Is Big Brother & Big Business In bed at your Expense?

By Harry Edwards

Is Big Brother watching you? Well, Big brother might not be watching you but he is selling everything about you to his little brother. When I discovered that the California Department of Motor Vehicles, a state agency, is selling information that they collect, I asked myself why anyone would be interested unless it is going to make money. Insurance companies are buying information you think is private. This information is being sold to insurance companies for two purposes: first, not to increase the rates of good drivers; second, to increase the rates of drivers they deem to have more tickets. They can increase your costs or that of the entire community. They collect information from the DMV on how many traffic tickets or auto accident reports that you might have had.

That is why some people do not report small accidents to their insurance company. They do not want to know that police stop and write more tickets in the Black and Hispanic communities than in the majority community, therefore our rates are higher. What if your rates have been done on you for employment purposes? This can and has prevented people from getting employed. What if the information has been corrected but the list purchased missed the cut off date? The DMV sold $50 million dollars worth of insurance information last year to insurance companies.

The DMV is not the only state agency in the business of selling your information to the highest bidder or those companies who want to contact but don't know how. The Department of Health Services and the California University system also participate in this practice.

We pay taxes to establish these departments. Then we

To Be Equal

The Costs of "Color-Blindness"

by Hugh B. Price

It's the middle of the summer and the air is thick with heat, and government cannot remain on the beaches than schools.

But I've just read a book which has brought the subject of school choice — particularly those in public schools that are predominantly Black and Hispanic — back to the center of my consciousness.

Physical Education as Teaching Tool: A Blueprint for Creating Health in Every Child

by Professor Linda Darling-Hammond of California University, Teacher's College.

Its author, Professor Linda Darling-Hammond of California University, Teacher's College, says that we must act now to fix the futures of millions of poor and minority school children.

That is, we must act now in order to ensure that they get the kind of schooling which enables them to build their own future as productive citizens.

That kind of schooling is school choice. Right now, in the new era, at Darling-Hammond pen it, "perhaps even the best schools for poor [people] as [they tied to their neighborhood] in the same way that our future depends now, as never before, on who we learn with."

The importance of the legislation that Darling-Hammond championed is that it will be reinforced with every fresh outpouring of public monies. It will connect now between the quality of our schools and the realistic and civil rights of our children's chances of finding decent jobs.

It's one of the most wrenching, hurtful things I've ever read.

The study, sponsored by Anway and Junior Achievement, whose work we seek to acquaint people with the "skills world," determined that 90% of Grade 12 dropouts can be prepared to enter the workforce. Among this group, 50% of all students, the study showed, were doing the things that we call jobs — they had entered the job market.

For the overwhelming majority of low-income children, the study showed, they need to know academic skills — if certain conditions prevail.

Those conditions are the same elsewhere, the study showed, that the children of poor families can meet high academic standards — if they are prepared.

That is why some people do not report small accidents to their insurance company. They do not want to know that police stop and write more tickets in the Black and Hispanic communities than in the majority community, therefore our rates are higher. What if your rates have been done on you for employment purposes? This can and has prevented people from getting employed. Parents and Students Divided Over Allegations of Abuse by Eisenhower Coach

The Right To

In 1993, I was in the middle of writing a book, 'The Tuskegee Study,' when I was asked to take part in a conversation on the Tuskegee study. The study was a tragic experiment to see how syphilis would progress in black men who were untreated. It was a second-rate experiment with second-rate methodology. It was one of the most shameful and irresponsible acts of the United States government on poor, unlearned the genocidal and mad medical dastardly event? Why have the government's genocidal events been put at ease about the recognized and penalized? In any criminal violations on the Tuskegee study was truly, the government's genocidal events be put at ease about the recognized and penalized? In any criminal violations on the Tuskegee study was truly, the government's genocidal events be put at ease about the genocidal killings? How, in the light of the Tuskegee study, is one to believe the word of the government? Do we have faith in the government to protect us, and what is the government doing about the Tuskegee study? What is the government's responsibility for the Tu...
The U.S. Department of Agriculture can now assist rural African Americans with housing discrimination complaints more quickly, efficiently, and with more remedies related to a new working arrangement with the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman and Housing and Urban Development Secretary Andrew Cuomo recently announced that under a new agreement, USDA will refer all fair housing discrimination claims to HUD. Under this system, HUD attorneys will handle claims rather than state or administrative law judges will hear the cases.

