by Marilyn Heavilin

I became acquainted with Lorin Ward when we were in a Children's Lit class together last spring. Often when a new book was mentioned, Lorin would say, "Oh yeah, I've read that book to my kids." I was impressed that a father who was holding down a full-time job and a full college load would take time to read books to his children. One day he mentioned that he hadn't gotten all of his classwork done because he had spent the weekend taking care of his children who all had chicken-pox and that his wife was in the hospital. Supposing that he had two or three small children, I casually asked how old his kids were. He stated, "Stephanie's 8, Barbara's 7, Tamiann's 6, Melanie's 5, Hyrum's 2, and Camilla's 1." Then my admiration turned to awe.

I didn't see Lorin again until last fall. He said, "Marilyn, we discovered why Joyce was having so much trouble with this last pregnancy." (Oh, yes, I forgot to mention that she was pregnant when I talked with him before.) Lorin continued, "She is going to have triplets!"

I lost my composure for a moment, but then my nose for news took over, and I said, "Let me know when they arrive, and I'll write a story about them."

On October 14, Elizabeth, Adrienne, and Miriam Ward were born at Loma Linda Hospital. The identical triplets were delivered naturally, and all of the babies were able to leave the hospital within two weeks. Recently Lorin invited my husband and me to come out to Beaumont to meet his wife and children, all nine of them. As we entered the Ward home, Lorin took us in to meet four of the children who were already in bed. Stephanie was at a school program, so we didn't meet her until later. The children all said hello, and then Lorin told them, it was time to go to sleep. That was the last we heard from them for the rest of the evening. As we went past two-year-old Camilla's room, she convinced her daddy to let her visit with the company for a few minutes, but then she was off to sleep also.

As we walked in to the triplet's bedroom, Joyce Ward greeted us. "Here, you can hold one of the babies and feed her." It was obvious that the babies were used to having lots of people around. They all greeted us with big smiles and then settled down to drinking their formula.

Lorin was a Physics major in his senior year at Brigham Young University when he realized that he was not going to be happy with his major. After he returned from a stint in Vietnam, he worked in the family business for several years. Then he decided to pursue the Bilingual Education major at CSCSB. He is presently doing his student teaching and will have his credential in June.

Joyce was a junior at BYU when she married Lorin. While he was in Vietnam, she completed her degree and is now a registered nurse. When I realized that Joyce was the mother of nine children under the age of nine, I pictured a

Jarvis Swings His Tax-Cutting Ax

Editor's Note: The following article is being presented with the permission of the Mustang Daily at Cal Poly, San Louis Obispo. It has been printed in its entirety.

by Andrew Jowers

Mustang Daily Staff Writer

Howard Jarvis, the blustery and brusque symbol of tax reform, continues to trample where others fear to tiptoe. He was co-author of Proposition 13, passed in June 1978, which slashed property taxes.

Now, he campaigns for his latest initiative, Proposition 9, which would cut the average Californian's state income tax by 54 percent. Some have called this an ill-considered and blind swing of the ax at the state coffers. Jarvis calls it a swing for freedom — financial and political.

The interview took place at his Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles office headquarters of the Tax Reduction Movement.

DAILY: What guarantees can you give me that I'll be able to finish my education if Proposition 9 passes& I can't afford private education.

JARVIS: Who do you want to pay it? Have you got someone in mind that you would like to pay for your education? You know if you don't pay it, somebody else like me has got to. You want me to pay for your tuition — I ain't going to do it.

DAILY: Do you think free education has served California well?

JARVIS: What we have in this school system is everything but education — that we don't have. All the schools are in the business of manufacturing permanent welfare recipients. It's the biggest drag, the biggest boondoggle, the biggest corruption of public money in California.

DAILY: Why do you say that?

JARVIS: Because the records prove it. Sixty-three percent of the high schools (students) are functionally illiterate. In order for you to go to college, they have to reduce the books to the eighth grade level because you can't read them.

I believe in education, but if you pay all your tuition, I, as a taxpayer, still pay more than you do. I bought the building and the ground that put the college there for you. I'm paying $2,000 so you can get in there for $1,200, and I'm not going to pay anymore.

