CSUSB
Committee offers safety suggestions

By William Lundquist
Staff Writer

Alcohol may be banned in Serrano Village next year. A transient service may shuttle night students between buildings and parking lots. Police dogs may be used on campus patrols.

These are just a few of the recommendations submitted by the Task Force on Campus Safety, which was commissioned by Anthony Evans, CSUSB president, to analyze the issues affecting campus crime prevention.

The Task Force was divided into subcommittees on Campus Environment, Special Programs, Public Safety Resources, and Housing Safety. They met in eight early morning sessions between February 6 and March 8.

The recommendations of each subcommittee have been turned over to one of four vice presidents into whose areas implementation would have to take place.

An example is Peter Wilson, who must implement, study, or reject recommendations made by the subcommittee on Housing Safety. The subcommittee was chaired by Randy Harrell, Director of Student Life, and included Aaron Watson, Associated Students, Inc. (ASI) president.

The Task Force found that alcohol was involved in a high percentage of criminal activity, including vandalism and sexual assault. Therefore, alcohol may be banned within Serrano Village next year.

Interviews also indicated that the majority of problems in the dorms are caused by non-residents. Formal guest registration and restrictions may have to be instituted.

Student aides and professional guards have been hired. In conjunction with increased foot patrols from campus security, Serrano Village will now be patrolled continuously from 8 p.m. to sunrise. Doors will be kept locked and the locks will soon be re-keyed.

While these and many other measures will add to the safety of Serrano Village, the residents will have to pay the bill. Dorms and

Library addition project to begin in 1991

By Johnnie Ann Ralph
Special to The Chronicle

The Palm Library has started planning for a major new addition and renovation to the existing building. On November 1, 1989, the Board of Trustees of the California State University approved plans for the $24.5 million project. The five-story addition will be constructed west of the library and will be attached to about 40 percent of the existing building.

The campus administration wants to maintain the library building as the focal point of the campus. To achieve this objective, the addition will be in the same style of architecture as the existing building so that the two will appear to be one structure. The additional 121,239 square feet will double the size of the Palm Library.

The proposed building will house 612,000 volumes and will have 1,950 reader stations. Emphasis will be placed on new information technologies and the changing role of the library.

SOAR seeks to raise awareness

By Richard Kontra
Staff Writer

"We should all be vegetarians is one point."

Now that all carnivorous creatures are listening, an important message is being made by the above quote. Susan Finsen, faculty advisor for SOAR (Students and Others for Animal Rights) is a strong believer in her cause. SOAR is an on-campus organization at CSUSB that lets students become involved in the campaign for animal rights.

Finsen has been the advisor for the club's two-year existence. SOAR's primary function is to educate people and make people aware of what is actually going on. What goes on at puppy mills, the inhumane conditions at factory farms and slaughterhouses, and unnecessary tests done at laboratories.

"Our focus is on animal rights, you have to understand suffering," Finsen said.

"Children need to be taught that cows are killed to make hamburgers. "When a child sees Ronald McDonald going through a hamburger patch, what is a child going to think?"

Finsen became interested in animal rights in the spring of 1987 and SOAR began.

Ferari speaks out against Pinochet

By Jacob J. Powell
Staff Writer

Carlos Larrain de Ferari spoke in the Lower Commons on Wednesday, April 9 to discuss the new democratic government in Chile. On September 11, 1973 a military coup occurred in Santiago, the capital of Chile. The ruling socialist government was replaced by military forces and by the end of the day the leader of the armed forces General Augusto Pinochet Ugarte declared victory. He immediately set up a military government violently suppressed all opposition. With xenophobic fervor they attacked foreign born citizens and arrested about 7,000 people, a state of emergency and curfew were declared.

Before this coup, Chile was the only country in Latin America that could claim 150 years of democratic government. Since the year 1773 the people took a part in the electoral process of government without any outside or inside disturbance.

