WHO WOULD BE AT FAULT?

WOULD WE BE EFFECTED BY AN EARTHQUAKE?

by Elwood Lawrence

How well can California State University, San Bernardino, cope with an earthquake? This question seems to be asked most often recently, as attention steadily shifts toward the nearby San Andreas Fault, and its disasterous potential.

To fully address the problem, the situation must first be placed in its proper perspective. That realization comes home when one considers that the San Andreas Fault is within eyesight of CSUSB—roughly a few hundred yards. However, it is not as serious as it sounds. When a location for CSUSB was first being planned, the existing site was chosen out of a fair number of others, and for one particular reason, according to Director of Administrative Affairs James Urata. While the site was the closest one to the San Andreas Fault, it was also the most stable, having a prominent deposit of bedrock. This created the most stable base possible, as well as the potential for reducing some of the effects of an earthquake as compared to the city of San Bernardino.

While CSUSB may have a stable base, many are concerned about the ability of buildings to hold up under a sizable quake. While they may not have some safety features available today, campus buildings are relatively modern, and were built with earthquake safety factors in mind. This safety factor, as a result of structural engineering, is most noticeable on CSUSB’s tallest building—the Pau Library. While many skyscrapers are built with a technique that would allow them to sway during a large tremor, the library is not, due to the fact of its moderate height. Rather it was constructed with concrete, applying slab upon slab and unifyng it with a final framework. Contrary to many rumors and ideas, the library does not have rollers underneath to rock it, and keep it from shaking.

Another factor to consider is the position of CSUSB in relation to the city of San Bernardino. As stated before, and confirmed by Urata and Assistant Professor of Geography Ted McDowell, the closeness of the campus to a major faultline does not signify a greater vulnerability on the part of CSUSB. In fact, an aspect not considered emphasizes this—an aspect known as the liquefaction factor. The liquefaction factor is due to high water levels present in downtown San Bernardino that can cause a structure to, quite simply, sink into the ground and disappear. The liquefaction zone is prominent in San Bernardino, and is centered in the downtown area. In effect, as put by Urata, CSUSB can almost be considered an “island,” with any other disaster, striking the campus, steps have been taken to ensure public safety. A first step taken was to distribute the Emergency Plan, an informative booklet drawn up in 1977, to all heads of departments at CSUSB.

The booklet includes the different steps to take for various emergencies, as well as listing numbers to call for assistance. Basically put, the Emergency Plan is provided to establish a state of readiness on the Cal State campus, to provide protection for University employees and students in the event of an earthquake.

LITTLE THEATRE'S GHOST SONATA TO OPEN FEBRUARY 28

by A. Nicole DuCharme

On February 28, The Ghost Sonata opens at CSUSB's little theatre. Written by August Strindberg, it has a cast of twenty-two and promises to be an exciting show. The play first appeared in 1907 and creating a revolution in theatre. Strindberg utilized a new way of writing in which he used rapid shifts between the real world and the dream world.

Ronald E. Barnes directed this production. In the large cast, Cal State seniors and drama veterans, Tina Laderi and Jodi Julian remarked on working with such a large cast. Laderi said, 'Ghost Sonata seems like a huge circus. It's fun for me personally. Overall the show is becoming a real joint project and it's fun to work with such a large group of people.' Julian, in her last play at CSUSB said, 'I'm sad nervous and excited! Everyone in the cast is really supportive of each other. We are beginning to get a good name for the department. I'm over whelmed that tickets are selling so fast.'

The play opens on Thursday with performances again on Friday and Saturday and again on the 7,8, and 9 of March. Tickets are $4.50 general, and $2.50 for students.
Excursions into the People’s Republic of China

California State University is sponsoring a tour to Tokyo, Bangkok, Singapore, Hong Kong, and Kuala Lumpur, with extra excursions into The People’s Republic of China, during summer, 1985.

The dates of the tour are June 29 to August 13. The price of $2050 includes round-trip airfare on Singapore Airlines from either Los Angeles or San Francisco, accommodations at quality hotels, airport transfers, city tours, breakfasts daily, all taxes and services, and daily assistance from the tour directors.

Tour directors are Dr. Tom S. Reck, Professor of English at California State University and Co-ordinator of Film Studies there, and Dr. Shigeo H. Kanda, Professor of Religious Studies and Asian Studies at California State University in Chico.

University-level credits are available through courses entitled “Images of the East in Modern Fiction” and “Southeast Asia: Culture and Society.”

Although sponsored by the tour directors and by California State University, the tour is open to anyone and will be composed of students, teachers, and simply individuals interested in the economic and cultural advantages of a tour sponsored by a non-profit educational facility.