DAILY: I've heard that part of Proposition 9's appeal is that it helps the little guy without much money. How does tuition help a poor family who can't afford to send its children to college?

JARVIS: I was (from) a poor family. I worked my way through four years of college. I worked an afternoon shift at the Utah Copper Co., 365 days a year for four years. I rode an inter-urban train for 18 miles to college and I paid all my own way and I got straight A grades.

Now, I don't expect guys your age to have that many guts, because you don't have a hell of a lot in the schools these days, but I expect you to do something to pay your way because I think I've paid all I want to pay for kids going to college. I don't think you should get a free ride.

DAILY: Estimates are that if tuition is charged, 100,000 students will be knocked out of the CSUC system.

JARVIS: I wish there would be and especially a lot from foreign countries. We could cut 100,000 foreign students — legal and illegal — aliens going to school here — mooching on us and get them the hell out of here.

All you say doesn't make any impression on me because you're inferring that if you go to Cal Poly you'll get an education. I don't believe it, because they don't give you one. They give you a bunch of garbage.

DAILY: What about, for example, minority students, who plan to go to college, who can't afford tuition, and who are already working to help their families?

JARVIS: Good for them. They have to work too. I think that as long as the school system is not producing education, that when I pay $50,000 a year in taxes, I don't get any education for it — I get a scam. The school system is not an education institution anymore, it's a political Mafia for money. The only difference between the school system today and the Mafia is that the schools steal more money than the Mafia.

I don't like it — I wish we had some education; I'd like to pay for education, but I don't like to blow my money on zero zilch.

DAILY: How much does it help your campaign having the support of people like Carol Hallett (R-Atascadero, and Republican leader in the state Assembly) and (Lt. Gov.) Mike Curb?

JARVIS: It helps because they're quite respectable people. We have some bright people, both Democrats and Republicans, and that's why Proposition 9 is going to pass in California about 3-1.

DAILY: Why does their public-figure support help you, but having Gov. Brown against you not worry you?

JARVIS: Brown doesn't count for anything. He's a dead duck politically because he hooked up with (Tom) Hayden and (Jane) Fonda and the public thinks they're garbage.

I don't give a damn what Brown does, no. He said he's going to vote against it — well, I'm going to vote for it, so I'm going to cancel out his vote. Of course, he may vote absentee because he hasn't been the state much in the last 200 days.

DAILY: While campaigning for Proposition 13, you made much of the support of (Nobel prize-winning conservative economist) Milton Friedman. I read in the newspaper that he's come out against Proposition 9.

The only difference between the school system and the Mafia is that the schools steal more money. —Jarvis

JARVIS: He has not. You can read in the damn newspaper anything you want. It's a funny thing — all the people that were against (Proposition) 13 when Friedman was for it, they said he was a shitass. And now that he makes a qualified statement they think he's great. That's a hypocritical bunch of bastards.

The reason Milton Friedman said what he said is because he was afraid that if we passed (Prop.) 9 the legislature would increase the taxes on corporations. (Proposition) 9 don't decrease corporate taxes — the corporations don't get a nickel. And Friedman has always felt we should reduce taxes on corporations.

(Reading a letter to him he said was from Friedman) "... I believe it is better to let Proposition 4 (passed in November '78, putting a ceiling on spending) for a while before we move further to use the initiative process on specific taxes. At the same time ... I will not raise a finger against Proposition 9.

DAILY: How about waiting for other laws already passed by the Legislature to take effect first? (The state Legislature has repealed the business inventory tax and provided cost-of-living indexing so that Californians will not be pushed into higher brackets by pay increase — two provisions Proposition 9 hopes to seal into the state constitution.)

JARVIS: The legislature never passed them until I filed Proposition 9. They passed them to try and defeat Proposition 9, and each one of them has a clause in it that can repeal it at any time. So that is a big fat fraud. They're thieves up there.

DAILY: Do you think Proposition 9 really will result in cuts in government spending, or will taxes that can be raised (business and sales taxes) be increased?

