Evans' letter stirs controversy

The following is a letter from Dr. Anthony Evans, President of CSUSB, addressed to the Chancellor of the CSU system. This letter has created some disturbances among minority students, who feel that Evans has, at least, written them off. I have not come to the situation with good intentions in the first place.

The Coyote Chronicle learned of the letter through a copy of it which has been distributed here on campus, and which had been published in The Black Voice News, a newsletter circulated locally. That publication interviewed Dr. Evans and he insists the letter shows only his concern, not biases. Evans said he has not spoken to the Chronicle. We print the letter as directly transmitted from a copy obtained through the President's office, and ask our readers to make their own judgements concerning its content. We welcome any responses.

June 30, 1986

Dear Chancellor Reynolds:

As requested, I have transmitted under separate cover the proposed new Educational Equity Plan for our campus. I will not discuss the details of that plan in this communication other than to say that it continues the ongoing process on our campus to improve significantly our service to underrepresented students. To be sure, it reflects a university-wide priority about which we feel very deeply.

I wish to share with you, as a matter of record, my concerns about the difficulty of the task before us. While the opportunities for service to underrepresented minorities are enormous, we must not minimize the practical difficulties in this area. My own appreciation of these difficulties grows almost daily. Despite growing legislative pressures for quick improvements, I fear that short-term gains will be minimal, at best. Just to prevent further erosion may be as much as we can expect initially. The prospects for long-term improvements are somewhat better, in my judgement, only because of the new standards for The University System of California.

Permit me to explain briefly why I feel such increasing impotence in this area. Worsening social problems affecting Blacks and Hispanics, of which you are as well informed as I, are the primary basis for my concern. I am confident about improving instruction and educational support services at CSU institutions, but I am not about changing present social conditions in any significant way. Our own campus' early intervention efforts with underrepresented minorities, which I find impressive and encouraging, are dwarfed by the increasing social and economic problems of our region. I see no quick changes in these conditions--in fact, they will probably grow more serious--or effective antidote.

I make this point, not because it is unknown to you, but only to urge caution against our promising too much too quickly. In the past, American higher education has sometimes promised too much in social areas and also has acquiesced to ever-increasing societal expectations. While I am a reformer at heart, I keep reminding myself that the business of education is education. We educators alone just cannot reform American society, or even California.

The second reason why I doubt that we will see in the near future a major turnaround in our educational equity efforts is that educators can only facilitate learning and student educational advancement. I have concluded that one of the important reasons why our current educational equity programs have not achieved our expectations is that we have not succeeded in making underrepresented students more independent learners. To the contrary, I believe that we have actually nurtured student dependence. Our own experience at CSUSB is replete with examples of this particular problem. We have so much to do in retraining our staffs in this area, and even if we are successful, I am not sure just how many underrepresented students are ready, emotionally and intellectually, for a university experience. In short, there are natural impediments over which we educators have limited control.

I have commented in writing to Dr. Carter that one of the major omissions of the EEAC Report was our failure to address this issue. We educators must become more adept in providing motivation, instruction, and educational support services, but the primary responsibility for student persistence must reside with the student. We can influence student behavior, but we cannot control it. Our legislators must understand this.

A final reason why I am less optimistic about making any immediate gains among underrepresented minorities is the enormous prescription associated with our current educational equity programs. It cannot be overlooked that the number of constraints under which we operate: separate target populations, separate program requests, separate budget allocations, separate student recruiting and counselling, separate tracking systems, separate reporting systems, and separate staff. This long history of separateness works against efforts to achieve meaningful integration of fundamental improvements.

You have heard all of this before, but I want to impress upon you how much worse it is in practice than what you might have been told. Only a modern day Gulliver could appreciate the number of strings that bind us in these program areas.

Moreover, far too many existing educational equity staff members are wedded to separateness and oppose, sometimes quite vehemently, programmatic integration. This is lamentable, especially when changes which the EEAC
There are many contemporary intentional propagations of exaggerated facts and misinformation deceptively disguised as truth with the intended purpose of manipulating public opinion toward a desired direction. One example surfaced recently in a memo released by one of Reagan's under-chef staff members in which it was ordered that the press be supplied with false information about Moscow's Kluegley with the intent of further incensing an already aroused negative public opinion (probably for the purpose of further justifying this country's bombing of Tripoli); rather than pouring gasoline on a raging fire to create a smokescreen for other activities.

Another recent instance of public misinformation was brought forth in a letter published in this paper (October 1). While the intent of preserving mental health may be as honourable as Reagan's to protect us from terrorism, the perpetual labeling of illegal substances as necessarily harmful is a popularly endorsed untruth fabricated to support a particular perception of morbidity. In particular, the misleading reference to marijuana as “harmful” and “causing the birth of deformed babies” is a form of pure conjecture (as defined: the expression of an opinion without sufficient evidence for proof) in vogue among many publicly-noted figures whose opinions vastly outnumber their facts and who would also warn us of the dangers to society in certain forms of music, books, movies, and ideas. Such a diet of facts should not be unquestionably swallowed whole.

In March 1975, Consumer Reports magazine published a survey of marijuana studies that had been done up to that time. The most negative, fear-inducing and often ill-founded studies were sponsored and published by (and used to justify the policies of) the federal government. The Consumer Reports survey also noted a study carried out by the National Institute of Mental Health. This study centered in Jamaica where the daily use of ganja (marijuana) has been encouraged among certain groups for generations. This study of the effects of long term marijuana consumption found no substantial differences, in health of body or mind, between users and non-users. Three years after its completion this study was still unpublished in this country (and may still be withheld from publication, I haven't had time to check).

