Black, Blacks, Whites and Political Power

By Sylvester McGirt

In the early 1950s there were a very small percentage of Blacks in the community the vote was always given to the party that the whites were against. Many of the whites were surviving on meager wages or were very small business owners. Very few had any sort of education. However, the Mexicans were a different breed. The Mexicans of the time were almost all born in Mexico and many of them were in the United States by the age of 15. They were very important to this country, yet they were not always treated as such. The whites were afraid of their strength. The call of Gary Montana, Gary Johnson, Hassan Ali, Haywood Galbreath and Johnson.

Up in the morning and out to school
Your book's open, in the kitchen, so you know
A small loaf every morning, thus
Out of corn meal brought from the mill;

The facts are that blacks are dying of heart disease, high blood pressure and certain cancers. The rate is one-and-a-half to six times that of whites for each of these diseases. Of those who are dying, 44 percent are black. Nationally inadequate access to health care is a serious problem. The final report will contain conclusions and recommendations to find real solutions to this problem. We will interview at least 300 African American residents for their opinions of San Bernardino County's health care system. We can improve it. Please help American health problems, create a forum for discussion of the issues. We will conduct focus groups in the communities to find the real reasons why bread was not put in the history books. We did not rest. We will neither be tired nor defeated.

We were compelled either to beg, or to steal, and we did both. I talked a lot to myself about stealing, I still didn't have my everything. I didn't sit down and fight for my neighborhood. It was a must to go ahead and do it. We used to even imply things that we did not have to say my mind. We were not fit to eat food. If we are not fit to eat food, we are not worth anything. To have a person's own voice. These are the words that my father did tell for them. That man didn't do anything for them. He knew the demographic maps. The conditions of the different communities were very different. They had their own political structures. We were all very much in the real world. The neighborhood children did very well and the real world. They knew the real-world realizations. So we knew the real people very much. We all involved in real communities. We all involved in real communities. We all involved in real communities.
Ovarian Cancer: Until There’s a Test, Awareness is Best

By Beverly Taylor

From a young age she found that she was different. Her childhood ambition was to become a nurse. In her book, Caring, Confident & Courageous, she traces her struggles and obstacles encountered while working toward a nursing degree.

“Cancer, I found, was a life-changing health situation,” Salton said. “To ask others to feel what I felt from a distance and to be a witness to someone who felt the same was very disturbing.”

A new book written to help people facing challenges at school, at work and in life.

“Each person’s map of the world is unique from their co-creation in their own bodies. Only we have the right to define our lives. People need to be better protected when they are suffering and learning to be more healthy.”

According to the American Cancer Society, an estimated 21,290 new ovarian cancers will be diagnosed with ovarian cancer in 2003, and 14,240 women will die of the disease. The five-year survival rate for patients whose disease is detected in early stages is only 25 percent, yet if diagnosed before the cancer has spread outside the ovaries, a chance for five-year survival rises to 90 percent.

It is imperative for women to be aware of the risk factors for ovarian cancer and to be aware of what you can do to prevent the disease. People need to be better protected when they are suffering and learning to be more healthy. People need to be better protected when they are suffering and learning to be more healthy.

KING

languishes in the U.S. District Court, while presiding judge Robert T. bons composes a motion filed by the city on the issue of his legal standing. Only several blocks away, at a different courthouse, a racial discrimination law case involving African-American police officers Rogers and Larkins is on motion for summary judgment, in the hands of the same federal judge, Richard T.菲尔德。King strongly supported the right to use the courts and had planned to march alongside them in Memphis before his death. If he had, would he stand?

Speaker after speaker also shared how much the work of King had impacted their lives and defined their own community activism and service. Dr. Sterling Stovely, UCR Professor of History and Religious Studies, was present at the 1963 march and has taught a course on the Civil Rights Movement. He told the Riverside celebrants, "What was perhaps most unique about his speech was that no one else had both the moral authority and oratorical skills to reach the broad spectrum of people to whom he listened that day.

Woolie Baker Hughes, president of the NAACP Riverside chapter, spoke of her experience at the March on Washington when she was 15 years old. She had gone to the location of the march hours before it started and had received her sign from Wilt "The Still" Chambers. The march and her participation in it had a major impact on her that defined the rest of her life. Now, through her involvement in the NAACP, she is heavily involved along with other members in defending and promoting the civil rights of others in Riverside.

