CSUSB
Task force suggestions implemented

By William Lundquist
Staff Writer

President Evans has instructed the vice presidents to implement certain recommendations made by the Task Force on Campus Safety.

Two night watchmen, and two campus guards have already been hired to patrol Serrano Village seven nights a week. Additional lighted emergency phones have been installed throughout the campus. The escort service will be improved and will operate until 1 a.m., while the police operations will hire three new officers.

New buildings will be designed with burglary, panic, and fire alarms, as well as electronic digital locking systems. Their entrances will be under TV surveillance. Existing buildings will have their locks re-keyed, and alarms may be installed on many exit doors in the residence halls. Lighting will continue to be upgraded throughout the campus.

The biggest changes will come at Serrano Village, where the possession of alcohol will be absolutely banned next year. Residents and their guests will be expected to give up certain freedoms in exchange for increased security. Non-residents will be required to register with the housing office.

Handley overcomes obstacles

By Kathleen Whisler
Staff Writer

Although arthritis caused her to withdraw from the profession, Piet Handley, CSUSB senior, remains active in the theater. She has been a member of the CSUSB theater group for the past three years. This group performs at schools in San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

She says she is terribly excited to graduate this June with a humanities major in music and theater. "I tried to do a music major, but arthritis kept me from doing some of the required classes," says Handley who gets around campus on a little electric cart.

She plans to work on a masters degree at CSUSB. She will also attend CSU, Fullerton for a musical theater class not taught at CSUSB.

Her goal is to teach musical theater at the college level. For the past 23 years she has taught singing by giving private lessons. Her interest in the theater began when she was a child. In her teens she apprenticed at a theater in Palm Springs with producer Herb Rogers. In her early 20s she started

Pi Lambda Theta opens doors at CSUSB

A new chapter of Pi Lambda Theta, a national honor and professional association in education, will be installed by members of Pi Lambda Theta at Sayre Griffin in a ceremony scheduled for Thursday, May 31 at CSUSB. The installation will take place at 7 p.m. in the Sycamore Room of the Lower Commons.

Established to foster leadership among top professionals and students in the field of education, Pi Lambda Theta provides leadership development opportunities for its members through scholarships, grants and various leadership activities. The association also offers a computer networking service and serves as a reference for those entering the field.

“This is a very important event for the School of Education and our campus,” says Dr. Ernest Garcia, dean of Cal State’s School of Education, who will be a featured speaker during the installation.

Forty new initiates will be inducted into the campus chapter of Pi Lambda Theta, whose national membership exceeds 15,000. Being installed as chapter officer are: Dr. Frank Beam, assistant professor of advanced studies at Cal State; president; graduate students Christy Hundley, vice-president, and Brenda Selby, secretary; and Dr. Desio, dean of education and professor of elementary and bilingual education, treasurer.

As part of a special project undertaken by the chapter, books for the children’s literature section will be pre-

key to basic education

By Orin T. Smith
Special to The Chronicle

As many of you know, CSUSB is primarily a commuter campus. All to often students get to campus, go to class, and then go home. However, there is far more to college then Just classes. There are a number of extra-curricular activities ranging from sports to student government created solely to benefit the student.

These activities build upon a basic education to give a broader, and more fulfilling college experience. Getting involved in a group or club is often both a fun and productive experience. It is possible to develop friendships, feel an integral part of a group, and gain experience for your future. You can join clubs based on your religious beliefs, personal values, academic interests, physical interests, or just for fun.

Group members also tend to be more interested in facets of the university not directly related to their club. As many group members know, such as Greeks or ASI, it is far easier to get involved when others are there to support and encourage you. CSUSB offers a distinct advantage in that you can get directly involved in major positions that are often unavailable at a larger or older campus. Some of the larger clubs range from the Accounting Association, to Greeks Fraternities and Sororities, a Drama Club, College Republicans, Campus Crusade for Christ and S Ski Club, to name a few. In all there are over 60 clubs to choose from.

So if you are bored or looking for something to do, find something you are interested in and join a club that promotes these things. If it doesn’t exist, create it. Getting involved takes a little initial effort but you’ll soon find the friendships, leadership skills, and enjoyment you derive make it well worth the time and effort.

A new, live-out, residence life coordinator will be in charge of educational programs on safety for the residence halls, and will provide increased training for the resident assistants. The emphasis is to make our students aware of their responsibilities for their own safety.

