LONG BEACH — The California State University and Colleges' Board of Trustees will increase by one member next year with the appointment of a representative of the CSUC's alumni associations. The new Trustee, whose appointment will bring the Board's membership to 23, will be selected for a two-year term by the Statewide Alumni Council, comprised of representatives of alumni groups from the 19 CSUC campuses.

Appointment of the additional Trustee will result from 1976 legislation supported by the Board of Trustees and introduced by Assemblyman Richard Hayden of Sacramento.

Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke termed the legislation "significant recognition of the development and stature that has been acquired by both campus and systemwide CSUC alumni organizations."

"Alert, active and supportive alumni in recent years have greatly advanced the programs of The California State University and Colleges. The new alumni representative will be an appropriate addition to the Board of Trustees," said Dumke.

Carol Numrich of CSU, Los Angeles, president of the Statewide Alumni Council, announced that 20 nominations have been received from campus alumni organizations. She expressed hope the selection will be made in January.

A committee comprised of Ms. Numrich; Carl Campbell, CSC, Sonoma; John Travis, CSU, Fresno; Frank Correia, CSU, Hayward, and Tom D'Agostino, San Diego State University, will interview the nominees and make recommendations to the Council. The Board of Trustees is presently comprised of 17 members who are appointed by the Governor plus — as ex officio members — the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Assembly Speaker, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the CSUC Chancellor.

Statewide alumni representatives for several years have been active in the CSUC's systemwide matters, including participating in discussions of the Board of Trustees. The new Trustee will have full voting privileges, as well as being assigned to Board committees.

The ASB Elections Committee has ordered new election for Freshman Class President to take place tomorrow. At present, the decision is being appealed to the ASB Judicial Board, and as the PawPrint goes to press, the outcome of the appeal is unknown.

The election results was contested by Mark Womack who in the Oct. 27 ASB election missed going into the run-off by one vote. Womack alleged that the inad­verent rearrainging of the paragraphs in his campaign statement, printed in the Oct. 29 PawPrint might have caused him to lose that one decisive vote. Joe Deharo, the leading vote getter in the Oct. 27 election, won the run­off.

The Elections Committee decided in Womack's favor last Thursday by a two to one vote with one abstaining. The Committee held another meeting last Friday when it was asked to reconsider its decision by ASB Vice President Fred Deharo.

Deharo pointed out at last Friday's meeting that "Violations of the Election Code are the only reasons to invalidate the election...no violation was committed."

Doris "Cookie" Pollard, Chairperson of the Elections Committee and other members admitted that no violation took place. "This is our decision...based on what's just and right," said Pollard.

"The Committee acted on the basis of looking at the facts," said Deharo. "There's one thing that sticks in my mind: you've got to follow the rules."

The Election Committee stuck to its guns despite criticism from Deharo, who will not be in the meeting. It was announced that there would be an appeal to the Board of Trustees. Though it is not known at press time how the Board will decide, the concensus appeared to be that the Elections Committee ruling would be overturned.

The Election Code came under criticism during the meeting and that for the last two years, attempts have been made to replace it with a better one, according to Richard Bennecke, activities advisor.

Concert to be presented

A program of Mass settings will be performed by the Cal State, San Bernardino Concert Choir and Chamber Singers at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 21 in the County Museum.

The public is invited to attend the concert, "Music at the Museum," the first to be presented at this location by the Cal State musical organization.

Dr. Loren Filibeck, assistant professor of music at the college, is director.

The masses, composed in different centuries, testify to the rich source of inspiration the text of the Roman Catholic Mass has provided for hundreds of years, according to Dr. Filibeck.

Benjamin Britten's "Hymn to St. Cecilia" will open the evening's concert. It will be followed by "Mass for Four Voices" by the 16th century composer, William Byrd, sung by the Chamber Singers.

The Mass by Igor Stravinsky will have as soloists Vicki Johnson, San Bernardino, soprano; Becky Huskey, San Bernardino, alto; Joseph Coyazo, Redlands, and Kevin Price, Riverside, tenor; and David Wallace, Victorville, bass.