Ferari (at the time) was an assistant to the Ambassador of Chile in Geneva, Switzerland on the day of the coup. He was exited from his country until 1985. While exiled, he worked for an international human rights commission studying

Satellite campus lacks student services

By William Lundquist

Few students are aware that CSUSB has a satellite campus at Palm Desert, in the Coachella Valley. Even those students who have seen the four modular white units that comprise the Coachella Valley Center (CVC) might be surprised to learn that it offers bachelor's degrees in eight fields, in addition to three master's degrees, and several credential programs.

CVC is able to offer a complete education to 650-800 students, out of nine classrooms, by working closely with the College of the Desert (COD), the community college which it serves as host to the tiny CVC campus. Freshman and sophomore level classes are completed at COD, then the student moves a few steps over to CVC, where most classes are scheduled in four hour blocks, once a week, to maximize the usage of the nine classrooms.

Quality of education at CVC is equivalent to that at CSUSB, because the department at the San Bernardino campus oversee the staffing of faculty. Many teachers at the San Bernardino campus also teach classes at CVC.

CVC uses the library and book store facilities at COD, which in turn, works with the library and book store at CSUSB to make sure CVC students have the resources they need.

Older, working students make up a large percentage of the CVC population, so the busiest time for the campus is in the evening. The largest program in education, followed by business administration.

CVC opened with two trailers and 200 students fall quarter, 1986, and moved into its present layout of three modular units in December, 1987. CSUSB students, who have become accustomed to overcrowded facilities, can suffer and why CVC Dean Catherine Cannon hugged the first of the new modular units as it was being positioned on the ground.

CSUSB are not funded by the state.
Wilson stressed that none of the improvements will insure safety without the cooperation of the students. "Increased cooperation of the students will insure safety without the responsibility of the residents. They have to take responsibility for their neighbors."
Wilson also emphasized the trade-off. "Increased safety and security means the trade-off. "Increased self-defense courses, a night tram service, and the sale of devices such as rape whistles and car alarms on campus were other ideas put forth by the subcommittee. Johnnie Anne Ralph, Lifebarrant, and Chair of the Task Force, also wants a new car. "We would like to move our physical plant building and increase trained and other improved ments. Escorts will become a more visible presence on campus. Campus Security has been asked to fill vacant positions as quickly as possible, and to strive for increased retention of present staff. Police dogs are one option that will be studied. Improvements in lighting will continue to take place. More emergency phones will be installed. Foliage will be trimmed with safety in mind. All the subcommittees agreed that, besides the improvements, there must be a new awareness of crime prevention in order to insure safety. Martha Kazo, a counselor, and Chair of the Subcommittee on Special Programs, said, "We need to build community on this campus. None of us wants to hear about crime and crime prevention. That's how we protect ourselves." Her Subcommittee's report stated, "The sense of security that comes from denial of vulnerability and of blame of the victim is certainly a false and dangerous sense of security." In the past, that sense of security was somewhat justified. The first assault was reported on campus last year. CSUSB does not yet have most of the crime problems of other universities. Kazo's Subcommittee asks for a broader definition of crime, to include date rape, courtship violence, and violence arising from bias against minority groups. It pointed out a need for educational and awareness programs to strive for increased safety for students and faculty.
Self-defense courses, a night tram service, and the sale of devices such as rape whistles and car alarms on campus were other ideas put forth by the subcommittee. Johnnie Anne Ralph, Lifebarrant, and Chair of the Task Force, also wants to see an emphasis on education. "Awareness is very important. We all share this feeling."

"Ultimately, the safety and security in the responsibility of the residents." -Peter Wilson

The residents won't be given a choice between free dom and safety. The increased age of the students in the dorms is dropping, with 75 percent under 21. Expectations of parents, and legal liabilities, demand that CSUSB assume a greater degree of "ten loco parentis," a custodial role in which the university must take on some of the functions of a parent.
To help build a sense of community in Serrano Village, the university has hired a Coordinator of Residence Life. The head resident and eight resident assistants will all receive increased training and responsibilities. Together, they will help educate residents in community responsibility and crime prevention.
The campus escort service will also institute increased training and other improvements.