Statistically speaking, CSUSB is presently a safe campus. Its violent crime rate is about average for the CSU system, while property crimes are 1/3 the average for all other types of crime.

The most dramatic increase in crime at CSUSB has come in the parking lots, where auto burglary has increased from 10 incidents in 1988, to 37 in 1989, to 50 so far in 1990.

While only four cars were stolen in 1987, 13 were stolen in 1989, and 11 by the end of April this year, Ed Harrison, Chief of Police Operations, has responded by assigning an additional officer to patrol the parking lots in the late afternoon.

her career performing in tent shows in Iowa. The shows consisted of song and dance theater with vaudeville between the acts. According to Handley, people would leave to go home between acts because they thought the show was over, so vaudeville was used to keep the audience from leaving.

Handley has done stage theater and performed in a production of Gilbert and Sullivan. She did comedy routines on the Armed Forces Radio show on Midway Island in the 1950s. The cast wrote their own shows using the names of the sailors at the base in the routines. Their scripts were mainly satires of popular radio shows like Gunsmoke.

Handley has appeared on television in the soap opera “Days of Our Lives.” She worked on the show for about four years and did over a hundred episodes. She was assigned numerous varied roles, such as a nurse, waitress and judge member, but never a sustaining role.

As a member of the CSUSB theater department she taught acting in each Tuesday and Thursday at a school. A different show is done each time so everything is new and fresh.

For props the group uses large cubes painted in bright primary colors and music, usually taped.

She is currently participating in a tour of high schools called the Sun Tour, doing a presentation of poetry which has “identity” as its theme. All the material is by African-American black, American Indian and Hispanic writers. The poetry deals with contemporary problems in the society, such as wife abuse.

The purpose of the theater group is to encourage young people who are interested in theater to attend CSUSB.

The CSUSB theater group is directed by Kathy Ervin and has 13 members. The theater group is not a required class and anyone can join.
Poetry contest seeks collegiate entries

The deadline for entering the American Poetry Association's contest is June 30. The contest is the American Poetry $11,000 in all. There are 152 prizes worth $11,000 in all.

"Every student who writes poetry should enter this contest. Twelve students won prizes in our last contest," said Robert Nelson, publisher for the association. "The June 30 deadline allows plenty of time to enter after finals are over."

Poets may send one original poem, no more than 20 lines, name and address on the top of the page, to American Poetry Association, Dept. CO-57, 250-A Potroo St., P.O. Box 1803, Santa Cruz, CA 95061. Poems postmarked by June 30 are eligible top win. A temporary verse.

"The June 30 deadline is because we're growing" as a campus, chapter is because we're growing, Dr. Billie Blair, associate professor of advanced studies in education. "The new contest opens July 1.

Poems were judged on originality, sincerity, and feeling.

Each poem is also considered for publication in the American Poetry Anthology, a leading collection of contemporary verse.

Every poet will receive a copy of the "Poet's Guide to Getting Published," a four-page booklet full of useful information.

During 8 years of sponsorship the American Poetry Association has run 36 contests and awarded over $180,000 in contest prizes to 3,300 winning poets.
If you think rape can't happen to you, you're in for a real education. Because statistics show that rape happens more to women in your age group than you ever think. In fact, this year one out of six college women will be the victim of rape or attempted rape. Very often by someone she knows, a fellow student. Even a date will be the victim of rape or attempted rape.

And that's a crime. Because anytime a woman is forced to have sex against her will it's a felony rape, a subject no one should take lightly.

"Identity," a theatrical dramatization of the writings of black, Hispanic and Native American authors, will be performed Monday, June 11 at CSUSB. The free, 30-minute show begins at 8 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building.

Through serious drama, humor, singing and dancing, the 13-member student cast portrays young minorities as they struggle with such issues as their own independence, intimacy and the homeless.

The production is aimed at younger audiences, says Dr. Kathryn Ervln, assistant professor of theatre arts at Cal State. "I would like for them to hear this poetry and for it to engage a particular emotion," she adds.

"I got used to the idea that poetry wasn't just words in a book," Ervln says, recalling the influence that reading at school and home had on her as a child. "Young people don't often connect with poetry the way people in the Sixties connected." Ervln grew up reading such authors as Langston Hughes, whose poem "Harlem" is one of several poems and short essays being dramatized. Also featured will be Donna Kate Rushin's "The Bridge Poem."

