Dear Diary,

I am just finishing up my first semester as a transfer student at csusb. Adjusting to all the new rules and teaching environment has been quite rough. This year has been crazy because we are in a pandemic that's killing many people including my loved ones. This virus is really scary and to be honest I am unsure life will ever go back to "normal"! This all sucks especially since all my teachers have no clue what they are doing. I get they are transitioning too, but I feel like school should've been cancelled or something so they can get their stuff together. They are trained to teach in a classroom not online. I absolutely hated how some of my teachers tried bringing the classroom to my room.. we are all grown and should be able to handle an online school setting with no zoom. That's how things should've been. All these group projects my professors are trying to make us do, are simply trash. It is hard enough to try and get major projects done on my own, so when we have to gather as a group of 6 virtually to create projects is an F just waiting to happen. Not everyone had the same schedules so trying to meet to get any type of work done is hard. I don't think professors should be giving out group projects. Times are different now and they need to learn how to adjust. And so do we but this is our education we are paying for to start our lives... their lives are already set. Anyways, this semester sucked and I paid full tuition for complete trash. Tuition should be dropped because tuition includes all kinds of resources we cannot utilize because of covid. Finals are this week and I am stressing because I have dumb group projects to do and need to study on top of all that. This semester was a joke and I honestly feel like I am not learning or getting what I paid for from csusb. So diary thanks so much for being the one thing I could rely on this year to let me vent all my anger and stress about this crazy covid semester. Let's hope next semester is better even though it is online too.