The police staff feels their equipment and manpower replacement. Ed Harrison, Chief of Police Services, feels it's time to replace the department's base station, the units the dispatcher uses to radio patrol officers. "Our current one is twenty years old."
Butler does not think the radio equipment request will make it through the budget process, although he hopes to find some way of buying the equipment. "We might try to get the equipment with an opportunity purchase fund."
Butler is more optimistic about the other requests. "This year we will be getting a new car. The three current police cars have accumulated about 25,000, 65,000, and 80,000 miles respectively. Most of the police departments survey out their cars at 50,000 miles," says one patrol officer. The new car will cost around $16,000 and will be bought through a CHP police buying agreement.
The department also plans to renovate parts of the physical plant building and set up a crime prevention center. Butler expects the cost to be at least $86,000. "We would like to move our storage upstairss—the lost and found items, evidence, and equipment. The space we gain from the move will be devoted to crime prevention."
According to Butler, the crime prevention center will allow the department to expand its public awareness campaign. He said that the campus is increasingly necessary in light of the increased crime in the San Bernardino area.

The request with the largest impact is the two additional permanent positions. "We expect to get one public safety officer position," explains Butler. "It's very high on the priority list. The other position is much lower on the list. I don't think we'll get that one."

An additional position means the department would have eleven campus' safety positions: one chief, one sergeant, one investigator/security and eight patrol officers. If the position is funded, the department will meet the Chancellor's general standard for public safety staffing. However, Butler noted, "Getting the positions is one thing. The tough part is keeping them filled."

"Currently, seven campus safety positions are filled," states Chief Harrison. "We have the chief, two sergeants, and four officers." The department has just filled one position.
The department has been at least one officer short since January, 1989, two officers short since September, 1989, and three officers short since February, 1990. The four current patrol officers divide the work into 12-hour shifts.

Harrison is concerned. He said, "Right now, I'm just concerned about getting patrol positions filled."

When does a date become a crime?

It happens when a man forces a woman to have sex against her will. And even when it involves college students, it’s still considered a criminal offense. A felony. Punishable by prison.

So if you want to keep a good time from turning into a bad one, try to keep this in mind:

When does a date become a crime?

When she says “No!” And he refuses to listen.

Against her will is against the law. Sponsored by Greeks Against Rape

Creating a non-alcoholic brew as good as O'Doul's wasn't easy. It took talent. It took taste. It took tradition.

But most of all it took Anheuser-Busch, with over 138 years of brewing excellence. The kind of excellence you'll discover in O'Doul's.

O'Doul's starts as a fine premium beer. Carefully brewed, fully fermented and cold aged, using only the finest ingredients. Then the alcohol is naturally removed, retaining all the great taste of a fine premium beer.

So the next time you'd like a non-alcoholic brew, ask for O'Doul's. You'll enjoy the taste for years to come.

O'DOUL'S. THE TASTE WILL WIN YOU O'VER.
North Dakota State students walk-out over student government's 'control'

The staff of The Spectrum, the student newspaper at North Dakota State University, walked out April 6 to protest what editors said was an effort by the student government to control the stories the paper published.

"They were clearly trying to control what goes into the paper," said news editor Brian Hart as saying after the student Senate voted to shave an additional $1,000 off the paper's budget.

"In effect," said student government member Roger Hays, "they were getting credits for class and getting money. We do not pay people to go to school."

Student Senator Dan Enebo explained a majority of senators felt student journalists should not be paid for their work because they also earn academic credit by working for the paper.

"In effect," said student government member Roger Hays, "they were getting credits for class and getting money. We do not pay people to go to school."

