Student suspended, not arrested in rape investigation

by Kevin R. Horney
Editor-in-Chief

A 19 year old dorm resident was placed on interim suspension by CSUSB pending a campus hearing on allegations stemming from an attempted rape on January 20.

Craig Henderson, assistant to the Vice President, Student Services, stated that the student was placed on interim suspension in accordance to CSU Executive Order number 148.

"The suspension was done pending a hearing on the evidence we present for the university here, and on our campus," Henderson said. "Our proceedings are separate from those of the [campus] police, and fall solely under student conduct codes, not criminal law."

Under the requirements of section 41302, the student

"...so placed on interim suspension shall be given prompt notice of charges and the opportunity for a hearing within 10 days of the imposition of interim suspension."

Campus police has not made any arrests in connection with the attempted rape at this time, even though a second co-ed has come forward to press charges.

"We are still interviewing people from the party and are looking for others to come forward with information," said Ed Harrison, Chief of Campus Police. "We are going to be certain we can make the charges stick before we make any arrests."

The campus police is working in close conjunction with the District Attorney's office in preparing the case. San Bernardino police is also assisting in the investigation by providing modern scientific analysis of evidence from their crime lab.

"The San Bernardino police has been analyzing clothing for fibres and hairs; stuff that we just don't have the equipment to do here," Harrison said.

Harrison also commented on allegations from Rima Said, Associated Students Vice President, that the department is drastically

Students, save our planet

By Tracy Bellon
Managing Editor

What is Earth Day? Is it the earth's birthday? A holiday for the earth and its people? Anymore guesses?

Earth Day, April 22, 1990, is a special day for the planet and its people because it deals with the future. "Earth Day 1990 is all about education. Its not political or restricted to scientific disciplines-rather, its a human issue. You, me, and our children and grandchildren," said Dr. David Polcyn, campus co-ordinator for Earth Day at CSUSB.

The environment is facing many serious problems such as ozone holes, toxic wastes, greenhouse effect, acid rain, shrinking rain forests and expanding deserts. On April 22, 1990, millions of people will pull together to help cure the planet from those environmental damages.

Polcyn stated "The human population dilemma, and all of its correlates-pollution,

Can the earth survive ?

Used with permission

ozone depletion, greenhouse effect, mass starvation, epidemics-is, without a doubt, the most significant challenge ever faced by man."

What can you do about the environmental crises?

Well, besides Earth Day, CSUSB will have an Earth Week during April 16-20. Many activities will be going on such as tree planting,

Prof convicted of racism

By Larry Rippee
Staff Writer

A CSUSB professor has been placed on three years probation after having been convicted of a racist act against a CSUSB student.

George Weiny, 59, a Physical Education professor, and one-time Chair of the physical education department, was found guilty Dec. 4 of placing a note containing obscene language, and a racial slur, on the windshield of a black student's car.

However, CSUSB's recommendation that Weiny be dismissed was rejected by the arbitrator, William Levin.

Levin, in his written opinion, stated that dismissal was too harsh a punishment for a tenured professor with no previous record of anti-minority bias.

Dr. J.C. Robinson, associate vice president for academic personnel, felt that the arbitration hearing resulted in a successful conviction.

"He (the arbitrator) accepted the evidence we presented and found the charges to be true," said Robinson.

The arbitrator's decision, in part, was based on the testimony of a handwriting expert who identified the note as having been written by Weiny.

"We successfully linked him (Weiny) to a note placed on the windshield of a black student's car," said Robinson.

Though Robinson is pleased with the conviction, he feels the arbitrator's decision to place Weiny on probation, rather than firing him, constitutes a mitigated punishment.

"To me it's a slap on the wrist," said Robinson. "It's extremely difficult for someone in the legal profession to really understand why some of these things in the academic environment are so serious. In the legal culture there are degrees of crime."

Robinson stated that for a professor to write a note containing a racial slur "violates the sensibilities of the academic community."

Rafer Johnson carries his torch to CSUSB

by William Lundquist
Staff Writer

A rumor going around Hollywood had Elizabeth Taylor carrying the Olympic torch into the Coliseum in 1984.

Rafer Johnson may get his revenge by playing the title role in a film version of "The Bruce Jenner Story." He admits he is a little taller than fellow decathlon winner Jenner.