The company of students, named Sun Tour, recently performed at Cajon High School and Chaffey College. For more information, call Ervln at (714)880-5892.

KSSB rocks Japan

By Jeff Kabel
Staff Writer

Some 23 million Japanese radio listeners will get a slice of Americana this summer. But they won't be listening to KROQ or KABC programs. Try KSSB.

During the month of July, Yokohama Radio of Japan (84.7 FM) will broadcast four KSSB Alternative Rock format radio shows as part of a Chevrolet sponsored program to promote college radio stations.

The series of college shows, "The Chevrolet American Freeway," spotlights progressive college radio stations throughout the country. KSSB represents one of many college radio stations picked to participate in the Japan broadcasts.

KSSB Program Director Ed Rumsey viewed the station's summer international promotion with double-barreled reasoning.

"It's the most awesome promotion that's ever happened to the station," Rumsey said. "But it's sad and ironic that people in Japan will know more about KSSB than people here do."

Five KSSB disc jockeys taped the Yokohama shows: Rumsey, John Cowie, Kathy Sullivan, Drew Beets, and Sandra Plunk. Plunk utilized her knowledge of Japanese during her segments.

The students taped the shows at the Riverside studio of music producer Louis Van Den Berg, who produced the program series.

"We had a blast doing these shows," Rumsey said. "Each of us will have our 46 minutes of fame."

On May 30, 1990, students and staff members bonded together for a rally aimed against the ROTC on campus. The protesters were against the ROTC policy of excluding homosexuals and other groups from the program.

The Army sponsors the Reserve Officer Training Corps, by giving students money to attend the University while they learn to be officers, and promise to serve for a time in the military upon graduation. The ROTC rules state that homosexuals, disabled people, and individuals over the age of 30 cannot participate in the program. CSUSB has a blanket non-discrimination policy on campus, which is based on the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Every student is given a copy of this policy when they enter the University.

Since there is an obvious conflict between the ROTC rules and the University campus policy, the Faculty Senate is considering a resolution which would stop the graduation credits for ROTC courses, and take away the academic standing for the ROTC professors. Under the proposed resolution, ROTC would be stopped from advertising or recruiting on campus.

While no one from ROTC would comment on the policy against homosexuals, Major Mike Robel, an associate professor for the ROTC program stated that either side may choose to terminate the contract that the Army has with the CSUSB campus. Pitzer College in Claremont has already adopted a resolution banning all future ROTC scholarships, and all credits for military science courses.

The anti-ROTC rally carried the slogan ROTC-YA LATER in a large banner. About 100 students turned up on the front lawn in front of the library to hear various campus representatives speak out against the ROTC discrimination policy. Blue T-shirts with white lettering calling for an end to discrimination at CSUSB were sold.

Chani Beeman, of the United Socialists group, stated that the issue was not just an issue about gays, but a blatant act of discrimination by ROTC. She also stated that the Associated Students did not wish to be aligned with the rally, and questioned the discrimination policies within that organization. Other speakers at the rally represented the Gay and Lesbian Union, the Faculty Senate, and other campus groups. An open forum for questions and statements was invited.

Student Mike McCabe stated that the ROTC was only following the rules set down by the Army, and those who were not happy with those rules should contact the military.

Anyone interested in learning more about the issues raised at the rally, or who wishes to purchase any of the T-shirts may contact Chani Beeman on campus at 880-3069.

Building a campus personality

Kevin R. Horney

Editor-in-Chief

Another year has finally fallen dead at my feet. I don’t know why I feel so gloomy when I accomplished something great when school ends. I stand up and yell, I write a little, and then walk around with a smile too big for my face for the next week or so. Why do I do that? Did I bring the year to an end?

No, I played no part in the academic closure of 1989-90. It came, and went, like the waves at the beach, totally oblivious to my presence. Papers are assigned, tests taken, grades given regardless of whether I write my name at the top of any of them or not.

This whole year has been this way. Events that have radically changed our lives have come and gone, leaving us standing there asking what happened.

Internationally, I watched a monument that I thought would stand forever come crashing down at the feet of a few East German radicals.

I watched the “Evil Empire” change from a demonic, black, and subversive antagonist to a weak and compassionate government that is attempting to do its best to cure its society.

