Summer Activities Planned

by Sue Pound

Summer is the time for relaxation and recreation and the Activities Office has a variety of fun in the sun programs to offer CSCSB students.

Literature is available to travelers who want to escape the San Bernardino sun this summer to take exciting excursions to places afar.

Study Tours, an educational, travel service of Club Tamere, is offering various travel programs to Europe, South America, the Orient, Mexico, Canada and Egypt.

One tour is a vagabond bicycle trip through Europe in which participants can view such famous landmarks as Buckingham Palace, the Louvre and many others. Members also have the opportunity to see less noteworthy but no less impressive sights as idyllic villages and quaint windmills.

Other places to visit as well as valuable tips on trips can be found in Tripping, travel magazine. The publication gives hints about which countries to see when and how to get the most from your overseas dollar.

The magazine even offers a remedy for the cultural shock of coping with foreign foods in a nutrition article, "Health Nuts Overseas Survival Kit."

More information on these and various other student travel programs for this summer are available through Doris Scott in the Activities Office.

For the more homeward bound summer students, CSCSB is displaying its own array of programs. A film series will be presented throughout the summer session, tentatively scheduled for Wednesday nights. The ASB is co-sponsoring a bus trip to Dodger Stadium in which students will only pay for a discount ticket. The gym will be open during the summer for swimming, handball, tennis and other sports. Richard Bennecke, Director of Activities, said, "The gym facilities are always available for students, their families and guests." Information about the hours of operation can be obtained from Joe Long in the P.E. Department, according to Bennecke.

The activities director noted that the plans for summer activities are still tentative but "complete schedules will be available during summer registration."

Bennecke added, "We always encourage students to come into the office and schedule events." He suggested that a chess or bridge tournament be staged if enough students show interest.

Whatever the pleasure, be it a journey to the Far East or a swim across the CSCSB pool, the Activities Office is a goldmine of valuable information on the diverse events happening this summer.

Prickly Pear Nears Reality

BY GENI KING

For eight years the Prickly Pear has been published and distributed to faculty and students at Cal State. The Pear is the campus literary magazine that contains creative writings selected from the submitted works written by students.

As late as it may seem, there will be an issue distributed this quarter for the 1974-75 term. The Prickly Pear Staff has encountered many obstacles this year regarding publication resulting in a delay.

Last fall A.S.B. cut the Pear out of their budget with the opinion that the previous editions were not moded to majority interest and the Prickly Pear was frankly not good enough. The many different priorities for spending money left the literary magazine out to pasture, however, A.S.B. decided to go ahead and fund the Prickly Pear staff.

Steve Jacobsen the standing editor and Dr. Larry Kramer worked to restore the Pear and were successfull.

There are many obstacles in putting together and publishing a magazine. The entire context of the Prickly Pear relies solely on the students and faculty submissions and as Dr. Kramer, advisor to the Pear stated when asked if they received many submissions, "The staff has always had to dig for them and this partly due to the nature of the school and it gets very frustrating."

Dr. Kramer has been working with the Prickly Pear for six years. He has seen some good issues and some poor issues of the Pear and know the reasons for the inconsistency of the magazine. Getting and keeping a good editor has been one of the more difficult tasks. This is due to the responsibilities of the editor, which include the job of selecting the works that will be published, coordinating the efforts of the staff and having a good sense of design. The weakness has always been in layout, presentation and content.

The constant flow of incoming and out-going students at Cal State makes it difficult to retain the same staff for over year. The change over is constant so every year the staff has to be trained prior to beginning the layout and publication process.

Dr. Kramer has many ideas for improving the Prickly Pear. Starting next fall he is going to try and get funds from a different source so as not to depend on A.S.B. He feels this will create more consistency in the area of budgeting.

Kramer wants to integrate more art into the format which would bring the Art department into the project and possibly help enhance the Prickly Pear.

Kramer stated that he would like to see essay material integrated into the magazine along with the art. He said, "What we need are a couple of very successful issues that would make people enthusiastic about the magazine. It hasn't happened yet...the format has been a turn-off and that is why we wanted the Art Department to share their art with our literature. We want to see a definite change but it is a gradual process that takes times."

Having a literary magazine is an excellent idea but the task involves consistency, co-operation, money and a lot of time and effort.

The Prickly Pear staff is working on improving the magazine and hopefully will achieve their goals.

The Prickly Pear will be out this quarter, take a look at it and see what you think.

