What's in a name? More than you might think - especially if it's yours.

Names are something our society simply takes for granted - as with night and day, greasy McDonald's hamburgers, and the Angels losing the American League playoffs. And yet, there is such a variety of names that it boggles the mind (and sometimes the eyes).

They can be common, drawn out, classy, dashing, confusing, laughable, or just plain different. In this editor's case, I prefer the term unique. While the first name of Eldred isn't something you casually hear walking down the street, it is a name that not many people forget...once they've figured it out.

And here lies the problem. It takes forever for people to figure out my name (much less pronounce it, much less spell it, etc.). And while I pride myself on being a somewhat patient person (I'll allow a minute for my staff to laugh), it gets quite tiring after the first ten screw-ups...and even more so after the first fifteen misspellings - which brings me to the point of all this rambling.

You see, one of journalism's cardinal rules is SPELL NAMES CORRECTLY. People read a newspaper to find names of people they know - or their own names. And when a name isn't spelled right look out. Fire and brimstone were never like this.

So what does this have to do with the last six paragraphs? Simple: I hate seeing my name spelled wrong! Of course I'll understand a few typos...but when it gets to be consistent that's when my eyes turn red and grow bright. After all, I am quite proud of my name - it's different, unique, and quite memorable.

Of course, I've only felt this way for the last five years or so - fourth through tenth grade were not the easiest years for my moniker. I also like to see my name in print - luckily, the gremlins haven't gotten hold of that one yet. So what I'm trying to say is take care when you're addressing someone, or writing a letter or card - it may not seem important, but to the person whose name you're mutilating, it means a lot. I don't know about you, but I'm quite proud of the little word that I'll always be associated with.

OK, OK, I can hear it already: you all are saying to yourselves, what's this guy's problem? What's his ego trip? He's writing an entire column about a misspelled name! Since there's no more point in rambling about it, I'll just show you how bad the constant mutilation of my name has gotten. After all, I don't think anyone else has a top five list of name misspellings - but here we go, anyway, in order of most repeated times:

1.) Elrod
2.) Elron
3.) Elroy
4.) Elmond
5.) El Ron (the Spanish version, I believe)

Wanna talk about my middle name now?
A LIFE STORY

My blood shot eyes are testimony of the rough night that I had, filled with empty promises and all the drinks I could stand, as I stumble home, in a stupor I supposed if it was really worth it or even apropos. The story of my life came and went at happy hour, with little or any pertinent living desire. I live on empty voice and tired, only to awake as the morning before...

FUTURE NOTE

Why I use to remember a bright shiny sun up in the sky and trees that grew everywhere, but the sky has been black and the land so barren that it is sometimes seem their only dreams I fear, it is too late for what is it too late for what might have been there is only time for the now and then...

Feathers fly: World not big enough for both of them?

Letter to the Editor

I'm conveying this unpleasant communication to the editors of the Chronicle, not in the interest of promoting censorship in any way, but in the hope of arousing a modicum of human decency and self-restraint in having selected "The Shrinking World" for publication in the Chronicle! (November 5, 1986)

It is a sad commentary on our college community when we limit our intellectual pursuits to sibling rivalry which leads to murder at one extreme and fornication with the back. There are just too many Cal State police who seem to take great delight and merriment from doing a great disservice to both the public and to their fellow officers.

Cops too big for their boots?

Letter to the Editor

Here we go again, another chance for the Cal State campus police to put each other on the back and show the world what a great job they're doing fighting crime. At Cal Straight Drug? They must be kidding.

Sure, their recent indulgence in Drug Awareness is something that is generally applauded, but why are they wasting their time here? Furthermore, I've had enough of these guys putting each other on the back. There are just too many Cal State police who seem to take great delight and merriment from being able to strap down already poor students with useless and needless tickets. Anybody who doesn't believe it doesn't know about the time, so forget it, I personally have been threatened, struck, threatened some more, and verbally abused for infractions as minor as a tall light being out. Sure you could be like one of these gluttonous fools and lean over breathing heavily and say "I think you've got a bad attitude, boy," but hey, when every other cop in America is willing to warn you about minor infractions before ticketing you, and Cal State cops don't, then you begin to wonder if our cops are just plain bored or something. Poor guys, there just isn't enough crime going around. What's a matter? No donut shops anyway, because I'm likely to tell somebody where they can shove their puny ticket.

With compassion for good people who happen to be police officers, Jeck Grotke

Rebel letter inspires response

A rebuttal to the "Sandinista Rebel", whose letter appeared in the 11-5-86 issue of the Chronicle. First of my friend if you knew of the struggle the Sandinistas are fighting for you would not use the title so loosely. Second, as a competent Chicano student on this campus, I do not need any of your one-sided information spoon-fed to me. I have more then enough information already on the racist policies of this campus. These include the lack of tenure support for minority faculty, the misappropriation of E.O.P. funds by this administration, and their obvious preference of dogs over potential minority students, to mention just a few.

