Shearer sparks CSUSB sports

By Jeff Zelenski
Staff Writer

Tammy Shearer sure has a lot of energy.

She has enough energy to play three sports at CSUSB, hold a job, and maintain a good GPA. How does she do it? A lot of people often ask that question when the name Shearer is brought up in conversation, even among her coaches.

"I sometimes wonder how she does it all," said basketball coach Gary Schwartz.

"Tammy is just an incredible individual. It amazes me how she can keep up with the pace of three sports during the year," said Ralph Perez, her soccer coach.

Shearer doesn't see it as that big of an ordeal, she simply likes sports.

"Sports are my life. I've played ever since I was a little kid. It didn't matter what time of the day it was

Undergrads restricted from upper division classes

By Jacob Powell
Staff Writer

Next Fall, the Administration of CSUSB will begin to enforce a policy which up until this time was on the books but not strictly enforced. This is the requirement that all students enrolled in upper division courses must have completed eighty nine and one half quarter units.

In the Spring, when students register for next years' Fall classes, any freshman or sophomore with upper division courses (300 or 400 level) on their C.A.R. packages will have that registration denied. These students will also not be given enough notice to participate in "Walk-Through" registration, forcing them to participate in the "Add-Drop" period.

One reason for this policy is that general education courses provide good foundations in general knowledge and skill areas that can be used later in their

Colleges nationwide announce tuition hikes

One by one, college administrations are announcing tuition hikes for next school year that, once again, promise to make the price of education rise faster than prices for any other kind of good or service.

While the general inflation rate hovers around 4.5 percent, officials at the universities of Miami, Chicago, Rutgers, Stanford, Central Michigan, Loyola and Duke, among others, announced in February that they were raising tuition by 5.5 percent to 11 percent next year.

Two-year college students don't seem much better off. Southeast Community College in Lincoln, Neb., for example, will raise prices 6.5 percent in 1990-91.

Though its still too early to compute a national average for 1990-91 increases, most students can expect jumps ranging from 5 percent to 9 percent if the trends established in February continues.

Tuition has risen faster than the inflation rate during each of the past nine years.

For 1989-90, tuition at four-year public campuses rose 7 percent, to an average $1,694 per term, the College Board reports. It rose by 9 percent, to an average $8,737, at four-year private campuses.

Students at public two-year schools fared a little better. Their tuition increased an average of 5 percent, to $842. Private two-year colleges raised their rates by 7 percent for the 1989-90 year.

Community and junior colleges "try real hard to stay at or below the rate of inflation," said Judy Tomczak of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

Many students, however, complain the price has gone up too far, too fast.

By the time she graduates, first-year Wesleyan University student Susan Chun figures she'll be paying 25 percent more than she is now for tuition, room and board, books and personal expenses.

Chun now pays about $20,000. If rates continue increasing by 7 percent every year, she will probably need $25,000 for her senior year in 1993.

"That's a hell of a lot of money," Chun said. "An education shouldn't be such a financial burden."

To protest $1,000 tuition hikes for out-of-staters, Arizona State University (ASU) students took over the Student Services building for 55 hours Feb. 21 through Feb. 23.

In-state tuition at ASU, the University of Arizona and Northern Arizona University will go up $116.

"We aren't getting our money's worth," said John Kierman of ASU's student government, where in-state students now pay $1,644 and out-of-staters fork over $5,485 annually.

Despite tuition increases, the 45,000-student campus in Tempe suffers from overcrowded classes, underpaid faculty, and too many graduate students teaching, Kierman charges.

"I'm having to take actions that I didn't plan on," added Andy Mozingo, a Northern Arizona student whose tuition will increase by $900, or 18.5 percent next year.

The California native said he now has a student loan, a Pell grant and a part-time job. Mozingo is in the Marine Corps Reserve, so he is trying to get a GI Bill grant and is applying for "every Rape 101.