There is a definite distinction between harmful and abusive consumption of any consciousness altering substance. The epidemic abuse of drugs is a symptom of deep underlying disease in the American political attitude. The attempt to eradicate drug abuse alone without dealing with the causes inherent in our culture is like burning out a chasm more as a means of curing typhoid. There are many different motivations leading to substance abuse, from recreational to anesthetic to the drive for success. Fierce competition in certain groups induces the use of substances that would enhance one's efficiency as a competitor. This is not only only demonstrated by steroid use among athletes, but also amphetamine and cocaine use among college students (especially medical students) where long hours of alert attentiveness may be chemically induced in order to put one at the head of the class. Sharp and ambitious little group of competitors. Continued use of such substances cannot persist for very long before physical debilitation renders the opposite of the desired effect, but habits used to attain success may be even harder to break than patterns of failure.

The use of consciousness-altering drugs is like that of fire: it can enhance creativity and awareness if used productively, or it is a means of self-destruction when abused. This metaphor occurred to me nearly twenty years ago when I first began using marijuana and LSD. Though I still enjoy and respect the expanded perceptions attained through some experiences, I would so encourage a person to use drugs than I would recommend that they abstain. This choice is a matter of personal decision. I have known hundreds of marijuana smokers (staff included) who have become parents of perfectly healthy children. The spreading of misinformation about drugs with the intent of reducing their abuse only has the opposite effect. When I first realized I'd been lied to about marijuana I felt compelled to experience and uncover further pernicious distortions and to seek the truth behind the rest of the fog of society's indoctrination, it an ongoing, never-ending process. Lies are what is killing this country from the inside. It's better to remain silent than to fabricate falseness from fact.

In light of the recently collapsed summit meeting, at which neither Reagan nor Gorbachev was able to give a little in the name of world peace or humanity, we here at The Chronicle have put together a 'top ten' list of things to do in case of nuclear attack. We note cheerfully that this list was constructed after grueling interrogations of a group of local ground squirrels.

TOP TEN

1. Pay off all those overdue debts.
2. Wear clean underwear (and try to keep it that way).
3. Have sex (sorry ladies, no time for foreplay).
4. Stick your head in a toilet so that your face doesn't melt off.
6. Learn to bech.
7. Try LSD.
8. Burrow two feet into the dirt and pretend you're a potato.
9. Request a blindfold, hang yourself with it.
10. Be glad you're not suffering a more gruesome or ridiculous death. (Say, being ground up in the jaws of a wheat harvester).

President Reagan arrived late Sunday night from summit meetings with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Reykjavik, Iceland. He arrived home with a grim face and nothing to show.

The meetings concluded in a stalemate. Although at one point it seemed as though there might be some agreement on the issue of nuclear arms, it never quite came together.

The argument of whether or not to continue Star Wars was the main problem. While Reagan said that he would not allow Star Wars to protect the U.S., Gorbachev insisted that research be confined to the ground. Gorbachev wanted 10-year ban on developing, testing and deploying Star Wars. He wanted an all or nothing agreement so Reagan chose nothing.

There were two days of very tough and hard meetings with an overtime meeting on Sunday. But according to Secretary of State George Shultz, the talks were very straightforward and civilised.

Supposedly, this summit was to prepare for a full scale summit in the U.S. later on. The chances of that happening now are not very probable. In fact, Gorbachev stopped short of calling the summit a complete and total failure.

Operation Gold-coast headlines merger try

"Operation Gold-coast is underway. That is what First Interstate, the ninth-largest banking company in the U.S., is calling their strategy for merging with Bank of America. A four-page letter sent by President macomber of First Interstate to America's board was a merged offer worth about 2.8 billion dollars. The letter stated that if the merger does not happen, First Interstate would BankAmerica (the parent of Bank of America) retain it's name and San Francisco headquarters, but also that the current boards of both banks would be combined.

First Interstate also said they would put BankAmerica in the climb toward interstate banking.

First Interstate requested that Bank of America not disclose the information contained in the letter while negotiations were underway, yet the letter was released on October 6. Sources say that could be an indication of a refusal of the letter.

Officials met on October 5 in New York to discuss questions dealing with cost savings, BankAmerica assets, protection of BankAmerica shareholders and projected earnings for the two banks both separately and together.

Drop deadline set: Critical date is October 15th

By Vida Mahbomor

Who ever thought that changing a course was an easy job? I mean if you are new at Cal State or are a transfer student, you would probably not have any idea of how to go about adding or dropping a course, and those who have had the experience of adding or dropping would say that it is a long and timeconsuming process. In order for those who wish to have a change to go through the same task, here are some helpful tips on adding or dropping classes.

Students who are currently enrolled in a class which they wish to drop should do so as soon as possible. At Cal State any course that needs to be changed or dropped has to be taken care of by October 15th. If students miss the deadline they will receive a grade of "U", an unauthorized withdrawal, which shows up on school records. Of course, there are exceptions in any case.

Students who have a doctor's excuse or any other official reason for not being able to drop by the 15th are allowed to drop after the deadline. The program change forms are available at Admissions and Records, and for students who attended classes they are available at the Office of the Dean of Students.

Presidents to meet with students

University President Anthony Evans and Associated Students President, Penni Overstreet, will meet on Thursday, October 16 with as many students as possible to discuss current campus issues. The forum will take place from 12:30 to 1:45 in the Student Union Lounge. All students are invited to stop by and pull up a chair.

The presidents will answer questions, ask a few of their own, and respond to comments. One of the objectives of the forum is for students--who may never have had the chance otherwise--to meet the presidents and explore issues that need to be changed or dropped.

Earthquake leaves 970 dead in El Salvador

El Salvador earthquake on Friday the 10th has left 970 people dead as of Monday night. The death toll is still expected to climb due to the number of injured and two hundred thousand are homeless.

Relief efforts started almost immediately with medical supplies being shipped along with doctors and nurses.

Collection plates are being passed around in many churches here to help.

Monday morning a big aftershock occurred.

Gay and Lesbian Union to meet

The next meeting of the Gay and Lesbian Union will be held this Wednesday, October 22 from noon - 1:00 p.m. in Student Services 171. We will discuss program plans for the fall quarter. Students, faculty and staff are encouraged to attend.

