Funds allotted for New Building

Preliminary funds for a new $17.5 million classroom/office/student services building at CSUSB are allotted in Governor George Deukmejian's 1987-88 budget, which has been described as otherwise tough on education.

Approximately $861,000 is provided in the budget for the drafting of blueprints for a 130,028-square-foot structure, which is scheduled for construction by 1990. The new building will house 147 faculty offices, 26 classrooms and 14 state-of-the-art laboratories for communication, industrial technology and computer science classes.

The new facility will enable CSUSB to accommodate nearly 2500 students, said Dr. Robert Detweiler, vice president for academic affairs. He pointed out that the university has been exceeding student enrollment projections by nearly seven percent for the last three years. With a student population of nearly 7500 this fall, the university is expected to have 10,000 students by 1990.

"We are delighted that the governor's budget provides the capital outlay for expansion to meet the needs of the growing university community," remarked Dr. Detweiler. "We currently have too few classrooms and instructional laboratories, inadequate facilities for student services and a large number of our faculty are housed in temporary trailer houses.

"Since the governor's budget appears stingy this year, the provision for the new building at Cal State was a major hurdle for us," he concluded.

Young Democrats Meet

The Young Democrats will be holding their next meeting at 9 a.m. on Thursday, January 22, in the Senate Chambers in the Student Union. There will be four meetings scheduled altogether this quarter, the remaining three are on the following dates: February 12, March 5, and March 19.

The times and places will remain the same as the meeting of January 22nd. At that meeting, members will be choosing topics on which to write viewpoints for a 'Point/Counterpoint' column being coordinated with the young Republican club, which will appear in the school newspaper. The club advisor is Dr. Carol F. Goss. For more information contact her at her office, 887-7276, or Patrick Lewis at 888-9846.

Scholarships Offered

The Association of Hispanic Faculty and Staff at CSUSB are offering three $200 scholarships to continuing students for the 1987-88 academic year. Applications are available in the Financial Aid Office, SS 143. All students are encouraged to apply by April 1, 1987. For further info, contact Carolyn Rodriguez, Financial Aid Office, Ext. 7741.

Teaching Scholarships Available

The California Student Aid Commission will award 200 scholarships to students pursuing teaching careers. Scholarships will be up to $5000 per year for a maximum of four years. Three-fourths of the scholarships will be awarded to applicants pursuing teaching careers in Math, Science, and Bilingual Education, or other shortage areas.

To be eligible, students must:
Demonstrate financial need.
Be a California resident.
Have graduated in the top 10 percent of their high school class or have a cumulative college GPA of at least 3.0 (if they have completed at least 45 quarter units).

Applications are available in the Financial Aid Office (SS-143). To apply, students must complete and submit an application, two letters of recommendation, and an Academic Information Form to the California Student Aid Commission by February 13, 1987.

Students are urged to apply at least 2 weeks in advance of the deadline to allow sufficient time for the receipt and verification of SAT/ACT score by the Admissions Office.

COVER

A Lady Coyote drives to the hoop during Homecoming.

Higher Authority

by Matt Cofer

The heavy-set man with the bushy eyebrows was leaning back against the wall in his swivel chair, using a foot against his desk to maintain balance. He gripped a newspaper tightly with his pudgy, crooked hands, and stared intently at the headlines of an article that read: "Convicted Spy found Dead in cell, apparent suicide victim." His eyebrows narrowed as he read, constricting his face into a medley of lines and deep wrinkles. As he finished reading, the eyebrows relaxed, the wrinkles receded, and a smile gradually formed. Removing his foot from the desk, he leaned his large body forward, the chair creaking loudly as he did. He put the newspaper down on the desk, began loosening the collar of his drab brown uniform, and picked up the mug with the picture of Old Glory and the words: "America, Love it or Leave it," on the side. He paused for a moment to read the slogan, then took several leisurely gulps of the lukewarm brown liquid. After setting the cup down, he again used his foot to lean the creaking chair back against the wall. Putting both hands behind his head in a bird-like gesture, he smiled broadly. A few minutes later there was a knock on the door of his small office.

"Yea, come on in," his voice crackled with the day's first speech.

The door opened and a tall, slender man with pale skin and a sparse scattering of freckles stood tentatively at the entrance.