Nationally we watched scandals come and go. Personalities and causes rise and fall, replaced by new legends born, and watched others die.

We watched others be shaken and respected for their perseverance. We sent aid and sympathy. And when we were shaken, we would stand forever come out of office (failed), several legislative assistants (successful), and even the editor of the newspaper (failed).

Outside, dirt was dug and trees uprooted in preparation for the new five-story Gateway building, and lines were painted in the grass for the addition to the Student Union.

Athletic teams survived student apathy and disinterest to post successful seasons, including two Western Regional championships, and two trips to the national tournament.

And all this and more happened, and for the most part I felt like a lightpost on the Tournament of Roses parade route, totally unnoticed and unimportant.

But to look at life in a way that broad of a scope is worthless. It makes me feel worthless, and is totally unjustified.

If I take time to look at my friends, the clubs, and organizations I’ve been involved in, and the things I’ve done, I can’t help but smile and laugh a little. I’d say that your worth doesn’t come from major events and situations that are typical, but from the sad and lonely souls that were given new hope, the lost friends that found direction, or a friend that was lost.

I praise God for this campus and the ease in which it can become involved, not only with clubs and organizations, but with each other.

I watched a little student interest turn a stagnant club of twenty into an exciting group of busy with plans and a purpose.

I watched friends who were upset because they thought something important was

Response to SOAR defense

Dear Editor,

CSUSB students, keep looking for the truth. You won’t find it in the replies to my letter. Like I said before, much emotion, few facts.

For Ms. Finsen, the red wolf is not yet extinct. It has suffered from predator control long enough. This was government policy, not sport hunting. It also readily inter-breeds with coyotes, and the species is being lost to this. Nice try though. Finsen has made incorrect, or incomplete statements regarding every species that she mentions. I would be happy to provide details on each of them. This is more important however.

For Mr. Frank, the April issue of the American Rifleman documents the incidents I quoted earlier, as well as what follows. You can also check past issues of Outdoor Life, Peterson’s Hunting, and Field and Stream, as these reliable sources since I’ve done. I can’t help but smile and laugh a little.

Don’t attempt to totally ban huntning in California.

As to Finsen’s last question to me, I call an accident, not matter how tragic, just that, an accident. I don’t attempt to wring further emotion from a sad incident, to further my ideas. You never answered my first question, how do you feel about SOAR, or any other similar group donated to any program that benefits wildlife in any way whatsoever.

How about you Mr. Frank?

Where has the memory gone

By Richard Kontra

Could it be that we just aren’t remembering our past? Or is memory a thing of the past? Perhaps we forget things because we are too busy with today’s concerns. After all, isn’t a “day in the life” of the American Rifleman always the same? And if so, what is it? Is it just a day to honor the man who lost their lives in battle?

The actual Memorial Day is on May 31 but to give everyone a 3-day weekend we celebrate it on the last Monday in May.

Services were held on May 28, but you could have a tough time finding someone who attended them.

Why is it that an important day loses it value?

Are parents ignorant of not installing values in their young children? Or is it the fact that many of us take for granted our freedom? I’m not saying you can’t enjoy and relax during the holiday, just don’t lose sight of its importance.
missing from this school go out and do something about it.
This isn't a university made up of a few buildings and a budget, as some administrators would like to see it as, but it's a university made up of students, real people. It's each one of us that make up this place, and it's each one of us that needs to contribute to its "personality". I don't believe each one of us needs to donate several hours of our time each week to go on a rampage to change things (it would be nice though), but everyone should be responsible enough to at least make their ideas, their wants, and their needs known.

My year as editor is over, I no longer have a captive audience of 3000 students, but that doesn't mean my influence to change things is gone. I'll still be there, exercising my rights as a student, as a citizen, as a part of a community. I hope to see you with me.

Special thanks to Dr. Boudreaux

Dear Editor,

On Wednesday, May 30, Dr. Cheryl Boudreaux, a professor of women's studies, sociology, and ethnic studies, addressed the Humanities/Natural Science/Social Science 325 course, Perspectives on Gender.

Dr. Boudreaux spoke on the history of Black women from the pre-slavery era to the present.

As I listened to her lecture, I realized how well-informed Dr. Boudreaux was. I would like to take the time to thank her for speaking to us, and allowing for comments and questions. There were some tense moments brought about by certain comments and/or statements, but she handled the situations that arose in a professional manner.