As the 1990 CSUSB Homecoming speaker, decathlon winner and National Special Olympic Head Coach Johnson showed that he is gifted in an eleventh event, humor.

While he threw gentle digs at Los Angeles and his friend Bruce Jenner, Johnson said it was a "fantastic experience" to carry the Olympic torch up the stairs of the Coliseum to light the flame of the '84 games.

Johnson won the decathlon in the Pan American games in 1955, and won the silver medal in the following Olympic games. He returned to the Olympics in 1960 to take the gold.

Comparing the lighting to winning the decathlon in 1960, he said both experiences were "equally spectacular in how they made me feel. Both were humbling."

To satisfy producer David Wolper, Johnson had to run up the specially constructed steps to the top of the Coliseum while a short piece of music was played in the background.

Plans for new building approved

By Dan Schruender
Staff Writer

The CSUSB Board of Trustees has recently approved plans for a new Business Administration and Information Science Building at a projected cost of $24,310,000.

The new building will house the School of Business and Public Administration, and the Departments of Mathematics and Computer Science.

In addition, the new facility will provide classroom space for 2100 students and 169 faculty offices for business, mathematics and computer science instructors.

Twenty-four lecture rooms, with stations to accommodate 28 to 150 students will be included in the new structure. Seventeen laboratories and eleven self-instructional computer terminals are also planned.

The building will be approximately 133,700 gross square feet, with 85,738 square feet of usable space.

"The approval of this new facility reflects the growth of our campus, which is expanding by an average annual rate of ten percent each year," said CSUSB President Anthony H. Evans. "It is especially significant in that nearly one-fourth of our student population is business majors."

Current enrollment is 10,886, which represents a 12.29 percent increase since the 1988 fall quarter, according to the Registration Office.

Construction is scheduled to begin in 1991.

Cramer named CSUSB's outstanding professor

Outstanding professor named for 1990

Dr. Robert Cramer, professor of psychology at CSUSB, has been chosen as "Outstanding Professor" for 1990.

In the next month he will represent the San Bernardino campus in the CSU competition where two outstanding professors will be chosen from the entire CSU system.

Cramer has been a faculty member at CSUSB since 1978. As a social psychologist, Cramer has been involved in a variety of general research projects examining interpersonal attraction and social relationships. His topics have ranged from "social foraging," a look at under what conditions men are viewed by women as acceptable for dating and as potential mates, to a "reinforcement-context theory" which examines how social context can influence to whom we are attracted.

Since Cramer's professional activities train students in conducting psychological research, seven years ago he founded the Social Learning Research Group (SLRG) at CSUSB.

Several students have earned authorships for their contributions to psychology as SLRG participants.

"I was very excited and very honored by the recognition from my peers," said Cramer.

"Recognition from those who know you is a very great experience. I'm very pleased for my students who play a very, very important role in my teaching and professional activities. Their contributions are recognized by this award."

Honors are not new to Cramer, who has been the recipient of several grants and awards including Cal State Faculty Professional Development Grants in 1984 and 1986, a $10,000 Southern California Edison Internship Grant in 1986 and the Meritorious Performance and Professional Promise Awards from CSUSB in 1986 and 1988.

He has been published in several journals including: "Journal of Applied Social Psychology," "Journal of Personality and Social Psychology," "Journal of Comparative Psychology" and "Sex Roles."

Cramer holds a bachelor's and master's degree in psychology from Trinity University, San Antonio, Texas. He received his Ph.D. in social psychology from the University of Oklahoma.

AIDS conference promotes awareness among health professionals and educators

A two-day conference designed to help educators and health professionals deals with the AIDS epidemic will be held at CSUSB. "Beyond H.I.V. Disease: Integrating Personal Action and Community Response" will be held on February 8 and 9.

Featured speakers include Dr. Donald Francis, AIDS advisor to the State of California of Health Services, special AIDS consultant to Mayor Art Agnos, City of San Francisco and Rev. Carl Bean, Founder and CEO of the Minority AIDS Project in Los Angeles.

Dr. Francis will open the conference on Thursday morning with a plenary session and Rev. Bean will close the conference on Friday afternoon with a plenary session entitled "AIDS Belongs to All of Us."

