Miller Professors Angry: City Settlements With Preece

By Artelia C. Covington

While community members gathered in protest at the announcement of former Riverside County Clerk Dan Preece's settlement with the city, Preece, a Department of Justice officer who was recently deposed in an estimated $75 million lawsuit, quietly settled his case with the city.

City Manager Robert Smith's decision to settle the Miller family's lawsuit against his department for $50,000 plus settlement money, and a city council vote earlier this year to award the settlement money to the Miller family, has led some professors and other city officials to question the decision.

Riverside City College Professor Robert Lewis, who teaches history and government, said he was disappointed with the city's decision to spend money on a settlement.

"I think the city is making a mistake," Lewis said. "I think they should have fought this case."
Who Will They Say You Are?

There is a scripture in the Bible where Jesus and his disci­ples were having a conversation about the rich and poor, and the "who do the people say I am?" The discussion finally gets around to asking Jesus, "Who do you say I am?" Of course Peter responds with the correct answer. That scripture came to mind this week when I heard and read the remarks about Governor Lester Maddox, Senator Strom Thurmond, and Mayor Maynard Jackson. If you are one of the many who do not remember, I will give you the correct answer. What were the people saying about these men? Governor Lester Maddox was remembered as the restau­rant owner who stood in his establishment's doorway with an ax handle, denying Blacks to enter his place of business during the 1960s. Senator Strom Thurmond was an elected school boardmem­ber, mayor, state representative and later US Senator in South Carolina. Newspapers and television commentators could only say he lived to be 96, served 46 years in the sen­ate and voted for segregation, "today, yesterday and tomor­row." He was the first southern Senator to hire a Black on his staff, however the records show that Thurmond fought against every piece of legislation that would grant Blacks any protec­tion under the US Constitution.

Mayor Maynard Jackson was elected as Atlanta's first Black mayor, and what do you think people said about him? People from every race were in attendance at his funeral. Bill Clinton, former President of the United States, was there with accolades expressing how Jackson was a builder of people. The president of Delta Airlines remarked about how Jackson helped him build an airport by using Affirmative Action so everyone made money, which is good for business. The pres­i­dent of Coca Cola spoke of the positive business relationship developed because of Maynard Jackson's presence as mayor. And now, the former mayor and US Ambassador spoke of Jackson's commitment to fairness, equality, justice and how good Affirmative Action leads to a larger financial pie for all. There was a long line of speakers from every walk of life telling the world all of the good things that Jackson had done in his 65 years on earth helping people.

The first two individuals had greater opportunities and resources to help improve the status of mankind, but because they spent most of their time hating others, little was achieved. The two men did not care about building the future of our children. They were not interested in creating a better quality of life for the next generation of children. Instead, they spent most of their time hating others, little time was spent working on the quality of life that others would have.

Head Start, the nation's premier antipoverty program, is in danger of becoming a serious victim of the fiscal emergencies that have created a series of severe budget problems. Federal Budget Director Robert Altman recently said it was his job to come up with cuts that will "not be popular but which will have to be made." Without proper funding, Head Start services will be cut back or even halted. The program is under severe financial strain and is the target of administration budget cuts. The program receives $1.6 billion in Federal funding and serves more than 1.1 million children from birth to age 5.

Why is the program in peril? The problem is multifold. It is an issue of the economy, poor funding, low enrollment, low retention, lack of accountability, and outmoded goals. The federal government must take action to save this important program.

Head Start started as a program that was designed to help poor children get a head start on life. It was the first federal anti-poverty program in the United States. The program was established by the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. The program was designed to provide educational and health services to children from low-income families. The program was established to help children from low-income families get a head start on life.

Head Start is one of the most influential programs in the history of America. Studies show that children who participate in Head Start have higher academic achievement, higher test scores, and better job prospects. Some of the earliest children who participated in Head Start are now successful professionals, leaders, and role models for their communities.

Building Bridges of Understanding: A New Resource from the California Council of Churches

The challenge of evangelism is one's neighbor is completed in California. Beyond geography, sociolinguistic, socioeconomic and political boundaries, there are numerous religious traditions which coexist in a myriad of expressions within the state. While diverse in tradition, they all share a common thread that they seek to pass on to their neighbors a message of hope and salvation.