The ensuing discussion made me realize that although we are college edu... cated, many misconceptions, beliefs and thoughts still flourish not only pertaining to women and/or women of color but to people in general. I understand that we as students must take general education courses to broaden our minds and allow ourselves hopefully, to be more open to new ideas and thoughts.

In closing, I am pleased that our campus offers this course. I highly recommend Perspectives on Gender to anyone who would like to know more about and understand the society that we live in. Not until we comprehend our past will we be able to make efforts to change the future.

Most sincerely,
Wendy V. Collins

Frank Sinatra was scheduled to throw out the traditional first pitch for the WISL World Series—needless to say, "of blue eyes" failed to show. Actually, Frank was not scheduled; his daughter Nancy ("These boots are made for walking") was. She flaked also. The playing field was bedecked with excitement for the matchup of Demolition and the 12 oz. Slammers. The afternoon's excitement was introduced with the playing of the National Anthem via my car stereo. I had predicted that Demolition would win the title over the consistently inconsistent Slammers. I had no idea that many of J.D.'s Demolitioneers would pull a "Mutiny on the Bounty" and fail to show for this momentous occasion. Demolition was forced to play with only six players against the full 10-person team of the Slammers. Anyway, the Slammers won 4-1. whoopee! Congrats to the Slammers, but could you really feel proud about winning over such a short-handed team? Admit it, Mr. Delgado, there is no way that you could have won if Demolition had its full team. I hope you feel guilty when you're wearing your prized T-shirt. I have nothing more to say; it is like way clear that the better team did not win. For the good of mankind, I hope that justice will prevail in the future. The only good news for the Slammers was the fact the Rob E Boglin held onto his bat—no deaths to report.

Okay, so again my predictions befell me. I had last said that DSP would beat the Creatures by at least 18-6 and become the 1990 FISL Champs. Upon print of my prediction, DSP apparently believed in my prediction as words of Gospel, and actually believed that they would easily win. On the flip side, the Creatures saw it my prediction, and also believed in me; they become so worried over the fact that they may lose, that they hired former Chi Sea batting coach Charlie Lau (now deceased) to help their team in batting. The extra hours of batting practice paid off for the Creatures as they defeated Delta Sig 4-1 to become the Champs O' the World (or at least CSUSB). In the post-game celebration, the Creatures were commenting on the fact that despite not making it to the National Tennis Championships, at least they won the FISL. After the game, baseball coach Chuck Deagle was rumored to have offered tennis coach, Daniel Boone Krieg, a position on the baseball coaching staff for the 1991 season. Assuming the role of men's tennis coach would probably be Billy Jean King (looking to relocate in San Bernardino next fall). Notice that I didn't make any defamatory remarks against the losing frat team of DSP and Power. Sigma Nu-Klds on the Block—I'm looking for you guys to take the title next year.

WATER CARNIVAL TODAY

This is your very last chance to attempt to win the coveted intramural T-shirt. The water carnival is made up of various fun and enlightening aquatic events, and geared to anyone who likes water. The event is scheduled for today (WED.), from 3-5 p.m. in the Gym Pool. Be there, girls in bikinis are encouraged to participate. Guys wanting to see girls in bikinis are also encouraged to participate.

REC SPORTS ACKNOWLEDGES...

At the recent Spring Awards Luncheon, the Rec Sports Department recognized a few special people. Manager of the year—Phil Jamison. Employee of the year—Stacy Hogrefe (O-gree). and Participant of the year—campus disc-jockey, frat boy, red-haired. Editor of the Chron. and damn nifty dude. Kevin Horney. For those people whose names I failed to mention throughout the quarter, I'm sorry. Here's to Bill, Mary, Suzie, Steve, Agatha, Kerry, Ann, Bingo, Josephine and my good friend Tony. Pres. of Cal State. Also give special recognition to the "Bob E Officer of the Year". J.W. Gress. Officer Gress wins this prestigious award for his undying care and adurnation for the peoples of CSUSB. Officer Gress is even so American, that he eats at least six apple pies each day while on duty at CSUSB (John, see ya). The Rec Sports Department is pleased to be affiliated with the Student Life Organization who bought nty lunch at the recent awards banquet, thanks. Thanks also to Kevin Kelley and all those at Budweiser for providing this page.
Season proves too much for writer

By Jeff Zelezski
Staff Writer

CSUSB first baseman Paul Gonzales called the Coyotes run for the Division III World Series “destiny.”