Reporters walk out over Editor's racism

About 20 reporters quit Michigan State University's State News April 9, charging editor John Secor with condoning sexual harassment and racism in the paper's coverage of a recent campus appearance by Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan.

The reporters called for Secor's resignation. Secor refused, adding, "If there were instances of racial or sexual harassment (at the paper), it was done behind my back, and I was never alerted to it."

The CSUSB Chicano Art Exhibition, titled "Aqui Estamos... Y'No Nos Vamos," will be featured in the University Art Gallery until May 25.

The exhibition, translated as "Here We Are... And We're Not Leaving," is the second Chicano art showing, coming fifteen years after the initial one. This Chicano exhibition is dedicated to the thirteen artists who participated in the original show.

Joseph Moran, the event’s curator, says the exhibition simply reinforces the presence of Mexicans in the art world.

"The title says it all: we are here to stay, Mexicans have established themselves as great artists," Moran said.

"This exhibition showcases the pioneers of Chicano art from the late '60s and early '70s," Moran said.

The exhibition is free of charge, with the art gallery open from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Night of the Blue Meanie

Members of the band 'Blue Meanie' rock-out in Wiley's Pub last Thursday night. ASI Entertainment sponsors free concerts in the pub every Thursday night starting at 8 p.m.

By William Lundquist

"People make time to do the things they want to do," said Thomas Williams, Chair of Associated Students, Inc. (ASI) Ethnic/Cultural Committee. By most standards, Williams has been a busy man. He arrived in California in 1980 from the east coast, courtesy of the U.S. Air Force. It wasn't a big jump from George Air Force Base to Victor Valley College, which led to CSUSB.

Williams received a bachelor's degree in psychology from CSUSB, and should graduate with a master's degree in criminal justice this year. He works as a graduate student assistant in the Learning Center.

When the president of ASI needed someone to chair the Ethnic/Cultural Committee, Williams made the time to serve. After all, he had been a full time student even while he was working full time in the Air Force.

His committee funds any CSUSB club, organization, fraternity, or sorority that is recognized by the Student Life Office. Requests must be for $500 or more, and are considered on a first-come first-served basis.

While any organization may apply for funding, their projects should involve some kind of learning or cultural awareness for the campus, and its service area.

The Ethnic/Cultural Committee funds annual activities like Black History Month, the Cinco de Mayo celebration, and Chinese New Year festivities, just to name a few.

Events can also originate within the committee itself. Williams took the initiative to help sponsor the Black Facility Multicultural Lecture Series, May Angelou, and Laura X. Not all committee chairs have been as active.

Describing his position as a "power seat" within student government, Williams said, "Power is something that you take. No one gives you power.

"Student government has given me a micro-perspective of how the bureaucracy operates," said Williams.

"Bureaucracy, in general, is fragmented. At times, each fragment tends to work against itself."

Williams describes student government as a "constant power struggle," but says that it has been interesting to work with faculty and staff. However, he believes that ASI "should be run by students. Faculty and staff should be purely advisory."

Despite some criticism of ASI government, Williams said, "I want to commend Aaron Watson for weathering the storm, and he's done an excellent job as ASI president."

"With his master's degree from CSUSB, Williams may try to work as a child's rights advocate in an internship with the San Bernardino Courts. He would also like to do some research, or seek a part time teaching position.

He would like to begin work on his doctorate in 1991 or 1992, preferably at the State University of New York at Albany.

Williams can see himself in ten years as having that doctorate, being published in criminal justice, and working the lecture circuit. He also believes he should be a pastor of a church by then. Realistic goals?

"Whatever you decide to do, don't let anyone talk you out of it," says Williams.

Piecing together the scholarship puzzle

By Ted Krug

Special to The Chronicle

The letter from AJL entitled "Complained Over Scholarship Information" (Chronicle, March 7, 1990) raised legitimate questions regarding dissemination of scholarship information. We believe that ample opportunity is available to any student to discover scholarship sources by taking advantage of the above information.

