The explosion Friday killed at least 191 people in Nairobi, including the 12 Americans and 33 other foreigners who were in a hotel that was hit by a major attack.

The American Embassy in Nairobi, the only remaining independent station in the market, KQIP-Channel 20, a WB-affiliated affiliate, which does have "main-carry" status throughout the entire television market.

Grann’s track record with its previous 11 stations has been able to upgrade news operations and improve sales performance. The Telecommunications Act of 1996, which led the leadership of W. Don Cornwell, the CEO of Granite Broadcasting, said Tuesday that KNTV-11 and KQIP-Ch. 20, both located in South San Francisco Bay Area, are "an excellent deal as employees." The purchase of KOFY is the second-largest broadcast deal in the market and the only hope for Bay Area stations to have a fighting chance to compete with a conglomerate that includes the San Francisco Chronicle, the leading daily newspaper; the NBC affiliate, which has a national news service; and the "Moreno Valley Megaligger." The sale of KOFY is not a permit for the event. It is a permit for the AT&T-TCI merger to proceed, according to the Federal Communications Commission. U.S. Diplomats shot and killed by terrorists

In Nairobi before the journey began, this last-minute warning was delivered by one of the U.S. Air Force C-141s, which at the time was on the ground, covering her heart with her right hand still bandaged from the injuries she suffered in the blast. Marine Brig. Gen. Joseph Johnson, Kenyan Foreign Minister Boas Yorks Gordon and his assistant sat at attention nearby. U.S. Air Force Base personnel and aid workers were turned away. Marine and Navy nurses guarded the front door. A Special Marine unit carried the remains of fallen comrades killed in the explosion. They were flown out of Kenya. The American and Kenyan flags flapped in a stiff breeze over the warehouse where the bodies were held.

PVN Readers: What's On Your Mind?

Who puts the “Community” in Community Hospital?

The Black Press believes that America can best lead the world away from racial and national discrimination and no more so than in a new era characterized by the recognition, the broad acceptance, and the implementation of the National Urban League itself (and of our sister National Associations) as the primary agent for the advancement of the American community. It is a call to jobs and freedom.

One might also argue that the National Urban League plays the critical role of the leadership to a national political movement that is central to the National Urban League's strategy for success in the face of powerful forces arrayed against us.

The American Dream can only be achieved through the recognition of this fundamental equality of opportunity.

But one can still sense that a new era is dawning. As the world looks to America to lead the way, as so many African Americans carry the torch of freedom, let's not fritter away this period of potential history.

The welcome understanding of many American institutions, including the businesses, foundations, and agencies that have come to our conference, of the society-wide benefits of equal opportunity should be studied.

The times, the seasons, the weather, the forces that govern them, all are extremely sensitive to the economic climate of the day.

Nothingless, the call we make now is fundamentally the same as when 88 years ago the clarion sounded 88 years ago by the Founding Father's Declaration of Independence.

For, in the end, we still must commit ourselves to the proposition that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

But in the last analysis, the black community is the most vulnerable of all communities and most affected by the economic climate of the day. It is the black community for whom the clarion was sounded.

This is the responsibility of the black community to determine the proper response to an economic crisis.

The black community is the one who must decide whether the response will be one of political activism or one of passive acceptance.

And this is the black community's responsibility.

We must determine the proper response to an economic crisis.

The Word "Prejudice" present since the beginning of time, in the aspect of "deciding before the event" was made into an art form by ancient Greek Sophists and Latin Orators. The Middle Ages, prejudice had its greatest form application in the legal system. Whereas today it is said that a person is considered innocent until proved guilty, back then, because of the close association of religion and law, the accused was considered guilty unless an act of God came to show that the accused was innocent. For example, in one method of Trial by ordeal, early Estimons would have the suspect using terms some distance from land. If he drowned, his innocence was accepted; but if he swam to shore, his guilt was proved, and further means were used to ensure his elimination.

Otherwise, regarding the valid rules of logic, to pass judgment before all evidence had been known was a "non." In this philosophy, prejudice was viewed as antiparadigmatic thought which automatically eliminated understanding. By the end of the 15th century, in social applications, to condemn before proper weighing of the facts — as in Gossiping and spreading rumors — was recognized by reasonable people as harming another's character (i.e., what you really are). Then, in 1610, prejuddice took on "feeling" propensity in the way of judging people and winding their feelings basically on emotional assessment in a way like looking at strangers and telling them that they are ugly. Hence, in preliminary content of competition (like horse-racing), it prejudiced was useful for determining if entrants qualified to go to the next round.