I call it a just one hell of a season.

The Coyotes, who finished the season at 29-14, received the first invitation to post season play in the school’s four year baseball history. But to get the invite wasn’t easy, they had to work for it.

Back in February they looked as if they were in the cellar of the Western Region race for a bid to the tournament, they were 3-7 after 10 games.

As a freshman, I remember people telling me that CSUSB baseball had always been good, I thought maybe they were lying.

They proved me wrong.

With their backs against the wall they turned things around. It was a complete 180 degree turnaround. Starting with a sweep against Menlo (on the road) they won the next 22 of 27 games in the regular season.

During that win streak they managed to win the Coyote San Bernardino Rotary-North Spring Baseball Classic, which had competitive Division III teams from around the country.

After that tournament win I think I opened my eyes, just a little.

Two of the coyotes five losses during that time was to Division II rival CSU, Chico.

I remember after the trip form Chico second baseman Ryan Love (who I work with) gave me the run down about how they shouldn’t have lost and soon. He and the rest of his teammates did something to make up for those loses.

The next week the coyotes were to play rival and ranked number one in the Western Region UC San Diego. That’s when Gonzalez preached to me that the coyotes were a team of destiny. He predicted that they would sweep the Tritons on the road. They did.

I was wrong, again.

Ranked the number one team in the west, the coyotes faced Claremont College in the Regional. I was there because I covered the game for the Chronicle.

I hoped they would win, but didn’t expect them to sweep their way into the World Series. They did.

Yes, I was wrong again.

As the coyotes flew to Battlecreek, Michigan for the Series my heart was with them as I kept an eye on the local papers.

The coyotes battled hard and represented CSUSB well, but lost two of three games to finish fourth in the nation. I felt sad when I saw the scores in the paper because I wanted them to win it all. It would have a great storybook ending. I guess you could have even called it destiny.

I don’t think I could be wrong if I said that the CSUSB baseball team had one hell of a year.

Coyotes receive honors for performance

By Dave Beyer
Sports Information

To paraphrase a popular song, what a different a few days make.

At the outset of the 1990 collegiate baseball season, CSUSB head coach Chuck Deagle knew he may be in for a rebuilding season. Deagle had several players returning from he 1989 club which finished with a 28-8-1 record, but the vast majority of his everyday players were inexperienced or new to the Coyotes program.

What Deagle didn’t expect was that his team to start the year with a 3-7 record and no relief in sight. After just 10 games (all at home) the CSUSB mentor was starting down the barrel of, potentially, his first losing season in eight years of coaching at the collegiate level.

That’s when Deagle found that the cure was not at home.

Rather, the Coyotes woes were cured by a simple road trip to Menlo College in Northern California. The Coyotes swept a doubleheader from the Oakies, despite still not playing their best baseball.

“It was important for us to get away as a team,” said Deagle. “A team needs that time to grow closer together. After the entire Fall and two weeks of the regular season, we had not had a time like that. It made the difference for us to be literally home-sick, and we needed to get away!”

Whatever was ailing the Coyotes was left at Menlo. The Coyotes won 10 of their next 11 games upon their return, and 16 of their next 18, overall. Within that streak was a doubleheader sweep of perennial Western Region power UC San Diego.

“I knew we were on our way after the UCSD sweep,” said Deagle. “We just showed so much character and heart down there.”

CSUSB was finally in line for its first-ever NCAA West Region playoff bid in its four-year history. The team received its bid and responded by sweeping Claremont-Mudd College in the best of five series to take the Western Region Championship. From there it was on to the Division III World Series in Battle Creek, Michigan where the Coyotes placed fourth among the nation’s best.

Third baseman Miguel Salazar was voted the “Outstanding Player” of the Western Regional playoffs and senior second baseman Ryan Love made the All Tournament team of the championship series.

Love was also a first team All-West Region and second team All-American selection. He was also named the team’s Most Valuable Player.

Rene Aguilar was also named to the first team All-Western Region. First baseman Paul Gonzales, outfield Jeff Brennan, and pitcher John Glasscock were named to the second team.

“This was not always the prettiest team on the field, but they certainly were the gutsiest,” reflected Deagle.

“They just didn’t know how to lose.”