For more information, contact Patrick Lewis, at (714) 888-5846.

Young Democrats to meet

The "CSUSB Young Democrats Club" will hold its first meeting October 17, from 1pm-2pm, in the Senate Chambers, in the Student Union. It's advisor is Professor of Political Science, Carol F. Goos. The "Y.D.S." function is to increase student awareness and participation in the political process, thus, all students, regardless of political affiliation, are encouraged to join.

Preparations are now being made, with cooperation from the San Bernardino Democratic Party Headquarters, at allowing club members to help man the H.Q. on Election Day, November 4. Car pooling for those needing transportation will be discussed at the October 17 meeting.

Officers for the 1986-'87 school year will be chosen at the next meeting, time and place to be announced later.

For more information, contact Patrick Lewis, at (714) 888-5846.

MECHA plans for new year

The M.E.C.H.A. organization has set each meeting to take place on Wednesday, October 15th from noon - 1:00 p.m. in Senate Chambers, as their meeting place to plan upcoming events for the 86-87 school term. We invite all interested students to join the organization that was voted "CLUB OF THE YEAR" last year, and to contribute your input and talents in making it another outstanding school year. A highlight for the upcoming year is "Dance is currently in the planning stages and your participation in this event will make it a wonderful time of fun and dance. We look forward to hear your suggestions and ideas for other social and community activities along with our annual Cinco DeMayo and Scholarship Banquet. See you at the meeting!"
Debate: See-saw strikes elusive balance

G. Gordon Liddy debated Dr. Hatem Hussaini on Monday Oct. 6th before a standing room only crowd of over 600 students and community members. The debate, which was moderated by Dr. Bulgarella in the Commons, was centered on the topic of terrorism—how to define it and how to end it. The event was sponsored by the A.S. Special Events Committee and was co-sponsored by the CSU Intellectual Life Committee.

Dr. Hussaini opened the debate by providing an historical perspective on the nature of terrorism, citing incidents from as far back as Roman persecution of the Jews to as recent as the massacre at Mai Lai. He defined terrorism as being, essentially, the killing of innocent civilians, adding that there is also psychological terrorism, as in cases where governments stiff opposition with the threat of torture and jail.

"I'm sorry to say that throughout history every nation... has committed acts of terrorism," he said. Hussaini's position is that there is no justification for killing innocent civilians, that it is an act which originates in desperation and culminates in the loss of respect for human life. The solution, he contends, is not to go out and bomb known terrorist bases—this, in itself, is an act of terrorism, he said, and it can only lead to a 'cycle of vengeance and bloodshed where innocent people pay the price."

Dr. Hussaini outlined what he suggests is the best way to deal with terrorists: An increase of security at airports world-wide; a consistent policy which each nation must adhere to—a policy which deals with the roots of terrorism (which Hussaini insists is a political problem); a strengthening of international law; a universally accepted educational program, which would foster respect for human life; a process by which known terrorists can be brought to trial and, through due process, punished in accordance with the crime they have committed.

Dr. Hussaini's primary assertion was that any act which results in the death of 'innocent civilians' is an act of terrorism—be it an act of war, political insurrection, or even personal vengeance as when the man opened fire in the McDonald's in San Diego county a few years ago. G. Gordon Liddy disputed that assertion. He said that an act of terrorism occurs when (and only when) there is a "deliberate targeting of civilians in order to advance a political cause... with the intent to kill innocent persons in war," but they are not the targets. Liddy said. He went on to suggest that the causes of terrorism are irrelevant and should not be taken into consideration when we are dealing with how to combat terrorist activities.

"America is founded on respect for life," he declared.

"Terrorism is engaged in because it has proven to be effective... the minute we take into account what they want, the minute we sit down and start wringing our hands and worrying about what causes—and so on and so forth—they are being effective," Liddy declared.

Petition protests campus funding of Liddy

by T.C. Hannan
Chronicle Staff Writer

The Liddy/Hussaini on terrorism was the source of much discussion on our campus. But, perhaps the most controversial issue concerning that debate little to do with the topic of terrorism. It concerned the question whether or not a man of Liddy's character should have been sponsored by university funds to speak on our campus.

Dr. Michael Clark, from the school of Public Administration, circulated a petition which stated: "Liddy is a self-confessed murderer. He is also a convicted felon. Certainly he exhibits values and behavior that undermine the spirit of the university's mission. Liddy's fame is based only on his conviction in the Watergate affair and on his involvement in plots to subvert liberty and freedom of expression. (We) should cherish freedom of expression. (We) should cherish freedom of expression... Let Liddy come, let him speak. But need we contribute our precious resources?"

The petition goes on to say that by paying Liddy to speak "we have witnessed a cherished right—freedom of expression—be wielded against itself," and that we have financed that assault. It concludes, "we demand that the Special Events Committee seriously re-evaluate the philosophy that could lead to such an invidious choice of speakers as Liddy.

Dr. Doyle Standl, Associate Dean who heads Student Life, said, "What we strive for is a balance— to provide a full spectrum of speakers for the university community," he explained.

Another professor on campus supported Clark's view. Dr. Hellenbrand, from the English Department, put it this way: "The issue of what constitutes terrorism is enormously complicated politically and morally. And I have a difficult time imagining how Liddy's experiences or reflections can contribute to our collective understanding of this terrorism."

The issue appears to center upon whether Liddy's presence on our campus was designed to educate us, or to entertain us, Hellenbrand said.

He added, "We must ask ourselves whether in this instance we are paying to learn something, or paying to help a sensationalistic value," Clark offered.

Soccer squad pushing to consistent goal

From a hazy Monday to a "Super" Saturday, the Cal State Coyotes saw it all the week of a stubborn Azusa Pacific squad, to a dominant CSU, Dominguez the 4th. CSUSB saw a 4-0 loss and a 7-0 blowout of the Poets County team is undefeated and the Men's team took great replacement in the fifth running strides towards finding a solid spot.