A number of departments on campus raise money to award in the form of scholarships to students majoring in a specific discipline. Occasionally, a donor from outside the university will give a scholarship to CSUSB, thus giving the award to a specific major. In these instances, CSUSB has policies and procedures for awarding discipline-centered scholarships. Information regarding these scholarships is disseminated by the department chair and faculty members. Ordinarily, post it is announced and displayed in the department and faculty members announce the scholarship in the school's newsletters. A departmental scholarship committee, usually composed of faculty, is appointed by the department chair. This departmental committee recommends scholarship recipients to the USC which is the final authority for awarding any scholarship on campus. AJL has done the right thing by continuously checking with the department. Unfortunately, not every department has discipline-centered scholarships.

Moreover, a scholarship may be donated later in the year. There is no means to control when a donor chooses to award funds to the school or department. One time, university-wide scholarships are administered by the University Scholarship Committee. Ordinarily, these scholarships are donated by donors and are distributed throughout the year. Recipients of these awards are drawn from the list of students who applied by March 2 for campus-wide scholarships of any library in California that has a section dedicated to financial aid.

When AJL was directed to the library by the financial aid staff, that is exactly what should have been done. The financial aid office is the first stop for discipline-centered scholarships; (6) investigate various community organizations (labor unions, fraternal groups, business and professional organizations, churches, and foundations); and (7) use the financial aid resource collection in the library.

There is no substitute for the diligent leg work required in finding scholarship sources. The rewards come only to those who persist in the hunt.

Why don't they just let me be?

By Kim Perkins

It's spring again and the start of a new quarter has arrived. Spring break wasn't nearly long enough and I'm just beginning to feel the pressures of new courses pile on top of last quarter's anxiety. Here we go again - decisions hit me from every end. Do I keep this course or do I drop it? Add that course or do I wait to take it later? If I don't take it now will I have to take a heavier load next quarter? Oh, what do I do? I hate the pressure decisions bring.

On my way to add a course, or drop one, or whatever it is that I'm doing. I'm suddenly approached with another problem. Who do I vote for? It's Associated Students Incorporated (ASI) election time again and I don't know who to vote for. It's not that I don't care, I do, it's just that I want to vote for the best person who'll do the best job. But I don't know who that person is and I really don't have much time to find out. Besides, how would I find out anyway? By becoming each candidate's best friend? That's about the only way I know of that one could half way get a clue - with the fronts they put on these days. Not really. I know better than that. It's just that all this pressure is getting to me - AAAK.

On top of all this, the candidates stand on the pathway that leads right to the library. This just so happens to be where most of my classes meet and the building that I need to go almost ten times a day (not to mention everyone else). They don't seem to care that they've already given me six million flyers (an exaggeration of course). They'd give me another one if I let them. How is it that they seemed to know that I hadn't voted yet? Did they keep a watch on me? Did they keep a watch on everyone else? Finally, I got fed up with it (I say finally, but it didn't actually take me very long). The next time I walked through their 'yellow brick' pathway I held my hands straight out in front of me and hostily told them, I've already got one, thank you.' (all the while I'm thinking - You can leave me alone now)

I've heard their spiels in my various classes (long winded some of them are), but when I passed one on the pathway I really saw the light. The candidate said, 'I really like your cast, (I had just broken my hand a couple weeks before) it's a pretty one.' Give me a break! (just kidding - I don't need another one. Let's hope that if he gets elected he's not reading this).

At last I make the final plunge through the long line of creatures to the voting booth. I quickly glance at the article on the various candidates and what they 'say' they'll do, enter my selection and I'm home free. Oh what a feeling. Yet, I exit the booth just to walk down that pathway of giants again (I'm not very tall), but at least this time I can say, 'I already voted.' A saying which quickly subsides them.