"Come in and sit down Maynard," Boss said with a sigh.

"Can I talk to you for a minute Boss?" he said.

"What's on your mind boy?"

Maynard looked both ways down the hall outside the office, then stepped past the door, closing it quietly. His eyes avoided Boss's steely glare as he sat down on the other side of the desk.

"Did you see this morning's paper yet?" he asked.

"Course I did you idiot," Boss responded as he leaned forward in his chair and looked menacingly at Maynard.

"Well," Maynard questioned.

"Well what!" Boss replied.

Maynard fidgeted uneasily; "you know, what do you think?"

Boss's face flushed red.

"I think you think too much, and you bettah just shut you mouth and go back to guardin pris'ners like you're supposed to be," he snarled.

"But Boss, what if, I mean..."

"Shut up!"

Maynard's face twisted into several half-expressions, then settled on a look of apathy. Boss's face flushed a brighter shade of red as he scowled, his beady eyes glaring at Maynard's sullen posture. He hesitated a moment, took a quick breath, and began speaking in a controlled low voice.

"Now you bettah damn well listen this time, cause them investigatahs will be questionin' you and the boys today; and there bettah not be no screw-ups, else the next body goin' out of here in a sheet's gonna be yours! Now it's so damn simple even you can handle it. You took this fella his lunch first, just as usual, then you and boys herded the other cons to the mess room. You, Sam, and Macy ate your lunch first, while Billie and Frank stood guard. After that, you switched and watched guard for them while they ate, just as usual. When they was done eatin', you took the cons back to their cells; that's when you saw this fella a hangin' from that noose of torn up sheet."

Boss paused for a moment to catch his breath, and Maynard used the opportunity to speak.

"But Boss, what about the pris'ners?"

"What about them?" Boss retorted; "they don't even know that the back door to the guard's lunch room leads to the hall. None of 'em has ever been to that part of the building. They don't have no idea that you can get to the cell block that way; besides, they can't see into the lunch room through the mirror glass anyway."

"But we're usually in and out of that room durin' lunch, you know, to get a napkin, another drink or something," Maynard sheepishly protested.

Boss's face turned blood red.

"So maybe for once you assholes remembered to get all the shit you needed to eat your damn lunch without getting up again!" he said, his voice gradually rising above the low tone he had been using.

Maynard sat up straight in his chair and took a deep breath.

"I'll make sure Sam and Macy have their stories the same as me."

He shifted his arms to the side of his chair, readying himself to stand up.

"I'm sure glad you put off them local boys until the Feds could get here today; it gave us some time to get our story straight," Maynard said as he stood up.

For a fleeting moment, the signs of a smile began to form on Boss's face, then they were gone.

"You and me both Maynard," Boss replied.

the Writer's Corner

The Writer's Corner is a weekly feature of the Coyote Chronicle, spotlighting short stories and/or poetry from Cal State San Bernardino students and faculty. Interested students or faculty may bring their work(s) to the Chronicle Office, located in the Student Union. The Chronicle editors oversee all submissions, and decide which works shall be published.

"What about Billie and Frank?" Maynard asked as he turned towards the door.

"I'll take care of them, you just make damn sure you keep your story straight, and your mouth shut otherwise; remember, this was for everybody's good," Boss replied.

Maynard looked at Boss, started for the door, stopped, then turned hesitantly back toward the Boss. His lips quivered silently for a fraction of a second, then words became audible.

"Do you really think we did the right thing Boss?" he asked.

"You bet your sweet ass we did, boy. That man was a Russian Communist Spy, and there's nothin' lower or more rotten than that. There's no tellin' how much he's cost the United States already, and the way those god-damn Federal Judges are he woulda probably lived a long life at our taxpayer's expense, and still found ways to help them Commies. Worse yet, they might of let him go 'cause they was afraid of what the Russians might do. Yep Maynard, it's bettah this way. We done our Country a great service, you can be proud son," Boss leaned back in his chair, his face returning to its normal color.

Maynard's glassy stare seemed to focus somewhere beyond Boss and the room. Suddenly the look changed and he was looking at Boss again.

"Yep, I guess your right Boss," he said and opened the door.

He took another deep breath, then left the room, closing the door gently behind him. A few moments after Maynard had gone, Boss suppressed a chuckle, then smiled broadly. Twenty minutes later Boss's phone rang, and he picked up the receiver.