As for standing up to this administration, that is both stupid and needless. It is harder to assassinate a shadow than someone in the limelight. The administration believes in the family concept. If you attack one, they attack them all. They prefer character assassination and the threats of financial and academic loss rather than negotiations on any issue that might oppose their regime.

But fear not brother rebel, THE STRUGGLE CONTINUES! THE MAD MEXICAN

Commentary

November 4 was a banner day for "law and order" by J.F. Nasmith

Tuesday, November 4, 1986 was a banner day for law and order proponents in this state. At last, we the voters were able to respond to Governor Moonbeam's attempt to politicize the State Supreme Court. The voters of California responded to the pro-criminal Bird Supreme Court by running her and her cohorts out of office.

Below are just three case histories which lend justification to the ouster of Rosie and the Supremes.

1. Victim: Robin Samsoe, Age 12, Murdered

Robin was on her way to a ballet lesson in 1979 when she disappeared. Her decomposed body was found in a remote mountain ravine in L.A. County. Ten months later, a search which had been approved by a judge. In the diary, Ted stated, "I want to be sadistic. I want to hurt people."

2. Victim: Amy Sue Seitz, Age 17, Murdered, Raped, Tortured

Amy was abducted from outside her Camarillo home by Theodore "Ted" Bundy, 25, who was convicted of murdering, raping, and torturing 13-year-old Amanda Myers. Although Messer gave the money to Leach, then stabbed Messer 48 times with two knives while Messer begged for his life. Leach then cut Messer's throat. A Fresno County jury convicted Leach of torture-murder and robbery-murder and Leach was sentenced to death.

3. Victim: Michael Messer, Age 17, Tortured and Murdered

17-year-old Michael Messer accompanied an acquaintance, Michael Leach to a remote hill orchard. When they got there, Leach demanded money from Messer. Although Messer gave the money to Leach, then stabbed Messer 48 times with two knives while Messer begged for his life. Leach then cut Messer's throat. A Fresno County jury convicted Leach of torture-murder and robbery-murder and Leach was sentenced to death.

Ruling: Death sentence reversed by Rosam, Grodin, and Reynoso.

Reason: Not only because the jury was instructed not to consider sympathy for the killer but also because the court found evidence did not necessarily show that the killer intended to inflict extreme pain. The 48 stab wounds, said Reynoso, "are too broad in scope which allowed the police to seize the diary.

Careers: Why people get fired

October 28, 1986...The October issue of BUSINESS WEEK CAREERS magazine reports that about 10% of new employees are either fired or strongly encouraged to resign within the first six months on the job. Instead of learning from bitter experience, you should be aware of the most recent reasons new employees don't work out. Among the reasons included in "10 Reasons People Get Fired" is:

1. Failure to fit in—There's a "corporate culture" to every company, usually the reflection of management perceptions. If you're fired for not fitting in, don't think it's the end of the world, or your career. You're better off in a job where you do fit.

2. Overselling Yourself and Your Qualifications—This may help you get a job, but it won't help you keep it.

Anti-Defamation League sends telegram to Reagan

New York, NY...Burton S. Levinson, national chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, in a telegram Oct. 27 to President Ronald Reagan urged that our government sever relations with Syria and impose appropriate sanctions against her for attempting to sabotage and E1 Al jet with over 200 Americans aboard.

In the wake of the irrefutable evidence of Syrian guilt as well as the decisive action taken by Great Britain, the nation to actively support the U.S. in its raid against Libya, we believe that the U.S. should take further steps. We urge that our government sever relations with Syria and impose appropriate sanctions against her.

Your Administration has admirably led the fight against international terrorism. Now is the opportunity to take the next step, and demonstrate that allied cooperation to counter state-sponsored terrorism is feasible, that nations supporting terrorism act with impunity.
The Coming Crisis: America’s Troubled Economy

William Proxmire comes to Cal State

“America’s Troubled Economy” is the subject of a talk to be presented by U.S. Senator William Proxmire at 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 13 at Cal State, San Bernardino.

Proxmire is known for his “Golden Fleece” awards for frivolous use of federal funds, the maverick Senator from Wisconsin will appear in the university Recital Hall. Tickets are $5 in advance and $6 at the door for general admission; $3 in advance and $4 at the door for students with identification. Information and reservations may be obtained by calling the Cal State Special Events Office at (714) 887-7407.

According to the National Taxpayers Union, Proxmire has the best record in the U.S. Senate for holding down spending during the past four years and the overall best record for the past 13 years since the organization has been keeping records.

Proxmire also is renowned for his attendance at roll call votes. While the average U.S. Senator has missed more than 900 of the 8,800 votes taken since April 1966, Proxmire has answered every one.