Response to 300, 400 level limitation article

By Jerrold Pritchard, Assistant Vice President
Special to The Chronicle

There was some confusion in the recent article in the student newspaper regarding the intent of the School of Business and Public Administration to require junior standing (90 or more units) prior to enrollment in 300-, 400-, and 500-level courses. As approved by the Faculty Senate, this policy would apply only to courses in Administration, Accounting, Finance, Information Management, Management, Management Science, Marketing, and Public Administration.

Junior level students from majors in other Schools who have completed the stated course prerequisites would still be permitted to enroll. It is the goal of the School of Business and Public Administration to implement this new policy for the 1990-91 academic year. I hope this clarifies the matter.
when a student asked her about starting a group. Some of the events SOAR has participated in are The Great American Meatout, which asked people to give up eating meat on March 20. They are setting up a booth for Earth Day and are gearing up for undoubtably the most important day or the year for their cause, World Day for Laboratory Animals on April 24. With the coming of Earth Day and with all the environmental issues being brought to people's attention, it is clear that the animal rights movement is on a roll. It has even caused some people to launch campaigns against animal rights trying to misinform the public. "Animal rights activism never commit acts of violence," Finsen said. Of research done in laboratories, Finsen said many of the tests are reportedly done repeatedly and become unnecessary. Finsen admits that immediately people are not going to change, but it's a gradual process. A problem that she sees, is that people are going to say they believe in animal rights, but then they turn around and go the McDonald's and eat a hamburger. That's defying the purpose. It's not a borderline issue, someone is either for animal rights in all its forms or not. Whether you believe in it or not, SOAR is for real. Anyone interested in getting involved should get in touch with Susan Finsen in TO-10.

precite a quality educational facility located in their community, they have several unique problems, such as the absence of food services or medical facilities on campus. Even finding running water can entail a long hike.

Associated Students, Inc. (ASI) has tried to help by having bottled water delivered to some water coolers located in the classrooms. Still, CVC students lack the copy machines, microscopes, and vending machines that CSUSB students take for granted at the San Bernardino campus. Another unsettling problem for CVC is that students who attend classes at both campuses must buy two parking permits.

CVC students do pay full ASI fees, and recently made their dissatisfaction known when they voted overwhelmingly against an ASI fee increase to support athletic scholarships and other programs.

Susan Summer, Acting Dean at CVC this quarter, feels that CVC students are "missing a lot of the student life aspects." No pub band or guest lecturer appears on the CVC campus. Fraternities and other organizations show little interest in the campus.

Pat Owens, an office employee and student at CVC, said, "For me, the big difference is access to what I need. There is no access to student health services." A committee has been formed by Student Services at CSUSB to help determine and fill student needs at the Palm Desert campus. At this time, the future of CVC can only be gleaned from rumors. The CSU system would like to turn CVC into an independent CSU campus, but state legislators and the UC system may have something to say about that.

The president of COD envisions a university park project, in which satellite CSU, CC, and TAP centers would be located in Claremont, Loma Linda, and others, would each offer certain programs and share common facilities and resources in Palm Desert.

Those interested in more information about CVC should contact: Coaches Valley Center, 43-500 Monterey Avenue, Palm Desert, CA 92260, or call 619/341-2883.

the maintenance and does not charge the UC system for any of it.

Reynolds not only charges the CSU system, but also uses CSU employees as workers.

Senator Quentin Kopp of San Francisco felt that Reynolds abused her position. "The chancellor seems to me to be more interested in perks and emoluments of the office than other aspects of the system. It's the real style. I resent it," said Kopp, "I thought [Reynolds] was supposed to be in there to inspire college students; not live regally. It sure implies that some people don't take their role as servants to the people seriously."

Griffiths stated that it was now up to the students and faculty to repair the damage.

"It is imperative that we work together on the passage of proposition 108 this January. This will make more funds available to the system and help reverse fee increases and make student services a priority once again."