Solists for Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Coronation Mass." K. 311 will be Robin St. Onge, Hidalgo, soprano; Sandra MacAulay, Highland, alto; Price, tenor, and Francisco Silva, San Bernardino, bass.

"Contrasting selections of the same text was interesting," said Dr. Filibeck. "The styles are all very different and are separated by centuries.

"Byrd's Mass is a gravely magnificent example of the English polyphonic style of the high Renaissance.

"In contrast, Mozart's 'Coronation Mass' is a bright, quickly scored work.

"Somewhere between lies Stravinsky's Mass scored for double wind quintet, a compact and austere work reflecting the mystical tradition of the Russian Orthodox church out of which the composer came.

"Though primarily subdued in character this Mass is highly intense, occasionally erupting in dazzling "parks of cold fire."

Admits on to "Music at the Museum is $1.50, with children and students with identification adntruded free.

The San Bernardino County Museum is located in Redlands at the California Street off-ramp from Interstate Freeway 10.

News for veterans

Questionnaire

Annual income questionnaires were included with Veterans Administration pension checks mailed to 1.5 million veterans and survivors on November 1. Questionnaires also went to 28,000 parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) checks, according to John G. Miller, Director of the VA's Regional Office in Los Angeles.

Completed questionnaires must be returned to the VA by January 1, to ensure continued receipt of benefits.

Pensions, said Miller, are paid to veterans and unmarried surviving spouses of veterans with nonservice connected disabilities. Amount of the monthly stipend is based on the annual income of the recipient.

Annual income limitations also govern amounts of DIC payments to certain parents of veterans who died of service connected causes.

With some exceptions, pensioners are required to file income questionnaires annually. Those 72 years of age or older, who have been on the VA pension rolls for two successive years, are exempt from filing. However, they must report income changes as they occur.

Some beneficiaries who normally are exempt will receive questionnaires because of cost-of-living increases in annuities. Prompt return of the questionnaires will avoid suspension of annuity checks in 1977, Miller added.

Those failing to return the completed questionnaires by January 1 will, in lieu of receiving their January pension check on February 1, receive a letter from the VA explaining why their pension payments have been suspended.

Full information on the VA pension program is available from any VA office or veterans organization service officer.

Work study benefits

Veterans who need financial help to continue full time schooling under the GI Bill may be eligible for additional benefit payments under the Veterans Administration's "work-study" program. That reminder was issued today by John G. Miller, Director of the VA's Los Angeles Regional Office.

He pointed out that eligible veterans may earn as much as $625 per semester by working a maximum of 250 hours for the VA under this program.

In the VA work-study program, selected veterans enrolled in schools under VA education programs hold part-time jobs in the agency. In many cases, these jobs relate to or complement the veteran's field of study, added Miller.

Some veterans in the work-study program will assist other former service personnel as members of the VA's "outreach" program, which is designed to acquaint veterans with various GI Bill benefits.

From the beginning of the work-study program in April 1973, nearly $77 million has been paid to veteran-student participants.

The number of participants in the program increased from 13,500 in Fiscal Year 1974 to 47,860 in Fiscal Year 1976, said Miller.

Veterans interested in further information about the VA work-study program should contact the VA regional office which maintains their records.

By the time we're old enough to have children, we've been thoroughly sold on the idea.

By our parents, our grandparents, our friends and neighbors, the media, everyone.

It's hard to remember we ever had a choice in the first place.

But there is a choice. Having a child is a tremendous responsibility and an important decision. Probably the most important decision we'll ever make.

And once it's made, it can never be undone.

Just remember...you do have a choice.

So think about it, and do what's right for you.

Expos and fairs exhibit presented

Expositions and world fairs seem to have fallen on the limbo of apathy. But if you're a fair buff, a quick visit to the third floor display cases should be well worthwhile.

This exhibit, featuring memorabilia from bygone exhibitions, fairs and centennials, is owned by the Library and offers a look at the highlights of yesteryear.