The Wisconsin Senator is the author of several books, including “Can Small Business Survive?,” “Report from Wasteland,” “America’s Military-Industrial Complex,” “Uncle Sam, Last of the Big-Time Spenders,” “You Can Do It!” and “The Fleecing of America.” Proxmire’s appearance at Cal State is co-sponsored by the Associated Students’ Special Events Committee and the university’s Intellectual Life Committee.

Pre-Law Conference set for November 13, at UCLA

The 17th annual Pacific Pre-Law Conference is scheduled for November 13, 1986, in the Grand Ballroom, Ackerman Union on the UCLA campus.

Christ, Abraham, Moses, The Bab, Krishna, Zoroaster, Buddha, Mohammed, and Baha’ullah. If these nine were in the same room and there was only one chair, which one would sit in the chair?

The answer to this question is the subject of a fireside discussion with Michael Heister, a member of the Association for Bahá’í Studies, Tuesday, November 18, 6:30 p.m. in the comfortable quarters of Student Union Room A.

There is no charge for the event, sponsored by the Cal State Bahá’í Club, and refreshments will be provided.

Farwell named new VP

by James Tarrow

Effective October 13, Leonard Farwell was named the campus Vice President of Administration/Finance. The move was made in response to the continued increase in enrollment at CSUSB, which at this time, has exceeded 5,000 full-time equivalent units (FTE) as determined by the Student Census.

President Evans explained in a recent interview that each college with a student population over 5,000 is entitled to two vice presidents. Farwell has been appointed to this position formally only since mid-October, but has been fulfilling the duties of the job for some time.

Included in his job are the budget, campus planning (expansion), public safety and physical plant operations (grounds, building maintenance). The latter three responsibilities were taken on when James Urata retired earlier this year.

According to Evans, the new title does not actually represent a change in his position, status, or pay. It does, however, allow him to be more effective as a management level administrator. Evans explained that when dealing with a vendor, it helps to have a title that represents the person’s true position. Simply put, vendors know who they’re dealing with when it’s a state university vice president, rather than simply a business manager.

In an interview with Leonard Farwell, he revealed that his stated objective when he applied to Stanford University for his MBA was the job of business manager, a post he has filled here for over 24 years. His first taste of management in an educational setting was over 33 years ago when he was enrolled in the Antioch (Ohio) College work/study program. At that time, a student was required as a part of their education to spend a portion of the year in class, and a portion of time in an actual job setting. His second job in this program was that of bookstore manager, where he developed a close working relationship with the campus business manager.

On application to Stanford, he admits he had no idea what was really involved in the position of business manager. But since that time, he has served in numerous posts in and around education. He has worked in Industrial Relations at Bendix, working on union contracts in Personnel Classification with an aircraft parts manufacturer, and even for a mail order company answering complaint letters. Before he came to CSUSB, he worked at UCR as the Budget Officer, before that he worked as Assistant Business Manager at Scripps Oceanographic Institute, a high powered research institute in San Diego, which is now known as UC San Diego.

Farwell was the second person hired at Cal State. He said candidly, "the President needed someone to buy the furniture." That was back when Cal State was in the early planning stages and the office was out on the Imperial Highway. Cal State has come a long way since, and so has Farwell.

Looking to the future, he said, "Our biggest problem facing us is the problem of space. The new two-story faculty office building will not help with this problem. It’s a good challenge, but hard for the campus to live with. This problem is affected by the crunch is the evening enrollment. 44% of Cal State’s fulltime enrollment attend after 4 pm. We have an agreement in the works for night classes to be held at Cajon High School. Portable classrooms may also be required. If everything goes as planned we will be able to occupy our next classroom building in 1990. The recent passage of Proposition 56 should enhance the chances of that happening."

After 24 years here at Cal State, Farwell has a lot to remember. His daughter now is a Product Supervisor over the Wordstar Processing Program; his son is a graduate student at Penn State, working towards a Law Degree, his wife an alumna of UCR, working there as an admissions counselor.

In closing Farwell said, "I would like to add that I am very appreciative of the excellent staff in the administrative departments. They are excellent managers and their top quality staff make my job much easier."
College radio goes out on a limb

by Kim Schnepp

When was the last time you heard Siouxsie and the Banshees or the Smiths on 99.1? Probably not recently, if ever. College radio stations are playing more of these new bands while commercial radio stations cater to the top 40 audiences. Airplay on college radio gave bands like U2, the Police, and REM their first steps toward the present format. College stations quickly put the music into their programming. Students who work at college stations know what it's like to work in the broadcasting business and can play what they choose. Although there is a big difference between college formats and commercial programming, students get hands-on experience.

The one thing many students find in working at college stations is that they get spoiled. Having all the freedom they do, makes it hard to get used to working under someone else's "rules" on what to play. However, some students just work as D.J.'s so they can play the music they like or have fun.

College radio has become such a success that new bands often take their new releases directly to them for airplay. Commercial stations keep track of groups that become popular on college radio. Some college stations won't play any commercial music and some even refuse to play a band once it's signed with a record label. Stations around the United States have different ideas about format. Some go to the extreme, for the outrageous and new. Others just enjoy their freedom away from commercial sounding music.