As for the next chancellor, a committee will meet in May to consider possible replacements.

the government of Pinochet. During their studies over those years between the 1973 coup and 1989 there were 30,000 deaths and 300,000 people were kept in detention centers. The secret police would round up prisoners in the middle of the night.

During the regime's time in office 90% of all the trials were held in military tribunals. When a case was brought before the court that implicated someone in the military they would deny its admission. Also during this time only five appeals were granted in ten years by the tribunals.

Ferati called for the prosecution of all military personnel who had committed crimes against humanity. Due to a law that was passed in 1983 by Pinochet's judiciary that gave amnesty to all military personnel, prosecution of these criminals has been impossible. Ferati is now asking the new president to form a new constitution which would enable the judiciary to act. The only thing that is stopping it is that Pinochet still maintains power over the military.

Until the time when the people of Chile are again able to participate in their governing process and gain control of the military, there can't possibly be a declaration that Chile is now a democracy.
AROUND THE DIAMOND

WISL (Wednesday Intramural Softball League)
Opening day for the WISL began with Columbian coffee star, Juan Valdez throwing out the traditional first pitch. The league opened as the career students of the Graduates handed the rule-ill-informed team of Sigma Chi a 15-0 defeat. Looking for WISL and FISL championship rings, the guys and gals of Demolition reported the Bad News Badgers with a big 19-2 loss. Defending champs, DSP and Power was without power as they choked to the chokers of the 12 oz. Slammers. Shortstop Corina Brawley was defensively instrumental in the Slammers win. Sympathys to Out to Lunch with a huge, whopping and monstrous loss to the Pack, 22-0 (if only this were a golf score). Close game as Team Mutt kicked Buttheads with a narrow 10-7 score. Too much "pregame" for the Brew Crew losing 9-4 to Shandin's Slaughterers. Remember, there's always tomorrow...

FISL (Friday Intramural Softball League)
In case you didn't know, I flew home to the Bay Area last weekend to watch the A's play and have lunch with my good friends Rickey and Jose. Since I missed all of the games, I had to give my predictions as today was my deadline. Let's see, Sigma Chi #2 vs. the Creatures; I'll put my money on the tennis players, winning by at least eight runs (Creatures-20, Sigma Chi #2-7; beginner's luck, Bob!). TKE #1 will easily conquer the reserve team of Sigma Chi #1 (Sigma Chi #1-11, TKE #1-10; easily conquer, Bob?). Walking tough, the Pedestrians should massacre the Slaughterers of Shardin, if they even make it to the game (No show by Slaughterers: wrong again, Bob). Looking to remain undefeated, Sigma Nu-Kids on the Block, will, I predict, continue in their FISL dominance and easily defeat Delta Sig #1 (Delta Sig-15, Sigma Nu-2; face it, Bob, you blew it!). Team TKE and Nothing to Prove didn't happen, N-T-P is rumored to be dropping out of the league (No show by Nothing to Prove). Without a clue, the Lost Boys will stand a chance against Demolition; Boys, just call it a day and hit happy hour early (Demolition-7, Lost Boys-1). Tokay Weasels against Delta Sig #2; I like green—give the win to the Delta Sig (Tokay Weasels-16, Delta Sig-8; hope you didn't bet any green on this one, Bob). Captain Rex Wheeler Dealer and his Banshees will show much effort and go down quietly to the local boys of the Homies (No show by Homies; the Wheeler Dealer did go down quietly, Bob, but not without a win). The Slammer's will be spared a loss—they'll receive a BYE as did Larry's Heroes. Bob E's softball tip for the week: hit the ball to the person who can't catch. Look for team standings in the next edition.

Free Stuff for you
The key word here is FREE. Power Burst Super Teams is this Saturday. Are you signed up? All your friends are doing it. Be one of the first eight teams to sign up, and score yourself a cool, rad, and totally-cherry T-shirt. Remember, four guys and four gals per team, participating in six exciting events. Martha Quinn and MTV are rumored to be on hand filming this event (just a rumor, but Martha is a close personal friend of mine). Sign up now, or a few minutes later.