Sponsored by Greeks Against Rape

If you think rape can't happen to you, you're in for a real education. Because statistics show that rape happens more to women in your age group than any other. In fact, this year, one out of six college women will be the victim of rape or attempted rape. Very often by someone she knows. A fellow student. Even a date. And that's a crime. Because any time a woman is forced to have sex against her will it's a felony. Rape. It's a subject no one should take lightly.

Alpha Kappa Psi hosts art auction

An art auction featuring lithographs, etchings, serigraphs, watercolors and oil paintings will be held at CSUSB beginning 7 p.m. Saturday, April 7, in the Multi-purpose Room of the Student Union Building.

A preview of the works available for sale will be conducted at 7 p.m. with the auction beginning at 8 p.m. Prices begin at $30 per work. Frames will be included in the purchase price.

Admission to the event is $2 per person. The auction is being hosted by Alpha Kappa Psi, a professional business fraternity at CSUSB. All proceeds from the event will benefit a variety of upcoming Alpha Kappa Psi projects.

Additional information is available from Robin Douthitt, fraternity secretary, at (714)864-8028.

Graduate portraits available

Fronrunner Photography, in cooperation with the Alumni Affairs Office, is offering their last "on campus" opportunity of the academic year for all 1990 graduates to have their portraits taken. This photo session will encompass all December 1989 and March 1990 graduates, as well as all candidates for June, August, and December 1990 graduation. Because a yearbook is not offered, the program is designed mainly for students desiring portraits for personal use.

Each interested senior and graduate student will have three poses taken at no cost. Poses in "dress clothes" as well as cap and gown will be available. Caps and gowns will be provided for students interested in having a portrait taken in traditional "graduate" attire. Portrait packages will be made available for purchase.

Portraits are scheduled for April 30, May 2 and 3 in the Pine Room, Lower Commons. All eligible students should receive information in the mail by April 15. If not, call Fronrunner Photography at (714)792-6937 to arrange a portrait sitting.

Dr. Craig Henderson to speak on Gay and Lesbian Rights, Monday

Dr. Craig Henderson will speak on the subject of Gay and Lesbian rights at this quarter's first lunch time speakers series sponsored by the Women's Studies Program.

Historical developments will be presented through news features, articles, and journals to bring about understanding regarding the phenomenal changes that have brought the issue of Gay and Lesbian rights to the forefront of social awareness.

The specific topics will be varied.

One topic will be the changing values of churches and religions regarding homosexual members and clergy. The question of monogamy and marriage with same sex couples and personal issues regarding family, child rearing, and child care of gay and lesbian individuals or couples will be discussed. Recent court cases concerning the government's position that gay and lesbian personnel demoralize and pose a risk to military security will be covered.

Dr. Henderson will examine the effects of institutional homophobia on society and individuals and what lies on the horizon as we enter the last decade of this century.

Everyone is invited to attend. The presentation will be on Monday, April 9, from 12 to 1 p.m., in the Sycamore Room of the Lower Commons. Tea and coffee will be provided. Feel free to bring a bag lunch.

For more information, contact Dr. Ellen Gruenbaum, Women's Studies Director, School of Social and Behavioral Science, FO-253, or ext. 5503.

CSUSB given '2+2+2' grant for minority students to pursue a teaching career

A $30,000 grant, awarded through the chancellor's office of the California Community Colleges to CSUSB is fueling one of only 10 projects in the state designed to increase the number of underrepresented minority students pursuing a teaching career.

The 2+2+2 San Bernardino Teachers Options Program, which focuses on a student's junior and senior years in high school, two years of junior college and two years at a four-year university, is now recruiting 80 minority students from Cajon High School, San Bernardino Valley College and CSUSB.

This is one of the rare times that the community colleges have commissioned such a program's articulation plans to a four-year institution, a job usually headed up by the community colleges themselves.

"We're looking for students who are interested in becoming teachers, but don't know enough about the teaching profession to solidify their interests," said Dr. Kathryn Reilly, assistant professor of advanced studies in education at CSUSB. She co-coordinates the program with CSUSB Colleague Dr. Esteban Diaz, associate professor of elementary and bilingual education.

Because many minority students often start at a community college and then transfer to a four-year university, Diaz said it is critical that they see a clear education path. Educators have been concerned that students are not being well-informed early enough in high school to plan a career in teaching, said Diaz.