JARVIS: No, it won't cut it a nickle. (Proposition) 13 didn't cut it any either, because your school has got more money this year than it had last year. And every city has more money and every county has more money and the state has more money. And after (Proposition) 9 passes, your school district will still have more money than it has now.

DAILY: Because of oil decontrol?

JARVIS: Oil decontrol is one thing. Of course, if what Sen. Cranston (D-Calif.) said on national TV is right, oil decontrol would produce $5 billion this year for California taxes. And if that's true, instead of having a $6.5 billion surplus, we'll have an $8 billion surplus. I don't count on that; I say the oil will only produce $3 billion a year. But the net loss to the state of California on Proposition 9 will be less than $1 billion.

DAILY: Why do your figures always vary so much with government figures?

JARVIS: Because the government puts out bullshit figures. They have since time began.

They said that if (Proposition) 13 passed, all the schools would close — that's a lie. They sent out a letter to 400,000 elderly citizens saying if (Proposition) 13 passes, they'd lose all state benefits — that was a lie. They said (Proposition) 13 was for the rich — that was a lie. Jerry Brown, after Proposition 13 passed, said it was the best thing that ever happened to California, after saying the previous six months it was the worst thing. So he's either lying one place or the other. And of course, they lied about the state surplus. They said it was $1.5 billion and I said it was $6.5 billion, and it turned out to be $6.5 billion.

So this a long series of monumental lies that your friends in Sacramento and in the school system told you, most of it in the school system. The people in the school system are pretty clever liars — most of them.

DAILY: People are also saying Proposition 9 is for the rich, that it's regressive.

JARVIS: They're liars, it's progressive. If you have a $15,000 income, you get a 70 percent reduction in your taxes that amounts to $27.50 a month.

DAILY: But if you only earn $10,000 to $12,000, you only get about a $70 reduction per year (State Franchise Tax Board Figures).

JARVIS: No, I didn't say that. That's not correct. I just told you what it was. If you have less than $15,000, you pay very little income tax, most of them none at all. They don't pay nothing. They have a free ride on the rest of us.

If you have a $30,000 (income), you get in a higher bracket, you will have a 63 percent reduction, and that'll be about $35 a month. (Legislative analyst William Hamm estimates a reduction of 53.3 percent.) And finally you get to $50,000 income, you only get a 49 percent reduction. So the bulk of the money goes to the low income, and when Brown says different, he's a liar.

DAILY: How do cuts like these measure up against cuts in, for example, free health care?

You're inferring that if you go to Cal Poly you'll get an education ... they don't give you one. They give you a bunch of garbage. — Jarvis

JARVIS: Don't measure up at all, because you'll have more money after (Proposition) 9 than you ever had before. The only danger to health care and schools is we have a stupid legislature and stupid school people. They would like to keep all the money at the top and they would like to take all of it. They don't want to give the students anything. They want to steal all the school money for the administrators of the school cartel. I want to cut down their thievery, because that's all it is.

(You're) from Cal Poly, God, if you want to see a lousy county, it's San Luis Obispo. That's the dumbest, crookedest bunch of goddamned crap in that whole county. I went there one time and I tried to find out what their indebtedness was. There wasn't a son of a bitch in the city of San Luis Obispo that knew. The mayor didn't know, the controller didn't know, the assessor didn't know. I finally found a little grayhaired old gal sitting way in the back — you can't find anything from these assholes in the front office. She got the records. They were in this shoebox, so help me Christ. And you know what I found out about that goddamned screwball outfit? They built a road to San Simeon about 40 years ago. (The only direct road between San Luis Obispo and San Simeon is state Highway 1, completed in 1937.) They have never paid anything except the interest on it. That's the kind of a government you've got in San Luis Obispo.

DAILY: During the Proposition 13 campaign, you were playing on people's fears.

JARVIS: Horseshit. The only people who shit their pants were the politicians, and I was playing on their fears. But the people, I wasn't playing on their fears at all. That's a real some goddamned stupid psychologist's dream after he's been smoking marijuana.

DAILY: I mean the fears of losing your house because of (high property) taxes.