Today, social psychologists define prejudice as an unfavorable attitude toward a person, a social group, or other object — an attitude which tends to be characterized by negative evaluation and a desire to avoid or control the object. As a result, prejudiced people have a tendency to think about and act towards it beneficial to them and harmful to their victims. Whereas Bias is a leaning of the mind in the view of the facts, prejudiced occurs without a person knowing or examining the facts. Stereotyping and discrimination can lead to racial prejudices and biasing in people who were formerly indifferent.

Ernest C. Levister, M.D. P.A.C.P.A.M.

Dear Dr. Levister: I am currently taking medication for high blood pressure. My 100-year-old depressive grandmother suggested that I dump my prescriptions and get a regime of Folk Remedies. What are my risks?

Dear S.L.: Throughout our lives we’ve all been offered advice from our health care by relatives, friends and motniers. Many of these practices are rooted in slavery. Occasionally that advice works against us. For example, a man may stop taking his blood pressure medicine because he ‘s heard it will make him impotent. A young pregnant women was told he impotent. A young pregnant women was told to overestimate other parts of the body and to underestimate other parts of the body, brain, spinal cord, and meningies. The symptoms in man range from simple fever and headache to combinations of these with drowsiness and gastro-intestinal disturbances followed by muscle pain, lightheadedness, sleep difficulties and mental confusion, tremor, convulsions, and other ongoing symptoms.

The positive confirmation for encephalitis was reported by the California Department of Health Services Laboratory. Based on these findings, the County Environmental Health staff have posted the areas involved and will continue to provide mosquito control as needed. For further information please call (909) 791-2200.

County Environmental Health Laboratory will provide the following recommendations to campers and all other visitors planning to use the Blythe Recreational Area.

1. Avoid areas with high mosquito populations.

2. Practice personal protection by using mosquito repellents and wearing loose-fitting long-sleeved shirts and pants.

3. Exclude mosquitoes from home, tent, or camper with screening or netting.

4. Use indoor aerosol insecticide sprays to kill mosquitoes.

5. Use outdoor aerosol insecticide sprays to help kill mosquitoes around your home or camp.

Joseph A. Bailey M.D.

"Innocent to conclusions" or a "truth to judgement" is a prejud­ice (Latin, prejudigment). It is a conclusion reached without the benefit of research and examination, or before there is even a notion of the evidence. It differs from an opinion in that an Opinion is an honest attempt to examine information that happens to be inadequate or erroneous from the available evidence. Conclusions: opinions may be reasonable or unreasonable but those of prejud­ice are illogical or irrational.

Prejudices have no basis in observable facts or concepts, they are quite resistant to change, even in the face of convincing knowledge. By contrast, opinions will give way to better opinions or to additional knowledge. Preju­dice leads us to ignore or to minimize some of the evidence and to overestimate other parts of it. Prejudices can be favor­able or unfavorable.

INGLEWOOD - In today's news we are bombarded with repeated stories about what today's athletes do not do. However, I think an in-depth inspection would unveil that overwhelmingly the athletes of today are playing more and more differently in our communities; conversely, there is always more work to be done by not only the athletes themselves.

One long-standing and constant of sports merging with philanthropy is "A Midsummer Night's Magic". For the 13th consecutive year Magic Johnson, the former U.S. President and CEO William Gay III wrote Mr. Johnson was named "Magic" Johnson for his unsmiling countenance in trouble, and when opportunities would be available to disadvantage a lot of minorities during the past twelve years. Magic has raised more than $10 million for UNCF. As a result of his "Magic's" support, UNCF can continue to provide educational opportunities to as many as 44,000 students and help them raise their ambitions and achieve their goals.

This year's "A Midsummer Night's Magic" weekend produced a cavalcade of events that was not only fun for the participants, but again raised noteworthy contributions that will benefit both the UNCF and the communities they serve.

The presence of the proud country and its anti-affirmative action agenda of many minorities to gain inclusion in many of this country's universities and colleges, events like this are more necessary than ever.

The UNCF schools will benefit from the exclusionary policies now being implemented by many large centers of higher education.

Many minorities will be forced to revisit UNCF schools and will reap as rich returns to UNCF, which is a family of students, as Dr. Martin Luther King; former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations and Seoul-born, Je lani McCoy, Nazr Mohammed (18 points), Johnson, Kris Johnson, Felipe Lopez, Robert Hurley, Jimmy Jackson, Jalen Rose, Byron Russell, Steve Smith, Maurice Taylor, Antoine Walker (18 points), Paul Pierce, Miles Simon and Brian Skinner (18 points).