Juarez did not take the week's sole matchup lightly. "Point Loma is tough, they were a very difficult team for us last year. We will have to earn a victory over them," said Juarez. In anticipation of next week's acid test, the Coyotes will have most of this week to work on the team's offense.

(freshman, San Bernardino, San Gorgonio HS) also with two goals, freshmen Sean Karna (San Bernardino/BBHS), Hector Venegas (Coachella/Coachella HS), and sophomores Mark Yarawisky (Tacoma WA/ Spanaway Lake), and Kiko Montes (Coachella/Coachella HS) each scored one goal for the Coyote squad. The win included the second straight shutout for CSUSB goalie Randy Green (Chico/Chico St).

Coach Juarez said, "Jerry O'Hara been a dry spell and it's good to see him playing strongly again." In looking ahead, "The team will have to push itself now to remain consistent," said the Coyote Coach.

Great attitude paces Coyote cross-country teams

The CSUSB Women's Cross Country team is undefeated and the Men's team took great strides towards finding a solid replacement in the fifth running of Saturday's meet. The CSUSB Men a current record of 1-1 in head-to-head competition.

Brad Phillips paced the Coyote runners with a lifetime best time of 28:36 over a five mile course. Just seven seconds after Phillips was Carlos Gallegos, and only 21 seconds behind was CSUSB's strongest runner (slowed by a leg injury), freshman Robert Horvath.

Coach Burleson says his teams have the right attitude and the Men's team is working hard to overcome their lack of experience. This weekend will test both for the Coyotes as they face NCAA Division II schools, Southern Utah State and Chapman College.

Lady Spikers jump to Top 5 in region

CSUSB's Volleyball team is currently 11-3 and despite Saturday, the 4th's, loss to Biola University, the Lady Coyotes should be ranked among the top five teams regionally in the week's ratings.

Ruderman felt the week's loss was a positive experience for CSUSB and that playing a tall, powerful team like Biola University enables the smaller Lady Coyotes to develop and progress within their style of play. CSUSB played the Biola four games with the final scores: 10-15, 15-10, 9-15, 8-15. "The team didn't play consistently against a much taller Biola team that hit the ball much better than we did," said CSUSB coach Naomi Ruderman. Earlier in the week the Cal State team was a model of consistency. The Lady Coyotes faced Pomona-Pitzer and the University of Redlands for the third time this season and defeating both teams for the third time. CSUSB vs. Pomona-Pitzer: 16-14, 15-11, 15-6 and CSUSB vs. The University of Redlands: 15-2, 15-4, 15-5.
Volleyballers, ranked fourth, defeat Masters

By Matt Pollock
Chronicle Staff Writer

Although it took them a full game to get warmed up, the Lady Coyote volleyball team came back to defeat Master's College in four games last Tuesday night, 8-15, 15-9, 15-3, 15-4.

Head coach Naomi Ruderman stated that her team began the match really slow and tentative. "We were not playing our game. Like a lady, Master's team went on to win the game, 11-5. Ruderman stated that her team began the match and built up speed, the Master's team was unable to keep up." It forced them to make errors.

Slow is exactly how the volleyball match started for the Lady Coyotes. The Mustangs from Master's blew out to a 3-0 lead before CSUSB even got on the board. The Mustangs built that lead to 11-3 when Bridgett Austin put some life into her team with a spike, making the score 11-5. Master's team went on to win the game, though, 15-8.

Coyote volleyball team rushed out to an 8-1 lead before the visitors responded. After Master's came within three points at 11-8, Austin once again got her team rolling. Her service ace made the score 13-8. The freshman then made two diving saves on defense to keep a play alive in which CSUSB earned a side-out. Teammate Lisa McDonald followed with a pair of spikes to seal the game, 15-9.

The Coyotes continued their torrid pace into the third game and assembled a 6-1 lead. They ended the game with seven unanswered points and a 15-3 victory. CSUSB broke open a 3-3 tie in the next game by rattleing off five straight points. A stuff by McDonald gave the home team an 8-3 lead. Hitter Kim Casey ended the match soon after as she drilled a spike into the Mustang defense.

The Coyotes, who are ranked fourth in the Western Region of the U.S. among Division III schools, were led by freshmen Austin and Holly L. Austin was perfect on 18 serves and came up with three good digs as Li had 11 kills. Ruderman stated that both played "very alert defensive games. Along with them, Laura Isbel had 12 kills and teammate McDonald had four good digs for the Coyotes, who are now 12-3.

Coyote kickers improved, inspired

By A. Christine Stanfield

Jerry O'Hara does not like to take all the credit for his success on the soccer field. Even though he leads the team in goals with 7, he credits his team members for each goal.

"For every goal that I score, there is a good assist," said O'Hara recently. O'Hara, a 6-foot forward, is in his second year on the CSUSB soccer team. The team, only in its third year at CSUSB, has improved over last year's team.

"We are playing better this year," O'Hara said. "We know each other better, and we are in a good position to make the playoffs."

The team, at mid-season, has already completed its toughest part of the season. According to O'Hara, the future looks positive. O'Hara gives much of the credit for the team's success to the team's goalkeeper, Randy Green, in his first year at CSUSB. Green has shutout the competition in four out of the five win teams.

Another factor in the team's success is right halfback Trevor Coleman. O'Hara calls Coleman a hustler, especially since he plays both offense and defense. "He's tough for the halfbacks. They are the unsung heroes of the game," O'Hara said. Coleman's hustling has paid off, he leads the team in assists.

The team's inspiration comes from team captain, Mark Teter. Teter is playing his third season on the team. According to O'Hara he is the seasoned veteran. "He is the real hunter, especially for being a forward," added O'Hara. O'Hara considers himself a team player, though he still feels bad when he does not do his job.