New Sport for you
The Intramural Sports Department introduces Intramural Grass Blade Counting and drop-in Indoor Soccer. We have yet to plan a time for grass blade counting, but indoor soccer can be played on Mondays from 4-6 p.m. in the gym. Remember, black-soled shoes, high-heeled spikes, ski boots, and British Kughis are not allowed on the gym floor, so dress accordingly.

The Rec Sports Department invites you to participate and reminds you that, "Only you can prevent forest fires."

Tennis doubles up on talent

By John Fitch
Staff Writer

The CSUSB men's tennis team is finishing up a solid season and a large part of the success can be credited to the doubles team of Yancy Dodson and Alaric Jura. The Dodson/Jura team recently had a 13 match winning streak snapped at the University of Redlands, but still have a 15 and 3 record to show for their hard work.

Men's tennis coach Dan Kri^h credits his number 1 doubles team's success with the fact that Dodson and Jura played together over the summer.

"Since they knew they both were coming (to CSUSB), they played together in a few different tournaments over the summer and got a feel for playing together," Kri^h said.

Dodson agrees that their competition on the junior college level also helps them. "He played for Saddleback and I played for Riverside Community College; we played against each other for two years," Dodson said.

"We talked over the phone and decided to get together and play over the summer. It has worked out pretty well," Dodson said.

Dodson and Jura have played particularly well against bigger schools, notching victories over Washington State and Loyola Marymount, both NCAA Division I schools.

Their play against larger schools gives the duo a good shot at post-season tournament play, despite the fact that the NCAA selection committee seems to overlook CSUSB athletes in their post-season selections.

"We know how the board usually makes it hard for CSUSB to get in (the playoffs), but we will just have to wait and see," Dodson said.

Go Coyotes

Coyote Classic challenges runners

By Jeff Zeleniski

Three CSUSB women basketball players and the coach were honored with the American Women's Sports Federation's All-American awards.

Senior Teri Paine-Walsh was named to the first team and teammates Lorl Peters (Sr.) and Laura Beeman (Soph.) received honorable mentions. Head coach Gary Schwartz was also named as an All-American coach.

"It (all the selections) was a good honor. Fast Break All-American for Teri is a very high honor. I was very pleased with the selections," said Schwartz.

Although the Coyotes had three players selected to the Fast Break team, no Coyotes were selected to the Kodak All-American list, which is the official All-American list.

"I think the thing that hurt our players (from winning on the Kodak team) was we didn't play well in the first game of the Regionals. There were several other candidates at the tournament that played well," said Schwartz, "if we would have played (as well as the others) some of our players would have made it."

Finishing her career as a Fast Break All-American emphasizes what Paine-Walsh has accomplished in her career at CSUSB. In her four year career she set 25 school records. Her most notable was her 2,015 (18.8 points per game) total points in her 107 game career.

"Her best asset as a player was she was a good scorer. Her statistics were always good. Her quickness enabled her to be a good scorer," said Schwartz. "You could always plan on her getting 20 points a night. She is the first person to make an All-American status (for women's basketball) in CSUSB history."

Peters made an immediate impact with the Coyotes as she decided to play her last year after taking a year off of basketball.

"I was pleased to see Lorl get it (special mention). She had a good year. She had a lot to do with this year's success," said Schwartz.

Beeman shattered the assist record this past season with over 200 on the year.

"Laura could have gotten a higher award, but she's only a sophomore. Those awards are usually given to upper classmen," said Schwartz.

In addition to Schwartz's All-American award, he was named Division III coach of the year in California. The award was given by California Basketball magazine.

Players, coach honored nationally

Tough Shot

CSUSB golfer Chris Astorga leans around a tree and watches his shot land on the green of the 13th hole at Arrowhead CC last week. The Coyotes are ranked fifth nationally and first in the West at 12-0.