In 1893, for example, the Chicago Columbian Exhibition celebrated the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus. It drew visitors from across the nation and was tremendously popular. The Place of Fine Arts was later rebuilt and is now Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry.

Buffalo's Pan American Exhibition in 1901 was staged "...to promote commercial and social interests among states and countries of the western hemisphere." Again, a real conversation piece when Hiram returned to the farm.

In 1915, the Panama Pacific Exhibition in San Francisco celebrated the opening of the Panama Canal. And if that wasn't historical enough, it was also the first exhibition at which the public could take airplane rides.

In 1933-34, the Century of Progress in Chicago, 1933-34, was the first of many Depression crowd pleasers. Sally Rand made a little history herself, when she performed her fan dance, which shocked the thousands of people who returned daily to see her.

San Francisco celebrated the opening of the Golden Gate and Oakland bridges in 1939-40 with the Golden Gate Exhibition. Here again Sally Rand was a stellar attraction. She had expanded her act. Now it was Ally Rand's Nude Ranch. The exhibition drew more than 17,000,000.

Time Magazine for Oct. 20, 1941, reviewed it like this: "'The Maltese Falcon' is frighteningly good evidence that the British (Alfred Hitchcock, Carol Reed, et al) have no monopoly on the technique of making mystery films. ...Bad Man Humphrey Bogart gives the performance of his career."

And Bogart, in later discussing the film: "...I had a lot going for me in that one. First, there was Huston. He made the Dashiell Hammett novel into something you don't come across too often. It was practically a masterpiece. I don't have many things I'm proud of...but that's one."

Take Bogie's word for it. It's a winner.

And take your lunch along, if you like. The no-food, no-drink rules are suspended at film time in the Listening Facility.

Child Development Center

A child shall lead them . . .

By Robin Tolliver

On Wednesday, Nov. 3, 1976, a parents meeting was held to organize the club called "Early Childhood Club," as an arm of the Child Development Center. The child care center is a vital part of our campus, although it is not on the campus itself. Many parents who attend school depend on the child care center as a place to educate and watch their children while they attend class.

In order to clarify the purpose of the Early Childhood Club, we need to talk to the Status of Women. Macias is also a member of the women and jobs Nov. 22. Ms. Macias is also a member of the California Commission on the Status of Women. Dawnei Foskey, director of the Woodridge School, Salisbury, Maryland, will discuss operating your own business Nov. 24.

The women will be speaking to the public and students in the Cal State Administration 100 class, Women in Administration, taught by Dr. Margaret Gibbs, associate professor of administration. The talks will be at noon on the specified dates in the college library, room 386. Sylvia Woodhouse, manpower analyst with the Inland Manpower Association, talked about jobs for women Nov. 11.

"The Child Development Center is guidance oriented, offering many opportunities for exploring, creating and providing for self-expression. The center emphasizes human relations, where individual differences are nurtured and cherished; in addition, social, emotional, intellectual and physical development is fostered. The Center believes children need to be valued, to be respected as people and to be accepted as they are."

A lot of people have put in a lot of work in order to get the Center off the ground. But to have the Center open and functioning is really just the first step. The Center needs continual support. It needs more staffing. The staff consists of maybe three or four people, and with approximately 38 kids, that is inadequate.

The Center is not just a babysitting service, but a learning experience for every one involved.

People who have trucks, vans, station wagons or large cars can lend them to the Center to pick up materials donated by certain companies. The Center needs $500 per quarter for the balance of the year to match state funds. They need the money for equipment and supplies. But most important they need volunteer time. Even those who don't have children should drop in and see the pictures, the mess, the confusion, the dirty faces, the noise, the sheer beauty that the Child Care Center has to offer.

Those who live too far from campus or have too tight a schedule to donate time could donate some money.

One of the world's most renowned scholars in the field of Asian civilization will speak at Cal State, San Bernardino. Thursday, Nov. 18.

The public is invited to hear an hour-long talk by Prof. A. L. Basham on "Indian Thought and the West" at 3:30 p.m. in the Lecture Hall of the Physical Sciences building. Both talks are free.