Concurrent sessions will be held throughout both days tackling such topics as: "Making Peace: Issues in Death and Dying," "Legislative Initiatives and Trends in California," "Overcoming Anxiety: Creating a Comfortable Classroom," and a panel discussion on "Living with HIV." AIDS curriculum for all grade levels will also be discussed.

The NAMES Project Quilt, memorializing the life of someone who has died of AIDS, will be displayed during the conference. Viewing of the quilt is free and open to the public.

"Secrets," an AIDS Education Theatre Program for Teens will be presented during the lunch hour on Thursday, February 8.

The conference fee is $40 for one day and $75 for both days. The fee includes registration, refreshments, materials, lunch and parking. Professional advancement credit is available for teachers and nurses at an additional fee.

Bill slights CSUSB students

By William Lundquist
Staff Writer

A new senate bill may guarantee community college students the right to transfer into impacted programs at CSU and UC, while students from CSUSB must wait to enter.

Russell Bogh, Assistant Legislative Director of Associated Students Inc., has asked the California State Student Association to push for a revision of SB 507, a bill that would amend postsecondary transfer functions.

At the present time, many programs in the CSU system are impacted, that is, they cannot accommodate all the applicants. Architecture, physical therapy and many types of engineering programs are impacted everywhere in the CSU system.

Other programs, like business administration, computer science and medical technology are impacted at certain campuses. The CSU campus in San Diego is not accepting transfer applications from freshmen and sophomores except under special circumstances.

Under the provisions of SB 507, students from community colleges would be guaranteed placement in any upper division program at any campus they chose, as long as they met the academic requirements.

Freshmen and sophomores from CSUSB would have to wait behind them, until enough room opened up.

The Academic Senate of CSU places a high priority on the recruitment of students, and supports the bill. However, they are asking for the deletion of certain provisions that guarantee the transferring community college students their choice of major and campus without time constraints.

Response on professor evaluation

Dear Editor,

In his Jan. 17 letter, John Kocher, "deeply concerned" CSUSB student, rather regretfully ("I hope this will not have to happen") suggests that Professor Lorelee MacPike may have to be fired "if she doesn't stop encouraging homosexuality as well as Dr. Paxton." God has made clear that He disapproves of homosexuality (I believe He is silent on the subject of encouraging Dr. Paxton); Mr Kocher implies that we should decide which faculty members to retain, and which to dismiss, on the basis of whether they have followed God's clearly-stated rules.

I don't know about this. In a way it would be an improvement over the present system of evaluating faculty, which is complex and time-consuming and requires many faculty committees and administrators to make reports on the faculty member's teaching, professional work, and university service (issues in which God is, understandably, not interested). On the other hand, as I browse through Leviticus, I wonder if we can really do an adequate job of snooping out all the possible transgressions that our faculty may have committed. Who among us might have secretly devoured a rock badger, a gecko, a hoopoe, or a "swarming thing that swarms" (God gets really worked up about these swarming things: see Leviticus 11:41-45)? But maybe we don't need to get into such arcane matters, since most of us, alas, are guilty of eating swine and shellfish—and if we tried to please God by an expiatory massacre of a lamb or a couple of pigeons, we'd undoubtedly waken the righteous wrath of the SPCA. A moral quandary!

This, of course, is just scratching the surface: there's adultery (a capital offense), trimming your beard (an abortion), eating fruit from a tree less than three years old. . . . If we did a really conscientious job of rooting out the sinners we'd certainly end up with faculty members more pleasing to God (or at least to the God who spoke to Moses), but we wouldn't have very many of them—three or four, maybe—and the number and variety of courses we offer would shrink correspondingly. Perhaps, in the end, students would be better off tolerating the imperfections of their instructors, trying to glean from them some insight into accounting, psychology, chemistry, or literary criticism, and trusting that God is sufficiently vengeful and uncompromising to make sure that we all end up frying eternally in Hell. Such a trust in God's ultimate justice should be deeply comforting to concerned students like Mr. Kocher.

Response to Grotke's Christian bashing

Dear Mr. Grotke,

I find it interesting that your letter talks about "encourag [ing] an atmosphere of hostility and shame..." but in that same letter you seem to take the same hateful tone that you are seemingly so against.

