President welcomes students

To all returning and new students I extend greetings as we begin our 12th academic year. In so doing allow me to make some suggestions.

Take full advantage of the many opportunities available to you. Learn to appreciate and understand your cultural heritage, the society in which you live, and the natural environment with which we must all come to terms.

Pick the brains of an excellent faculty and staff who are ready to help you as you learn and develop during your stay at California State College, San Bernardino. Excellent facilities, a fine library, and many other resources are available for your use.

Don't miss the boat!!

Welcome
John M. Pfau

Child care will be available

Child care will be available, at a low cost, again this year to students at Cal State, San Bernardino.

The college's Child Care Center opened yesterday at the Kendall Elementary School, a short distance from the campus.

The center, serving children from 2 through 12, is open to youngsters of students, staff and faculty at the college. The hours will be 7:45 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday and 7:45 a.m. to 5:15 p.m., Friday.

The curriculum, educational in nature, stresses learning experiences for the children.

The cost for the coming year will be 70 cents an hour. A special rate of $9 a month is available for children enrolled full-time.

A few sliding-scale places are available for children of students who qualify for this state funding. Information on the Child Care Center is available from the Dean of Students Office at Cal State, phone 887-7524.

Parents also may visit the facilities, register their children and talk with the director, Judy Calkins, at the Kendall Center (Room K-1 at Kendall School) during the week of Sept. 13. Since she will be in and out, interested parents should call the Dean of Students office to make an appointment to see her there.

Playboy polls attitude changes

The 1976 "Playboy Student Survey" reveals that although college women are becoming more sexually active, the percentage of male virgins on campus is rising.

In the 1970 "Playboy" survey, 49 percent of female students graduated with more than their brains intact, but by 1976, this figure had dropped to 26 percent.

Yet, in the same period, the percentage of male virgins rose from 18 to 26 percent, (or at least those willing to admit it - Ed.) This party indicates the end of the double standard, observes "Playboy."

Although the poll reveals 29 percent of the women consider simple friendship sufficient grounds for sexual intercourse, most student sexual activity today takes place within fairly monogamous relationships. Fifty-five percent of women and 47 percent of the men questioned had a lifetime total of three or fewer partners.

In spite of the fact that many students look upon college as a kind of sexual testing ground, conservatives need not fear that the increase in campus sexual activity is another sign that our moral fabric is unwinding. A full 60 percent of students disagree strongly with the statement: "I hope to have an open marriage which would include extramarital sex." Another 87 percent disagree strongly with the statement: "I'm not interested in marrying. I hope to have a varied sex life, including a number of affairs."

Students offered some surprise on other issues, too. Although both politicians and the general public are busy denouncing Big Government, students say they want more. Government intervention in almost every area of life, particularly in enforcement of pollution and prevention of pollution, is not a major concern. Seventy percent favor hand-gunn control, and almost half want to restore the death penalty. Students generally favor stricter laws, heavier penalties and mandatory therapy for hard-drug users. (Only marijuana and alcohol escape this prohibition.)

Almost all students (94 percent) support equal economic and political rights for women, while 79 percent oppose any move to restrict women's right to abortion.

In fact, 67 percent of Catholic students questioned oppose the so-called right-to-life amendment. Only 26 percent of those polled were optimistic about the future. Seventy-five percent agree that there has been a shift toward conservatism among students, yet judging from the statistics, most students have a different definition of conservative.

Coming Oct. 5

All veterans and their dependents are invited to attend the "California Cares for Veterans" Opportunity Fair to be held at the San Bernardino Convention Center, 303 North E Street, San Bernardino, Tues., October 5, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and Wednesday, Oct. 6, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The two-day fair has been designed to answer questions of veterans and dependents and to inform them about the many departments and agencies that offers assistance to veterans. Virginia Mae Days, director of the State Department of Veterans Affairs says that "few veterans realize the opportunities open to them through such agencies as the Small Business Administration for obtaining business loans. A representative of SBA will be at the fair."

"Besides the traditional agencies and departments associated with veterans affairs, other departments not normally connected with veterans benefit will be in attendance. Among these will be Social Security to explain a cost-of-living increase as it relates to pensions, and voter registration personnel will provide voter registration assistance."

Representatives of the State and Federal legislative offices have been invited to attend to hear what the veterans have to say about their needs. Assistance will be available for the ex-offender veteran or the veteran who needs a "bad conduct" discharge upgraded," Days said.

She emphasized that the fair is designed for the veterans of every era. "Every veteran from the Spanish-American War through the Vietnam War has rights and benefits guaranteed by the State and Federal government," she said. "Veterans recently discharged have difficulty readjusting to civilian life. As veterans become older, needs change in regard to medical attention, compensation and pension, employment, education and many others. If the veteran becomes disabled or dies the veteran's dependant may become eligible for a number of benefits. Whatever the problem is, their question will be fully reviewed at the fair by competent representatives," she concluded.