The program will outline in detail the requirements students can meet through college prep courses in high school, course work at a community college or courses at the university level. It will be introduced this summer with a "Careers in Teaching Education" class. The course will give students the opportunity to become acquainted with each other, and advisors will conduct career interest inventories as well as small group discussions. Each student will receive $200 to $250 in tuition scholarship money. Counseling support throughout a student's schooling is a major and unusual feature of the program, say administrators.

scholarship that I see" so that he can continue at NAU.

"I don't think I should have to worry about paying for school. If I have to work more and try to excel in school, eventually one of them is going to give," he said.

At Syracuse University, the board of trustees approved a 9.94 percent tuition increase Feb. 2 that sent tuition, fees, and room and board up to $11,830 and provoked students into a campus-wide protest.

For a week, students boycotted all university facilities—such as the bookstore and food services—where they pay to use or buy products.

"It was very effective in that most students participated," said Mark Root. In the past, he said, students have been apathetic.

Root, a junior, figured his costs have risen 35.38 percent since he enrolled at Syracuse.

"I know a lot of people who have left, or who will be leaving, because of increasing tuition. It's not fair," he said.

A University of New Mexico task force found that, for every $100 tuition hike, 1.3 percent of the student population will have to leave because of the financial burden.

Using the formula, the task force calculated that about 364 students will be forced to drop out if UNM proceeds with its plans to raise prices by 7.9 percent for 1990-91.

"If you took the increase in military research funding and funneled it into general education funds, you'll end up with plenty of scholarships to keep tuition increases within the inflation rate," maintained Rich Cowan of the National Coalition for Universities in the Public Interest, a Cambridge, Mass., group that monitors corporate influence on campus expenses.

The perpetual increases will end, he asserts, "when the federal government sees education, as opposed to research, as a priority."

For some lucky students they already have ended. Loraine County Community College in Elyria, Ohio, probably won't increase tuition for the next year, said Pauline Latkovic, a spokeswoman for the school.

"We're trying to keep school affordable, so we don't raise tuition unless we're really pressed," she said.

ELM test workshops scheduled

The Learning Center will offer a series of workshops for students who plan to take the May 12th ELM (Entry Level Math) test. Students should have scored at least a 400 on a previous ELM — or get at least 25 correct out of 50 on a math screening test available in the Learning Center. All interested should come to the Learning Center (PL-37) or call (ext. 5038) by April 5th to sign-up.

Below is a copy of the workshop schedule. Students should plan to attend all six sessions.

April 7, 14, 21, 28, and May 5th - 9 a.m. - 12 noon.

May 11 (the Friday before the exam) 6 p.m. - 9 p.m.

Special Workshops specifically for geometry will be arranged and publicized at a later date.

Delta Sig, Sigma Chi raise funds for athletics

Recently, CSUSB made the decision to move from Division III to Division II. The move requires the school to give scholarships in order to draw competitive athletes, requiring an increased budget to support such needs. To gain the funds needed, the athletic department went to the community and student body, which recently voted down a referendum to raise tuition, for support.

In response to the students' decision, the Sigma Chi fraternity decided to sponsor a basketball game with the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity to raise money for the Athletic Scholarship Fund. The players of the charity game gained monetary sponsorship for the number of points scored by the team and/or by any individual player. A dollar was also charged for spectators.

Approximately $500 was raised by the event, which went to the scholarship fund. Several local businesses made donations for the event including the Coyote Bookstore, Jerseys Pizza, Levitz Furniture, and Rosa Maria's Mexican Restaurant.

The game brought its own form of last second "March Madness" to CSUSB. Sigma Chi beat Delta Sig in the final seconds of the game; 89-88.

ROTC violates campus non-discrimination policy

By Moorylien M. Jenkins
Special to The Chronicle

The continual presence of U.S. Marine Corps and U.S. Air Force recruiters on campus and the continuing existence of the CSUSB Army ROTC program directly violates the CSUSB non-discrimination policy that forbids discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.