"The American dream of homeownership must not succumb to the nightmare of discriminatory practices," Glickman said. "Equal access to own or rent a dwelling is necessary if we are to complete our mission to help build a better rural America," he said, adding that USDA has "zero-tolerance for discrimination." Scholarship Pageant Goes National

For the fifth consecutive year, the Little Miss African American Scholarship Pageant will be held, Sunday, August 3, 1997, at the Universal Sheraton, Universal City, CA, at 4:00 PM. The brainchild of actress/choreographer/singer, Lisa Ruffin, the LMAA is a close and personal matter. "When I was the age of the young girls in this program, I had powerful dreams that helped me to see myself doing exciting things like going to Julliard School of Music, performing as a dancer and in plays, I was fortunate to have a family that helped me realize those dreams. That's why I organized the Little Miss African American Scholarship Pageant. Working with the wonderful parents of our girls, I'm helping to support the dreams of some of our future leaders," says Ruffin.

Actresses Dawn Lewis and Suzanne Douglas will again host this year's event, and actress Salli Richardson will be the Mistress of Ceremonies.

LMAA provides outreach, admissions, and support services to young women, and is family, between 16-24 years old and not attending traditional high school (high school graduate, continuation school, high school drop out).

Robert Grace Remembered By Friends and Family

By Cheryl Brown

Funeral services were held for Robert L. Grace, Sr. last Friday at New Hope Baptist Church in San Bernardino. Grace was remembered for what good neighbors are all about. He was remembered as a husband, father, neighbor, friend, community activist, Fraternal brother, military man, and a Christian, who practiced the principles of Christ in his daily walk. He was called a renaissance man by his son, Robert, Jr., as he fought back the tears. (His father was proud to see him grow up, go to college and grow up in the racist south, but L.A. District Attorney.) He never heard him complain about racism. He understood how it shaped our lives but he didn't let it be a crutch to hold him back from excelling in the military. He served in World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and Vietnam and once up the ranks retiring with rank of Chief Warrant Officer, grade 4. He earned the Air Force classification of Hospital Administrator and Medical Administrative Officer.

Adult men who were boys in the neighborhood recalled growing up sleeping in his back yard. His boy Scout involvement at the church helped to shape young men for the past 30 years.

Councilwoman Betty Anderson recalled his commitment to children, and the aroma of bacon cooking in the yard after one of his famous sleepovers, as well as the barbeque he prepared for the Prince Ball Lodge 147. "He never suggested reciprocal deed of dust," she said.

His accomplishments didn't mean one thing if you haven't tasted food," said Rev. Marvin Brown in the Eulogy. Brown took his text from Ecclesiastes 7.1. A good name is better than precious ointment. Robert Grace lived a good life and had a good name.

I Am In Love With A Married Woman?

By Dr. Reginald Woods

QUESTION: Dear Pastor Woods: I have allowed myself to fall in love with a woman who is married. I wish I could just lay this desire aside, however, it is overwhelming. I believe it is possible that God is leading us together and has marred the wrong man. What do you think about this situation?

ANSWER: Dear Sir, I can guarantee you that God is not involved in your desire. When North Fontana Celebrates Pastor with Appreciation Day Service

North Fontana C.M.E. Church invites the public to come and fellowship with them during their pastor's 1st appreciation service, Sunday, August 3, 1997 at 3:30 p.m.

The speaker for the hour is Pastor Napoleon Gossay, of Harper Chapel, Canton, CA and the guest soloist is Miss Alexia Potts of the Jasper Seventh-Day Adventist Church, wherever Williams is the pastor.

Bill Pickett Rodeo Salutes the Black Cowboys

Rodeo queen has long been a monument of rodeo and this year BPRP created their first, both winners were from the Inland Empire. Junior queen 13-24 was Regina Brown of San Bernardino sponsored by Freeway Lincoln/Mercury Volkswagen and Kristian Blazon of Norco sponsored by Black Voice News. It’s getting better every year, although there are people out there trying to capitalize on what we’ve started,” said Vason, who is now in his 15th year producing the Bill Pickett Invitational Rodeo. “It may make it more difficult, but look at this crowd (soldout arena). I’m as excited as the guy we started. We are trying to create new things, such as the Pony Express Race and include more women events, too.

One thing I’ve noticed here in Los Angeles is that the rodeo is generalized, because of the celebrities that are involved but in Los Angeles, the rodeo itself and the quality of the performances are more on the line. So, we just have to have the versatility to adjust to the environment we are serving.

Indeed, when the rodeo comes to Los Angeles the celebrity participation is a measurable adrenaline. During the Sunday show Olivia Brown, Kid Shapper, Givan Tatum, Roger Mosley and Jennifer Lewis were in the saddleI, the all rodeo team, and the celebrity performed the overall program in the arena.

The celebrities added a nice flavor to the show, but the cowboys and cowgirls were the main course and the horses everyone dreamed their cowboys have, boots, Whores, guns, loads of the kids and moneyed down on the L.A. Equestrian Center. And as usual, the performers did not disappoint.

Spills, thrills and history were on display at the Los Angeles Equestrian Center.