You are right, this university is a place for enlightenment and the free exchange of ideas. I would, however, especially since this is an academic setting, ask that you research a little more before attacking others' viewpoints and making the gross generalizations that your letter implicitly states are bad.

Your failure to do a little research has lead you to a gross misstatement of fact.

God created sex and there is absolutely no problem with Christians having sex, as long as it is in the context of marriage.

Maybe I'm being harsh and will allow you the benefit of the doubt and see your comment as a satirical exaggeration.

Mr. Grotke, maybe you should wake up. The Christian community is here, and alive and well. And the insinuation that we have "lost" is rather unfounded and it also begs the question, "lost what?" You continue in your letter to say that "most of us don't believe that crap [the Bible] anyway."

May I remind you, Mr. Grotke, that the Bible is the reason that you were able to write the letter you did and that you were able to do it in a school newspaper. You see, in the early 1600s the Separatists movement in England grew tired of the persecution that the Church of England was subjecting it to. So William Bradford and 99 other Separatists sailed across the Atlantic in the late fall of 1620 leaving all they had behind and not knowing what lay ahead.

Because these people did not believe that the Bible was crap, they founded a nation called America, where they could worship God as they saw fit. William Bradford settled this nation after their trip on the Mayflower and from this the founding father gave us the first amendment along with all the other rights we have and enjoy in this country.

In addition, the Pilgrims also saw to it that an education, and that is why Harvard was happy to celebrate it's 350th anniversary last year.

Mr. Grotke, I would admonish you to do a little research to keep from ignorance and misstatement. I would also admonish you to stop your Bible and Christian bashing, especially if you want the "gay bashing" your letter so detests to stop. Remember the "Golden Rule!"

P.S. The "Golden Rule" can be found in Matthew 7:12 and Luke 6:31 in the Bible. In Christ, Benjamin Adams

Professor responds

Dear Editor,

I was pleased to see Mr. John Kocher's clear, well supported letter responding to my statement in Hum. 325 (Fall 1989) about my lesbianism.

Along with issues of race and class, the issue of sexuality deserves wide, informed, open discussion so that all viewpoints can be heard. I was hired to educate students; the debate about sexuality does just that. Generating such a debate is my goal as a teacher, and fostering it is one of the primary responsibilities of the university.

I am grateful to Mr. Kocher for helping me achieve my goal by creating a public forum for this debate and thus helping promote education at CSUSB.

Student upset with one-sided discussions

Dear Editor,

Last quarter I took a course entitled "Perspectives on Gender". I found this course to be the absolute worst course I have ever taken. Even the title is misleading. It should be entitled "Perspectives on ONE Gender". The course studied the position of women on several different issues. Advertising was presented as something that traps women into stereotypes, for the pleasure of men, without explaining the stereotypes that men are trapped into as well.

The most upsetting subject presented in the course was abortion. I believe in pro-choice, but I disagree with the pro-choice view being forced on students who are paying to learn academic subjects, and not professors personal views. Dr. Cindy Paxton discussed abortion in such a way that the pro-life view was not presented fairly. She insisted on calling pro-life activist "Anti-choice".

Changing the name of an activist group has no place in a academic course. Dr. Paxton also generalized the way a woman feels after an abortion as "relief". This I feel is a very dangerous generalization against women. To say that a woman feels "relief" after an abortion creates the image that an abortion is just another medical treatment.

Dr. MacPike's section is found to be just slightly less offensive. Dr. MacPike did not make gross generalizations, such as Dr. Paxton, but I feel that most of her course content did not have any place in academia. She described paintings of flowers as looking like "a woman's genitalia". I knew that she was a lesbian before I took the course, but explaining how wonderful being a lesbian is has no place in a college course.

In all fairness I feel I must say a little about Dr. Greenbaum. I thought her section of the course was valuable. She showed a great understanding of the subject and a fair representation of it. It is to bad that her section came last. The preceding sections made me lose interest in the course and as a result the knowledge that I obtained in the last section suffered.

I highly recommend that people who are thinking about taking the course to reconsider. Most of the course material is geared for the narrow minded liberal woman.