Pawprint wants your body!

We need all the bodies we can get our hands on — for journalistic purposes. We need people who can write newsstories, opinion articles, satires, reviews, and who can sell advertising. This paper is you, the result of a one-man operation. It should be a sufficient indication of the help that is needed. People joining the staff will get a free subscription to The Weekly Pawprint, Sept. 21, 1976.

The construction of the new Fine Arts Building, Student Health Center, and most important of all the Student Union Building are all under various stages of construction. This year's activities we hope will be an improvement over previous years. In addition to our regular Student Services, A.S.B., is planning on initiating an Evening Services for our night population. We as elected officers have a responsibility to keep you, your elected officers aware of your likes and dislikes. I look forward to an exciting year, a year hopefully filled with your comments, suggestions, and criticisms.

New B.A. offered

The B.A. in Human Services, being introduced at Cal State, San Bernardino this fall, is an interdisciplinary degree program for the career-oriented paraprofessional person.

It is designed for students who plan careers in one of the human services professions such as social welfare, corrections, probation, parole or gerontology and for individuals already employed as paraprofessionals in one of these fields.

Full approval was received this summer by Cal State, San Bernardino for the offering of a designated subjects credential for vocational teachers.

The college is the third body in California to be fully authorized by the California Commission for Teacher Preparation and Licensing to prepare teachers for the designated subjects credential under the Ryan Act. (The other two are UCLA and Mendocino County School District.)

The college also offers a Bachelor of Vocational Education degree, which was introduced last year. "The mushrooming program already has at least 100 students working on a degree or a credential," said Dr. Joseph Yabu, program coordinator.

The Cal State credential program prepares vocational teachers for grades kindergarten through 12 in eight subject areas: adult education, agricultural education, business and office education, distributive education, health education, home economics education, technical education, and trade and industrial education.

Through the college's extension office, Dr. Yabu is taking applications for the education program in the Coachella Valley. All course work for credit is offered in the late-day or evening to enable individuals to earn their credential without missing work. The requirements for the credential are a minimum of 15 quarter units of credit plus possible prescribed courses to reach the desired level of competency according to Dr. Yabu. The applicant also must have five years of work experience.

The candidate for the credential would have no problem in doing the course work in one academic year, Dr. Yabu said. This fall quarter, for example, he is teaching two courses. "Methods and Principles for Teaching Designated Subjects" will be given from 6 to 9:50 p.m., Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, during the same time span, he will teach the advanced methods course.

A student could possibly enroll in both courses for fall quarter, if he consults first with Dr. Yabu. An appointment may be made through the School of Education office, phone 887-7171.

Students go abroad

Your Cal State, San Bernardino students have been selected for study abroad this academic year under the International Programs of the California State University System and Colleges.

Raul Ceja of Coahehass and John Tarpai of Riverside will study sociology at the University of Uppsala in Sweden. Helen LaPointe, Rialto, and Thomas Randolph of Chicago will spend the school year studying French at the University of Aix-en-Provence in Marseilles.

Ceja and Randolph this year resided in Serrano Village, Cal State's on-campus residence halls. The strong desire and the ability to be introduced to a different culture were major factors in selecting them, said Dr. Mireille Rydell, French professor, and International Programs representative for the college.

When the students arrive at the European universities, they will be given six weeks of intensive language study. Their study abroad will apply toward their Cal State degrees or offers a political science major. Miss LaPointe's field is French. Randolph has declared English as his major and Tarpai is a graduate student.

Early childhood teaching program offered

Cal State, San Bernardino is offering two programs in early childhood education this fall. The first is a new early childhood option to the multiple subjects credential it will qualify the individual to teach pre-school through sixth grade, explained Dr. Florence Mote, program coordinator.

Teachers already holding at least a multiple subjects credential with the early childhood option, or who wish to pursue a degree in education, are invited to apply for admission to the program. The deadline for applications is Oct. 1.

The School of Education office and the college should contact the admissions office to determine the student's eligibility for the program.

The second program is a specialist credential in early childhood education. This is a graduate program for persons who already hold a valid basic teaching credential. The program prepares teachers interested in becoming directors of early childhood programs or who wish to help their college in working with young people.

Courses are from a range of disciplines including psychology, education, human development, and foreign languages.

The extension course offered this fall, on Wednesday evenings starting Oct. 6, is "Assertive Behavior," a psychology course which helps individuals learn how to say "no" and feel comfortable in the situations that require it. The course will be taught by Dr. Gloria Cowan, associate professor of psychology.

The extension course is 12 units, 10 units are course work and 2 units of supervised practice. The courses are open to all students, including those who are not regular students of the college.

The extension course will be held on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. at the college.

The extension course is open to all students, including those who are not regular students of the college.

For more information, please contact the Office of Continuing Education, 800-294-0001.