O'Hara's success as a soccer player" goes back to when he was a little kid. "When I was just a little kid, about 6-years-old, I thought it would be fun to try soccer. I have loved the game ever since," he said with a shy smile.

O'Hara has played soccer every year since those eye-opening days. He began his career playing organized fall with the AYSO federation in Orange County. He then moved with his family to New York and continued to play soccer. O'Hara played his freshman year at the University of Fredonia, Fredonia NY. After that first year, O'Hara returned to California with his family. He notes one difference between the two states and their relationship to the game of soccer. "In New York soccer is a big sport on campuses and there is a lot of patronage of the games. But in California soccer is taking a back seat to some other popular campus sports."

During this time he practive drills in game-situations and conditioning. All the practice has paid off for O'Hara. In the words of his coach Carlos Juarez, "We wouldn't be the same team without him."

O'Hara had good things to say about his coach, too. "He has done some incredible things considering how young the team is. In three years he has built the team and has made it into a playoff contender."

Despite the fact that soccer has a wide following in other parts of the world, it seems to be catching on slowly in the United States. O'Hara attributes this fact to too many people who do not find it is exciting as watching football. O'Hara explains this is reflective of a certain amount of ignorance of the sport.

Intramural offerings

By Sharna Wilson

The intramural program at Cal State continually provides fun and recreation for students, faculty, and staff. The main objectives of the program are to promote social and physical recreation while providing relaxation from studies and other commitments. Intramurals cover a wide range of recreation from traditional team sports such as football, volleyball, and basketball, to unique one day events such as 5K runs and canoe races.

Under the supervision of Joe Long, the Recreational Sports Director, many events have been planned that are sensitive to the wants of students. Long explains that intramurals are "participation oriented" and encourages students to actively support the program. Although the more significant rewards are for male kickers, intramural T-shirts may be earned by winning or simply participating in an event. For example, Coyote T-shirts are awarded to those who participate at least thirty times in ten different events during the year, as well as to all champions.

This year's canoe race was held Oct. 3 at Glen Helen. First place was awarded to Michelle M. Williams and Rick Boodo. Free hats and mineral water were provided for all participants and mugs were awarded to the top four teams.

Some upcoming events are the Pennatlon on Oct. 25, a 5K Turkey Trot on Nov. 19, and Super Sports Saturday starting Nov. 8.
Not just another student...

Lisa McDonald is quite different from any other student that you might meet on the Cal State campus. Besides being a team captain and a talented outside hitter for the lady Coyote volleyball team, the coarse-voiced, brown-haired, hazel-eyed junior is studying to become a mortician.

McDonald, who was born at Robins Air Force Base in Georgia, is a 1984 graduate of Redlands High School. She has one younger brother, Patrick, who is a freshman at Cal Poly Pomona. Before moving to Redlands, McDonald's family lived in Kaiserslautern, West Germany, where her father was stationed at the Air Force Base there. It was here that McDonald first became interested in volleyball.

As a high school freshman in Germany, McDonald said that she "just tried out to see what it was like." She soon realized that she was in love with the game of volleyball and continued to play when her family moved to Redlands in 1982. AT Redlands, McDonald played both volleyball and was the centerfielder for the Terrier's softball team.

From her experiences in scientific laboratory classes in high school, McDonald said that she grew interested in becoming a mortician. She is a biology major at CSUSB and plans to get her degree in that field.

When asked why she is intent on becoming a mortician, McDonald replied, "It's really fascinating. And with any slip of the knife, no one would ever know, so no one could see you. Besides," she said, "I've always been a medicate." McDonald said that after working as a mortician for a few years, she would like to become a coroner. "And," she added, "I want to own my own mortuary.

Besides spending many hours practicing and playing volleyball, McDonald is busy with classes and laboratory sessions in chemistry and biology. She is taking 13 units during the current quarter at CSUSB.

Billy Joel's new album, The Bridge, is a return to the piano-man sound that made him famous.

Billy Joel's greatest hits, including 'Piano Man', 'She's Got a Hold on Me', and 'Uptown Girl', have been covered in his previous albums. His latest album, The Bridge, is a follow-up to his 1989 album, An Innocent Man. The album contains new material and a number of covers, including 'She's Got a Hold on Me', 'Piano Man', and 'Uptown Girl'.

The album is a return to the piano-man sound that made him famous. Joel's music was a permanent part of the sound of the 1980s, and his return to this style is welcomed by fans.

While the lyrics on this album do not quite match the standards of the guitar-wrenching, 'Piano Man' or the drug-abuse commentary of 'Captain Jack', Joel shows that he can still turn a phrase in 'Getting Close', which features a Hammond B-3 synthesizer solo by Steve Winwood.

Joel reflects on his road to stardom in 'A Matter of Trust', 'Car and Clip', and 'Now You Know'. The album also features guest appearances by Cyndi Lauper, who gets credit for sharing the vocals on 'Code of Silence'.

While her face, many though her own

She's gotta have it is surprisingly funny

Eventually though, Nola's ways catch up to her and she finds that very few men want to be treated like sex objects. (Hey grow up, Okay?) Indeed when the situation inevitably blows up in her face, mostly through her own doing, there may be more than a few "bachelors afraid of commitment" out there who see themselves magnified for what they really are (incredibly lucky to get away with it, for awhile).

Will she settle down and raise a herd of nymphomaniacs? Will she move in with Warren Beatty and Don Johnson? Some people never change and some don't change until they're ready. The answers to these questions are well worth the price of admission. The film is almost exclusively in black and white and is rated R.