JARVIS: I didn't have to play on their fears — they were going to lose their houses. The only fears I played on were the politician's, because he thinks he's got to get out of the marinated political grease. And he thinks, "This guy's going to get my job." Well, by God, they're right — this guy is going to get their job. They're going to go back to work shining shoes, where they belong. And that goes for a lot of professors, too.

DAILY: What about the Tax Simplicity Act?

JARVIS: It's a fraud. It says we're going to put all the tax on business and none on people. When you raise taxes on business, it raises all prices and that's all. Business don't pay any taxes of any kind to nobody any time. They don't tell you that at that stupid college of yours because they don't want you to know that.

If you go to the May Company and buy a pair of shoes, do you think they pay the taxes on the shoes? No way. What do you think Exxon does with the gas tax you pay. Every week they send it to the government. Do you drive a car? DAILY: A Datsun.

JARVIS: You're contributing to the unemployment in the United States, right? General Motors just laid off a lot of people, so you helped them. Is that what they teach you at Cal Poly? Why the hell don't you go to school over there (Japan)? You're buying their goddamned products. Tokyo ought to pay your tuition — the Japs.

DAILY: Shouldn't I buy the best thing available to me? Why should I buy an American car?

JARVIS: Because it's the best thing available to you. You're a jackass to buy a Datsun. Anybody that has any brains don't buy a foreign car. You'd lose your ass and you'd deserve it — you ought to know better. You need some education; maybe I'd contribute it to you.

DAILY: I'd appreciate it. After Proposition 13 passes, the spirit caught on around the state. Do you think this will happen with the income tax?

JARVIS: Yes, because the people are gradually getting intelligent — especially the ones that don't go to school.

A lot of the states have half the property tax we have. (Texas) has no income tax and they have better education and less crime. And every time gas goes up, we build a goddamned big Rolls Royce out there, a Mercedes-Benz, and call it education.

And now it's (gas tax) going up fast ... because a lot of environmentalist huts in this country prevent us from having oil and gas.

harried, tired looking woman who was undoubtedly the victim of a chauvinistic society. Instead, I found a very attractive, 33-year-old woman, who has nine children because she wants them and is completely contented with her lot in life.

Joyce stated, "I love being a mother. Sure, I would like to have some time to myself. I love to play the flute, and I would like a few extra hours to practice. There are things I would like to get put into the baby books. Sometimes I miss not going out and having a couple of free hours, but as far as wanting to go out and use my nurse's training, really it doesn't even interest me. I get a little bit of everything here. I am a seamstress, a marriage coordinator, a school teacher, a nurse. You name any woman's occupation, and I have it ten times over. I have a more appreciative audience than most women who work. I don't feel squelched at all."

Today with so much emphasis on zero population growth, it is unusual to find a couple who want to have a large family. Lorin stated, "We feel that the world is in real need of some honest, productive, upright citizens, and we believe our children will be responsible, honest, productive adults." The Wards feel they are particularly suited to raising a large family. They both enjoy working with their children. Lorin spends a lot of time reading to the children, teaching them how to work with each other, and teaching them how to help with the triplets.

The four Ward children who are in school are among the top students in their class. When they entered Kindergarten, each child knew her basic colors and shapes, could count to 100, and knew the basic phonics. Lorin commented, "We enjoy having children, and we have enough patience most of the time so that we can work with them in a meaningful way."

Since Lorin is doing his student teaching this spring, he has not been able to handle a full-time job. He is going to school on the GI bill, but that doesn't go very far when you have to pay $100 a month just for formula. The Wards are very active in the Mormon church, and the church is helping them with their grocery needs until Lorin can have a full-time job again.

What goals do the Wards have for their children? Joyce stated, "We're very religious and that's important to me. I want my children to be religious. I think nothing beats motherhood. I want them to go to college, but if they choose not to go and they can be good parents, anyway, then I'll be happy."

"Lorin stated, "If my children grow up with the commitment to their children that I have to them, we will be successful."

Profile

by Weldon Sutton

This will be a column designed to ascertain and isolate not only some of the academic, architectural and social barriers disabled students encounter here at CSCSB, but the process in dealing with these barriers.