"Hello," he said.

"It's me," a voice responded; "the men are on their way, they'll be there in about an hour, you all set?"

"All set," Boss responded.

"No problems with your boys huh?" the voice asked.

"Nothin' I can't handle," Boss said.

"I hope you're right, after all, if word of this got out... well the less accidents the better, right?" the voice said.

"I agree sir," Boss said swallowing.

"Good! be at the place tonight at 11 p.m. for your bonus," the voice said.

"Will do sir, thank you," Boss said as he hung up the receiver.

Letters to the Editor...

To the Editor,

I am writing in response to Mr. Yarrow's article on the defense of our nation. His article is full of generalizations, half truths and cheap shots.

The article attacks the defense industry by blackening the names of our servicemen and women. Yes, they are highly trained people, just as a doctor is highly trained in the field of medicine. Both professions are in business to save lives. The military, in its ability to kill, is an instrument for keeping peace.

Mr. Yarrow, the idea of keeping peace is far from being rubbishy. When you wake up in the morning, without fear of a hostile nation, who do you thank?

In his article he mentions that some may call him a communist or some other derogatory name. True some might, but they would only be stooping to Yarrow's own level.

I do not think the members of our armed forces would enjoy being called "Murder Merchants."

In his article he asked a couple of questions. Of course they were sensationalized, but I understand his questions. Do I feel more secure in the knowledge that we have nuclear weapons? Yes, I do. I believe everyone wants to rid the world of nuclear weapons, but to become defenseless is foolhardy. Being defenseless means to be open to attack. It is a country's responsibility to defend itself from hostile forces. Could a defenseless United States be attacked? This question cannot be answered with a firm "No". So the defense of our nation is legitimized.

Another question was about SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative), and asked if the billions of dollars poured into it benefitted mankind. Once again I would answer yes. If the SDI program is to deter hostilities then it will be a working deterrent. A system such as proposed by the SDI program would make large steps toward global nuclear disarmament. So yes, it is a worthwhile endeavor.

Yarrow, you seem to blame President Reagan for the arms race. He did not create it out of his head, it was already here when he became president. His SDI program is an attempt to rid this world of nuclear weapons.

I praise your search for peace, but I do not fully understand your approach towards gaining it. You stated "and that is what I intend to do." How? How are you going to rid the world of war? I, like many others, would like to know. I do not think that having worked in companies that create the hardware for our military gives you any insight into it, or the minds of people serving in it.

In closing I would encourage Yarrow to reply to my article. Discussion of this subject on a rational level can only further our goal of peace.

Wants out of Greeks

To the Editor and the Campus Community:

I regret that I have helped start Greek Life on this campus. What was originally started to promote leadership and scholarship has turned out to be the opposite. The stereotypes said about fraternities and sororities at most places are true. Yes, a lot of people in the Greek system go on academic probation at many campuses, and I see no reason why CSUSB's Greek system will be an exception. Greeks here, I have observed, are interested more in getting drunk and smashed than helping the community.

To top it off, the Dean of Student Life allowed the Greek Council President last fall to stay in office even though he hit below 2.00 grade point-wise. This is an insult to independents, where for most campus offices, including the Associated Students, any quarter below 2.00 means you are automatically kicked out of office.

Some of you readers knew I wanted to leave the Greeks because I found Jesus and that He and the church I belong to forbid fraternity and sorority Pssst! Did You Hear About The...

RUMORS

by Cheri Metier

The beginning of a new year and a new quarter, has brought about the genesis of new ideas, feelings, and of course, those interesting tidbits of unconfirmed news called rumors.

The Committee for Clubs meets weekly to discuss ways in which to aid all of the clubs on the CSUSB campus. The most prominent of which happens to be granting the clubs loans for various events. In order to share these events with the students and staff of CSUSB, the committee will be writing a new article for the Chronicle and will entitle it "RUMORS".

These rumors are tales that may or may not always be true, but there will be some foundation hiding within each one. This is to encourage people to participate in club sponsored events and to encourage clubs to hold events that are open to the entire CSUSB campus.

The rumor currently circulating is about CSOCW (Cal-State Organization for College Women). The club is working on a project for March which will include displays, celebrities, and other surprising fun.