The speaker is chairman of the Department of Asian Civilization at Australian National University, Canberra. He is in the United States this year as visiting scholar at Carleton College in Northfield, Minn.

Among the six books he has authored is "The Wonder That Was India." From 1950 to 1965, he was head of the South Asian Section of the famous School of Oriental and African Studies in London.

Basham is also a linguist and has done considerable translation from Sanskrit.

Students and faculty members from neighboring schools are invited to hear this distinguished scholar, whose reputation is well known among those interested in Asian and Indian studies, said Dr. Khare.

Eight motion pictures have been selected by the Department of Foreign Languages for the 1976-77 series, presented for the campus and community. No admission is charged.

All films have English subtitles and are shown at 7 p.m. on Saturdays in the Lecture Hall of the Physical Sciences building.

"Los Olvidados" is described as a tale of "Loving and loveless children, of adolescent destroyers and the destroyed."

Set in the outskirts of Mexico City, the story focuses on one young boy, Pedro, whose mother has no use for him, and Jaime, an older and more hardened youth, who leads him deeper into the world of crime.

Noted critic Pauline Kael commented, "Bunuel, whose early work fascinated Freud, creates scenes that shock one psychologically, and remain shocking despite one's best efforts to pigeonhole them or explain them away.

"Among them is the mother-son dream sequence in Los Olvidados, the most brilliantly conceived dream I have ever seen in a film, and a sequence that is disturbing long after the lacerations of the more realistic material have healed."

On looking for a job

By Dave Fowler

According to Captain Layback, if you're going to be unemployed, you should get as much money as possible. So, he went to the garage and bought a car. He then drove to a nearby town and asked for work. The townspeople were impressed by his dedication and offered him a job. He accepted and has been working ever since.

Three Men on a Horse — good bet

By Dave Fowler

"Three Men On A Horse," the Drama Department's fall production, opened Thursday evening, Nov. 11, for a two-week run. Written in 1923 by John Cecil Bly and George Abbott, the play is a lowbrow comedy about some lowbrow jobs for laying back on the home-rolling.

The protagonist, Erwin Trobridge, plays a lowbrow gambler, overplayed his role to a funny degree and kept the audience laughing. Paul DeMee, as Charlie the gambler, displayed good comedic timing.

"Well, the most important thing to remember about jobs is that if you're going to take a job, you're going to take any job. That's it. You pluck feathers off of chickens, you park cars, you dig ditches. Whatever. You worka job."

"Oh-kay."

Captain Layback removed the burning paper from between my fingers and breathed its smoke. "Now, if the job you've got gets to you and the pressures get too heavy, quit. There's no point in living in misery."

But I do know this: I've had more fun applying for jobs than anyone else I know, except maybe Captain Layback and Dorothy Morris.
Woodpushers to host tournament

By Ray Byers

I read in the newspaper several days ago that enrollment in the local city college had increased by 11 percent this fall. I found this hard to believe, but I guess it accounts for the numerous college parking stickers I see on cars burning up my street. I have been a member of the Woodpushers Anonymous, chess club, and physics club for the last 13 to 20 years. Her children have now progressed to the stage where they are no longer interested in what room has for dinner, but rather about sex, carnality, nymphomania and facts. Since a part of her has been involved with these subjects for the last 15-20 years, she has now decided to find another field of endeavor to become proficient in.

A large number of students from the local city college are former servicemen, softening VA checks in their sweaty hands. They have found, regardless of statements and promises made by the various armed services, there is little demand in civilian industry for Sherman tank gunners, List door mechanics and all the desk assistants hired are voluptuous, big breasted individuals.

I hadn't realized how the wide range of personalities and desires of the college-going individuals had influenced the schools to diversify and enlarge the curriculum. That is, not until this afternoon when I was looking for my left-handed monkey wrench operators born on Oct. 13, with a symmetrical mole on each side of their belly buttons. Many students are women who have been wives and mothers for the last several thousand centuries of accepting her place in her marriages.