Another thing that I would like to determine is how does the disabled students services office contribute in this adjustment process. To accomplish the goals I will conduct interviews with these students and those non-disabled students and staff who come into contact with the disabled.

Nick Hambrick is a quadriplegic student who is majoring in business administration. Once he obtains his degree (hopefully in June of 81) Nick wants to manage Rolling Start, a social organization for the physically disabled of which he is currently president. Nick had previously attended Valley College before enrolling at Cal State. In comparing CSCSB with Valley College Nick felt the campus was more intense academically, saying that "... yeah, you might do a chapter a week, while here you do two or three chapters a week."

Socializing is extremely important, but as he puts it "by the time you get to know the people in your class the class is over". Consequently, here "his course work necessitates a greater expenditure of time and energy than he would like."

Even though Nick has a 24 volt battery operated wheelchair enabling him to maneuver just about anywhere on this campus he readily sighs at the fact that "... architecturally the school is not set up very well at all for wheel chair people." He felt that the doors and elevators in the buildings were prime examples of this. For instance, Nick noticed that the height of the elevator panels prevent him from both gripping the key properly in order to turn it (disabled students are allowed to check out a key to the elevators inside the library on a daily basis) and pushing the buttons because they don't protrude from the panels.

When asked about the role he would like the disabled students services office to take in the future, Nick replied, "I would like the program to get more into more accessibility. There's over 300 disabled students at Valley College and not many of them come here because of the problems." Nick believes that unless this campus does something about removing its architectural barriers that these students which would normally transfer will go elsewhere. "There's not a whole lot of people in wheelchairs here and I can attest to the fact why."

Marketing Club

The Marketing Club will be holding a meeting, Wednesday, May 14th at 12 noon. The meeting will take place in the PUB area and all interested students, regardless of major, are urged to attend.

Ground Broken For New Child Care Center

by Tim Hamre

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Child Care Center were held last Friday at 9:30 a.m. at the site west of the Student Services building.

About 75 people attended the ceremonies, including the children of the present center located at Kendall Elementary School.

Child Care Center Director Mary Ongaro opened the ceremonies by talking of how nice it would be to finally be on campus after a four year struggle to get funding for the center. She also introduced people who played roles in making the new center a reality. These included: President John M. Pfau, Vice-President for Administration Joe Thomas, Dean of Students Kenton Monroe, Associate Dean of Students for Special Services Tom Rivera, San Bernardino County Supervisor Bob Hammock, and Jack Causey, the architect of the building.

Pfau also addressed the group about the time and effort that went into the project, and talked of the youngest group in the CSCSB family.

Hammock thanked everyone involved for giving him a chance to prove that the city and county would work together. (Hammock was instrumental in getting the city and county to jointly fund the construction of the center.)

The speeches were followed by the groundbreaking ceremony. Pfau implanted the college's ceremonial shovel aided by Hammock, Causey, and several of the children.

President Pfau, Jack Causey and Bob Hammock break ground for the new Child Care Center with the help of some of the children from the current center.

Right after the groundbreaking, everyone released a helium filled balloon for a colorful display in the sky.

The ceremonies were followed by a short reception.

Noted Writer To Speak On The Wonders Of The Universe

A guided tour of the wonders of the universe, conducted by the noted science writer Irving Bengelsdorf, will be presented Thursday evening, May 15.

In the free public lecture, which begins at 8 p.m. in the Lecture Hall of the Physical Sciences Building, Dr. Bengelsdorf will use slides to take his audience from the gigantic galaxies (the largest objects in the universe) to leptons (the smallest objects).

"Where Are We? What Are We? The Majesty of the Physical Universe" is the title of the presentation by Dr. Bengelsdorf, now director of science communication for California Institute of Technology.

Prior to assuming the position at Cal Tech, Dr. Bengelsdorf was known to laymen in southern California as science editor for the Los Angeles Times from 1963 to 1970. He currently is a science columnist for the Sunday Los Angeles Herald-Examiner.

Dr. Bengelsdorf is the author of a book, "Spaceship Earth: People and Pollution," plus chapters in several other books. He also co-authored an introductory college biology textbook.