The military policy against recruiting homosexuals is documented in a 1982 Defense Department study that labels homosexuality as "incompatible with military service." It further states that excluding homosexuals from the military would help "maintain discipline, good order and morale...foster mutual trust and confidence among service members, [would] maintain the public acceptability of military service and...prevent breaches of security." In addition, the military may discharge homosexuals if they acknowledge a "propensity" to commit homosexual acts.

Several lawsuits challenging this policy have followed, but the Supreme Court, by allowing rulings in lower courts upholding discriminatory procedures to stand and by refusing to hear appeals from homosexuals in the military, has shown repeatedly that it does not consider discrimination based on sexual orientation to be a violation of the Constitution's guarantee of "equal protection of the laws" for all.

Here at CSUSB, the Student Rights and Responsibilities brochure, published by the Office of the Vice President for Student Services, asserts non-discrimination on the basis of "sex, age, race, ethnic origin, religion, national origin, marital status, physical handicap, sexual orientation, veteran's status, or pregnancy." It further states that "the California State University does not discriminate on the bases of that listed above. Title IX, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, statutes and executive orders from the Governor prohibit these forms of discrimination."

In addition, in a statement of opinion released on April 30, 1986, the Attorney General of the State of California, John K. Van De Kamp, states that according to California Labor Code sections 1101 and 1102, publicly disclosing oneself as homosexual is a political act, and "No employer shall make, adopt, or enforce any rule, regulation, or policy...controlling or directing, or tending control or direct the political activities or affiliations of employees." Political activity and political affiliation are protected under the First Amendment Freedom of Speech of the United States Constitution, and the California Supreme Court has ruled that disclosure of sexual orientation is a political act and therefore protected under this clause.

According to Paul Esposito, Director of the Career Development Center, any company or organization wishing to recruit on campus must sign a Western College Placement Association form which states that "the Career Development Center does not make available its interviewing facilities, job listings, or other services to employers who unlawfully discriminate in the selection of employees on the basis of race, color, sex, sexual orientation...or any other basis prohibited by applicable law." In addition, recruiters must comply with the University Policy Statements on Employer-Recruitment Activity, which states that "recruiters must agree to comply with all state and federal regulations which deal with antidiscrimination on pre-employment practices."

When asked why the military recruiters were allowed to recruit on campus, given their apparent violation of campus and state non-discrimination policies, Dr. Esposito stated, "We will not expose the students to anything that is clearly discriminatory that we are aware of." He further asserted, "It is in the best interest of the institution to allow any employer who signs the form [agreeing to comply with University policy] on campus. I will not challenge an employer that tells me they will abide by our center's rules and regulations."

Dr. Esposito also stated that the military would continue to be permitted to recruit on campus until his office received "official notification from the Chancellor's Office [of the CSU system] or a government agency proving [that the] armed services have been discriminatory regardless of whether the form was signed."

Once a policy is handed down from either of these sources, Dr. Esposito asserted that he would not hesitate to enforce a new policy. But until then, to challenge the existing policy of allowing the military on campus would be "extremely atypical and problematic."

The CSUSB Army ROTC program also subscribes to the military's policy of non-recruitment of homosexuals. Major Mike Robel, Assistant Professor of Military Science, stated that the CSUSB Army ROTC program stipulates that persons enrolled must "be U.S. citizens, non-handicapped to pass the physical, have no major law violations, cannot be homosexual, have a GPA above 2.0, and be under 30 by the time of commission." He continued by stating that "federal law prohibits homosexuals from entering the program."

When asked which federal statute he was citing, Major Robel referred to a memorandum stating the Army ROTC policy on the issue of homosexual enrollment in ROTC. It states: "While not public law, the courts have upheld the right of the Department of Defense to allow in its ranks only those that the Department holds are compatible with military service."

Major Robel further contended that the CSUSB ROTC program does adhere to the campus non-discrimination policy by allowing any student to enroll in any of the Army ROTC military science courses for academic credit only, regardless of whether he or she meets the Army ROTC criterion for enrollment. Only students meeting the criterion, however, may enlist in the Army ROTC program itself to receive the ROTC benefits, including possible scholarships, a subsistence allowance of $100 per month, and a commission as a second lieutenant upon successful completion of the program and graduation.