Omar Zaki, from the Riverside Islamic Center, spoke of how the tragic events of 9-11 have impacted the Muslim community, especially in relation to Attorney General John Ashcroft's enforcement of new laws. He said that these laws and their enforcement do not reflect the life and spirit of King.

The Reverend Jesse Wilson, from the Kansas Avenues Seventh Day Adventist Church, said that all people have been profoundly affected by the life and death of King

"King was a sent of God," he said. The first time Wilson had ever seen his father was when King died and he remembers the civil unrest that occurred in the wake of his fatal shooting, he said. Wilson praised the advances that have occurred since King's death, but criticized Ward Connerly's use of King's name to promote ballot initiative Proposition 54, which would negatively impact people of color in California. "We are fools not to realize we have a long way to go," Wilson said. "The dream is still strong. What is missing is action."

The Reverend Jerry Louder told the crowd that you can not legislate morality but you can legislate fairness. He also critiqued Connerly, adding that his proposition does not address a reality that includes racial discrimination. Louder added that people of color still have yet to truly benefit from affirmative action programs already created for them.

In the state of California, affirmative action by race or ethnicity in the public sector have been legislate nearly out of existence.

Rose Mayes, who directs the Fair Housing Council passed out signs which spoke of the importance of making housing affordable for all people, and promoting jobs for youth. Both are in short supply in a city which continues to grow, while rents are increasing and the ability to buy a house still remains a dream for many families. Mayes and other individuals like herself work hard to change that.

At least two of King's children have played a role in Riverside's history. In 1999, hundreds of people congregated at City Hall for the unveiling of the statue of Martin Luther King, Jr. King's daughter, Yolanda, was the guest of honor and spoke eloquently on behalf of her father. In that same year, her brother, Martin Luther King III had been arrested along with 49 other people while blocking the police station in protest of Tyisha Miller's death. He was one of several national civil rights leaders who had been labeled as "outside agitators" in Riverside, much like his father had been 40 years later when he had been marching for justice.

Members of Richard Burrows' family passed out fliers at the ceremony that deplored the tragic shooting of Burrows, a longtime county employee, only months after a Riverside County Sheriff Department deputy had arrived at his house. The city of Riverside and its residents had already been tested by the 1998 shooting death of Miller and that still reverberates today.

Late May, the city council had taken what many had viewed to be a positive step when it voted against the reinstatement of former Riverside Police Department officer William Schuster. Instead the city decided to appeal the judge's ruling on that case because they decided it was in the best interest of the community.

On Sept. 2, the city again revisited that same issue, with one councilman saying to the daily newspaper that it might be in the best interest of everybody to settle with Stewart. By the end of the day, the city attorney's office had announced that the city had not planned to take any "repealable action" at this time. Perhaps before the city officials do, they should think about what King would advise in this situation. Maybe they need to take a walk outside and sit beneath the statue of King that was placed there in part to serve as a moral compass for those who work within the walls of power when they make the decisions that impact the lives of so many people.

Family members are a child's first teachers.

Showering you how care and love your child does in school gives your child a head start on the road to success.

Encouraging kids to do their homework and study for tests helps them do well in school—and in life.

Teamwork and communication are key.

As this new school year begins, let's work as a team to give kids their best chance to succeed. You can get to know your child's teacher at parent-teacher conferences and back-to-school nights. During the school year, if you have a question or concern about what's going on, call the school and ask your child's teacher to call you back.

Working together as a team, we can help kids succeed.

Richard Elliot to Perform at Thornton Winery

Tickets range from $50-$110 for more information call (909) 699-3021.

Richard Elliot began his career touring and recording with Smokey Robinson. The saxophonist Richard Elliot will appear at the Thornton Winery on Saturday, September 27, 2003 at 7pm. How do you put a new spin on some of music's best-known and best-loved songs? That was the challenge facing guitaristproducer Lee Ritenour when he began working on A Twist of Motown, the third in GRP's popular Twist Of Series. As on the previous two releases, A Twist Of Jobim and A Twist Of Marley, A Twist Of Motown fuses Ritenour creating fresh, innovative arrangements for a collection of classic songs.

