Riverdale Leads Clean Air Effort Through Use of Alternative Fuels

The City of Riverdale's clean air leadership will be recognized as a Clean Cities community to be spotlighted on September 24th at the Northwestern Region, held at City Hall.

"The Island Empire is experiencing the worst air quality in the nation," said Mayor Ronald O. Lovejoy. "I'm proud of our Clean Cities commitment, because it represents a significant step toward improving our quality of life here in Riverdale through the use of clean fuel technologies."

The City is spearheading the efforts of a 23-member coalition to accelerate the market for clean fuels such as electricity and natural gas, and create publicly accessible fueling stations throughout the nation. The Coalition already has 700 alternative fuel vehicles in service and plans to add another 300 by 1999. Members include the Riverdale County Transportation Commission, the Western Rivers Council of Governments and the Western Municipal Water District.

A key goal of the Coalition is to increase program participation with up to a dozen private sector participants within the first year. Through this partnership, the costs and benefits of acquiring alternative fuel vehicles and installing public fueling facilities will be shared among multiple entities, and the potential to obtain grants from government agencies will be increased. Other benefits include reduced dependence on petroleum based and imported fuel and public education about clean transportation alternatives.

The City's Clean Cities program is a comprehensive strategy to improve air quality by a variety of measures, including cleaning up the local environment and helping reduce air pollution.

What is it about a Saturn that makes people inside it look so good? Is it the seat-resistant polymer bodyside panels and high-gloss paint? The sunroof and alloy wheels? The leather seats? Or is it the knowledge that they got all that styling at such an attractive price?

To ensure the safe and efficient operation of natural gas appliances, The Gas Company offers the following tips:

- Vacuum regularly around the furnace, particularly around the burner compartment, to prevent a build-up of dust and lint.
- Never store items in or on the floor around the appliance that can obstruct airflow.
- Most forced-air units have filters that clean the air before heating and circulating it throughout the home. The filters should be checked regularly and cleaned or replaced if necessary.
- When installing a new or cleaned filter, be sure to properly re-install the front panel door of the furnace so it's flush. Never operate the furnace without the front panel door properly in place because doing so may risk personal injury or death from asphyxiation.
- Check for signs of improper venting, which may include soot around the appliance or moisture on the inside of windows when the appliance is in use. Improperly installed or poorly maintained natural gas appliances may produce carbon monoxide, a toxic gas.

Exposing workers to carbon monoxide can cause nausea, dizziness, other flu-like symptoms, and even death.

"Consumers need to know that carbon monoxide poisoning from a home heating appliance is rare and absolutely preventable through proper maintenance of the appliance," says King.

Customers, with internet capabilities, may contact The Gas Company through electronic mail to request service. The company's e-mail address is "servicing@socalgas.com."

A New Law Makes Church Arson A Hate Crime

AB 51, authored by Assemblymember Kevin Murray of Los Angeles, is designed to restore the sanctity of sanctuaries, thereby assuring that people can worship in a place free from the atrocity of arson. "This law will convey to the public the sense that the church has traditions that burning sacred structures, thereby assuring that people can worship in a place free from the atrocity of arson," said Murray. "People have traditionally sought physical and mental sanctuary in the church. This legislation is designed to restore that sense of sanctity, thereby assuring that people can worship in a place free from the atrocity of arson."

Black found themselves in.

On to a disappointing start and playing beneath men - including their own - post-season projections, the Raiders knew that this game would be the linchpin and the moment they would point to if indeed they tuned around and got heading in the direction of a playoff contender.

After the raiders survived a late Denver charge and hung on for an important win over the previously undefeated Broncos, maybe they have indeed righted a ship that was in danger of sinking out of the playoff picture.

"We never intended to fold up the tent and show in the towel," said Steve Wisniewski, the Raiders' All-Pro offensive guard. "No one on this team had given up. We wanted to push the ball right at them and that's what we did today with Napoleon's (Kaufman) running. The line just tried to control their man and let the guy make his moves the way he saw them.

Starting the moment and trying to get into the game early, running back Napoleon Kaufman took the first play from scrimmage 57-yards and three plays later Jeff George found fatten, 14-yards in the back of the end zone for the touchdown.