The word is also out that the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans are going to be having a "War of Words."

This could prove to be very interesting. In the future, we hope to keep you well informed of upcoming events and of club secrets.

membership. The truth is also that even if I were an atheist, I would have questioned why am I participating in Greekdom. Another truth is that I still love the people in the Greek system: it is the system that I am against because it corrupts our collegiate youth in the United States. I know about this alot more than most of the CSUSB Greeks here; I was a Delta Sig for five years, and held Chapter Offices of President and Secretary at Northridge and here all four years. I have attended a pair of National Delta Sig functions and I still can't believe what I saw. Space restrictions prohibit me to go on.

Anyone worth his or her salt should think twice before joining any Greek organization. It would be hard for him or her to get out once he or she joins. At time of this writing, I have not been officially expelled from the Delta Sigs despite repeated requests for four months and the fact I want to leave and be happy.

Sincerely,
Bill J. Gropp, Jr.

Kendra & Barry are a new acoustic/folk music duo formed in 1982 by Kendra Shank (vocals, guitar) and Barry Hunn (vocals, 12-string banjo). Their eclectic blend of traditional and contemporary folk, bluegrass, jazz, blues, French songs and original compositions has caught the attention of audiences along the West coast.

In 1986 Kendra & Barry were included on the Victory Music Revue, a record anthology of select Pacific Northwest artists, and they have shared the stage with such nationally-famed performers as Danny O'Keefe, The Mamas and Papas, and Doc Watson.

It is their variety of music, their perceptive and skillful interpretations, and the warmth and spark of their presentation that draws audiences to Kendra & Barry. Kendra's French singing is powerful, yet elegant and the unique sound of Barry's rare, custom-designed 12-string banjo adds a haunting, exotic texture to the continental flavor. On gentle, rolling folk ballads, Kendra's fingerpicked guitar and Barry's banjo provide a lilting background for their beautiful vocal harmonies.

Kendra & Barry create a stunning contrast when they move from the soft, floating vocal tones of the ballads to their driving, belting bluegrass singing, backed with hurtling banjo runs and deep, full rhythm guitar. The mood changes once again when the duo perform one of Barry's delicate, enchanting compositions reminiscent of classical/impressionist music, where the banjo and guitar lines weave in and out of one another with moving sensitivity.

"Kendra & Barry have mastered so many styles that surprise is no longer a surprise at all."
--RAVE Entertainment Guide

"Together these two are a little incredible. A smooth, rich blend of humor and affinity and dignity that goes straight to where you live."

The Health Corner

Health Center Offers Services

Happy New Year to all of you. We hope that your Christmas break was "just what the doctor ordered"! 1987 has already shown itself to be a year of changes and challenges. Since we reopened on January 5th, we have been overwhelmed with students suffering with colds and the flu; many of our students are also bringing in their measles documentation or taking advantage of the free immunizations here; and finally we have had to deal with the loss of our pharmacist, Peggy Geane, who died on Saturday, January 3rd. A special article about Peggy can be found in this issue. We will miss her.

Just in case you have forgotten, or for those of you who have never taken advantage of your Health Center, here is a list of things you should know about our services:
  Most services are prepaid in your registration fee. You must present your Winter 1987 identification card in order to receive any of these services.

 Hours are Monday to Thursday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Fridays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (NOTE: limited services available from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.)
  For prompt service, make an appointment. Students who find themselves pressed for time should make an appointment rather than request service at a drop-in visit. This reduces your waiting time and ensures prompt service. Call 887-7641 for an appointment.
  Your medical record is confidential. Information will not be released without your written consent, except for legal subpoenas or in the case of some communicable diseases which by law must be reported to the Public Health Department.

Supplementary Insurance Available

A supplementary accident and illness insurance policy is available to all registered students. This plan provides partial insurance coverage if a student requires hospital care or emergency treatment. The plan is designed to complement the Student Health Center by providing coverage for services not offered at the center. The cost is $49 per quarter. Brochures and applications are available at the Health Center. By the way, no insurance is necessary in order to go to the Student Health Center.

Measles Documentation Deadline Approaches

February 6th is the deadline for certain groups of students to show evidence of immunization against both measles and rubella (German measles). If you fall into any one of the following groups, you must comply or a hold may be placed on your spring registration materials.