Student feels Mr. Concerned should open up his eyes

Dear Editor,

I am upset by the claims "Mr. Concerned" makes. The fact that professor MacPike stated her homosexuality does not infer that she will encourage homosexuality but it does not encourage anyone too become homosexual. Instead the video tries to enlighten those people with closed minds.

Like "Mr. Concerned" there are many people who are unable to grasp such concepts like homosexuality. "Mr. Concerned" is also unable to use the "gay" or "lesbian". Instead he refers to professor MacPike as being "one" (a homosexual). Does he think she is some kind of an alien?

I advise "Mr. Concerned" to take the class "Perspectives on Gender", with professor MacPike. He might even learn something.

Mercy Cruz

Response to Kocher's piety

Dear Editor,

After reading John Kocher's letter concerning homosexuality I was struck with horror. It amazes me that anyone can still be so pious. He says he isn't afraid of homosexuals, but afraid for them. Who does he think he is, anyway? Did someone ask him to fear for the safety of his or her soul? If not, someone tell him to stop worrying about the homosexuals!

As I read John's letter I thought of so many things I wanted not only John to know, but everyone else reading this. Things like just because a professor tells the class she is a lesbian doesn't mean she is promoting it. If I tell my friends that I am heterosexual, am I promoting heterosexuality? Most people probably wouldn't think so. Or what about all of the famous genius homosexuals in the past? People like Socrates, Chopin, Michelangelo, and Tchaikovsky are a few well known, and more importantly respected, homosexuals. Also, the Bible isn't the last word on religious scripture. People must begin taking into account the growing number of non-Christian religions in America.

But the one thing I want most to stress is this: Peace. In my opinion, two people finding love and peace together, two things that this world desperately needs, is what is most important in life. Whether these people be two men, two women or one woman with one man, is not important. The key is that they are people, the only thing on the face of the Earth that has the capability to bring lasting peace. This is something no one can argue with. Dogs can't bring peace, cats can't; no being but humans can help save us.

Now, all the world needs is patience until the intolerant people get off their pulpits and join in the peace. John, everybody, what happened to the Christian phrase heard so much at Christmas, "Peace on Earth, good will toward men"? Where is the good will when we really need it? With tolerance and understanding we can find it. I hope the bonds shared by everyone involved in a loving relationship, homosexual or not, will give them the strength and necessary patience to wait peacefully for the tolerance we need.

John said that he thought people may think of homosexuals as a necessary evil. Maybe some do, but also think of this: Homosexuals are necessary because they are people and they deserve acceptance and love. But they are not evil. The only evil in this situation is the intolerance of, and the judgements being passed by, people who think it is their duty to worry about homosexuals. Let's work to rid our world of that evil and let the homosexuals. Let's work to rid our world of that evil and let the homosexuals be afraid for themselves if they feel like it. Better yet, let them feel love and acceptance. And Peace.

"Gender" class serves practical purposes

Dear Editor,

I'm writing in response to John Kocher's attack on Dr. MacPike in the Jan. 17 issue of The Chronicle. Having actually taken the class "Perspectives on Gender" (unlike Mr. Kocher) I can write with true authority on

Dr. MacPike's lectures. Having taken the class, I feel Dr. MacPike's intent in announcing she is a lesbian is to dispel false stereotypes of whatever their sexual preference is—that anyone (even a university professor) may be gay. Mr. Kocher is interested in knowing why "such a viewpoint" (I guess he means the homosexual viewpoint) "is being encouraged when no counter argument is all around us. Our society, in general, is not favorable towards homosexuality and gays. Mr

Kocher is a fine example of the counter argument. He is so well conditioned that he is "repulsed" by a woman he's never met, let alone taken a class from.

One of the main benefits of higher education is that it gives us an opportunity to expand our awareness. Through classes like "Perspectives in Gender" we are exposed to the fact that there are myriad ways of looking at the world as well as many different life styles other than our own. Doesn't Mr Kocher know that not only are there other religions in the world besides his own, but also other ways of interpreting the Christian Bible. Historically the Bible has been interpreted (or misinterpreted) to justify many of the world's evils and intolerance?

In conclusion, I applaud Dr. MacPike for having the courage to announce every quarter to the 200+ students in PS 10 that she is a lesbian. And I am Grateful to CSUSB for employing professors of the caliber of MacPike.