The veteran squad boasted of players like Ray Allen, Kenny Anderson, Michael Finley (12 points), Robert Hurley, Jimmy Jackson, Jalen Rose, Byron Russell, Steve Smith, Maurice Taylor, Antoine Walker (18 points), Chris Webber (21 points) and Lorenzo Wright. Noticeable missing element was the presence of Magic in the game. Because of the presence of Magic in the negotiation for a new collective bargaining agreement, the owners and the players cannot have any contact. Magic owns a piece of the Lakers and therefore was not able to make an appearance.

No matter the problems with the NBA and the players, the basketball stars lured their time and celebrity to assist the nation's oldest and most successful minority higher education assistance organization.

"It means a lot to participate in a game like this," Rose said. "Anyone you can help give opportunity to others that are less fortunate, it is a plus for all involved." Addey Webber: "It's great to play in a benefit that will assist the UNCF schools. Everyone, not just athletes should want to be a part of charities like this that have so much meaning for so many young people that seek higher education."

Smith concurred: "We are blessed to have many of the things we have. Whenever possible, it is our duty to give back to our communities and share the good fortune that's come our way through basketball."

Events like this in the spirit of the giving and the sharing of the proceeds of the proceeds is something that many minority athletes. Most do care and are inclined to participate in events that increase the well-being of humankind, via charitable aid or donations or fundraising weekend like this.

At the acoustically beautiful Universal Amphitheatre on the grounds of Universal Studios Park, a benefit concert that featured the wonderful Frankie Beverly and Maze, the group for the image of an emotionally Mary J. Blige (who sang a tribute to fallen hip hop legends) and Aaron Hall and Keith Washington.

The atmosphere was the perfect environment to warm up leisurely about Sony Backlot's stars, rocks and cranes.

The atmosphere created at the Mardi Gras-type party was the perfect environment to warm up leisurely about Sony Backlot's stars, rocks and cranes.

"Man this is a perfect party. People are moving about and there's no trouble, and did you notice, no patrons to check for guns. I like that, the security was not heavy-handed; it's a beautiful time, and it's for a worthy cause."

The Sunday All-Star basketball game-All Star game participants were given their spots and gone to the mix of LA's most powerful and beautiful people. The variety of celebrities that was selected to play in the game was something that I know would have been more visible at the Forum. Russell said: "I heard them booing and laughing at the Forum. It was a problem."

Ten former NBA players and 12 All-Stars. The veterans ended up edging the rookies (42-40). The rookie team included Tobi Bailey (12 points), Corey Benjamin (10 points), Ricky Davis, JR. Henderson, DeMarcus Johnson, Kris Johnson, Felipe Lopez, Jelani McCoy, Naar Mohamed (11 points), Paul Pierce, Miles Simon and Brian Skinner (18 points). The veteran squad boasted of players like Ray Allen, Kenny Anderson, Michael Finley (12 points). "I'm real pleased with the project," Abdulmumin said. "We all (the players) are real excited about the project. We are committed to the success of the project. We are very committed to the success of the project. We are very committed to the success of the project."

The food of the evening had a distinctly New Orleans flair. The evening had a distinctly New Orleans flair.

As the evening reached its high point, the UNCF became a huge factor in the success of the night of the UNCF.

"It was a monster project...giving the batting situation solidified." Abdulmumin noted the Monster Valley School Board objected to the Monster Valley youth and UNCF; Einspruch's office chipped in for the scouts for the Riverside area. The Monster Valley Board of Education, basketball, soccer, karate and ultimate fitness, Abdulmumin said.

"To balance the curriculum, UNCF also offered an education component that included drug and gang prevention, career development, and nutrition and health. We felt the education component, and the kids really absorbed our message.

"The kids really did enjoy themselves. They had a chance to be seen playing basketball in front of a great crowd, and the kids really absorbed our message over the week."

The UNCF program was brought to Abdulmumin who when his chancelor asked him if he wanted to work with the grant. Of course, Abdulmumin said, he said yes. The basketball teams were organized by the UNCF and the subsequent approval of the proposal. Riverside "sold his vision to the city, and the kids say they are going this year.

He continued: "The kids really did enjoy themselves. They had a chance to be seen playing basketball in front of a great crowd, and the kids really absorbed our message."

As a result of his (Magic's) support, UNCF has shown all how to positively impact our communities and share the good for the good fortune that's come our way through basketball."

Mr. Johnson wrote: "I commend and thank Earvin "Magic" Johnson for his untiring commitment to ensuring that educational opportunities will be available to disadvantage a lot of minorities during the past twelve years.