Veteran's Administration Moves To Close Loopholes

By Hassell W. Painter

The Vet is in the news again? "Veterans Rip-Off VA" There is talk of congressional investigations; citizens are writing their elected representatives; VA is talking to schools, schools are talking to VA.

The inevitable "tightening-up" has arrived. If you, as a veteran student, want to survive with a minimum of problems from either the school or the VA, then you must be aware of your responsibilities.

The Application procedure: When you apply to the school, it is a good idea to check in with the Veteran Affairs Office. They will aid you in completing your application and will certify you to VA. REMEMBER how many units you tell them you will be taking and if, for any reason, you do not sign up for that number of units, let them know immediately. You are responsible for notification of the V.A.O. if, at any time, the number of units you are taking differs from the number they show you as taking. CHECK BACK. Offices are run by people and people make mistakes. Comes back in a week and ask them to check your file and see how many units they show you as taking.

Meanwhile, the V.A.O. is attempting to check the school master-enrollment files and is comparing the number of units you are taking with the number you gave them. If there is a difference, it will be reported to the VA. This brings up another responsibility of the Vet student. When the school sends you your student assignment card, look at it. Be sure it is correct in every detail. If there is anything out of whack, no matter how slight, go to the records office and get it corrected immediately.

This double-checking is not something that you can do once and forget about. Each quarter you should go through the same procedure: 1) see the VAO, is there any information they need? Is what they have correct? 2) see the records office. Are you registered correctly? Are all of your classes shown? Are all your grades from the previous session recorded?

During the quarter: Are you anticipating a change of address? One, two or more? Everytime a change of any sort goes into VA, your file must be pulled. Everytime your file is pulled a possibility of error is created. If you contemplate more than one move, try to find a stationary address to use. A post office, box, your parent's home, your sister's home, any address that you feel will not be changing anytime soon, where you believe your checks may be sent safely. Also remember, a change of address, of units, of dependents will take at least 45 days to show on your VA check.

The nine-month extension: Who is eligible? There are four points of eligibility and flunking even one will let you out. First, you must be a veteran with an original entitlement of 36 months. This means 36 months under the Vietnam era, also said, a minimum of 24 months of active duty, all of which was completed after 31 Jan. 55. Second, when your 36 months entitlement expires, you must be in an institution of higher learning — college — and pursuing a bachelors degree. Third, you must not have a degree already. This includes being qualified for the degree even if you have not formally received it. Fourthly, you are not allowed to change your program, your degree objective, your major in order to qualify for this extension.

Now that you've seen what the qualifications are, let's look at what they mean, Item 4 in particular. If you change your major at the end of your 36 month entitlement, in order to qualify for the extension, then you are illegal. If the school finds out what you are doing, they will report it to VA and you will be terminated, probably with an overpayment. If, however, you change your major-program before your 36 months is up, then you are legal.

Changes in program is yet another subject you should look at in your survival training. You are allotted two changes of program only. The first change is free, no questions asked. The second, however, normally requires that you receive counseling from the VA before permission is granted. Forget about changing a third time. You must also realize what constitutes a change of program.

Technically, any change qualifies, whether it be a change from On-The-Job-Training to College, from Apprenticeship to Flight, or a change from a major in History to a major in English. In practice, however, it seems to work a little differently. Normally, the school will certify you by degree desired and not by major.

This leaves the vet student some leeway. If, however, your change of major is a change significant to your VA benefits, it will be reported to VA. A change in major at the end of your 36 months is an example of a significant change.

This article constitutes Chapter One in the survival handbook. Later chapters will cover what is needed to change number of dependents whether you have been married once or thrice, how to stretch your entitlement by refusing payment for breaks, what you need when you change schools, and whatever else seems to be important due to changes in procedures and regulations that occur from time to time.

Remember, you should feel responsible for seeing that every move you make under the GI bill is reported promptly and correctly to the VA. You do this by communicating with the school V.A.O. and later checking back. If you have any questions concerning what has been covered or any other subject dealing with VA benefits, please contact me in the Cal State College San Bernardino Student Services Building, Room 183, or by calling (714) 887-4092.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

There are a number of inaccuracies and half truths concerning the recent Ceja-Gallagher runoff election and the Election Committee in your May 20 article about same. I feel that the situation demands codification, the issues being as significant as they undoubtedly are.