College radio's influence has been gradual over the past few years. Since it has taken time to catch on, it has stayed new and hasn't become another college fad. If college radio catches on and gains more attention, it may be forced to change.

Maybe as college radio DJ's and directors graduate and continue in the business, they will bring new style to the present format. But for now, people who like reggae, blues, and new music, may have to be satisfied with turning on their local campus stations: stations like the new CSUSB radio station, KSSB. Maybe the next U2 or Police will be discovered right here on our campus.

John Irving to speak at Loyola

Best-selling author John Irving will make a rare West Coast appearance with cartoonist B. Kliban and 30 other successful writers at Loyola Marymount University's annual writing conference Saturday, November 15, and Sunday, November 16. The conference "Writing For Your Life VII," is a celebration of professional opportunities in writing, including lectures, readings, workshops, screenings, a champagne brunch, and a student writing contest.

B. Kliban's wacky books, such as Never Eat Anything Bigger Than Your Head and his off-beat, feline-themed t-shirts, calendars, posters, and greeting cards have become a staple of college students and humor-lovers across the country since the mid-1970's. Kliban will share his experiences as a professional cartoonist and his recent work in a formal lecture during the conference.

Other featured participants sharing their recent works and experiences during the LMU conference include "Twilight Zone" story editor Alan Brennert, noted grammarian Richard Mitchell, fantasy writer and president of Science Fiction Writers of America Janey Yolen, and novelist and L.A. Times book reviewer Carolyn See.

Registration fees for the two-day conference (including all meals and materials) is $75 for adults and $20 for students. For additional information on the conference and contest, call (213) 642-3549 or 642-2854.

Gallery hosts "unusual" art

An unusual exhibit of "naive" or "primitive" paintings executed by three prominent contemporary artists, including former San Bernardino resident, David Settino. Scott, will be unveiled Thursday, November 6 at CSUSB.

Other artists whose work will be on display at Cal State include the Reverend Howard Finster and Gayten Hansen, according to John Nava, professor of art and director of the Art Gallery.

"We are very fortunate to have the work of Reverend Finster's calibre in our exhibit because he is considered to be one of the foremost artists in the genre," remarked Nava. "Scott and Hansen, who are more sophisticated artists, have chosen this manner of painting because of its innocence and off-beat aesthetics."

The title of the show is reflective of the artist's renderings which tend to be eclectic combinations of Old Master imagery with objects and visions from the surrounding environment," he continued. "Instead of copying directly from art sources, the artists rely on memory, incorporating formal and stylistic elements which have impressed them most." Scott's interest in art began while he was touring with the U.S. Navy. The Reverend Finster is a fundamentalist preacher who utilizes his art to express his religious convictions. Gayten Hansen is becoming significant as he ages. The exhibit will be on display until December 4, in the Art Gallery.

Althea Waites, a critically acclaimed solo pianist, performed a crystal-clear set of music which included works by J.S. Bach, Franz Liszt, and Florence Price, who was the first black woman to be recognized as a composer of symphonic music. Reflecting the mood of Price's Sonata in E minor, Waites performed in a bright floral gown called an agbada.

Easily the highlight of the performance, which was well received, but unfortunately, poorly attended, Price's work reflected a strong nationalistic flavor in its treatment of Afro-American folk themes and idioms. The E minor Sonata is regarded to be a brilliantly crafted piece, and Waites did it justice, approaching it with the mix of delicacy and aggressiveness that is vital to the piece's effectiveness.

"It's plantation music, but you can make it noble," this she said to emphasize its roots, but noting that it was much more than that. The strength of the show, however, came out of the nobility that Waites managed to convey during what was, at times, a very moving performance.

"It's communication," Waites said. "All art is communication, and sometimes, music can be the highest form of communication."

Waites, who taught at CSUSB from 1979 to 1983 (back when it was CSCSB), returned to Cal State at the behest of Arthur Moorefield, the chair of the music department.

Review: The Twin Panda

The delicacy of sliced morsels of chicken, button mushrooms, snow peas and bamboo shoots.

These luncheon entrees are also offered on the dinner menu. For those who are early diners the Twin Panda serves an Early Bird Special from 3:30 p.m. The meals range in price from $5.95 to $7.25. A banquet room which holds 40 is another feature offered by Twin Panda.

A mere five minutes from CSUSB, Twin Panda is located at 4295 North Sierra Way in San Bernardino. Though the ambiance is cool and languid, the service, if you are in a hurry, is deceptively fast. This couple emerged from the booth a scant thirty minutes after being seated for a sumptuous lunch. Overall, the Twin Panda restaurant rates a batch of bear hugs.