Student Counseling available

Feeling depressed? Having difficulty in a relationship? Worried about work?
Free help is available through the Community Counseling Center at California State University, San Bernardino. Staffed by quality counselors with diverse backgrounds, the center provides counseling services for emotional problems caused by divorce, death in the family, loss of a job, change of careers, lack of motivation, relationship problems.
Counseling also is available for sexual problems, child rearing, premarital information and the elderly. The center is operated during the university's academic year, October through June.
"This is an ideal public service because few people can afford private counseling," remarked Dr. Edward Teyber, associate professor of psychology and director of the center. "In an era when the Reagan administration is reducing funding for social services, there are few government-supported mental health resources left."
Free counseling is offered primarily for individuals and couples, rather than children and families, Teyber stated. " Anything that is troublesome, conflicting, or problematic is appropriate for someone to seek counseling. Many clients who use the services are normally able to cope with life's ups and downs but may suddenly face a crisis which has disrupted their lives."
The counseling is conducted by graduate-level psychology students ranging in age from 22 to 45, who work under the supervision of clinical psychologists on the Cal State, San Bernardino faculty. Each counselor undergoes a rigorous acceptance procedure and is evaluated on the basis of grades, background and experience, letters of recommendation and interview performances as well as several other factors.
Potential clients may call a 24-hour message phone, (714) 887-7272, to request a call back. Dr. Teyber will return all calls and schedule an initial interview to answer further questions and introduce clients to the clinic. He then will appoint a counselor whom he feels will best meet the needs of the client.
Although the Community Counseling Center does not provide services for persons who are suicidal, psychotic, alcoholic, addicted to drugs, or who may need medical help, the director will refer the client to someone who may be of assistance.
Clients meet with counselors for 50-minute sessions once a week. The length of the counseling is not limited; clients may continue through June when the center closes for the summer. Many return in September to continue with the same counselor or be reappointed to a new one, Teyber said. All counseling sessions are kept strictly confidential.

Are you a leader?
Associated Students Board of Directors has two openings and representatives from the school of Social and Behavioral Sciences and Undeclared Majors. If you are interested in finding out how you can become part of this dynamic Board please contact Vice President Steve Hekman at 887-7494 or just stop by the A.S. office in the Student Union.

Attention Potential leaders; you must have a 'C' average or above, and must not have class on Tuesdays 10-12. You just might have filled all of the qualifications to become a leader!

Good luck!!!

New chair promotes "philosophy of growth"

by T.C. Hannah

The Chronicle Staff Writer

More students, more faculty, more buildings. These are but the obvious signs of expansion on our campus—the physical result of what can aptly be termed a Philosophy of Growth. This philosophy is at the heart of a well coordinated effort to maintain a high quality of education here at CSUSB, while at the same time increasing campus visibility throughout the community, the state, and eventually, the nation. With this in mind, we are pleased to welcome to our campus a man who takes these goals seriously—the new Department Chair of the schools of Accounting and Finance, Dr. Mohamed Vaziri.

Dr. Vaziri comes to Cal State with an array of impressive credentials and experiences. He received his M.S. in Engineering from the University of Oklahoma, where he also earned his Doctorate in International Finance. He went on to do Post Graduate work in Investment Analysis at George Washington University. His experience in financial management ranges from his work as an accountant for such firms as Lylands Motors, England, and Town and Country, Inc., in Oklahoma, to his work as a financial analyst for Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. Dr. Vaziri has also done pioneer work on quality control for the Washington Metro Transit Authority, the results of which were published nationwide. In addition, Dr. Vaziri has worked for the Department of Energy as well as the Small Business Administration.

Presently, Dr. Vaziri is merging these experiences with this University's expansionist philosophy. He has outlined a three-part plan which he hopes will insure a profitable future, not only for the school of financing and accounting, but, ideally, for the whole University. While he emphasizes that his primary goal is "to provide the highest quality of education through a flexible curriculum and a dedicated faculty," Dr. Vaziri also says that he intends to work consistently at making his department highly visible in the local business community. This visibility will be established through the involvement of local businesses in the curriculum of the Finance and Accounting Department.

Dr. Vaziri refers to this as the "internal" phase of his plan. It involves creating an Industry Review Board comprised of local CPA firms and financial institutions which would review curriculum, provide internships and job opportunities, as well as providing funding for the establishment of new institutions here on campus. Another item on this "internal" agenda will be to visit with the local high schools and junior colleges in order to maintain those high ratings. Dr. Vaziri hopes to add a "master departmental syllabus" which will offer more core classes per quarter in order to insure a more consistent quality of education. He notes that "based upon the percentage of people passing the CPA exam, CSUSB currently ranks number one in the state and number eleven in the nation." In order to maintain those high ratings, Dr. Vaziri wishes to add more flexibility to the curriculum, and an Accounting Lab has already been established where students can work for fifty hours per quarter (in addition to class instruction) on a computer, to enhance their general problem solving skills.

Another item on the "internal" agenda is to change the composition of the faculty by hiring new PhD's and by converting lecture positions to tenure track positions. This is to help integrate the professors into the new curricular changes.

Dr. Vaziri also hopes to establish this academic year a center to promote international business—an idea, he says, which came from Dean Porter. The idea is to get local business persons to train international business skills in matching products with an international market through appropriate lines of information and consulting. Students wishing to receive a Certificate in Financial Planning may not have very long to wait. Dr. Vaziri is currently writing a proposal to solicit funds for the establishment of an insurance and banking center. This will provide students with a better working knowledge of financial services, and pending a certificate license which Gov. Deukmejian may sign any day now, will provide a Certificate in Financial Planning.

Most important is that the changes in curriculum will attempt to improve the quality of education on a national level. Dr. Vaziri is also planning to institute interdisciplinary programs which will help students in all schools market their skills effectively upon graduation.

Students who have even the smallest interest in any of the changes which Dr. Vaziri outlined here should go see him in A.D. 160. He is especially interested in fostering student involvement in the department, and would also like to help undecided majors find a field where they can develop to their full potential.

Certificate in Spanish - now offered

By Deborah Carter
Special to the Chronicle

The Bureau of the Census has predicted that Hispanics will constitute the largest minority group in the United States by the end of the 1980's. The enormous increase in the Hispanic sector of North American society will bring about a proportionate increase in consumers of all kinds of goods and services. However, only those trained in the Hispanic language and culture will be able to successfully communicate within the vast economic marketplace of the Hispanic North American.

