles in a San Bernardino newspaper than in our own school paper.

Our men's soccer team completed the season with an outstanding record of 13-2. just missing the play-offs for Division III teams. Our women's volleyball team completed their season with a 9-4 record. And our women's and men's cross country teams finished 6-0, and 8-1, respectively.

The outcomes of all our intercollegiate teams this fall is fantastic, considering it's their first year as a team here at CSUSB. Congratulations to all those who worked so hard to make CSUSB's intercollegiate teams such a big success.