It’s breakfast time in Los Angeles and people who read their newspapers over coffee are reaching for scissors to clip "The Far Side" cartoon by thirty-six year old Gary Larson. But Los Angelenos aren’t the only ones who appreciate the nationally syndicated cartoonist’s macabre sense of humor. Larson’s single-panel work, which focuses largely on scientific subjects, appears in over 400 newspapers across the country and can be found tacked on bulletin boards, taped above water coolers and magnetized on refrigerator doors all over the nation.

What’s behind Gary Larson’s bizarre but popular view of the natural world? When the weather in cloudy Tacoma forced the youthful tadpole collector indoors, he read Kipling and the Tarzan books. That early interest in jungle creatures and ape-men is still apparent in his work. Biological science courses which he enjoyed in high school and college introduced him to the scientific method, evolution, extinction and animal behavior—now frequent subjects of his lampoons. Years of nurturing scaly pets and friendship with the curator of reptiles at the Seattle Zoo may account for the frequent appearances of snakes in his panels. Primarily, "The Far Side" is attributable to Larson’s self-described "active imagination."

Larson likes the fan mail he gets from scientists. They may occasionally quibble with his habit of putting words in the mouths of cows or attributing contemporary human feelings to dinosaurs, but they find in Larson a kindred spirit who appreciates scientific lore even when he is poking fun at it.

Nearly 600 of Larson’s cartoons are included in a special exhibition, "The Far Side of Science," opening at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County on November 15, 1986.

The exhibition contains cartoons dealing with a wide range of natural history topics including evolution, extinction, animal behavior, early man and the scientific method. They cover a range of humor from the hilarious maverick penguin singing "I've gotta be me" to the poignancy of the elephant on crutches saying "They did what with my leg?"

The Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County is located at 900 Exposition Boulevard. It is open six days a week, Tuesday through Sunday (closed Mondays) from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Parking is available and there is a cafeteria on the premises. For admission price, and more information, please call (213) 744-3411.
New book features life of Castro

Fidel Castro: NOTHING CAN STOP THE COURSE OF HISTORY was published in late September by Pathfinder Press in New York. It is the longest and most wide-ranging interview ever granted to U.S. citizens by Cuban President Fidel Castro.

The interview that produced the book was conducted by Dr. Jeffrey M. Elliot, a professor of political science at North Carolina Central University, and U.S. Congressman Mervyn M. Dymally of California, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Their discussions with President Castro in Havana produced over 25 hours of taped conversation. These frank exchanges cover dozens of topics. The topics include — U.S.-Cuban relations, South Africa and apartheid, the U.S. role in Cuban troops in Africa, involvement in drug trafficking, the Olympics, and more. In addition, the book reveals much about the life of Fidel Castro, his relations with the Cuban people, and his views on Cuba itself.

Pathfinder Press has published three collections of Castro's speeches, a collection of the speeches and writings of Nelson Mandela, and books by Malcolm X and leaders of the Sandinista revolution in Nicaragua.

The book will be available in local bookstores or by mail from Pathfinder Press, 410 West St., New York, NY 10014.

Applications being sought for research posts

Deadline for Applications: January 15, April 15 and August 15, 1987

The National Research Council announces the 1987 Resident Associateship Programs for research in the sciences and humanities. The programs are designed to provide Ph.D. scientists and engineers of unusual promise and ability with opportunities to perform research on problems largely of their own choosing yet approved by the appropriate higher authorities. A stipend supplement of approximately $5,000 may be awarded to eligible recipients.

As long as the United States continues to believe that the Sandinista revolution can be defeated by a combination of actions by mercenary bands and economic sanctions, and that Salvadoran revolutionary movement can be crushed, the United States will not be willing to search seriously for negotiated political solutions in Central America. This is my firm conviction.

Fidel Castro: It's absolutely impossible for the U.S. government to have a single shred of evidence of this kind. If we stick to facts, during the last twenty-six years, Cuba's record in this regard has been impeccable. In our country, prior to the revolution, drugs were used, sold, and produced. The very first thing the revolution did was to eradicate that problem. Since measures were taken to destroy marijuana fields and to strongly punish all forms of drug production and trafficking. Since the victory of the revolution, no drugs have been brought into Cuba, nor has any money been made from drugs coming from anywhere else.

Cuba is the place most feared by drug smugglers. Although our country has been blockaded by the United States, Cuba is0 has no obligation to support them. South Africa's apartheid system has been adopted against us. The United States has systematically opposed all sanctions against the South African regime.

If, in compliance with the universal condemnation of apartheid, South Africa was effectively isolated, economic sanctions were implemented against it, and everyone were to support them, South Africa's apartheid system would come to an end.

So far, the Olympic Games have served to parade the rich, industrialized countries' wealth, good, nutritional standards, and excellent technical capacities. How many medals have been won by athletes from the Third World, from those countries that lack sports facilities, physical education and sports instructors, and proper nutrition for the children and young people from whose ranks the athletes must come?...Every four years, the Olympic Games measure the inferiority of the Indians, Blacks, yellows, and mestizos and the superiority of white society, even though it is the U.S. Blacks who win most of the medals for the rich, white, industrialized society of the United States.
AIDS is nothing to joke about

Health Corner
by Sonnie Bell

Although humor is sometimes used to promote reader interest, it can't be included this time. The subject is deadly. Oh yes, there have been jokes made about AIDS...directed at groups who comprised the majority of cases. But those short-lived fads who have laughed had better evaluate their joke material. U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop reports that... AIDS will probably increase and spread among people who are not homosexual or intravenous drug abusers.