First, the Election Committee did at no time officially state a desire to invalidate the results of the election. What is true is this — during the first few days after the runoff, the Committee was subjected to a seemingly endless barrage of hammering and yowling about the 39 unaccounted-for votes. Initially, with no precedent to guide us, the Committee assumed that such a discrepancy must surely be deemed significant. The Committee still firmly assumes that. However, upon perusal and study of the election code, the Committee discovered two things, both of which were salient to the immediate situation. First, there exists no working definition, nor much of any definition at all, for that matter, of what constitutes a legally viable election. Secondly, the Election Committee has no autonomous authority to reach any independent decision regarding election results. The stated power the Committee does have at present affects only campaign procedures; the only manner in which we may deal with the viability of an election is in response to a formal complaint. No formal complaint was received by the Committee.

In addition to this, I might add that the Committee felt compelled to adopt the stance that the election must be considered valid if it could not be demonstrably shown to be illegal. We stuck to the old adage that says one is innocent until proven guilty. In the cumulative face of all these factors, the Committee unanimously supported the results of the Ceja-Gallagher runoff.

I should here note that Mr. Ceja, during both elections, did honestly feel the Election Committee was 'against him.' He was candid enough to discuss his feelings with the entire Committee on a number of occasions, and in much depth with myself. The Committee took every possible step to assuage Mr. Ceja's doubts, to the extent that he was advised to attend the meeting which, as it turned out, verified his mandate in the runoff. Under the circumstances, it is both unfortunate and uncalled for that rumors making suspect the Committee's integrity still abound.

Secondly, the 39 votes have not been accounted for. What has come to light is a highly probable manner in which a comparable number of votes might have gone unmarked on the student master list. The master list as we received it did not contain every student's name, and we were forced to write the missing names in as best we could. This was fine the first time around, but for obvious reasons became a bit more difficult during the runoff. I should note that the same list was used for both elections.

Thus the discrepancy in ballots versus votes cast has not been clarified. Rather, a very likely manner in which such a mistake might occur has been suggested. It is a very critical and probable suggestion, but it still remains just that — a suggestion.

Every student on campus should be aware of these matters. What it points out most forcibly is the complete inadequacy of the election code as it now stands — and it has pointed this out to the pain and disappointment not only of the Election Committee, but to all candidates involved. The repercussions have not yet died down, nor are they likely to in the immediate future. That is as it should be, for the matter is extremely vital to the entire concept of Student Government. The current Election Committee is taking their proposed amendments and additions to the election code before the Senate, in an effort to create the most functionally viable and complete code possible. This is a process which I am certain will be long and arduous — we are, after all, setting precedent for all future students, and as such must be very cautious in our recommendations. You also, as a student, as a voter, and as a potential member of student government should engage in this process.

Sincerely,
Steven Jacobsen,
Chairman,
Elections Committee

Editors Note:

The article did not say the election committee wanted to officially invalidate the election because, as you stated, it was not within your power to do so.

Direct quotes from the new AS president and the Director of Activities stated that the votes were accounted for. A reporter's job is to convey the facts, not interpret them.

It is unfortunate you feel your integrity is under question; the article made no such allusions or implications.

Dear Editor:
Despite rumors to the contrary, I have not slipped into quiet oblivion, locked away in a study cell on the top floor of the library.

Admittedly, I was despondent when I lost the election, but a three week vacation in Barstow with my pet lizard, Ralph, alleviated some of the heartache.

When I returned to my beloved CSCSB I was shocked to see that signs of scandal, corruption and depravity had invaded the campus like a vice squad raid on "Deep Throat".

Doubts about where 39 votes came from, hints that the ballot boxes were stuffed, accusations about favoritism in the election committee, where will it all end?

I, Horace Finkleberg, have seen the light and am prepared to take my rightful position as dictator of the AS. I propose that the first election, the runoff, the candidates and the committee all be declared invalid so I can be placed in supreme power.

My logic is quite simple. Since I didn't receive any votes, there can be no question that the boxes were stuffed in my favor. There can be no argument that friends tried to throw the election, I don't have any friends.

My modus opendi to avoid nefarious and pernicious activity in the future is to discard nominees and campaigns; in fact, abandon the democratic process altogether.