Prophecy Summit to Convene July 9th

The first annual Prophecy Summit will convene Wednesday, July 9 through Saturday, July 12, 2003. Dynamic Summit speakers will include Prophets Cordelia Williams, Pastor Nathan Swanson, Apostle Austin Byrom-Wright, Bishop Charles E. Blake, respectively. The conference will be held in LAX, Hotel, 540 W. Centennial Boulevard, Los Angeles. A catalytic experience in which the prophetic summit will be held Thursday, July 12, 2003. Special guest speaker will be Bishop Charles E. Blake of West Angeles Church of God, Los Angeles.

"As leaders of the 21st century church, we must begin to recognize practices that may paralyze the church and our community," said Deacon Womack. Workshops, seminars and the prophetic Summit will be presented by Dr. Judith Christie-McAloney, Pastor Mario Brown, Pastor Carl Franklin, Prophets Rebutta Gardner, Pastor Bobby Henderson, and Prophets Crown Williams. For hotel arrangements, contact the Hilton Hotel at (866) 485-8507 and the Westin Hotel at (800) 347-8411.

Ministers block for discounted room rates begins at 6:00 p.m. Workshops will be held from 9:00 a.m. until 11:00 a.m. Mid-day worship services are from 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. in the Westin Hotel's Ballroom.

For more information contact Deacon Rita Womack at 19225 Cypress Avenue in Rancho Cucamonga.

God's Plan for America Seminar

This free seminar is scheduled for twelve consecutive Saturdays beginning July 12th through September 27th. Each session starts at 9:30 a.m. and is entitled, "God's Plan for America" based on biblical interpretations of various religious traditions which co-exist in a myriad of expressions within the state. While diverse in tradition, they all share a common thread that they seek to pass on to their neighbors a message of hope and salvation.

To begin to meet that challenge, the California Council of Churches has created a resource for congregations to begin knowing their neighbors and sharing in various religious traditions: Ministrations, Judaeism, Buddhism, Odinism, and Mith. This resource, entitled Building Bridges of Understanding is not designed to promote any religious or spiritual traditions, but is through the prism of Christianity, a way to understand the beliefs in these faith traditions and a glimpse at their historical development and current outlooks of community service. The Center for Religion and Civic Culture at the University of Southern California is a partner in this effort, which has already been funded by a grant from the California Educational Foundation.

Building bridges of understanding by definition is a resource for building broken down barriers to see each other as neighbors, not as "others." We often love and respect and dignify to our neighbors, we lower our tolerance for hate crimes to be committed against each other. We seek dialogue and understanding with our neighbors, we often feel national security against more burdens, so that we can continue in our mortgages, our Corns and Cray network of the California Council of Churches, who will be holding a two-hour training workshop on Thursday, July 17, at 1:00 p.m. beginning at 10 a.m. at All Saints Episcopal Church, 3104 Jasmine Drive, Riverside, 92506 (corner of Magnolia, across from the Riverside Community College). Come meet the neighbors you have never met and learn how to see your neighbors in a new way.

For more information contact the church office at 909-315-1706. Grace Bolden is located at 9920 Cypress Avenue in Rancho Cucamonga.

Pump Your Brakes

H be very clear in telling them do not do too much. There's a fine line between slowing down and stopping. So do you have to be careful not to do too many things and need to want to see them but you think things are moving kind of fast?

A friend of mine is having that problem as well. A lot of people have told her that she should slow down. But I think if you say "I really like you but things are going too fast", that (like most things) is easy to say but not easy to do. You have to weigh in a lot of factors. One problem could be that telling this person to slow down could make them upset and totally back off.

I know about a situation I had where I was genuinely fond of a man. He was everything that I wanted at that time and I really enjoyed his company. Things were great between us until he felt the pressure. He was making too many plans for the future and I just wasn’t sure. I found myself confused and frustrated. To alleviate this pain I decided to let him know that I thought he was moving too fast for me. His reaction was very unexpected. He took it the wrong way and decided that I was trying to tell him that I really didn’t want to be with him. In a rage he walked away from me, never to be seen again. I remember my last words to him were "I didn't say stop, I said slow down! Pump the brakes don't slam on them!"

Obviously that statement didn’t work on him. In retrospect I don’t think he really would’ve been able to be with someone who would just walk out on me without giving me a chance to explain. So, I find that I tell the person the way I feel. It might not be a bad thing but if that person cares about you they will understand and try to adjust. The method you choose to use when telling them down’s tamer. Just be sure that you get them to understand what you’re trying to tell them.

Chief Tunson sets up new MSJC Police Department

When students return to Mt. San Jacinto College in August, they will notice a new police presence on campus, including police officers in uniform and black and white squad cars, all created to make the campus environment safer.