Sisic AIDS was identified in the U.S. in 1981, the media has carried increasingly detailed information on it, describing what it is and its manifestations. Most people now know that AIDS is an Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, meaning that it is a non-genetic collection of illnesses that diminished the body's ability to fight disease. The public keeps it at somewhat of a distance, but there is a point of knowledge between common and criteria that should be achieved.

Early symptoms of AIDS may be fever, night sweats, headache, weight loss, and enlarged lymph nodes. Some non-definable symptoms include malignancies such as Kapous's Sarcoma (an unusual skin cancer usually found in older men) and primary brain lymphomas, fungal infections such as monilia in the mouth and the esophasgus, protozoan infection such as Pneumocystis carinii pneumonia and toxoplasmic brain abscesses. It is estimated that in 1991, fifty-four thousand U.S. deaths will result from AIDS.

The origin of the AIDS virus appears to be related to the green monkey of Africa; forty percent of them have viral antibodies similar to what is now known as HIV, or Human Immunodeficiency Virus. Not only does AIDS occur in the monkey, it apparently mutated out of that population into humans and presented a double problem. Not only was there no natural immunity in humans, but it destroyed the immune system itself, making mechanisms that normally intervene to contain a virus ineffective.

The extremely long incubation potential for AIDS...up to six years...is not only frightening, but creates enormous epidemiological challenges. Intimate sexual contact is the most frequent and sure method of spread. Dr. Koop states that...absolute certainty (of avoiding AIDS) means that you and your partner have had a mutually faithful monogamous sexual relationship for at least five years..."In culture fresh out of the "sexual revolution", this statement is profound. The best method of protection for those who cannot abstain from sex and who have questionably, monogamous partners is unskilled use of rubber contraceptives, and condom in both hetero, and homosexual relationships. AIDS has been spread by bisexual men, and through homosexual population from which it reaches the strictly heterosexual male population. It's not difficult to see that sexual promiscuity has permitted AIDS to gain such threatening advances.

AIDS education programs are being prepared by the professional staff of the Student Health Center, and are soon to be presented around the campus of CSUSB. In fact, one session was held Thursday evening for the Dorm Residents. Other sessions will be offered to Greek organizations, faculty, and staff members. It is of utmost importance that these sessions not be viewed as geared to the homosexual population. With AIDS presenting a broad threat, it is critical that thorough knowledge for prevention be presented to everyone. Research has provided much information on the virus itself, in effect on the human body, and on preventative measures. However, development in treatment is lagging. New drug therapies such as AZT have serious side effects and unreliable long-term results. The best way to stop AIDS is to control its access to new hosts. This is done through prevention accomplished by education and cooperation and acceptance of AIDS in the campus community. Please attend these meetings on campus. Precise announcements of time and place are forthcoming.

Reminder! The relaxation group meets every Tuesday at 1:00 in the Student Health Center. Join them and learn how to get "un-stressed" before final exams. Counselors in the Health Center! if you have any questions. At present, it is not necessary, but remember to wear comfortable clothing.

Shots now required at CSU

Students who live in campus dormitories
Students whose primary area of study is secondary education
Students who live outside of the United States
Students who are participating in student teaching, field work involving preschool, school-age children, or any practicum which takes place in a health care setting.

The Health Center will immunize students free of charge. Immunization hours are 9-5 weekdays, with no appointment necessary.

by Heidi Barlow
Measles and rubella immunizations are now a necessity for California State University students. According to Dr. James Savage, Health Center director, students not providing verification by February 6 will be asked to register for spring quarter classes.

In 1985, measles and rubella epidemics hit many universities in the east and midwest. Therefore, Savage explained, the aim of immunization is to prevent an epidemic among CSU students.

Student health Services must receive documented proof of measles-rubella immunization from students by February 6, 1987.

This verification must show that the vaccine was manufactured from live virus. Such a vaccine has only been available since 1969.

The following students are required to provide proof of measles and rubella immunization:

- New students born after January 1, 1957.
- Students born after January 1, 1957, who are applying for readmission.

Words of encouragement for women

Health Corner
by Sonnie Bell

A syndrome is a range of symptoms that, when viewed together, suggest a specific condition. A mysterious syndrome experienced only by women...has existed prior to the Middle Ages. In fact, it's possible that it existed before the days of the Roman Empire. A cure has never been found...not even symptomatic relief. The profound symptoms include: moodiness, crying, palpitations, inability to sleep coherently, cold feet (literally) and finally knees that shake and are magnetically attracted. The syndrome, variable in duration, is exponentially increased relative to time spent in a waiting area prior to a gynecological examination, especially the first one.