For additional information, write International Programs, California State University, Chico, California 95929-0830 (916) 895-5801; Or Dr. Tom S. Reck, English Department, California State University (916) 895-0239; Or Dr. Shigeo Kanda, Department of Religious Studies, Cal State University (916) 895-5860.

emergency condition. According to Director of Public Safety Arthur Butler, the plan calls for any emergency (such as fire or earthquake) to be referred to University President simply who would in turn direct the Department of Public Safety in assessment, and rendering assistance if necessary, and directing possible evacuations. The President would coordinate efforts of the University Police, Physical Plant, and other agencies responding to the emergency. Communications within the campus, and to outside of the campus, would be handled by three means: telephone, teletype, and radio, although Butler added that the overloading of phones usually places the most emphasis on teletype and radio. Also the Health and Daycare Centers would both provide for injuries, with triage centers set up in both. Additionally, the gym can also double as a first aid/refuge center.

The plan was given a chance to be tested a few years ago when the Panorama fire broke out, endangering much of the Cal State campus. Butler says it mostly worked well, but there were some flaws, which he described as “overelaborations.” He added that it showed areas that needed improvement, as well as emphasizing a new point-flexibility, and the ability to adjust decisions for unexpected conditions, flexibility, according to Butler, includes being able to move Command Posts, communication bases, and to revise evacuation procedures as different needs might arise. Butler also added that there would be an excellent opportunity to practice your Spanish language skills.

Cost is $1,056 basic ground cost, plus airfare. Program dates are June 29-August 13, 1985. The program includes excursions to Toytubacan, “The City Where Gods are Made,” Tepoztlan, and Taxco.

"The Trials and Tribulations of an entry-level employee in an advertising agency."

by Greg Timpany

Virtually every corner of the globe is reached by some form of advertising. From the time a person is born until they die, they are exposed to millions of advertisements. This exposure leads many people to seek a career in the world of advertising.

Last Wednesday members of the Cal State Marketing Association had the opportunity to hear first-hand about life in an advertising agency. Ms. Mary Ann Gabriel spoke to the members of the CSMA about her trials and tribulations as an entry-level employee in an advertising agency.

Ms. Gabriel was a 1982 graduate of the University of Southern California. She received her undergraduate degree in Communications with some coursework in marketing. Her first experience in advertising came as a sales representative for a Santa Monica-based magazine. She spent almost four months pounding the streets trying to sell advertising for the magazine.

Ms. Gabriel pursued an opening with an advertising agency. Ms. Gabriel stressed the importance of building personal connections. It is very important to make friends, relatives, teachers, and business people. A connection can get your foot in the door.

Ms. Gabriel also stressed the importance of knowing something about the company you are interviewing with. Interviewers will be impressed if you show them that you are knowledgeable about the company. Ms. Gabriel landed a job with DJMC Advertising in Los Angeles. She received the offer several months after she first applied. "Persistence pays off when dealing with advertising agencies. I made phone calls every week to check on the progress."

The subject of salaries was brought up by one of the CSMA members in attendance. According to Ms. Gabriel, "salaries for entry-level positions start around $14,000, and salaries are comparable for men and women." Ms. Gabriel was asked if she would go into advertising if she started all over again and she replied, "the work never stops, but it is fun."

Ms. Gabriel gained a great deal of knowledge about the industry. "Interviewers will be impressed if you show them that you are knowledgeable about the company."

Advertising is a people business, a networking business. A connection can get your foot in the door. "Interviewers will be impressed if you show them that you are knowledgeable about the company."

After leaving the magazine, Ms. Gabriel pursued an opening with an advertising agency. Ms. Gabriel stressed the need to develop personal connections. "It is very important to make friends, relatives, teachers, and business people. A connection can get your foot in the door."

English Club Members Host Poetry Reading

by Robin Hart

"Try and imagine poetry and beer hand in hand. This may sound a little weird. But then winning a Hawaiian vacation can do strange things to people. Even to you."

Everyone can win a trip to Paradise for two, including airfare and six nights at a great hotel. All you have to do is go to In-N-Out Burger, fill out an entry form, take your bumper-sticker and put it on your car. You don't even have to buy anything.

You could be tripping out in Hawaii before the year is up.

Shalom Club Plants Trees

by Rabbi Hillel Cohn of Temple Emanu-El in San Bernardino. Tu B'Shvat is a celebration of the Jewish holiday Tu B'Shvat (Too B'shuat). It's a casual gathering; those who wish to read their own poetry are encouraged to come and support the growing audience. Listeners, readers, meek onlookers, as well as bargain shopping beer-drinkers should attend, and support the growing literary community at CSUSB. Is the Bar Right? Is the Bar Left? Are you hard to convince student poets to be bold?

