For the first time since they began their Depression-era migration from New England to Los Angeles, Blacks are moving out of Los Angeles County and moving to Riverside County. A new study shows that many of the 27 cities of Riverside County are now experiencing a higher rate of migration of Blacks than Los Angeles County has. This is especially true in cities such as Moreno Valley, Eastvale, and Rialto. The study, conducted by the University of Illinois, found that over 1,000 Blacks left Los Angeles County in 1990, while 1,500 Blacks moved to Riverside County. This is a significant change from the previous study, which showed that fewer than 1,000 Blacks moved from Los Angeles County to Riverside County in 1980.

This migration is being driven by a variety of factors, including the high cost of living in Los Angeles County, the availability of affordable housing in Riverside County, and the perception of a more welcoming and accepting community in Riverside County. The study also found that the migration is being driven by younger adults, with a higher percentage of 20- to 30-year-olds moving to Riverside County than to Los Angeles County.

The leading role in the Little Rock Nine's story was played by the NAACP, which provided legal counsel for the nine, court-ordered busing through the lens of its Legal Defense Fund, Thurgood Marshall, Walter Bratton, State Chairman of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, and U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall. The NAACP's role was crucial in brokering the desegregation agreement, and it supported the efforts of the Little Rock Nine. Jesse Jackson's involvement was also significant as he represented the city throughout the federal government.

Jackson's role in the Little Rock Nine's story has been widely recognized. He attended the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) meeting in Little Rock, Arkansas, where he was named as one of the major figures in the civil rights movement. His speeches and decisions during this period have been an inspiration to many, including the Little Rock Nine. Jackson's speech to the NAACP members in Little Rock was an important moment in the civil rights movement, as he called for unity and nonviolent resistance.

The Little Rock Nine's story is a testament to the power of collective action and the importance of diversity in leadership. Their courage and resilience have inspired generations of Americans to work towards a more just and equitable society. The Little Rock Nine's story is a reminder of the importance of standing up for what is right, even in the face of adversity. Their story is a call to action for all of us to continue working towards a more just and equitable society.

Wilmer D. Carter's Campaign Kick-Off

For re-election to another term in the Riverside Board of Education was an overwhelming success. I am happy to see so many people come out for this occasion," said Chuck Singleton, Pastor of Lovelace Church. Pastor Singleton was commenting on the 105 plus who attended the reception held Thursday, October 1, at Mr. Carter's home.

A cross section of the community center in Mead Valley has noticed that not all young people moving in from Los Angeles are pursuing traditional lifestyles.

"I think that many children are getting in trouble in Los Angeles, so they're coming out here to stay with grandparents or aunts and uncles," she explained.

"I think that many children are getting in trouble in Los Angeles, so they're coming out here to stay with grandparents or aunts and uncles," she explained.

The two Los Angeles researchers and Wright of UCR all agree that the tensions of urban black life are contributing to the exodus from Los Angeles.

More than affordable suburban housing, Wright says, is "the pathology of the ghetto" that is forcing people to move. It is the breakdowns of ghetto life, crime, drugs, street gangs, segregated schools, high insurance rates that motivate the migration, Johnson said.

"Not everyone can make the move, however. It is only those who can afford to get the help out," Wright said. That was exactly the aim behind the event, "the leaves of the gones in worse shape than ever," Wright said.

The Rev. L.E. Campbell, Pastor of Park Avenue Church in Riverside, sees a positive impact from the people who have contributed to the growth of his congregation, both in numbers and in spirit.

"I meet them almost every week," said Campbell. "We have come from strong churches and they come with new ideas. And they're willing to put their shoulders to the wheel and accomplish what we want to do.

Divine Word Seminary Offers Workshop On Understanding

Understanding is wisdom in human relations. Ordinary people who have learned to understand themselves and others can often solve problems before they arise. They enjoy healthier homes, schools, communities and corporations. Teachers, nurses, police officers, mental health counselors, friends and business associates, according to Father John G. Eves, S.V.D.

He will offer a seminar on “Understanding Human Mind and Soul” at Divine Word Seminary, Wednesdays, October 14 through November 18, from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. The fee is $45 and covers the cost. Please Understand Me by David Kornelius and Mariner Biehl, plus a self portrait. Enrollment is limited to 16,000 or 15,000. In the seminar you will learn to understand your own consciousness and that of your personality. You will transform your concern for others into knowledge that fosters relationships. Father McKenney will facilitate opportunities for personal and group interaction, training seminars, lectures and guided reading.

Experts throughout history have divided people into types. For example, Hippocrates described the “Sanguinis,” “Choleric,” “Phlegmatic” and “Melancholic” personality. Psychologist Carl Jung compared behavior as “Introverted” or “Extraverted,” “Thinking” or “Feeling,” “Sensing” or “Perceiving” and “Judging” or “Perceiving.” Not only will you learn to personalize your type, you will learn to adapt to types. You will be assigned to type. You will be assigned to type. You will be assigned to type.

DID YOU KNOW...women that if you marry a man less intelligent than you as the years go by you will become less intelligent. And conversely, if you marry a man more intelligent than you, you will gain intelligence over the years. However, for reasons that remain unclear this process does not work for men. For example, if a woman marries a less intelligent man, that man will not get more intelligent over time. These findings are based on a 36-year study of 175 couples by K. Warner Schip in the University of Washington in Seattle.