Escape your dull, boring existence

By Jennifer Fairfield

Do you and your friends have trouble finding things to do on the weekends in this oh-so-exciting community?

Well, you're not the only ones who can't get into the Pub scene, who are looking for significant others, or who just want to go somewhere different to find enthusiastic partners nowhere to be found.

Escape! This is the new battle cry of the associated student body. Get us out of this nowhere town!

With a little bit of help from the Escape program, students can do just that. How about those Lakers? Do you like the ocean? Go for a trip to Catalina. Rivers make your faucet run? Go canoeing on the Colorado River. You needn't think that this is totally unrelated to curricular activity, either. How better to bone up for your Adventures in Renaissance Literature exam, then by going to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire in Devore? There are some conditions to these trips, however. Participants (this means you) must provide their own transportation except on chartered bus rides. You also must abide by state, local, federal, and CSUSB regulations. For certain outings, you must be in a certain physical condition in order to be included. "Uncooperative individuals" may be excluded from the program altogether.

The advantages to this program easily outweigh the trepidations one might have regarding what exactly an uncooperative person is. Just be polite, enjoy yourself, and make a trip to take a trip at the A.S. ticket office in the Student Union. Check out what events are going on, and ask someone you've been wanting to get to know better to go along.

Disillusioned by student apathy

By Keith Momon
A.S. Productions Chair
Special to The Chronicle

Are you one of the many campus members who claims, "There is nothing to do; there's nothing going on." If so, you are grossly uninformed, and clearly confused. The Associated Students has spent over seven thousand dollars just to entertain you. Not only have you failed to be entertained or pleasurably occupied, but you've made bold statements about how boring this campus is.

I guess you aren't aware of the fact that virtually ever Thursday night (in the Pub) A.S. Productions has some form of entertainment, just for you. At first, those of us involved with organizing the events felt that maybe we had made errors in judging what might be popular or at least interesting to you.

We have since reached the conclusion that maybe it isn't we who are at fault for your continual nonparticipation. We reached this conclusion as a result of changing the type of events we sponsored. We stopped movie nights, changed the types of bands in the Pub, initiated a Club Coyote night, still you did not show.

We felt that perhaps we did not advertise well. So, we pulled out our P.A. system, stood in front of the library, and informed you about our major fall event: Food For Feet. So few of you showed, we all but gave up.

I have been told by people who've done event organizing in the past, "This is not a happening campus." Well, it isn't the buildings, or the grounds that make the campus. It's the students, and I guess you just aren't happening people. I guess you just don't want to do anything but sit back and complain. Well, keep it up because we are going to continue to spend your money, and if not a damn one of you shows, we will still get paid.

The general point here is this, you must take an active role in making this campus a more exciting place. If you don't, you have no one to blame but yourself.

Look out,
"I'm gonna steal your car!!!"

Yes, this is what car thieves in San Bernardino are saying — they're having a field day stealing cars at CSUSB. Sixteen cars were stolen this past year!!! Numerous others were broken into and damaged! Do you know why?

Because there is virtually no security out here in the parking lots. I know, my Jetta was stolen from here. They caused $9,286 worth of damage. I, myself, had to pay $1,600 and worse yet I lost the use of my car for two and a half months.

It's time, my fellow students, we revolt against this injustice!!!

If you could take two minutes, next time you're on campus, go to a campus phone and dial 5165 (or 880-5165). This will put you through to parking services. Voice your opinion! Tell them that since we pay $36 per quarter to park here, we are entitled to better and more sufficient security!

Help a fellow student out!
Join my crusade!!!
Sincerely,
Marc Leinbach

Concerned with library security

Dear Editor,
I am writing this letter to the editor in the hopes of generating a response from other students who are concerned with the security, rather lack of security, in our library.

I am a graduate student enrolled in fourteen units of core courses. These courses require a lot of research. My concern centers around the necessity of either forming a buffalo circle when studying or packing around my research materials.

My undergraduate work was completed at another state university where graduate reading rooms were available upon request. These rooms were signed out and a door key issued. I was therefore at first surprised at the lack of such facilities here at CSUSB.