Well, my fellow women, after all these centuries, we will at last search out a cure for Gynecological Examination Paranoia, heretofore called GEP. This shall be accomplished through revealing a sequence of truths. The first and most important one is that all women have felt the same way you do. There hasn't yet been the individual who cruised complacently into a clinic and leaned into position without agonizing over whether or not it would look stupid to leave rocks on her bloodied feet. In fact, I have observed many come to a comfortable resolution on this issue myself...I leave them on, but that is a decision unhelpfully reached after many years of GEP and the birth of two children.

The second important truth is that it is important to become acquainted with and personally responsible for your own body. At the Student Health Center, you participate in your own examination...actively learning techniques of both visual and palpated (felt by the hands) self-breast examination. In fact a general head to toe physical precedes the actual gynecological exam. Through participation and learning from the beginning, by the time the pelvic portion begins, it is likely that you will be surprisingly at ease. True, knee magnetics will probably still be there, but this is recognized and easily managed by the doctor or nurse who does your exam. For your comfort, maintain awareness that this is different for these medical people than examining your ears...they're looking for physiologic indicators. This leads to the third important truth: you can have a good time. It's simply a common event to those who work in a medical office. The person who examines you will gently insert a speculum...a device to allow a view of the cervix (the bottom part of the uterus). Through the speculum a painless removal of a few cervical cells (the Pap Smear) will be done for microscopic examination at a laboratory. Then a manual exam of the vagina will be done with the other hand of the examiner on the lower abdomen feeling the outlines of the uterus and ovaries. Sometimes a rectal exam is done at this time too, depending on your age and the indications. The pelvic exam takes only about five minutes, and you can work it into a big GEP sweat.

An increasing number of abnormal Pap tests are being found in younger women...those in their teens and twenties. It's so important to find problems early...many times small cellular abnormalities can be taken care of right in the office. And as you know, early detection of a serious problem, yes cancer, is usually an indicator of a successful cure.

Since the GYN exam is something that must be faced again and again throughout a woman's life, you should know the fourth and final truth. It actually does get easier with time.

One more word about you part...be sure to talk. A big portion of the whole process is education, and without your questions and input, it's hard for the person examining you to realize your needs. Also as you learn more about your body, what to expect from it and the best way to treat it, you will gain confidence and security. Also I believe we've discovered the antedotes for GEP...confidence and security. They were in you all along! So pull on those whores up, and get yourself over to the Student Health Center. You'll be glad you did.
Soccer finishes strong, shuts out Long Beach

By Matt Pollard

As the CSUSB Coyote Soccer team was putting the finishing touches on a 5-0 victory over Cal-State Long Beach, the 1986 soccer season was coming to a close. Four of the Coyotes were coach Carlos Juarez, the victory marked the end of an impressive season in which the team defeated three NCAA Division I schools while posting a record of 12 wins and 7 losses. Though the Coyotes were not included in the top four ranked in the Women's Regional Playoffs (They finished fifth), they did record seven consecutive shutout victories, encompassing a total of more than 540 minutes without allowing opponents to score a single goal. Moreover, the season goal average against the Coyotes was less than one goal per game. "That was due to the total team defense that we played," Juarez said. He credited junior goalie Randy Green as the major reason for the defensive success. "He's a leader by respect. Everybody really trusts him," the coach added.

On offense, the Coyotes were led by Jerry O'Hara's 13 goals while Mark Trenter and Trevor Coleman finished second with six tallys. "We had a pretty balanced attack," Juarez stated.

The coach credited halfbacks Bill Alsenp, Trevor Coleman, Kiko Montes and Van Siersack with controlling the pace of the game for CSUSB.

"They did a good job for us in stabilizing our attack and controlling defense for us," Juarez states. By this, he meant that the halfbacks kept the ball away from the opponents and created possibilities on offense for the Coyotes.

Juarez said that his team has already begun training for the 1987 season. "During our off-season, we'll try to keep the team together; try to get them stronger and faster by training with weights," he said.

The coach also stated that the team will try to play as much soccer as they can during the off-season. This means that CSUSB players will be playing in city leagues. "In order to stay in shape, you have to play ten months out of the year," he said.

Looking forward to 1987, Juarez said, "Our goal for next year is to make the playoffs." He added that after this season's success, he hopes to see more people attending the Coyote's games in 1987.

Lady Coyotes take first-ever playoff spot, face La Verne

The Lady Coyotes volleyball team has received a post-season bid from the NCAA Division III playoff committee. The Lady Coyotes will face the University of La Verne this Thursday, November 13 at 5:30 at UC San Diego.

The Lady Coyotes received the bid late Sunday evening after playing in the UC, San Diego Invitational Tournament on Friday and Saturday. This is the first-time ever bid for the CSUSB volleyball team.