In justifying the exclusion of homosexuals, Major Robel said they are "prejudicial to good order and discipline." He continued to state that "except within these guidelines, we don't discriminate."

In response to the military's policy of discrimination based on sexual orientation student and faculty councils at schools such as Harvard University and

San Jose State University have urged the military to rethink their policy.

At the University of Wisconsin, the faculty congress in December, 1989, voted to petition the university's Board of Regents to shut down the university's ROTC program because it refuses to admit homosexuals. According to their proposal, the University would notify the Pentagon that it will end its affiliation with ROTC by 1993 unless the military opened its ranks to homosexuals. The year 1993 was chosen as the target date to allow current freshmen to graduate. Although this proposal, if accepted by the regents, would mean the loss of $2 million dollars a year in military funding, supportive faculty and students at the University of Wisconsin see the move as an emphatic statement for the unacceptability of discrimination by any organization.

Until the military abandons its policy of allowing discrimination based on sexual orientation, any branch of the armed forces that recruits or operates here at CSUSB will violate campus and state-wide non-discrimination policies. The administration, faculty, and students at CSUSB must decide if they will allow the military to continue to blatantly violate CSUSB policies, or if they will take measures to ensure that the campus policy prohibiting discrimination based on sexual orientation is upheld, showing that CSUSB will not tolerate discrimination at any level.

Student Association takes stand against ROTC's alleged discrimination

The CSSA took a bold and decisive step by passing a resolution calling for the CSU to "put a stop to the ROTC practice of discriminating in academic programs" and further requested that if their practices are not halted that the CSU will "remove the ROTC's from campus until their discriminatory practices are stopped."

All of this came in response to the CSSA's concern that the Army ROTC practice of discriminating against homosexuals was directly conflicting with the CSU's strong stance against discrimination on our campuses. The fact is no other academic program in the CSU system has a requirement of sexual orientation for admission or retention and the CSSA feels that the ROTC should not be an exception.

This resolution is just one more step to making our universities free of racism and discrimination.

There's only one product proven to grow even one of these.

This one.

From the time you first started losing your hair, you've wished for something that could somehow reverse the balding process. Now, The Upjohn Company has developed Rogaine, the first and only product that's proven to grow hair.

Rogaine is not a cosmetic or conditioner. It's a prescription treatment for male pattern baldness of the crown of the head that's available only with a prescription written by your doctor.

Two million men just like you have used Rogaine.

Today, two million men worldwide have seen their doctor and begun treatment with Rogaine. And for good reason. Rogaine works for many men. That's not a claim, it's a proven fact. Proven in clinical tests conducted by dermatologists at medical centers across the country. Proven by results that are simply unprecedented.

In a year-long test involving almost 1,500 men, only 16% reported no new growth. Virtually half (48%) saw at least moderate growth with Rogaine. 36% noted minimal growth. Generally, it took four months before hair began growing again. The side effects were minimal. The most common, itchy scalp, occurred in only 5% of the men.

Your doctor has the proof. And the prescription.

Your dermatologist or family physician will tell you what Rogaine can do for you. So see your doctor now. The sooner you get your prescription for Rogaine, the sooner you could be growing hair again.

graduate studies. The higher education process is designed to go in a logical procession from a general discussion of a subject to in-depth analysis of that subject. "Graduate students must have enough intellectual maturity to succeed in upper division course work and general education classes make this possible," Dr. Lance Masters, Assistant Dean of Business Administration, said. Dr. Masters also said that he has encountered many students whose position in this school has been put into jeopardy because they were not able to meet the expectations of their 300 and 400 level courses.

The reason why the Administration suddenly implemented this previously forgotten policy has to do with our schools' academic ability and standings in the national college arena. The departments in our school that have the resources and capability to offer specialized majors must get their recognition from a national body that decides upon the requirements for those special majors, called specialized subject accreditation. One of the requirements that the national groups agreed upon was to disallow undergraduates from taking upper level course work.