I then became perplexed when my inquires into how to obtain suitable research space was met with blaise indifference. There are staff in the library who share my concern but wish to remain anonymous.

A complicating factor in my pursuit of excellence is that I am a disabled student. I am registered with the Disabled Student Services. I have a twenty pound weight lifting limitation which precludes my trucking around bound research materials plus my portfolio.

But let's, for the moment, disregard my disability and my graduate status. How about the freshmen who are just beginning to get serious in their studies? The Ivory Tower of academia is supposed to be a sanctuary where minds are free to roam, not be preoccupied with being ripped off of materials and hard earned research.

Cordially,
Jack Wilson

Advisor responds to Kocher

Dear Editor,

I was offended and disappointed by John Kocher's letter. I have come out as gay as least as many times as Dr. MacPike. I have taught about diversity, acceptance, understanding and homophobia at least as much time as Dr. Paxton. I demand to be included on the list Mr. Kocher wants fired from the university. To paraphrase Oscar Wilde, Mr. Kocher would treat his gay teachers and their friends so badly, he doesn't deserve to have any.

The fact that Weiny is a tenured professor who has been with CSUSB for 23 years without any previous racial incidents, was a factor in Levin's decision that "...the discharge was simply inappropriate."

Robinson points out that tenure is a significant factor in such decisions.

"It's extremely difficult to dismiss a tenured faculty member," said Robinson.

The arbitrator was picked by the CSUSB administration and the faculty union from a list of the American Association of Arbitrators.

"The procedure followed is clearly outlined in the faculty union contract," said Robinson.

"We could have appealed but I don't think it was worth it," Robinson said. "The case is closed."

The initial arbitration hearing took place Oct. 5 and lasted four hours.

The incident with the unidentified student took place in November 1988.

Weiny, who resumed teaching this quarter, stated in an interview in the San Bernardino Sun that he did not write the note.

The first time, he only made it halfway to the top before the music finished. He said he was not able to make it all the way in time, until Wolper spoke with Jenner about carrying the torch.

In line with the theme of his speech, "Being the Best You can Be," Johnson spoke of his days playing basketball for then UCLA coach John Wooden. Wooden expected only that each of his athletes was prepared to to perform as well as he could. He admitted that "since my graduation, Wooden has done much better."

In a special address to Project Upbeat students, who were special guests at the speech, Johnson cited the performances of Wilma Rudolf and Lasse Viren. He said both of those olympic athletes were able to visualize and verbalize their dreams of being the best in the world at their chosen events. Viren was even able to win the 10,000 meter race after falling at the beginning.

He urged students to put negative factors out of their minds. He said they should ask themselves "how can I do better at what I'm doing?"

Speaking to the CSUSB basketball teams, which were seated on either side of the podium, Johnson wished them both victory. He said that what he really hoped was that, when the games were finished, each athlete could say "I was the best I could be." He added, "What more could you want?"

petition drives, booths outside the library, childrens events, and other activities.

The main event during the week, April 17, at 8 p.m. in the gym, will be a guest speaker Ann Ehrlich, a world-renowned Ecologist. On Saturday, April 21, an Environmental Expo is planned on campus.

The first Earth Day took place in 1970 and attracted over 20 million people which made it one of the largest organized demonstrations in history. Denis Hayes, a San Francisco lawyer, was organizer of the 1970 event were the Clean Water Act, and the Environmental Protection Agency was also created.

Earth Day 1990, with hopes of being as successful as the first one, has many goals to achieve. In 1970, the event had a national focus and this years event will have a global focus. The organizers of Earth Day are also launching "Decade of the Environment."

Polycyn expects a good response from the students and hopes "students turn their concern into action." He also said "Solutions to these global problems begin at home and in our community. And to minimize future problems, solution should begin now. So I'm hoping for broad-based support. We are, after all, an institute of higher education and should play a leading role in indentifying problems and effecting solutions."

understaffed and no measures are being taken to remedy the situation.

"We are in the final phases of the application process for two positions," Harrison said. "And following the final selection, they will be sent to the academy."

Harrison conceded that the academy training period is 18 weeks, however.

Presently, there is only one officer on patrol most nights of the week. On several nights there are two, sometimes three officers on duty, but after one a.m., the time that the assault occurred, there is only one officer on patrol.