Results of the Intramural Wrestling Tournament

A record of 14 grapplers and over 30 spectators turned out last Thursday for the 2nd Annual Intramural Wrestling Tournament. In the Small Guys Division, Mark Seymour of Redlands decided to Dave Palma, 6-4, to earn first place. Tom Ainsworth, of Highland, took first in the Regular Guys Division with a 4-0 win over Jon Johnston. Big Joe Lynch, from Serrano Village, won the Big Guy title by default when Andre The Giant failed to appear.

Poker Tournament

Set for March 5th

Running short of cash? Frustrated because you cannot qualify for a student loan? Well, before you attempt to strongarm your roommate or pull a heist at the local 'Stop N Go', consider the following. We will give, absolutely free, $7500, to the first 24 individuals to sign up for the Annual Intramural Poker Tournament. The game is Seven Card Hold 'Em. The date and time? March 5th at 7:30 p.m. The place? The CSUSB Student Union. The money, of course, is not real, but the competition is. Sign up now in the F.E. Building and hope you never draw the infamous "dead man's hand."
Understanding Your Prescriptions

Understanding your prescription is very important for your health and safety. Medications are used to prevent as well as treat diseases and other disorders. They also play a major role in relieving pain and discomfort. All of your prescription drugs in the Health Center are prescribed by licensed M.D.'s or licensed nurse practitioners under their supervision, and are dispensed by registered pharmacists. There is no medical control over prescription drugs once they are dispensed and how effective. However, misuse or misused prescription is very important to understand and to prevent as well as treat diseases and other disorders. There is no medical control over prescription drugs once they are dispensed and how effective. However, misuse or misused prescription drugs only as directed. You have been prescribed an excellent pharmacist in your Health Center, and she is very familiar with the drugs prescribed and how and when to take them. When you get back to your room read the directions on the bottle carefully and follow them specifically. Store your medicines properly and definitely where children cannot get to them. Keep medicines in the bottle in which they were dispensed and never put two different kinds of pills in the same bottle.

Don'ts with Medications

1. Run out of medicine
2. Discontinue medications without instructions to do so.
3. Transfer medications to other containers.
4. Put two different medications in one container.
5. Mix over-the-counter medications with prescribed medications.
6. Give your medications to a friend with similar symptoms.

Be a well-informed, responsible patient and you will get the best results from your medication.

San Bernardino County Museum Looking for Volunteers

The San Bernardino County Museum is always looking for ways to help the Museum and the People who visit it daily. The Museum, Docent program services more than 40,000 school children each year as well as many groups and adult visitors. While the coordination of the tours is done by the Education Director, Maggie Fox, and her staff, the Docents, which number about 40, have taken on more of the responsibilities for their own growth by forming a Docent Council. This organization will sponsor workshops, trips, social functions and lectures that will enhance their knowledge and aid the Museum in many ways. The officers are: Barbara Bourrous, Chairman; William Petersen, Vice Chairman and Fern Jenkins, Secretary Treasurer.

The Docent training classes that have brought more eager helpers to the Museum also served as a training program for members of the Bureau of Land Management and the Arrowhead National Forest. As the programs of the Educational Department reach an ever broadening area of those who work within the county the volunteer program gains new people. All of them agree that the Museum is a stimulating experience that they are willing to share with young and old alike.

C.A.R.E. Conference on March 8th

The California Advocates for Re-Entry Education (C.A.R.E.) regional conference will take place on Friday, March 8, from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the California State University, Long Beach (CSULB) University Student Union.

One goal of CARE is to form and encourage re-entry education in institutions of higher learning, and the hope is that spring will be on the adult learner. Their needs will be discussed along with how colleges and universities can develop strategies to make re-entry successful.

Dr. Karl Anatol, dean of the CSULB School of Humanities, will give the keynote address followed by a panel of experts on re-entry and a group discussion.

Interested adult learners, faculty, administrators, financial counselors, student service practitioners and community agency members working with adults are invited to participate.

The conference, which is co-sponsored by the Re-Entry Services of CSULB, is free. Pre-registration is required and must be completed by February 28. For more information contact Carreeze Bradley, Adult Re-entry Services/School Relations at (213) 498-5338.