I heard old Mrs. Simms say something to Susan Sinclair about her son Sammy Sinclair and college. Susan was all goosey as she announced that Sammy had decided to go to Podunk City College and he just loved it. The college had just the course he wanted and it was added just at the time he needed it — bicycling.

"You mean he's taking bicycling as part of his physical education," Helen replied. "That's what's his major?" asked Mrs. Simms.

"He's not taking anything else," replied Susan, "just bicycling. That's what he's specialized in. The college doesn't have any other courses that go with it; not this year anyway. He's very good at it. I suppose that's because he spends three or four hours each evening doing his homework."

"Why in the world would he want to study bicycling? What good will it do him?" Mrs. Simms asked.

"Sammy is fascinated by the ten-day bicycle races he's read about and wants to be prepared when they become popular again," Susan replied.

Helen Walker sniffed and said bicycling racing was a dead issue and would never be revived; too dangerous. She said if Sammy was smart he would study something that had a future to it and make him famous like her Milton was doing. It was very still in the room for a moment and then my wife, brave girl that she is, stepped into the conversation and asked what Milton was studying.

"Toothpick Architecture," Helen replied. "When he graduates he's going to build a scale model of the entire town of Podunk, for the Smithsonian Institution."

"Why would they ask Milton to do something like that?" Mary Simons asked.

"Well, they didn't ask him to do it," Helen replied, "but when it's finished, I know they'll want it. Milton is so talented and capable when he sets his mind to it."

Jan Parry broke into the conversation and said in a proud voice, "I'm her sister, and she works for the pottery or does the college?"

Mrs. Simms said, "I think that's wonderful. Everyone should have a method of ridding themselves of their hostilities. Does she have to pay for the pottery or does the college?"

"You don't understand," Jan said, "she makes things from the clay. We already have 15 ash trays, 102 assorted flower pots and 48 Guava holders."

"My Grandson, Allen, quit college," Mrs. Simms said sadly. "He went one semester after he was discharged from the Army, but then the Veterans Administration refused to give him any more money for tuition unless he took some irrelevant courses."

"What about?" Susan asked. "What was he studying?"

"He was studying Playing Card Structures as an art form. He really liked it. But the Veterans Administration wanted him to take some additional courses like English, history, health science — things he just wasn't interested in."

I heard Jan ask my wife if our son Ron was going to college. I thought this would be a good time in to appear and say that by now women know the block the chip came from was there.

As I entered the room, my wife was telling them that Ron had entered college that fall and majoring in political science. He had received A's in Judicial Process, Political Behavior, Social and Intellectual History of the United States, but was a little disappointed that he had only received a B in Advanced Composition.

The women looked at each other with raised brows and questioning looks. Then with faces full of sympathy directed towards my wife and I, they rose and said goodbye.

Woodpushers Anonymous, chess club at Cal State, San Bernardino, will host a two-day tournament Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 20 and 21, at the college.

Cash prizes and trophies will be awarded.

Interested members of the community who are members of the United States Chess Federation may participate. Membership may be arranged during tournament registration at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, on the lower floor of the Commons Building.

An advance registration entry fee of $20 for those 19 years and over, and $15 for minors should be sent to Michael Grothe, tournament director, in care of the San Bernardino Chess Club, P.O. Box 6023, San Bernardino, 92412.

Grothe is an economics major at the college.

A slightly higher fee is charge those registering on the day of the tournament.

Woodpushers Anonymous meets regularly on Thursday evenings in the college Student Services Building. President of the club is Stewart Boden, a Cal State mathematics major.

College Curriculum

Different strokes for different folks

By Ray Byers

I can't figure out why all those people are spending their time studying to be engineers, mathematicians, or physicists. There are already a lot of people in those categories collecting unemployment benefits. I guess going to college is the "in" thing these days.

Many of the college students are people who are trying to learn new skills so they can get laid off from their jobs. The tight money situation in the country has caused many employers to go over their employee lists and they have found they no longer have a required skill. For example, left-handed monkey wrench operators born on Oct. 13, with a symmetrical mole on each side of their belly buttons.