While on campus, Dr. Bengelsdorf also will lecture to a noon class on "Science, Technology and Communication," meet with the science faculty and consult with the humanities committee working on the college's communication major.

Cults

Leroy Tennison of Campus Crusade for Christ will be the guest speaker on the subject of "Cults" on Tuesday, May 13 at 8:30 p.m. in the Joshua Residence Hall.

Mr. Tennison has studied this topic extensively and will share some of his insights on the psychological, social and spiritual implications behind the recent cult movement that has taken place in our country and abroad.

Some specific areas that Mr. Tennison will discuss are: brainwashing techniques on perspective cult members, the "Moonie" church, the Guyana catastrophe, and a contrast between cults and Christianity.

This should prove to be a very thought provoking evening. Both on-campus and off-campus students and their guests are encouraged and welcome to attend this Housing Office sponsored program.

Soviet-American Relations Speaker

Mr. Bruce W. MacDonald, Senior Strategic Forces Analyst in the Department of State's Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs, will visit our campus on Wednesday, May 14, 1980. He will conduct a seminar on Soviet-Americans relations and SALT II in Dr. Ackley's International Security and Defense Strategy class in LC-5 from 1-3 p.m.

Interested individuals are invited.

The Village Idiot

by Shari Mills

Having not written an article in two weeks, I figured it was time to give an update on what is happening in Serrano Village.

First, the 4th annual Serrano Village Track Meet took place this last Saturday. Since I am writing this before the event took place (this is last week your time), I do not know what house won this year's plaque, nor do I know who scored the most points for men and women to win the trophies being awarded. I do know, however, that Dennis Mondonca should receive special recognition and thanks for all of the time he puts in to these track meets each year. Without Dennis, Serrano Village would never have had the 1st annual Track Meet. Thanks Dennis, and congratulations to this year's winners.

The second order of business is to remind everyone to attend the Spring Dinner Dance this Saturday, (your time), at the Chili Pepper. The dinner dance, co-sponsored by SVC and A.S. will start at 7 p.m. with dinner from 8-9:30, followed by outside dancing until 1 a.m. The Oreos, alias Ivan Glasco, Robin Bullington, and Anthony Duncan will also be there to entertain. There are a limited number of tickets, so be sure to buy them as soon as possible during dinner at the commons, or see Shari Mills (me) in Badger. Tickets are $6 each.

Yearbooks will be going on sale very soon. The yearbook committee will be putting it together this week. Anyone with pictures to be submitted should turn them into the housing office by Wednesday. Flyers will be posted in the residents halls with more information about the yearbooks.

Badger residents plan to hold the 1st annual (we hope) Spring Fest for Serrano Village on May 31st from 1-5 p.m. Chairman Greg Bourgeois and his committee have planned such events as a 5 kilometer run, mud wrestling, 3 legged race, scavenger hunt, egg toss, plus many other activities to take place in and around Serrano Village. Dinner will be served out at the pool, followed by a dance in Badger.

Student Consultation On Faculty Effectiveness

The policies of CSCSB provide for designated hours for students to consult with members of faculty personnel committees regarding faculty effectiveness. Students are invited to bring to the attention of these committees comments regarding their teachers. She Loves Me! She Said So!

by Adrian Tafolla

Go back in time, for a moment, to the mid-19th century. When men wore coats with tails, carried canes, and were gentlemen in the strictest sense; women wore corsets and hoop skirts and had "spells". This is the scene for the Spring quarter production of She Loves Me! She Said So! by Eugene Scribe.

This show replaces the one that was originally scheduled at the beginning of the '79-80 season. She Loves Me! She Said So! is directed by Dr. Ronald Barnes of the Theatre Arts department, and was translated by Dr. Helene Koon of the English department.

Pancakes In The Evening . . . Has AK Psi Flipped?

No, No really. The only thing flipping is flapjacks, says Tim Thompson, President of the fraternity. This Thursday evening, during the dance, we will be selling pancake dinners from 9 p.m. to 12 a.m. in the SUMP room.