1. All NEW students born after January 1, 1957.
2. All students born after January 1, 1957 who are applying for readmission.
3. ALL students who reside in campus residence halls.
4. ALL students whose primary and secondary education were obtained outside of the United States.
5. Students who are participating in: dietetics, medical technology, nursing, physical therapy and any practicum, student teaching or field work involving pre-school children or school-age children (including the Children's Center) or taking place in a health care setting.

This is required by the California State University Chancellor through Executive Order 469.

If proof of immunization for measles and rubella is not available from family physicians, community medical providers, or through your official high school immunization record, students can be vaccinated by the Student Health Services at no cost. Immunizations will be given from 9:00 until 4:00 p.m. Also, physician or public health nurse documentation of the history of measles (rubeola only) will be accepted.

If you have any questions, stop by or call the Health Center at 887-7641.

Concert set for U of R

Local boys made good, the Unforgiven, will headline a show also featuring Black Patti, and the Faith Healers at the University of Redlands Commons, Friday, January 23, 1987 at 8 pm.

Admission is $6.50 at the door. The Unforgiven recently creased the national charts with their single 'I Hear the Call.'

Contemporary Expressionistic Art Displayed

The creations of contemporary expressionist artists such as Andy Warhol will be on display in the CSUSB Art Gallery Jan. 15-Feb.12.

The exhibit, assembled from the collection of Los Angeles graphic designer Jeffrey Kerns, will be unveiled at a public reception from 5 to 7 pm, Thursday, Jan. 15 in the university gallery.

Prior to the exhibit opening, Kerns and a colleague, Michael Kohn, who wrote the catalog for the show, will discuss how to put together a 'museum quality collection' on a limited budget at 3 pm in Room 110 of the Visual Arts Building at Cal State. Both the talk and reception are free and open to the public.

The paintings, photographs and prints in the 'Point of View' show represent the work of prominent New York and European artists, according to John Nava, director of the Art Gallery.

In addition to six silk screen prints rendered by Andy Warhol, the exhibit will include the work of Keith Haring and Jean Michael Basquiat, who are former members of the 'graffiti artists' movement' in New York, Nava explained. The work of Robert Longo also will be featured, he added.

Among the European artists whose work will be featured will be Andrew Schulze of Germany, whom Nava describes as an 'emerging artist who was just featured in a cover story in 'Flash Art.'

Several prints by popular photographer Joel Peter Witkin and a nine-foot-long painting by John Sonsoni, who is a former Cal State art instructor, also will be on display.

Pharmacist will long be remembered

Peggy Geane was one of a kind, and at CSUSB, she was the only one! More than two decades of CSUSB have passed by and during that time there have been two Vice Presidents, many Department heads, many deans, many medical doctors, many coordinators, hundreds of secretaries, many security officers, many groundskeepers, many nurses, thousands of students, but only one pharmacist - Peggy Geane.

Students, staff, and associates will long remember the free aspirin, free Tylenol, free antacids, free band-aids, free cough medicines, and a sympathetic ear in an emergency. Long remembered will be her continued efforts to make medications affordable for CSUSB students. There was always a friend at the pharmacy window where the kid away from home found a kind word when it was needed. Peggy's efforts were tireless in making your CSUSB pharmacy the best.

Peggy's life was short, but complete. She was a wife - husband Nick is also a pharmacist. She was a mother of two children - Gregg, BS in Accounting (CPA) and MBA from USC, and Stephanie, a student at Arizona State University. Peggy was also a pharmacist, with a BS in Pharmacy from St. Louis University School of Pharmacy.

She was very active in our community with involvement in PTA, Santa Claus, Inc., Casa Ninos, Zonta Club, CSUSB President's Club, Business women, as a business owner (Community Pharmacy), and on and on. Pacific High School had awarded her an outstanding Achievement Award for her contributions.

Peggy left us January 3rd, 1987 after a very sudden but brief illness, and was laid to rest on January 6th, 1987. She was our friend - she reached out and touched many lives and all have benefitted by the experience. We will miss her.

Peggy had a great love for CSUSB, and the family has established the Peggy J. Geane Memorial Scholarship Fund. Anyone who would like to contribute to this fund should make out their checks to CSUSB Foundation and forward them to the Executive Dean's office.