BURBANK, Ca: Once is not enough! Let’s do it again!

To the soldout audience at the Los Angeles Equestrian Center, the Bill Pickett Rodeo could have continued another three hours after the final event was concluded and the curtain was lowered on the best and, really the only, Black rodeo show in the world.

In fact, many in attendance were repeat customers – once you experience the Bill Pickett rodeo you never miss the once-per-week extravaganzas.

Those of us who have experienced the spills and thrills of the modern day circus, generally know what to expect, but the joy of the evening is that you never know what to expect. The unpredictability of the event is real, and the underlying very real danger of man verse animal, generally what it is to expect. The unpredictability of the event and the underlying very real danger of man verse animal, generally what it is to expect.

Although the events and what it represents – history along with keeping the repeat customer making the trek to the L.A. Equestrian Center every year and watching the Black cowboys and cowgirls and enjoying the show is more than enough, but the founder and owner, La Vason, of the largest Black towing rodeo in America is always trying to improve his product.

This year was the first time a quiet contest was held. Rodeo queens has long been a monument of rodeo and this year BPRP created their first, both winners were from the Inland Empire. Amanda Lewis carves her niche in the industry as one of America's rising Black females.

By Jennifer Stampley

Amanda Lewis has definitely carved her niche in the entertainment industry, as one of America's rising Black females. Amanda Lewis is known to the viewers of America as the host of BET's Teen Summit. What many do not know is that Ms. Lewis is also the show's associate producer. Amanda Lewis is the recipient of the 1997 NAACP Image Award for her presidential interview with the First Lady of the United States, Hillary Rodham Clinton. Amanda Lewis is without a doubt, what America needs in the entertainment field. She is a strong, Black female working to bring a positive image for the youth of today. As a youth, Lewis attended the San Diego School of Creative and Performing Arts, studying theater, music, and dance. While attending the San Diego School of Creative and Performing Arts, Lewis starred in the San Diego production of "For Color Girls Who Considered Suicide When The Rainbow Was Not Enuf." Lewis also founded the school's Black Student Union (BSU). In 1991 Lewis enrolled in Howard University. She recently graduated from Howard, Cum Laude, with a degree in history. I recently had the opportunity to interview Ms. Lewis via telephone in which she answered questions on such topics as religion, future plans and goals.

BVN: To whom do you give credit for your achievements and inspiration?
AL: God, myself, and bad experiences. In that order.

BVN: What do you consider the most important element in uniting the youth of our country?
AL: Fearlessness. Not bring afraid of our highest possibility. Not being afraid of our individuality as human beings. Not being afraid of being the best that we can all be and allowing others to be that as well.

BVN: What was it that made you focus on helping and working with youth?
AL: It just kind of started happening and I knew I was good at it so I kept doing it.

BVN: Where do you see yourself 20 years from now?
AL: (Laughs) I can't see myself 20 years from now. I'm too focused on the present. I don't even try too (smiles jokingly)

BVN: If there was one message you wanted to stress to the youth of today, what would it be?
AL: To be comfortable with who you are, because the level of your comfortableness is directly related to the level of your success. But also, to stay committed to whatever goals you have set for yourself and not to expect too much from other people, in the way of assistance or having your back, because really you were born in the world alone. You're gonna die in the world alone. And most of what you do is gonna be on your own. Most of what you do is gonna be accomplished because you put effort into it and did it, not because someone handed it to you.

BVN: What part does our Creator play in your life and work?
AL: She wakes me up in the morning and allows me to have fullfill sleeps. What role doesn't she play, I think is more my answer. Every single aspect from crossing the street safely to knowing who to trust to everything. Everything! God is constantly in our lives and constantly in our being and breathing thing.

BVN: What can be done to reestablish the church as our number one support group?
AL: I don't know if it can be done and I don't know if young people necessarily want that to be done. I think the churches that still have a high number of young people in their congregation really need to focus on ways to make religion, and see, we're talking about a broad subject anyway, because church, does that mean Protestant or Catholic or Christian or Baptist? What does it mean? It depends on what the church's fundamental belief systems are and how they interpret the Bible. What they ask of their congregation in terms of rules and regulations, that are not necessarily found in the Bible, but that they put on them anyway, and a whole number of other things. So how we get them back involved is a kind of multi-faceted answer. I guess it would involve what I just said as well as the young people wanting to come back into the fold.

BVN: What are your future plans?
AL: I would certainly love to keep doing Teen Summit for as long as possible, however long that is, and then after that look at some other options. I have a lot of different interests so I don't want to put my finger down on one thing too hard. I might miss out on the other things that are coming up. And I'm interested in a lot of different things, so I'm just gonna see where this happy place located at the feelers out and based on what comes up decide what the next best move is.

Game Works: Let the Games Begin!