According to Dr. Rafael E. Correa, professor in the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, Cal State University is offering a certificate in Spanish for Public Services. "In this program we will offer practical application of the language. We seem to be having people training more and more as interpreters and translators, especially for the court system."

The program includes upper division Spanish courses, as well as courses being offered through extended education. Admission of this certificate program has been sent to high schools and junior colleges in this area, as well as to the Chamber of Commerce for distribution.

Next quarter, Dr. Tatiana Galvan, a Fulbright scholar, will be teaching one of the required courses, Spanish 316: Spanish in Communication Media. Galvan is from the Universidad Nacional Autonoma De Mexico (UNAM). Correa said, "this is a unique opportunity for students to be exposed to someone who is a bilingual expert in communications."

In order to qualify for the certificate, a student must be enrolled at CSUSB, as well as taking the required courses in sequence. After the requirements have been met, the student is then eligible to apply for the certificate.

For the student wishing to practice the Spanish language, Correa suggests that, "students go to the Commons between 12 p.m. and 1 p.m. on Wednesdays and make use of the Spanish table." The Spanish table is for students, staff, and faculty who wish to practice their Spanish language, make friends, talk to professors, and practice, practice, practice.

Area Satanism on the Rise?

by Jim Long

The Devil has gained more adherents in the Inland Empire. At least that's what police officials and religious leaders in the Fontana area would like people to believe. To these people, Satanism is really a matter of opinion. Depending on who's opinion it is, people -- teenagers, especially -- are either taking their cues from Hell or they're just doing something different. Law enforcement officials say one thing, authorities in religious circles say another.

"I try to keep my ear to the ground," said Gillett Deggert, pastor of Calvary Chapel in Rialto. "I get reports and if they're accurate, some aren't."

According to reports in the Fontana Herald and the San Bernardino County Sun, Fontana police and San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department officials have found graffiti encompassing Satanic symbols. Law enforcement officials have also found some of these claims are remaining unbacked by concrete and animal sacrifices in different parts of the county.

Attention is also being paid to alleged increases in heavy metal and punk rock lyrics. Those who say Satanism is on a rise both locally and nationally believe there are either taking their cues from Hell or they're just doing something different. Law enforcement officials say one thing, authorities in religious circles say another.

"No last names, dates or specific locations are included in the Inland Empire, leaves few clues. No last names, dates or specific locations are included in these reports," said Warnke. "People who 'love' Satanism are being quoted, but their names are not.

Satansism is the banner for the rebellious teenaged population and the Devil is the leader of the rebellion.\(^*\)

Sexual Assault: Exploring the Myths

by Sunnie Bell
Health Center Intern

The timing of Sexual Assault Awareness Week, October 13-17, fits well with the start of college. As never before, young women and men must face pressures - and possibly even threats of force - with which they must cope.

Ideas that contrast with previous learning will be explored both formally and informally. In the "classrooms" of previous learning will be let the choices that might affect consensual sex. Is not entirely between sexual assault and "date rape" - one party is not willing but doesn't know how to stop what has been started. The partner who does want sex has a partner saying NO.

Alcoholism. Alcohol abuse is one of which is that issue of self-esteem. Ponder this: Do the "real" you a composite of after alcohol ingestion) receipts. As nice as it is, it doesn't sell well. There is nothing un feminine about controlling one's own choices, and there is nothing unmasculine about declining to succumb to outside pressures that call for demonstrations of sexual power. If it feels necessary to prove power, it can be done in positive and acceptable ways pleasing to each of you. And, women, if you will, allow the men to show some old-fashioned chivalry. They're usually glad to do it, but they do have to feel that you will appreciate it and not chide them for it.

Human beings have natural needs for emotional connections; seeking intimacy is a method of connecting. But sexual intimacy is only one form of emotional welding. Sex is a quick and easy intimacy to achieve, but it can be quick to cause trouble, too. Be cautious of the easy way; it's usually full of pitfalls.

It's generally easier to avoid sexually aggressive situations than it is to get out of them once they've begun. But at any point, remember that control is your own. Men and women of any age must make their own decisions on a day-to-day basis.

If you choose to become sexually active, do consult professionals in the Student Health Center. No stigma is attached to seeking advice about birth control and physical and emotional needs. But the loss of self-esteem due to submitting unwillingly to others' direction is a certain problem.

If you've already made mistakes, don't blame yourself. You can only deal with what you have to work with at the time; today is different from yesterday. You now know more. And don't forget that help is available for you through the Student Health Center and the Student Counseling Center.

The complex of physical, sociological, and psychological influences that creates your sexuality is good, but in all aspects of your sex life, keep the choices your own!

Of course I need to wear a bag.
How else do you expect me to keep an aura of mystery?
I Heard a Preacher Say
by J Russell Horton

I heard a preacher of the gospel say "Noah's days weren't like orchard days." He's right, of course, for so discerning a clergyman. A bombshell Noah never knew, neither did a volume of Allen Ginsberg; both enough to wrench your guts with flesh-rotting stench. Noah never heard the whimper of 1.4 million-a-year babies jerked like so many slimy stocked fish from a pay-per-pound derby pond, two pounds on the hook. Old Noah never inhaled the deep brown cancer mist of faggot nicotine; the corrupted gasoline vapors that erupt the eyes on a hot city day; never toked on the mind numbing agent orange, mustard gas, or napalm, the gold, frankincense, and myrrh offered by the wise doctors who displace the religion of Universal Hater: humanism. No, Noah's days never saw hate torch red flames to a spectre haunting ghost of the primeval fall. I suppose he must have known about child molestation and abuse; rape of somebody's thirteen-year-old fair haired daughter; sodomy of your ancestor. That's news? And he didn't even have a Tribune to read about AIDS; organized oven-stuffing of his progeny; to read of brother-muggers, wife-beaters, omnipotence-haters. And what of Noah and atheists? Was he neighbor to a dozen? Did the better of his sister's brothers, sons and daughters of men, uniform God in unhallowed halls, where dark robes are donned to celebrate the cloning of lectura thumping mythology exorcists. I guess Noah never watched satellite pornography, except in his 25 inch diagonal black and white window frame. No, Noah's days weren't like our own. I guess I should have, but I never thought of it quite that way. Yes. That preacher must be right. Noah's days weren't quite like ours. Jesus Christ come quickly, I don't have the minister's discernment.