Cal State San Bernardino

Fulbright Scholar Loves Teaching

by Sue Barcus

What is a scholar? Webster's dictionary defines it as a learned person; one trained in a special branch of learning, as literature, arts, etc.; advanced student.

Tatiana Galvan can answer the question because, "I will be in the learning process my whole life" she said.

Her learning process has spanned more than 20 years of higher education. A student, communicator of ideas and researcher; Mrs. Galvan is the first Fulbright Scholar at Cal State San Bernardino. The United States Congress, desiring mutual international understanding, passed the Fulbright Act in 1946 to fund an educational exchange of United States and foreign participants to study, teach, research, or lecture in the United States and abroad.

Dr. Fred Jandt, head of the communication department, also noted that the Fulbright foundation wants visiting scholars like Mrs. Galvan to become involved in both the on-campus and off-campus communities.

"Tatiana has spoken to university support groups and classes, visited the Chamber of Commerce and a Chicano News Media Association in addition to being a mentor teacher to a student on this campus," Jandt said.

As a Fulbright Scholar, she is involved with research for a book on the hispanic mass media in California, a subject she will explore in a class she teaches in Spanish this quarter. During her 10-month stay, Mrs. Galvan will cover course work in comparative communication systems, hispanic mass media, and diffusion of innovations.

"As a department, we have identified that we are sitting in a part of the country that has a very large and well established hispanic media - both in print, radio and television, and it's something we feel should be a part of our program," Jandt said.

Mrs. Galvan began dedicating herself to education in 1967 as an assistant professor in the communications department at the National University of Mexico (UNAM) while working toward her bachelor of arts degree in communications, which she received in 1972.

In 1974 she was awarded a scholarship to Stanford University under the Juarez-Lincoln Interchange Program. Before starting school in September of that year, Stanford enrolled her in an intensive three-month English course.

Orienting oneself to a new language and surroundings would have been an immense task had it not been for her husband, Al, whom she met and married while at Stanford, she said.

In two years Mrs. Galvan acquired a good command of the English Language, easily adjusted and earned her masters of arts degree in communications in 1977.

After completing her study at Stanford, Mrs. Galvan returned to UNAM in 1977 to work on her doctoral thesis in Political Science with emphasis in communications. She expects to complete that in 1987.

Since 1977 Mrs. Galvan has worked as a full-time professor, teaching courses in communications theory. She was head of the communications department from 1979 to 1981 and worked at the Center of Communications Study as a researcher from 1982 to 1986.

The research stemmed from her interest in Mexican political party issues.

Mrs. Galvan wrote for the editorial section of the Mexican newspaper El Dia from 1981 to 1985. In 1983 she was also Editorial Director of Notimax, the News Agency of Mexico and worked as a newscaster in 1966 and 1971 for television stations 2 and 8, respectively, in Mexico.

Tatiana's contacts in the international community and with scholars all over the world are incredible," said Jandt.

As a professor at Cal State San Bernardino, concerned with increasing mutual understanding through education, Mrs. Galvan audits courses each quarter to see how professors here work with students.

"It is not just learning the words. It is understanding what is happening behind the words," she said.

One of the main reasons the communication department requested a Fulbright scholar was to get someone with expertise on hispanic media, who could help the department decide how they could fit it into their programs, stated Jandt.

Mrs. Galvan said at the beginning of the year she had a hard time understanding how to get her concepts and ideas across to the students.

"We (at UNAM) deal with broad concepts - a more holistic view of the world," she stated. This is a part of the theory behind the Fulbright Scholarships; to expose people to different points of view.

After a 10-month stay, a Fulbright Scholar may apply for an additional year, but after that cannot work in the United States for two years and must return to their own country. To be a Fulbright Scholar you need letters of recommendation from three professors in the United States. Mrs. Galvan had worked with professors from Dayton, Duke University and San Francisco State.

Mrs. Galvan said she might not have so readily accepted the Fulbright position had it been offered back East. Cal State San Bernardino is close enough to the Mexican border that "my husband comes to visit me three weekends a month and I go down to Tijuana once a month," she said.

California feels like home, in terms of the culture, the food and the weather. "I hear about the blizzards in the East and yet here in California it is sunny and warm," Mrs. Galvan said.