Some students, however, don't agree with the administration's evaluation.

"Being a student who decided for myself to get the general education courses out of the way, I find it extremely unfair of the administration to restrict freshmen and sophomores to only undergraduate courses," said Darin Scines, a Political Science major who is currently a sophomore. "By the beginning of the Winter quarter I had completed all of my G.E. requirements, this is supposedly two quarters early. In the Winter registration catalog there were nineteen Poly Sci courses offered, but only two of these classes were below the 300 level. In the recent Spring course catalog they offered twenty Poly Sci courses, and only one was in the undergraduate level." "I would like to see the members of A.S.I. take this policy into serious consideration and I hope they might take action in the form of a petition to address the students, which are the people who are affected," Scines said.

"I take upper level courses as an undergraduate because I am searching for the major that I would most like to devote my life's work to. Through these more difficult courses I can become better acquainted with the specifics of a particular course of study. Right now I am an undeclared freshman hoping to find a major I want to declare through my 300 level courses," stated Jason Kelly.

A student who welcomes this event is Stacy Cerwyn, a sophomore majoring in Communications. "If a person goes to college they should expect to have restrictions placed on the courses they may take as an undergraduate because the school must differentiate between general education and upper division work," she said. "The needs of a student as far as intellectual stimulation should be more than fulfilled through undergraduate course work."

when someone asked me to go and play, I always went with them," said Shearer. "It seemed like I always had time to play sports."

Shearer, who is a Physical Education major with a minor in Recreation and Biology, also holds down a job while playing. She works for a newspaper delivering papers.

"I have a paper route at three in the morning, after my route I go back home and sleep a while before going to school. I usually get 5-6 hours of sleep a night," said Shearer.

In the classroom she holds a 2.80 GPA.

She was the fourth leading scorer on the basketball team with a 7.9 point per game average and was third in rebounding with a 5.4 average. She helped to lead the Coyotes the a 24-4 rec-success," said Schwartz, "I think that (playing all three sports) was really something that she wanted to do."

Currently, Shearer is playing her favorite.

"Softball is my favorite sport. It's a little more individual of a sport; in softball you have to make the play when you're hit the ball."

"She's a real gutsy player. She's doing well right now, she's really helping the team," said softball coach Sue Strain. "She is the part of the nucleus that we have. As the starting second baseman she and Lisa Hilborn have the prettiest double play I've seen."

On the season so far Shearer is batting .383, with a fielding percentage of .984. The Lady Coyotes are currently ranked fifth in NCAA She's constantly on the go," said Schwartz.

Tammy Shearer has proven to everyone that it is right for her.

"She is one of those people who you believe can do anything if she puts her mind to it."

Coach Ralph Perez, Women's Soccer

Her love is shown on the field and the court.

On the soccer field this past year she helped to lead the team with three goals and two assists.

"She is a very quiet, yet very intense leader on the field. She is one of those people who you believe can do anything if she puts her ord and a third place finish in the Western Regionals.

"I thought that Tammy was a really key player in the second half of the season. She started out slow because of the overlap with soccer. She was a big reason why we got better throughout the season, she was a definite key in our Division III with a record of 16-6.

"As a quiet player she is often overlooked," said Strain. "She is the most consistent player I've ever seen."

Playing multiple sports isn't anything new for Shearer. She lettered in four sports at Norco High School;

Golf drives past top ranked UCSD

CSUSB's golf team, ranked second in the Western Region Division III, defeated region leader UCSD by 40 strokes in the CSU Stanislaus Tournament held on March 26-27. The Coyotes finished the tourney ninth overall and first among Division III teams.

Just prior to the tournament, CSUSB had been ranked second, behind UCSD, in the Western Region, and ninth in the nation, also behind UCSD (8th). The showing at the tournament will improve CSUSB's ranking when the polls are released again.

The Coyotes are a perfect 9-0 in dual matches this season and are looking to extend their winning streak this weekend at the Grand Canyon Invitational.