1 New Entertainment Club Offers Games, Music, and Social Interaction in Ontario

By Roberto Carlos Hernandez

Game Works, a new kind of club where video games play, will open its doors this summer in Los Angeles' Ontario Mills Mall. Called by its creators "the new way to entertain and entertain friends," the club combines the best of the industry's music, games, and technology. It was inspired by GameWorks SKG, Inc., a chain of Video Games and Universal Studies Inc., and developed under the guidance of Steven Spiegel.

Game Works' main areas include a Video-Loading Dock, a competitive zone where players can put the newest games to the test; the Arena, a high-energy area that features GameWorks' signature and multi-player games; and the Loft, a relaxing environment offering a variety of classic video games in traditional games. Internet activities, as well as food, beverages, and a full bar. The 31,000-square-foot facility is located forty-five minutes outside of Los Angeles and will be the newest highlight of the Ontario Mills Mall.

"Ontario Mills has become a destination for many Southern Californians," said Michael Montgomery said, president and CEO of Sega. "GameWorks adds a new dimension to the experience by offering a competitive environment as well as a venue for visitors to a club that offers the best games, food and full bar in a very interactive, social environment," he said.

This Game Works is the third one to open this year. The first Game Works opened in Seattle in March and the second club debuted on the Strip in Las Vegas in May. Upcoming Game Works locations include Houston, Atlanta, Tampa, and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Signature games that were designed and developed by Sega include Virtual Reality and GameArt. Up to twelve players are steered on video screens by a director who rise, fall up to 24 feet, as they compete across undersea, rising and falling, and battle adversaries. GameArt is a networked game that features state-of-the-art video displays and an elaborate sound system. Up to three players battle against each other. Multiplayer games, which feature five- to nine-dimensional sound simulators, photos-realistic competitions, and interactive action adventures.

"This is Game Works," he said.

Coors Signature Series - West Coast Radio
On Sale Now

Tune Into This West Coast Radio

By Jennifer Sumpley

Recently, the 15.30 AM West Coast Radio Show launched in debut, "The House of West Coast Radio" are what some would call "children", but they have proved to be worthy of the position as hosts James Jordan, 16, Jermaine Gipson, 17, and Sean Gues, 17, are high school seniors on a mission to do something positive for the community and the youth of today. West Coast Radio intends to do just that. The show wishes to aide other young aspiring artists to succeed. West Coast Radio will not limit its action and simply solely in the West Coast. Airing on Saturdays from 5:00 p.m., the show will showcase music from all parts of the hip-hop world. The show will cover the entire Inland Empire, thus reaching listeners from as far as Yucca Valley.

Aside from West Coast Radio, the hosts, James, Jermaine and Sean have a rap group called Entertainmen. As performers, they go by the alias Manifesto (James Jordan), Dino (Jermaine Gipson) and Lezart (Sean Gues). Entertainmen has acquired much of its experience from performing in local shows. In May of this year, the group performed in The Peace Jam Show, which also featured the artist Sugar Free. They were also producers of the show. Embreeza also appears in numerous shows this year, such as the Urban League Talent Show, the Hollywood Talent Show, the Perris Art Festival, and many others. Embreeza also worked on the soundtrack for the play, "Her Mommy," and have made appearances on 88.3 FM Black College Radio, which airs on Sundays.

James, Jermaine and Sean are just a few of America's talented Black young men. They are doing positive things for their community, and are a great example of what a good role model for today's youth. James Jordan (Manifesto) has an in-house music studio in which he rents out to other aspiring artists, for $15 an hour. For more information, call (909) 508-0556.

Due to the lack of time in each of their schedules; these young men practice their lyrics over the telephone. In their free time they enjoy playing basketball and just "kickin' it." These young men are in need of sponsors, so if you're interested in sponsoring them, you can call (909) 943-3460 or (909) 245-9353. These guys are destined for success. So on Saturday evenings "check 'em out!" Let's support our youth because they are our future!
Beverly Powell announced Candidacy to Board of Trustees

Beverly Powell announced her decision to run for the Board of Trustees of the San Bernardino Community College District last week at the League Conference in Rialto. "After 24 years of exemplary service, Lois Carson is retiring from the Board. She has endorsed me and I want to continue the legacy," stated Powell. "My combined work experience as an educator, congressional assistant, and corporate public service make me for the position. Running for this office is an extension of my community involvement and public service." Beverly Powell grew up in Rialto. She attended Eisenhower High School in Rialto. For the last five years and received her formal education in the San Bernardino area. She graduated from San Bernardino Valley College. She earned her Bachelor's Degree and Teaching Credential from the University of California, Riverside. She taught for six years at Eisenhower High School in Rialto. For the last five years she was a congressional assistant to Congressman George Brown of the 42nd District. She now is a Region Manager for Southern California Edison.