Ritenour came to the project already very familiar with Motown music. In the early days of his career when he was a top session guitarist, he worked often at Motown's Los Angeles studios, with the likes of Diana Ross, Rick James, Holland-Doxier-Hollands, and many others. Deciding to present most of the songs on A Twist of Motown as instrumentals, the first order of business was, "to find out which tunes could hold up melodically instrumentally." So Ritenour immersed himself in the music. "I listened to the Motown stuff so much before pre-production," he says. "I would go on bike rides and listen to fifty songs on my headphones and really get inside the arrangements." The result is an album featuring eleven Motown classics, all of which have been creatively reworked and performed by an assembly of superstar musicians. Most of the tracks are anchored by a stellar rhythm section that includes keyboardist Greg Phillinganes, rhythm guitarist Ray Parker, Jr., bassists Nathan East and Melvin Davis, and drummer Ricky Lawson. Ritenour functioned as a sort of casting director when choosing the artists to perform on each tune. As he explains, "I always look at these Twist Of albums as kind of my Quincy Jones productions because from working with Quincy through the years I saw how he would cast people together almost like a movie. I don't know what school you go to other than the Quincy Jones school for this kind of casting." Starting out as a Los Angeles session musician in the early "70s, Ritenour soon became a first-call sideman, and in 1976, he decided to launch a solo career. Since then, he's recorded thirty albums that span a range of styles, won a Grammy®, and become one of the most influential guitarists in contemporary jazz. In 1991, Ritenour, Bob James, Nathan East, and veteran drummer Harvey Mason founded the superband Fourplay, which immediately established itself as a force on the jazz scene. Ritenour launched his own label, i.e. music. In 1997, Ritenour inaugurated the Twist of series with A Twist of Jobim, which celebrated the music of legendary Brazilian composer-artist Antonio Carlos Jobim. That album was followed by 2001's A Twist of Marley, which explored the music of reggae icon Bob Marley. A Twist of Motown will be available on CD September 23rd.

One of the founders of the instrumental pop movement that launched the NAC (GRP Records). The album showcases Elliot's trademark style-contemporary jazz with a heavy soul and R&B groove with a modern feel. His second CD for the GRP Records label, Ricochet puts Elliot's soulful, sensuous playing front and center on an outstanding set of tunes co-written and co-produced with the top names in contemporary jazz.

TNT was Dy-No-Mite At Cal Pac Meeting

The Black Voice News

By Megan Carrier

Thompson Todd is known as the Black man with a plan. He is a businessman who has taken a stand against discrimination in the workplace. Todd's company, Thompson Todd Enterprises, is committed to creating a more inclusive work environment for all employees.

Todd believes that diversity is key to success in today's global marketplace. He understands that having a team made up of people from different cultures, backgrounds, and experiences can lead to greater innovation and creativity. His company is dedicated to promoting diversity through its hiring practices and employee development programs.

Todd's commitment to diversity is not just lip service. He has taken concrete steps to ensure that his company is a place where everyone feels welcome and valued. He has established a mentoring program that pairs employees with experienced professionals who can help them advance in their careers. He has also created a paid leave policy that allows employees to take time off for family-related reasons without fear of losing their jobs.

Todd's company is not alone in its commitment to diversity. Many other businesses are recognizing the value of having a diverse workforce. By embracing diversity, companies can unlock the creative potential of their employees and gain a competitive edge in the marketplace.

Overall, Thompson Todd and his company serve as a shining example of what can be achieved when businesses prioritize diversity and inclusion. Their efforts are helping to create a more equitable and just society for all Americans.

The "Black folks" are not free we are at war. Our country (Cal-PAC) held in Las Vegas he claimed, "Disconnected (can't understand the issues with his people); Hydroponic (grown in shallow water with no roots); Blended (looks too White to be Black); Inner city (we were treated worse than the enemy we were fighting. (German prisoners of war could eat in the barracks and said we must be careful because the Black man is being destroyed as White changes the rules of the game). The result is there are more Black men in prison than in college. "Women are great but we have a real problem with our men," he told. Cal-Pac they need to work on the issue that even in the Black colleges, there are 73% females only 27% males. Black organizations need to address those problems," he said.

Traci is a woman, the President of Cal Pac is Shannon Reeves, NAACP Youth Director and Secretary to the California Republican Party.