Senior Dan Blancett pitches against Macalester College. The Coyotes defeated them 15-2, and went on to the Spring Baseball Classic at Fiscallini field.

Coyotes survive, sweep Spring Classic

CSUSB's sweep of the innagural Rotary North/CSUSB Spring Baseball Classic lost some of its savor as the Coyotes lost two key players to injury.

Pitcher Rene Aguilar suffered a strained back in a pre-tourney game against University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, and outfielder Sal Herrera was hit by a pitch against Whitewater three days later, suffering a fractured wrist. Herrera is not expected to be able to return for at least three weeks, while Aguilar's condition is uncertain.

The Coyotes were undefeated throughout the five-team round-robin tournament, and are proving themselves a much improved team from the one that was shut out by Azusa Pacific 8-0 three weeks ago. The Coyotes scored a total of 50 runs during the four-game tourney, and allowed only 18.

Five members of the squad were named to the All-Tournament Team: Ryan Love-second base, Jeff Brennan-outfield, Bret Parrick-catcher, Brandon Moore-designated hitter, and Brooks Peters-pitcher.

Following the game versus Azusa on March 7, the Coyotes' record had dropped to a dismal 3-7. They were averaging only 4.7 runs per game and were giving up close to seven. The team was well off the pace that had brought them close to being selected to the Western Regional playoffs, last year at, 28-8-1.

Since that game, however, the Coyotes (15-8) have won 12 out of 13, increased their offense to 11.5 runs per game while allowing a mere 3.5, and have regained their vision of post-season play. The Coyotes will go into action this Saturday in a double header against the University of La Verne, at La Verne.

Softball gains respect with national ranking

The CSUSB softball team, with its 16-6 record, has been listed among the top ten teams in the nation for the first time in its four year history.

"It shows that we've gotten the respect of the other teams," said first year head coach Sue Strain, "People are seeing what we are doing. It's important to get this kind of respect this early in the season."

The Lady Coyotes are ranked fifth in the nation in NCAA Division III. They were also ranked second in the Western Region, the first time the team has been ranked higher the seventh.

"We're not at our peak yet," continued Strain, "We can never be satisfied with our play, we are always looking to improve. We go into each game as the underdog, we can't relax, not yet."

The Lady Coyotes continued to improve with a sweep of visiting Claremont College last Thursday. Sophomore Tanna Cash (7-3) pitched the first game, which lasted only five innings due to the 10 run mercy rule, allowing only three hits in the 12-0 victory.

Senior center fielder, Anne Cordero, was three-for-three in the contest, including two triples, drove in three runs, and scored twice for the Lady Coyotes. Left fielder Marnie LaFleur was also three-for-three, including a home run. She also had three RBIs and scored twice.

In the nightcap, LaFleur (9-3) pitched four innings, allowed three hits and one unearned run. She continued with the hot bat, again going three-for-three, picking up two more RBIs, and scoring twice. Senior short-stop Lisa Hilborn picked up an RBI on a two-run home run, her second of the season. Melody Bumstead pitched the final three innings in relief to get the save.

The national ranking is proof of the team's talent. Cordero, twice named to the All-Western Region Team and a second team All-American in 1988, holds the highest batting average on the team at .539. She is also the team leader in RBIs (23) and stolen bases (7). LaFleur follows close behind with 21 RBIs and a .305 batting average.

Other leaders for the Lady Coyotes are second baseman Tammy Shearer, batting .383 with 15 RBIs, Hilborn, batting .318 with 15 RBIs, and first baseman Monica Reyes batting .308.

Defensively, the Lady Coyotes have been strong all year.

"At the beginning [of the season], the defense was winning our games for us," said Strain, "but lately the offense has picked up, and our pitching staff is doing a great job."

Both pitchers, Cash and LaFleur, have ERAs below 1.0 (.530 and .886 respectively) and have been getting stronger throughout the season. The Lady Coyotes have given up a total of 31 runs in 22 games this season, an average of only 1.4 runs per game, including 10 shut-outs.

The Lady Coyotes play their final home game of the season on Tuesday versus Cal Baptist.