I will dispense with every elected AS office and remain in absolute

Dear Editor

George Wallace, contrary to the article in the Pawprint of April 29th entitled George Wallace... Threat to U.S. Stability, has and continues to make formidable contributions to the American political scene. He is a man who came from a humble background and has risen to become the spokesman for millions of hardworking middle class people. However, in the approaching 1976 election, Wallace will not be the Democratic Party's presidential choice. This is primarily due to his health problems and not the Wallace leadership ability. The presidency of the U.S. is a very taxing job and required a man in excellent physical condition.

The Pawprint article of April 29th (the authors name is not given) states: "Despite his wheelchair, his Southern drawl... Ted Kennedy, he and his gold bricking constituents deserve serious attention as to their potential threat to this country." George Wallace was the standard bearer of disenchanted voters in the 1968 presidential election when he received ten million votes. The author of the Pawprint article presumes to say that a large number of the adult voters in the U.S. are subversive Communist types deserving of serious attention as to their "potential threat to this country". I find this ludicrous. Wallace is an integral part of the American political scene. He represents the views of millions of common people, people who cannot find expression for their political viewpoints within the confines of the Republican or Democratic parties.

Wallace has always presented his views, for better or worse, for all to see. His was the only positive and forceful platform of the three 1968 candidates. Because of this, enemies were made.

In 1970, $400,000 of residual 1968 Nixon campaign funds were used in an attempt to defeat Wallace in the Alabama governor's race. Besides using a large amount of money for this purpose, F.B.I. agents were assigned to uncover anything that would damage Wallace's popularity. He won anyway.

In 1971, Wallace was gaining national popularity and the Committee for the Re-election of the President was getting nervous. They spent $10,000 in an attempt to persuade 140,000 California AIP registrants to change their party affiliation. This would remove Wallace's AIP from the ballot in the 1972 election.

In May, after being ahead of both McGovern and Humphrey in the Democratic primary popular vote, Wallace was gunned down in Maryland.

Sincerely, Steve Somer

My Fellow Southern Californian:

In this period of high unemployment, I take this opportunity to clarify our policies about jobs in the Army. By federal regulation, we accept applications from males (age 17-35) and females (age 18-35) for assured employment periods of three years or longer.

We have vacancies to fill - now, and through the next nine months. Examinations are held five days a week. A pre-screening interview determines your eligibility.

We can delay your entry for up to six months after you qualify and we can guarantee a reservation for you in an Army training school and unit. Plan in advance. We'll hold the job for you.

If you are not saving $180.00 each month as a single Californian, then you should apply today! With starting pay at $344.10, your end-of-month balance can be easily $180.00. That's after you've paid taxes and budgeted for personal items, gifts, laundry, recreation and other moderate life-style requirements. Food, housing, clothing, and medical care are free. At the end of four months, you earn a raise to $383.40. If you enter with a skill in specified hard-to-fill jobs, or with advanced education, we'll start you higher. Or you may qualify for a four-year cash bonus job and get $1500 or $2500 extra, upon completing basic training. Ask to see our pay scales.

If you qualify, and also qualify for admission to one of the many California colleges, participating in Project AHEAD, you can begin your college education while in the Army and finish at your home college when you return to California. Uncle Sam pays 75% of tuition costs for military personnel, and up to $270.00 a month after you leave the Army, with the GI Bill. Ask about Project AHEAD!

It pays to work for your country. You'll get thirty days paid vacation each year and a choice of overseas or U.S. locations. The greatest reward of all is the deep feeling of self-satisfaction that comes with doing an important job.

Veteran's Club Bullitin

.. This week, we have two good pieces of news for the Cal State Veteran. First, one that will really thrill you, the Veterans Club has weathered its first three weeks of existense. Thats right vet fans, your vet club is now three weeks old. I knew you would be excited. Now for the other piece of good news, veterans will be receiving a letter informing them of the change in regulation allowing veterans to receive benefits for the entire summer at Cal State, as long as they went in the spring, attend the second summer session, and return in the fall.

The letter is to let the vet know that these benefits will not be paid automatically, paperwork will have to be submitted to the Regional Office in order to receive it. Additionally, because of the late date of the change, many veterans have already done their paperwork for the veterans administration, and will need to go in to the vets office to change their paperwork if they wish to receive their benefits.

Just a thought on the subject from your club. People wishing to take advantage of the new interpretation to receive benefits for the summer should by all means do so, but be aware also, that the months benefits received will be subtracted from your total entitlement. So decide which is most important to you. Also, read the letter carefully, it is interesting reading, then go into the office and plague the vet rep with all the unanswered questions that you might have. Thats what he is paid for. As for the rest of the week, enjoy it, and if you are interested, drop in at room LC-211 at noon on any Tuesday to say your piece, we would appreciate the company.