Cutting the Red Tape:

"Make the Most of your College Experience."

by Elrod Lawrence

One facet of the educational process that people do not realize is that it is a two-way street. No matter how good an instructor might be, no matter how well-structured the program it is all for nothing if a student does not respond. It is a student's commitment and involvement that decides how much he or she gets out of learning, no matter how well-presented the other factors might be.

With this in mind the United States Department of Education, in an October 1984 study, recommended time and suggestions for students to help them make the most out of their undergraduate opportunities. Here are some of those suggestions that you might wish to take note of:

1. At the beginning of your freshman year, pick up a foreign language that you think you might want to use them to make the most of your undergraduate opportunities.
2. Take advantage of the theories, methods, and implications of the findings on re-entry and a group discussion.
3. Around the middle of your second year, pick up a foreign language that you think you might want to use them to make the most of your undergraduate opportunities.
4. Around the middle of your second year, see if you can recount to a friend the world, national and cultural issues presented in that paper.
5. Lastly, here are some tips on how to draw back on the theories, methods, and conclusions covered in the major articles, but also the implications of the findings on re-entry and a group discussion.

Give some thought to how you can contribute to the life of the campus.

Try to attend college full-time for at least part of your student career.

Do not work to simply enhance your economic lifestyle while you are in college.

Be sure you take at least one independent study course and one internship during your college career.

Lastly, here are some tips on how to help you judge how much you have gotten out of your education.

At the end of your sophomore year, pick up a recent issue of one of the comprehensive science magazines and see if you can explain to a friend not only the theories, methods, and conclusions covered in the major articles, but also the implications of the findings on re-entry and a group discussion.

Information Regarding Organization for Women

Cal State's Organization for College Women (CSOW) is an organization which began the Fall of 1984. The impetus to form the organization was the lack of any type of Women's Resource Center on our campus. The need for a greater awareness of the many opportunities open for women is essential. The college student needs to be aware of the vast, indeed practically limitless possibilities, in the career and job market.

It is the express hope of CSOW that through such special events as guest speakers, open forums and seminars, we can fulfill such an important function on our campus.

CSOW membership is open to everyone. The organization sees a need to provide a structured group which can act as a springboard for many new and challenging ideas.

We hope all will try to attend the two events we have planned for this National Women's History Week. In addition anyone who is interested in joining our organization or obtaining further information regarding its purpose, goals or structure should contact Penni Overstreet at 850-0272 or attend one of our meetings. The last meetings of the Winter Quarter will be March 14, 1985 from 10:30-11:30 in the Student Union Senate Chambers. The Spring meeting times will be posted on campus in the near future.

If you are interested in advanced planning please join us during the Spring Quarter as we begin preparation for next year's National Women's History Week.

In Recognition of Women

The study of women's history is relatively new and comparatively quiet. It is purposeful; the goal is constructive and expansive social change, change that must come with honest and purposeful; the goal is thorough education.

The multi-cultural study of women's history means reclaiming the contributions and impact of all groups of women. Knowing how the lives of women before us were spent, we gain the richness of our heritage and the inspiration of this tradition of activism and accomplishment. Correspondingly, boys and men are able to expand their perceptions and expectations of the real lives and work of women.

A LOOK AT WOMEN'S WEEK

National Women's History Week always includes International Women's Day, March 8, a day proclaimed at the turn of this century to recognize and celebrate the work of women in the organized labor movement.

It is our shared commitment to National Women's History Week that will serve as a springboard for introducing a more accurate picture of our history throughout the year.

always be the National Guard, or the State Disaster Plan to fall back on if things got too out of hand.

Even now, the 19 State University campuses are taking a hard look at disaster control planning, and the Chancellor's Office is working to promote awareness as well, things Butler describes as "strides in disaster planning." All also seems that an Earthquake Awareness Month is planned for the near future, although this could not be confirmed at press time. So it appears that while the potential for a large earthquake becomes more evident, so too, do the steps to prepare for one at least where Cal State San Bernardino is concerned.

Expert to Speak on Cocaine Abuse

The Children's Center and Serenity Village will co-sponsor a cocaine abuse workshop Monday, March 4 in the Low Center, with Michael Silk, director of the Substance Abuse Program of Chino Community Hospital, to speak to faculty, staff and students on "Cocaine: America's New High," from 3:30 p.m.

Free child care will be provided at the Children's Center for those attending the workshop. Further information may be obtained by calling 887-7274, the Children's Center.

Correction

I wish to apologize to Mr. Peter Wilson, Dean of Students. His wife's name is Melanie Rogers, not Linda Rogers, as indicated in the article, "Getting Aquainted With Dr. Peter Wilson." Her name is Linda Rogers. I stand corrected.