Peters pays off for 'Lady Yotes'

By Jeff Zelenski
Staff Writer

Last year, Lori Peters took a year off of basketball because she couldn't afford to go to school and play, so now a year later she has come back to be a "money" player for CSUSB.

"It was because of financial reasons (for the one year lay off). I couldn't afford it at the time, so I got a job and saved up enough money so I could play," said a very enthusiastic Peters.

Peters lay off came following a '87-'88 MVP season in which she set many school records such as most steals-season (78), rebounds-season (336), and rebound average-season (12 per game). To go along with her records, she averaged 14.2 points per game.

When first year head coach Gary Schwartz came this past year he heard about Peters' talent and persuaded her to come out for the team. "I hear a lot of good things about Lori from other players that had been on the team and was named MVP a couple of years ago," said Schwartz. "So I gave her a call because she still had one year of eligibility left. I asked her to come out for the team. It has worked out good for us."

"Basically he just called me up and asked me to play again. I was really excited to go out because it was my senior season. It really made me feel good (about being asked to play again)," said Peters.

The one year lay off hasn't seem to alter Peters' effectiveness on the court this year as she has averaged 12.8 points per game (second on the team) and has lead the team in rebounding with 8.5 rebounds per game through seventeen games.

"She does so many things for us. I think she is our best all-round player this year. She is our leading rebounder at only 5'7"," said Schwartz. "She plays tremendous defense, she's an excellent passer and shooter. She is what I consider a complete all-round player."

"Maybe the thing that impresses me the most is her work ethic. She works harder than anyone I've ever coached."

The personal statistics don't seem to mean much to the hard working Peters.

"I just consider myself average. Every time I go out to the floor I just try and do my best. I'm out there for the team, I'm always just looking for the win," said Peters. "I'm not that great, I'm just an intense player that really likes to 'get into' the game." With the help of Peters, the lady Coyotes have compiled a 14-3 record, including a thirteen game win streak as of January 26. Peters has led the Coyotes in scoring four times and rebounding nine times.

With the way Peters has played so far this year Coach Schwartz can be glad that he "cashed" on her talents.

CSUSB ski team races at Mammoth

Young team experiences its first competition

CSUSB's first club ski team broke into the new year's snow scene and held their own. Four of the team's ten members completed at Mammoth Mountain Dec. 31, and Jan. 1. The team scores for the two Giant Slalom races were low but the group is still establishing itself in the racing routine.

Because both the women's and men's teams fell short of the three racer minimum, a team placing will not be available. Individual standing will, however, be recorded.

Competing on the men's team, Todd Johnson received 78.973 points for a time of 74.50 seconds on Saturday. Sunday he received 77.499 points for a time of 77.24. Doug Crawford disqualified on Saturday's race and earned 79.909 points on Sunday for a time of 74.91.

On the women's team, Kris Hazelett received 72.330 points on Saturday with a time of 85.22. Sunday she raised her score to 75.407 with a time of 83.60. Toni Calvino Mellinger got 60.83 points on Saturday for her time of 101.31 and 60.337 points on Sunday with a time of 104.48.

Racing points are calculated by dividing the top time by the time of the individual racer and multiplying by 100.

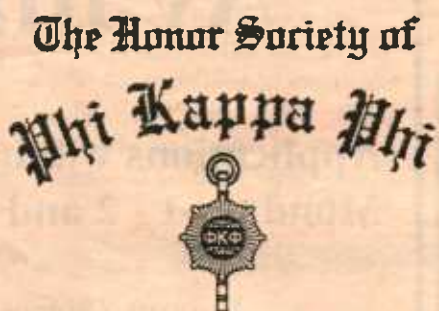

Team performance is expected to improve over the season as more team members compete, but Vice President Todd Johnson is still satisfied with the result so far.

"For most of us this was our first time racing and we learned a lot," said Johnson.

But the team reaped benefits aside from the opportunity to compete.

Team member Kris Hazelett said, It was a great way to spend New Year's Weekend and to meet people from other colleges that were racing."

Hazelett lives in Lake Arrowhead and Mellinger in Sky Forest. Crawford and Johnson are both former mountain residents.