In the tournament, CSUSB raised their win total to an all-time high of 26 versus only 11 losses. "We played very well considering we didn't use our best talent," said Juarez. "Heddy played an excellent weekend of volleyball. She was consistent and played well all-around." Li is from Duarte and attended San Gabriel HS. Ruderman also cited Bridgette Austin, Patty Reid, and Rn Emley for strong outings in the weekend's tourney.

Thursday's match with the University of La Verne is crucial and a must-win for the Lady Coyotes since the post-season is single elimination. In the '86 season, CSUSB defeated La Verne in four games in September but lost two games to one in the Occidental tournament.

Twin Panda worth the time, and the money

By John and Tammy Horton

If you're into exquisite Chinese cuisine costing a mere pittance, try a special lunch at Twin Panda.

With a maximum of kudos already awarded by a major newspaper critic and the Southern California Restaurant Writers, the Twin Panda needs nothing more to prove. Except, that is, by your own taste buds.

Entering the large wooden double doors which face Sierra Way, a sparkling rock-rimmed pool greets you immediately on your left. Ushered from the plush foyer into the large primary dining room, you may have your choice of one of eight booths or nine tables.

Your formally attired waiter presents you with a multipaged menu. The inside first page reveals a confident subtle expression in art of the restaurant's theme: two panda bears frolicking amid a forest of pastel blue.

Indeed nothing about the languid appearance of Twin Panda— in either decor or service— prepares a patron for the already acclaimed five star service and Sze-Chuan delicacies offered.

While Twin Panda sports some 16 lunch specials, eight are $3.50, ridiculously low for a high restaurant so highly touted. Of these eight, you may have your choice between four chicken, two pork, two combination entree lunches, and one with beef.

Though all special lunches include the same side dishes, the preparation of entrees— each in the Sze-Chuan tradition— is distinctly different.

The Sweet and Sour Pork lunch served at one's table initially is a visual study in culinary contrasts. A candy-apple red sauce bathes golden brown, puffy deep-fried batter encased pork chunks. In the middle of this delectable sight is a generous amount of stir fried green pepper wedges, white onion pieces, and carrot slices. Arranged neatly in the center of this colorful entree rests a smattering of tiny golden pineapple wedges.

In our opinion, it is the crafty arrangement of these tart vegetables and honey-like pineapple on the oval platter that provide the intermingling of subtle sweet and sour flavor. The sauce, though attractive and tasty, appears more a visual condiment and less an integral part of the actual flavor.

A generous mound of delicate rice, enhanced with egg, two small fried wonton, and one plump four-inch-long Shanghai egg roll— complete with red pepper and yellow mustard dipping sauce— complements the sweet and sour pork lunch, and others. Of course, the obligatory— and tasty— egg flower soup, Chinese tea, and fortune cookies are also served.

Equally as attractive a dish, the Almond Chicken is served with whole button mushrooms, sliced mushrooms, crisp pieces of carrot, celery and water chestnuts, and one-inch chunks of chicken. It has a delicately flavored sauce which enhances this combination of foods.

Another entree to consider is their Moo Goo Gai Pan, a stir-fried (continued on Page 8)

Cal State opens new campus in Coachella

by Stacy Zidbeck

This fall, Cal State opened up a satellite campus in the Palm Desert. This is the seventh such campus to be opened and this particular one happens to be an extension of the CSUSB campus. Located about 75 miles from the CSUSB main campus, the satellite campus ("the Coachella Valley Center"), offers both upper-division and graduate programs. There are currently 300 students enrolled at the center and all are considered loyal coyotes.

Coachella Valley Center works closely with the College of the Desert in offering classes for freshman and sophomores. Almost all of the classes offered are late afternoon and evening classes because of the shortage of classroom space. As of now, the center is leasing a high school by night. But by Spring, they hope to have added three new buildings that will provide both classroom and office space.

The proposition to build this satellite campus first began 18 months ago and funding was finally approved in July. Classes began on September 25 and the standard quarter system that CSUSB runs will be followed. All registration fees are the same and once a person is accepted to CSUSB, he is also admitted to the satellite campus.

According to the Director of Cal State San Bernardino's Coachella Valley Center, Catherine Giannou, when CSUSB first opened in 1965, there were only 300 students enrolled. This doesn't mean that the Coachella Valley Center will become another main Cal State campus, but the area around the center is predicted to do allot of population growing in the future.

There is also the ITFS (Instructional Television Fixed Service) that has been established. Three classes at CSUSB are broadcasted down to Coachella Valley Center. Students at the center then telephone live to the professor of the class any questions they might have. They hope to have more such classes in the future, but initial testing is still going on. The results so far seem to be positive.

A few other campuses offer the experience of an extended campus. This is the seventh one in the state of California to be developed and most likely there will be more added. Any question or information you might want or need can be obtained by writing to Coachella Valley Center 43-500 Monterey Avenue Palm Desert, CA 92260