Recruiters Are Coming

On campus, Thursday, May 29th, at 11:00 and 1:00 p.m., Room SS-171, will be representatives of Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., to discuss careers in retailing. Edison Brothers owns and operates Leed's Shoes, United Sporting Goods, 5-7-9 Shops and Jeans West. The company was founded 55 years ago by Edison brothers and from there has grown into a chain of over 1,000 stores, and is recognized as the largest retailer of women's shoes in America. Representatives of the company will meet and discuss with students the opportunities of a career with Edison Brothers stores. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Placement Office, Room SS-122 or phone 887-7551.

Veteran's Benefits Will Continue

Thanks to a new interpretation, veteran students attending summer school are now entitled to more money! All currently enrolled veterans who attend the second summer session, and who are going to return in the fall may now receive benefits for the portions of June, July, August and September that they are not in school.

Under the new interpretation, students who have a break between sessions which is not a full calendar month (1st through the 31st of the month) may receive benefits for those times. These benefits will be subtracted from the total entitlement just as if the vet were in school.

Any interested vets should stop by the College Veterans affairs office for the details.

Business Business Sorority News

The Rho Zeta Chi business sorority will hold elections on Wednesday, May 28th, at noon in room LC-211. New members are being sought now so that plans for next year's activities can be formulated.

Rho Zeta Chi was formed last fall to get women who are interested in the working word together; it is open to all majors. The sorority works closely with the business Management Club and the Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity. The faculty and staff of the School of Administration support student organizations and activities fully. They can be counted on to help organize and attend the seminars, hear the speakers from local businesses, get up to bat at the picnics and be there whenever something is going on.

So, if you're curious about what can be done next year, or you have ideas, come to the meeting on the 28th and get in at the planning stage.

Yoga Workshops Held Weekly

Yoga workshops for both advance and beginning Yoga students are held every Wednesday at noon and Fridays at 11:00 a.m. The Wednesday class is orientated toward the beginning student and more advance students are requested to attend the Friday sessions. The Yoga workshops are open to all interested persons and are held in the small gym.

Chicano Lecture Planned

The former director of the Chicano Studies Center at UCLA, Dr. Rudolfo Alvarez, will speak Thursday afternoon, June 5 at Cal State, San Bernardino.

Dr. Alvarez will discuss "The Mexican- American in Sociology" from 3 to 5 p.m. on the fifth floor of the Library Building. The public is invited to the presentation, sponsored by the Sociology Department, the Sociology Club and the Student Assn. of Social Workers.

The sociologist is now the principal investigator for a Spanish-speaking mental health research and development program at UCLA. He was a director of Chicano Studies Center for two years.

Dr. Alvarez has been a research consultant for various federal and private rehabilitation and medical projects.

He has done pre-doctoral research on juvenile delinquency and youth crime as well.

A native of Texas, Alvarez received his A.B. from California State University, San Francisco and his M.A. and Ph.D from the University of Washington. He has taught at UCLA, Wesleyan University in Connecticut, Yale, and the University of Washington.

He has a wide range of involvement in ethnic groups, the Upward Bound program at Yale, professional associations, speaking and writing.

Retired Teachers Aid Loan Fund

A fourth grant of $500 to the student loan fund at Cal State, San Bernardino has been given by the California Retired Teachers Assn.

The CRTA, through Laura E. Settle Fund, also awarded a second $250 scholarship to the college. The latest grant will go to a senior from Concord who will be finishing her elementary and early childhood credentials next year.

The $500 will be added to the college's emergency loan fund to help students meet unexpected, short-term needs, explained Ted Krug, financial aid advisor at Cal State.

The checks were presented to the college by Mrs. Leo Wadley of Rialto, president of the San Bernardino County Division of CRTA, Mrs. Elaine Gibbons of Highland, representing the Laura E. Settle Fund; Mrs. Mary Coon of San Bernardino, incoming chairman of the fund for the county division; Mrs. Glenna Green of San Bernardino, local publicity chairman and Wadley.

Accepting the gifts were Dr. Ronald Petrie, dean of the School of Education; Krug, and Miss Cynthia Esser of Concord, the scholarship recipient.

This year the CRTA presented $10,750 to California state-supported colleges and universities for scholarships and loan funds.