Tickets Available for Renaissance Pleasure Faire

Advance tickets and group sale discounts are now available for the 1985 Renaissance Pleasure Faire, which returns to Agoura for its 23rd annual celebration beginning April 27 for six weekends, Saturdays and Sundays from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Twenty or more people quality for group rates and there are special rates for students and senior citizen groups.

The Faire, an historical recreation of a 16th century English village and its people, will take place in a joyous presentation of the Elizabethan sports, music, drama, and dance; the pageantry of the gentry, lords, procession, and parades; foods; crafts; and folk tradition of Shakespeare's England.

For detailed advance ticket information, prices, and group sales, call (213) 604-1700.

Colton Police SWAT Assoc.

The Colton Police SWAT Association will be playing a very special wheelchair basketball game with the Redlands wheelchair basketball association.

Proceeds will benefit the S.W.A.T. Officers with equipment that they use in special emergencies, such as hostage or sniper situation, that are not covered by city funds.

The Redlands Wheelchair Basketball Association will be using their proceeds, for new wheelchairs, and repairing old ones.

This special wheelchair basketball game will be played March 23 at 7:30 p.m. at Craferton Hills College gymnasium, 1171 Sand Canyon Road, Yucaipa, California.

Anyone interested in helping with this fundraiser please contact us at our S.W.A.T. association office, the phone number is 861-3706 or 824-0464.

Assertiveness Training

Is it easier to say "Yes," "No," than "No"? Are you resentful toward the person that talked you into doing something you did not wish to do? Do you buy things you don't need, serve on too many committees, or go somewhere when you would rather stay home? Does saying "No" bring guilt feelings?

Learning Assistance Services and Counseling and Testing are co-sponsoring a seminar on "Assertiveness Training" on Thursday, March 7, 1985, at noon in the Learning Center, PL 37.

Sandy Hall and Bridget Tucker of Counseling and Testing will conduct the workshop which will help you become more assertive by letting go of guilt feelings.

Call Rosemary Binney, 887-7612 or come to the Learning Center for further information.

Deadline is Wednesday at noon for submitting articles for publication. It would be greatly appreciated if the articles were typed double-spaced.

She found him during the Hawaiian vacation she won. In fact, you can win the same trip. A vacation in Paradise for two, including airfare and six nights at a great hotel. All you have to do is go to In-N-Out Burger, fill out an entry form, take your bumpersticker and put it on your car. You don't even have to buy anything.

We are giving away 30 Hawaiian vacations for two beginning February 8, 1985. So get your entry in and display your In-N-Out bumpersticker today.

Who knows, before the year's out, you too could find a Hawaiian artifact of your own.

It is common news that President Reagan has proposed a 25% decrease in Student Aid expenditures for fiscal year 1986. If all the cuts recommended by the President were adopted by Congress there would be $2.5 billion less student aid floating around. According to estimates prepared by the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (NASFAA) between 750,000 to 900,000 middle income family students would no longer be able to borrow low-interest Guaranteed Student Loans if all cuts and eligibility changes are accepted.

The Education Department seems to think that the proposed cuts and eligibility changes will mean less money for cars, stereo's, and beach vacations. The Defense Department thinks that cuts in education expenditures will buy a few more tanks or aircraft. Both departments need to refocus their thoughts.

With massive deficits looming all over the place it is easy to see why student-financial aid would be easy to cut. For the most part students are not as politically active as other segments of the society. This makes it easier to take from them and give to the other segments, i.e. the military and senior citizens.

Another twist that the Reagan proposals include is making it more difficult for middle-income families to obtain financial aid. Low-income families have an obvious need for student financial aid, but is this the case for middle-income families? In many, but not all, cases it is. Many middle-income families have more than one dependant enrolled in higher education. To cut back on their chances for receiving student financial aid could force many potential students to change their plans. A used phrases is "ice it!"

Laura's job is a demanding one, requiring her to be available for all emergencies, while working weekends as well as full days during the week. She also has to have a good medical knowledge of sports injuries, noting that unlike a regular student who sustains an injury, an athlete has to get back in action in about 3-5 days, all the while keeping other muscles in shape. There is also higher liability factor, as well, since an athlete is more prone to injuries than the average student. Nevertheless, Laura is enthusiastic about her job, saying that she "enjoys to be around...even though there are long hours." She is in her first year at Cal State, and spends half of her time teaching as well as being a trainer. And since she is originally from Orange County, she feels good to be back-and feels good in her new job.

How does Laura Held sum it all up? With a smile, saying, "it's a cool job...it's just fun."