Reader takes exception to criticism

Dear Editor:

This is in reply to the letter of Sydneye Moser-James which appeared in the PawPrint on the 19th of November.

I hope that the readers of this paper will bear with me because I am one of those intellectual lightweight that the editor spoke of last week at Mr. Dover's (with some "trivial pieces of crap"

Kommander, she will be welcomed methods of being driven home.

Bilingual-plagiarists are bound to take place in an election year. People are going to express the opinions and platforms of the hereafter that is the way our political system is structured and therefore we must work through the system.

Ms. Moser-James, you have stabbed me to the quick. You have dared to criticize our beloved Kommander Korn so soon after his narrow defeat in the Presidential election. Seriously, it is not the Kommander that all the publicity is aimed at. The root of all this is Kazooing. These events are times when people can go a little wacko for a while. At Heidi's people were dancing and actually seen having fun. I know at this school that is hard to believe, but it happened. Then there was the "Friday-before-Halloween party," which was one of the longest lasting yet. Where else could one meet the infamous Disco Duck, a syrupy can of Dole pineapple (which was a heartbeat away from the Presidency), or a very slow, very half baked election. So why don't you become a recruit and come kazooing with us? You can be assured that you will enjoy yourself.

Poor Dave Fowler, how can you pick on him? We all know he is a bit tipy. I have never met the man
(1), but I have gone to the races many times looking for him. I can only assume that he is under the table somewhere in his room. His articles are meant to be read and enjoyed. I reread and criticized for their literary quality.

As one intellectual lightweight to another I would like to commend you and your staff for fine job.

And as for you, Sydneye Moser-James, you put what your paper can do, but what you can do for your paper, and let's all go Kazooing.

Ron Henke

Alumni appalled

Dear Editor:

As a proud member of the CSUSB Alumni Association, I was both appalled and shocked by the audacity of Ms. Moser-James' letter to the editor. I have carefully followed the CSCSB events through the PawPrint in my six years since I graduated. I have never witnessed such a vicious, thoughtless, asinine, needlessly attack on such a learned institute as the PawPrint. My dog Spot would growl, if he knew his doggy box line was being shit on.

Criticism analyzed by writer

In response to the Letter to the Editor, "PawPrint comes under attack," I decided to write my response to my "critics in a Dumpster-Hayakawa article."

The man sits in the Courthouse Building. He is a free-lance reporter. He has caught three between journals, two books, a French class, creative writing class, ski diving, poems, short stories, and a book's plagerizations. Then at the top of the page, second column, the criticism to his humor, pointless, vague, rambling, quasi-philosophical, mishmash style.

Rooh! Swallow the coffee in a gulp. Is this real? Some has nonideological person emerged from the grease-pits to respond?

Yes! And now Sydneye Moser-James, I cannot answer for my own. It falls to me to interpret the issues, and I am still wondering exactly what "creative" is. I assumed my article of Hayakawa was entirely contrary to preprinted political propaganda and was void of plagiarizations.

Ah well, it appears she functions from the position that the box criticism is negative, since she fails to follow it up with any positive parts. Also what about the large space consumed by Bank of America ads instead of asking how much contributors are paid?

Nary an ounce of credit here, and the catch phrase on payment is "assigned news or feature articles." Assigned implies specific appointments, implies structuring of time. My payment is a meagre, often critical readership. Tsk tsk.

Quose-philosophical? Tick. Tick. Tick. This is the beautiful element of a free press, providing the space is available. Tick. Tick. Tick. My hope is still that Fowler is right. He is rarely wrong, or so it seems. Poor Dave Fowler, how can you put what in the paper has struck me to the quick. You have yourself.

Nevertheless Sydneye, something in the paper has generated your response. Clap. Clap. Webcam.

Library can help

Hi. My name is Ron Spicer and I am your student representative to the Library Committee. Just for your information, if there is a book you want but the Library did not have, there are book request forms throughout the Library and by filling one of these out and turning it in, the library staff can usually get it on the shelf in a short time.