The scoring drive took all of 3 minutes and 30 seconds, and lasted only 4 plays - Denver came right back on the legs of John Elway, who gained over 30 yards on the ensuing drive that got the Broncos even at 7-7. Elway guided the team 71 yards in eight plays, using up 4:39. Terrell Davis finished off the drive with a 2-yards run.

The game continued in this vain throughout, as the Raiders would score and the broncos would counter, even taking a 14-17 lead at the start of the third quarter. But, on this day the Raiders found that extra something, and did just enough to come out on the right side of the scoreboard.

It was a crucial second quarter "Kaufman flip to give the Raider the margin of victory to the top right.

"Coach (Joe Bugel) told us we were going to shine to the top today," Kaufman said. "The offensive line was delighted and kicker Trulson found an opportunity to get after people. I just fed off their energy and we got some big plays.

The Raiders behind their jinie bug type Kaufman, who appears ready to step the task and carry the load more. The run of the NFL has to take notice and the Raiders services again.

Laws of New Orleans Come to Cerritos

By Taylor Jordan

Clarisa Fields Fountain andunceled her vocal prowess with the music of New Orleans to the Cerritos Community Performing Arts Center on March 19. The 7 p.m. performance was part of the Cerritos College Department of Fine Arts series and was sponsored by the Cerritos College Foundation.

The former Chicago Bulls basketball player was on hand to celebrate the birthday of his friend, Common, who was born in Chicago.

Common is a multi-hyphenative hip hop producer and rapper who has been active in the music industry since the late 1990s. He has released multiple albums and has been involved in various projects, including music production, acting, and hosting television shows.

Common's birthday is a significant event for him, as it marks the beginning of his musical journey. The performance included a special session featuring some of Common's favorite songs and allowed the audience to celebrate his birthday with him.

The event was held at the Cerritos College Performing Arts Center, which is known for hosting a variety of performances, including concerts, dance performances, and theater shows. The venue is located in the heart of the Cerritos College campus in Norwalk, California.

The performance was a success, with a large crowd attending to hear Common's music and celebrate his birthday. The event was a testament to the power of music to bring people together and to celebrate the achievements of younger artists who have made significant contributions to the music industry.

Arrowhead Credit Union Outreaches To Minority Markets

The Board of Education recognized some 21 media organizations.

Arrowhead Credit Union (ACU) is known for building bridges within its community. This outreach effort stems from the organization’s longstanding philosophy of supporting the community it serves. The credit union understands that the relationship with its members is partly due to its interest in connecting with the community.

One of the components of Arrowhead’s prosperity is based on community involvement. Since the credit union was established in 1949, it has realized this key to success: being a viable and integral partner with the population it represents. ACU looks beyond providing affordable financial services to encompassing the community when it engages in business. It invests its resources to build a partnering foundation and continues its reinvestment efforts to cement the relationships formed. ACU thinks, acts, and plans as an equal partner with the community to communicate it does not operate alone and that the return on its investment is enhancing the quality of life in the Inland Empire.

When it comes to community outreach, ACU does not just participate in a myriad of programs. The credit union makes support and outreach programs to its markets a number one priority. It sponsors the annual Hispanic Chamber Association, a business networking mixer, a number one priority.

The Read to Me public awareness campaign encouraged parents to read to their children for 20 minutes a day. "Time and time again, research has shown that children who are successful readers by the end of the third grade are more successful in future education and career opportunities," said San Bernardino County Superintendent of Schools (SCBSS) Barry Pulliam. "If children aren't successful readers by the end of the third grade, they have much greater risk of failing in school. It's our goal to show parents and families how reading together can have such a positive impact."

The public awareness campaign, which kicked off last October was designed by the Community Coalition, a SCBSS cooperative partnership of involving schools, law enforcement, teacher and classified school employee associations, parents and students.

It’s better to be a father than "just my baby's daddy."

Today, too many babies are born to teen and unwed mothers who have to say that "that's just my baby's daddy."

A child deserves a real father—one who takes an active emotional and financial role in his or her life.

If you’re not ready for the responsibility of raising a child, make responsible choices.