"Although campus crime has not been a serious problem, the College has grown and developed over the years," said Richard J. Giese, MSJC president, "and we need to ensure a safe environment for our students. We are one of the last community colleges to implement a police department."

In addition to low enforcement and creating a safe atmosphere, the new police department will educate students and faculty about crime prevention and self defense," said Tunson, chief of the newly formed Mt. San Jacinto College Police Department. The department will also integrate with the College's Administration of Justice program, using students as interns.

Until now, the college employed security personnel, who had no real authority, could not issue citations for parking or traffic violations and did not carry weapons. If there was a problem on campus, the security people called the local police department for assistance.

The new MSJC police will be in uniform, drive squad cars, and have the same authority as city or state police. They will issue warnings or tickets for parking or traffic violations, which will carry standard fines and will be enforced by the state court system.

"This is a major cultural change for the college," said Tunson. (previously Tuninson). The MSJC police will enforce parking and traffic rules and criminal code violations, which is new and will require a transition period. A parking ticket violation will be permitted an appeal process to recieve the deduction. Minor violations for operating or failing to obey a stop sign may be adjudicated by the dean's court, just as any other ticket issued by police," Tunson said.

Tunson, who was born on April 15, has been setting up the department and hiring staff, including Kevin Segovia of San Diego, who began his job as a police officer in June. A second police officer will be hired in July, enabling full time police coverage at both the San Jacinto and Menifee campuses of MSJC.

The MSJC Police department is paid for in part by a $150,000 federal grant, which will cover partial salaries of the two police officers for three years. To qualify for the grant, the MSJC police department had to meet the requirements of the California Community College Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST), which is the same agency that certifies municipal police officers and sheriff's deputies.

A native of Southern California, Tunson, grew up in the South Central area of Los Angeles and decided to become a police officer at age 15 after the devastating riots in 1965. "I knew I wanted to be part of the solution" (to the problem), he said.

He studied administration of justice at Santa Ana Community College, and worked as a security officer on that campus. He transferred to National University in San Diego and earned a Bachelor's degree, followed by a Master's degree in law from Pacific West School of Law in 1999.

With his active professional life, Tunson says he is known by three different titles: Police Chief, Provost and Lt. Colonel. In addition to bringing the Police Chief to MSJC as a part-time component of criminal justice, Tunson also serves on the Board of Directors for the California Community College Police Association, and is the Fraternal Order of Police.

Tunson lives in Murrieta with his wife, LaRae, who is the Director of Admissions at the University of California, Riverside. He is the father of two adult daughters.

Emergency Preparedness Liaison Officer for the 5th U.S. Army's Homeland Security section, and is responsible for 11 Southern California counties.

With more than 20 years of police work to his credit, Tunson has served as Interim Chief of Police for the South San Gabriel Police Department in Los Angeles County, Police Chief for the Colton Police Department, and Police Chief for Coachella. He served in the U.S. Army for five years in the Provost Marshal (Military chief of police) at Los Alamitos, CA and in El Paso, Texas.

University of Michigan decision by the U.S. Supreme Court to uphold the interest of diversity in higher education.

Earlier this year, the President promised to provide much-needed resources to these historically black universities in the form of increases in funding. Now it seems, the President and Home Republicans are breaking that promise. Much of the funding for the 1890's HBCU program was either frozen or cut during the Appropriations Agriculture Subcommittee mark-up for FYS 04 funding. For example:

- The Capacity Building Grants were cut by nearly $2 million;
- The 1890 Facilities Grants were cut by $1.4 million, and;
- 1990 Colleges and Tuskegee funding was flat-lined.

"We call on President Bush and the House Republican Leadership to not turn their backs on HBCUs and to keep their promise. Cutting funding to HBCUs will hurt thousands of students and negatively impact diversity in the workforce," said U.S. Rep. Elijah Cummings (D-MD), Chair of the Congressional Black Caucus. "If the President and Congress fail to back the memories! Experience your way! Soft dinner music for House Parties. Ask for Liz at (909) 781-4659

The President and Congressional Republicans are serious about diversity and increasing opportunity, they will find other ways to pay for their gigantic tax cut than cutting funding for HBCUs," said Chairman Cummings.

The House Appropriations Committee made significant cuts in funding to the 1890's Land-Grant Colleges and Universities recently. These cuts came on the heels of the landmark Grand Tombs (c), Southern California Edison’s manager of marketing communications for the Economic Development unit, is to retain, expand and attract business, and to increase the competitiveness of our business community.