Also, as a special request, I would like to ask you all to take a moment and out one of the library questionaries available throughout the library. Turn it in to any of the librarians. Besides helping out the library staff, it is a good way to air gripes.

Thank you.

Football

Pastime!

The Grabbers led by Swiftly Steve Sullivan (4 pts.) and Dennis "Great Pair of Hands (oops! I mean Hands)" Bloeker (6 pts.) beat the EBA's 20 to 13. In a hard fought game, which saw the EBA's led by the fact their leader, John Perry, kept the game close. But Charlie McKe and Co. were too much for the Raiders as the Grabbers went 19 to 14.

The second game saw the Headhunters and the Mickey Mouse Club meet in ferocious combat! After the first half leading the M.M.C. by 6 to 0, Gene Phydeaux, Jerod Bates and Co. were ready for a big victory over the stumbling M.M.C. As the first half ended, the M.M.C. held a slight 6 to 0 edge and were playing all around "crappy" football as they had a week earlier. But 14 second half points from Jim Allo's brother, Rich, sparked the whole M.M.C. team to a 33 to 12 victory.

3-person Basketball

"B" League

When the very questionable Phydeaux met the less than talented Hookers, they followed a very boring game to watch and probably less than exciting game to play in as well. As the last game ended and the dust cleared, Phydeaux had won all 3 games. They were led offensively by Ron "The Jackass" Womack and overgrown Ron "Bean Pole" Gallagher's chest running into the hind hoof of the huge, reeking Mike Locklin and Corrine Soto. It's a game to play in also. As the last game of the season, faculty members "Big Bad Faculty" Herrick and the invisible Mauler" helped the students pull off this upset victory over last year's winner of this, now, annual event.

In actuality, why weren't there any players?

The students took an early lead on baskets by "Marvelous" Mark Phydeaux and overgrown Ron "The Jackass." But faculty members "Big Bad Faculty" Herrick and the invisible Mauler" helped the students pull off this upset victory over last year's winner of this, now, annual event.

Incredible things happened in this contest, which was to decide the fate of the faculty and all of our favorite players. The big kids game of the week were "Yell-at-the-Referees" Number 1 (Seeks, there was a great deal of yelling) against the J.D.L. (1-10).

While the Grabbers were taking the EBA's M.M.Goods 18, upstart Tryers were playing all around "crappy" football as they had a week earlier. The final score in this contest saw the voluptuous Walt Hawkins' Incredibulls, against Cal State's newest, Red Neck J. C. Wright's New Overlay. But 14 second half points from Jim Allo's brother, Rich, sparked the whole M.M.C. team to a 33 to 12 victory.

"A" League

The big kids game of the week saw the whipperin Wall Hawkins' Incredibulls against Cal State's newest, Red Neck J. C. Wright's New Overlay. Al Larien, J. C. and the short and timid Wayne Tarquillary took 2 out of 3 from the bigger Incredibulls led by Mike Preston and Turkey Grenfell.

Donkey Basketball Game

The best game of the week was "Big Bad Black & Blue Football, 4 p.m. Fields."

Intramural Softball

Everybody is welcome to participate in Co-Ed Intramural Softball. New teams are formed every Monday afternoon at 3 p.m. on the field. It's informal and fun.

Intramural Co-ed Badminton Doubles

Intramural Badminton Doubles play is well underway. Cathy Jackson and Chi Quang have maintained a first place position with a 4-0 score. Close behind them, in second place, are Denise McGinnis and "T" with a 3-1 score. Badminton tournament play will continue throughout the quarter. Finals will be played Nov. 30. As in all intramural events, winners will receive a free intramural T-shirt.

Intramural Co-ed Tennis Singles

Bob Randall has maintained a first place position in the Tennis Singles Tournament standings. Second and third place are held by Mike Locklin and Corrine Soto. It's still early in the quarter, though, and the standings change weekly. Play ends Dec. 3, and the winner will receive an intramural T-shirt.