Tour of art studios planned for public

The public is invited to join the Friends of the Gallery at Cal State for a tour of art studios in Venice and Los Angeles Oct. 18. Membership in the community university Art Gallery entitles said Dr. Julius Kaplan, Cal State professor of art.

Art aficionados will depart Cal State at 8:45 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 18, to tour two studios in Venice and one in Los Angeles with lunch in-between.

Persons are requested to express their interest in attending by Thursday, Oct. 16, by calling the Cal State, San Bernardino Art Department at (714) 877-7459.

The first stop will be the ceramics and painting studio of Curtis and Cynthia Ripley. Under the pseudonym of Luna Garcia, Cynthia Ripleys ceramics have appeared in Gourmet and Los Angeles Times Magazine, as well as such noteworthy art galleries as Henry Bendel in New York, Nancy Epstein Gallery in Beverly Hills and The Mezi in Santa Monica.

Curtis Ripley recently displayed his ceramics and the Garth Clark and Saxon-Lee galleries, respectively, in Los Angeles. Following lunch on the boardwalk in Venice, the tour group will visit the studio of a real clay artist, Mendelsohn Rubin. Having exhibited in London and Paris, she is preparing for a one-woman show in New York. She has been the recipient of the New Talent Award from the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

The final destination of the tour will be the Los Angeles studio of Barrie and John Mottishaw, a watercolorist and sculptor, respectively. Their work is displayed in the Koplin Gallery in Los Angeles.

High schools to attend speech tourney

More than 300 high school students from five states are expected to bone their public speaking skills Oct. 18-19 during the Third Annual Coyote Invitational Speech and Debate Tournament at Cal State, San Bernardino.

Applications, which will be accepted until 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 15, reflect increased interest in state high schools as well as Southern California schools this year, said Dr. Fred Jandt, chair of the Cal State Communication Department, which is sponsoring the event.

"Past participants have included Bonanza High School from Las Vegas and many area schools, including Claremont, San Bernardino, Alta Loma and as far south as San Diego," Jandt commented. "This year we will have competitors from Nevada and Arizona, as well as many more area high schools, some of which are as far away as Bakersfield."

The tournament, expected to occupy most of the Cal State, San Bernardino classrooms over the two-day contest, offers competition in dramatic and humorous interpretation, original oratory, extemporary impromptu and expository speaking. Coincident with the construction of a campus radio station at the university, the tournament will focus on "radio speaking" during a special feature of the competition known as the "Coyote Challenge." Contestants will be asked to prepare and deliver a mock five-minute radio newscast.

Team debate contestants will tackle the proposition: "Resolved: That the federal government should implement a comprehensive, long-term agricultural policy in the U.S."

Competition winners in the Lincoln-Douglas style debate will speak to: "Resolved: The juvenile justice system does not meet the needs of contemporary American society."

QUESTION #2

HOW CAN THE BUDGET-CONSCIOUS COLLEGE STUDENT SAVE MONEY?

a) Save over 50% off AT&T's weekday rates on out-of-state calls during nights and weekends.

b) Don't buy textbooks when "Monarch Notes" will do just fine.

c) Save 40% off AT&T's weekday rate on out-of-state calls during evenings.

d) Count on AT&T for exceptional value and high quality service.

e) Hang around with the richest kids in school; let them pick up the tab whenever possible.

If you're like most college students in the western hemisphere, you try to make your money go a long way. That's why you should know that AT&T Long Distance Service is the right choice for you. AT&T offers so many terrific values. For example, you can save over 50% off AT&T's day rate on calls during weekends until 5 pm Sunday; and from 11 pm to 8 am, Sunday through Friday. Call between 5 pm and 11 pm, Sunday through Friday, and you'll save 40% off our day rate.

Ever dial a wrong number? AT&T gives you immediate credit if you do. And of course, you can count on AT&T for clear long distance connections any place you call.

To find out more about how AT&T can help save you money, give us a call. With a little luck, you won't have to hang around with the rich kids. Call toll-free today, at 1-800-222-0300.

English help for foreign students

By Karen Reese
Special to The Chronicle

Hidden on the fifth floor of the Pfau Library is an office better known to foreigners than to CSUSB students. It is the central information for 42 people from a variety of countries: Japan, Saudi Arabia, Korea, United Arab Emirates, Columbia, Jordan, Indonesia and Malaysia.

The office is headquarters for the American Culture and Language Program (ACLP) on campus directed by Linda Chaffee, the 42 people are students in an intensive English language learning program.

The ACLP challenges students five hours a day, five days a week of English instruction in areas of grammar, vocabulary, reading, pronunciation and conversation. ACLP's goal is to enable the students to experience American culture and become fluent in its language. The program includes field trips to Disneyland, the Brea Mall for ice-skating, lunch at a Mexican restaurant and various other activities.

Some of the students want to become fluent in English because they believe it will open up job opportunities in their own countries such as hotel or international business jobs. Other students are interested in getting into an American University which requires them to first pass an English proficiency test.

Because ACLP students are trying to learn American culture and language, they're thrilled when they're able to meet an American their age, according to Chaffee. She also mentioned that the ACLP would love an opportunity to practice speaking English. She encourages all CSUSB students to participate in the program. For more information students can stop by the ACLP office in PL 503 or call 887-7666.