Her family is in Mexico City, where she was born. Her father is 72 years old and retired from the construction industry. Now he sculpts, and is "quite good at it."

"My mother paints. I am auditing a drawing class in the winter quarter so I can learn to use my hands," Mrs. Galvan said. She has two sisters, Zita, an architect and Kyra, an economist and prize winning poet. She also has a brother, David, an economist.

Will Stress Skills Development

Leadership Conference Set

by Yvette Valley

A leadership conference, open to all members of the CSUSB community, will be held Saturday, January 31 from 8:30 am to 1 pm in the Student Union.

The conference, is primarily aimed at student leaders and club members but is open to anyone. The conference will also be open to student leaders from other campuses. Tami Bakewell, Student Life advisor, is the chair of the conference planning committee.

"Many clubs are sending representatives to the conference," Bakewell said, "but the conference is open to anyone seeking skills for leadership positions in the community, church, or at work, as well as on-campus."

The conference was planned in light of a needs survey that was distributed to various clubs and organizations on campus. It identified the various needs and complaints of student leaders and club members. The primary concerns were "getting and keeping members" and "project planning." The biggest complaints were "apathetic or lack of membership" and "lack of motivation."

The conference format is scheduled to include one morning general session and three dual sessions.

The keynote speaker will be Diana Harris, dean of RCC, Moreno Valley. She will discuss motivation at the general session.

Harris has been involved in student affairs and activities for four years at RCC. Before becoming Dean, she was the campus activities co-ordinator there. She has had a broad range of management and administrative experiences. These include owning her own public relations and advertising firm and managing political campaigns.

Each person will select three of the five or six workshops offered to attend. The workshops will each last 40 minutes and will run from 9:48 to noon, with a ten minute break between sessions.

Workshops will include: 'Membership'-- This workshop will be offered twice. Hints on how to increase and keep members.

'Project Planning and Procedure'--Campus policy and 'channels' and planning strategies.

'Publicity'--Hints on bulk mail, flyer tips, and various publicity resources.

'Money Matters' -- How to minimize costs, maximize financial resources, banking tips, and fundraising.

'Communication' --How to brainstorm effectively, reaching decisions by consensus, informal communication, and parliamentary procedure.

The conference costs $4 per person. This includes all workshops attended and lunch.

Pre-registration is required. For registration form, see leadership conference advertisement in this issue of the Chronicle. Registration forms are also available through Tami Bakewell, 887-7407.

Kaleidoscope is published weekly by the Department of Communication to augment classroom instruction. Pro-Choice advocates set seminar

On January 22, 1987, the fourteenth anniversary of the US Supreme Court's landmark ruling that legalized abortion in America, the California Abortion Rights Action League (CARAL) and the Washington, DC-based organization, the National Abortion Federation (NAF) will co-sponsor an educational seminar, 'The Truth About Abortion.'

The seminar will be held on Thursday, Jan. 22 from 9 am to 4 pm at the Unitarian Church, 1260 18th St., in Santa Monica. (The Church is located one block south of Wilshire at the corner of 18th and Arizona.) Pre-registration is required.

The event is being sponsored in part to counter deceptive information spread by anti-choice forces, at bogus pregnancy clinics and in response to divisive propaganda purported in the forthcoming second film by abortion foe, Bernard Nathanson

"Anti-abortion activists are deliberately misleading and intimidating the public...the truth is that abortions are legal, moral, and safe, and we must get that information across," asserts Barbara Radford, NAF's executive director.

'The Truth' will focus on the medical facts relating to abortion techniques, the safety of abortion, fetal pain, viability and amniocentesis. Participants will learn to use this information in other educational or medical settings. The faculty for the seminar will be comprised of physicians, social workers and leaders of pro-choice organizations.

Also discussed will be the ongoing threat to abortion access from violence against abortion clinics. In the last 2 1/2 months of 1986, four abortion clinics were targets of bombs and arson. According to Jo Ellen Pasman, executive director of CARAL,

"The agenda of the anti-choice movement is to outlaw abortions no matter what the cost to women's lives. Failing to do so, anti-abortionists have turned in frustration to invading, bombing and burning legitimate medical facilities. Clinics that offer a range of important services - abortion,