Prices are moderate and include pancakes, eggs, sausage and milk or juice. As a special bonus, waitresses will take your order, all you have to do is sit down and enjoy your meal. How's that for style?

When asked why this particular play was chosen to replace the one originally scheduled Dr. Barnes replied, "Because of economic problems we had to replace the show originally scheduled. In trying to find a substitute, there was a series of happy coincidences. Dr. Switzer and Dr. Koon had just finished a book on Eugene Scribe that was to be published.

Senior Art Shows

An exhibit of color xerox collages by Jana Ondrechen and recent whistles in wood by Marlin Halverson runs May 12-May 16 in Gallery Two, located in the Fine Arts building. An opening reception was held Monday evening.

Gallery Two is open 9 a.m.-noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Belly Button

Alpha Kappa Psi wants to see your belly button this Thursday, at 2:30 p.m. at the Spring Festival.

Prizes will be awarded in the following categories — "innies", "outies", "ugliest", "hairiest", and "sexiest". From the winners, a grand prize will be awarded to the "AKPsi Navel of the Year."

There is no charge to enter the contest. Voting will be by whoever brings in the most money at 10 cents a vote.

"Dr. Koon, because of her interest in Scribe, was able to translate this play which seemed to be suited to our student body and financial budget. It also complimented the current season.

Senior Music Recital

The music of Bach, Stravinsky, Brahms and Weber will be presented in a recital given by senior Pat Sieben of San Jacinto on Friday evening, May 16.

The program will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building.

Students and community members are invited to attend at no charge.

Casino Night

Alpha Kappa Psi is gambling that you won't want to miss their 2nd Annual Casino Night to be held on Friday, June 13, 1980 in the Student Union.

A Grand Prize of two nights free lodging in Las Vegas will be awarded to the highest bidder along with many other prizes.

Watch The PawPrint every week for more details.

Dr. Barnes' stage manager is Thomas L. Huxley III. Cast members include Dawna Gregory of Apple Valley, Jeff Hubbard of Lake Arrowhead, Michael J. McCarthy of San Bernardino, Mary Kay Vincent of Crestline, Ivan Glasco of Los Angeles, and Anna Chavez of Acapulco, Mexico.

She Loves Me! She Said So! opens May 29 and runs through May 31, and June 3 through June 7.

20th Century Music Concert This Sunday

The Chamber Orchestra and Wind Ensemble will join forces Sunday, May 18 to present a concert of 20th century music.

LAW SCHOOL INFORMATION FOR GRADUATING SENIORS AND CAREER COUNSELORS

This question is frequently asked by prospective law school students as they consider the schools to which they will apply for admission. The charts below reveal Western State University College of Law's first time bar results, and the number of graduates of accredited California law schools who have passed this examination. It covers the five years from 1973-78, which is the most recent period for which complete official figures are available. During these years, more graduates of Western State University College of Law have embarked upon a career in the legal profession than any other law school in California, with the exception of Hastings.

This nomograph depicts the probability of first time success in passing the California Bar Examination at various levels of performance at WSU. At WSU a highly motivated student need not be an exceptional scholar to anticipate a high probability of first time success in passing the California Bar (i.e., a WSU graduate with a GPA of 2.7 has better than a 90% chance of passing on the first attempt).

Input Requested

Students that have had difficulty in dealing with the CSCSB Financial Aid Office or who feel that they have been discriminated against, are urged to contact Ron Angle, a member of the Associated Students Board of Directors. Angle is attempting to document any such complaints that may exist.

"Several students have told me of rather unpleasant confrontations with the Financial Aid Office. Such allegations deserve at least a closer look," Angle said recently.

"I want to document these 'horror stories' if they are valid. I urge anyone who has such complaints to contact me through the A.S. office. I'm available any day of the week, day or evening."

Angle iterated that he cannot be involved in disputes over aid eligibility. He feels that many students' problems begin as soon as they walk in the door attempting to ask questions.

The Associated Students office is located in the Student Union building. Angle will be in the office Wednesday night from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. to meet especially with evening students.

This week there are two intramural participants of the week due to the fact that none was so honored last week. Our first worthy recipient is the venerable and fanatical Jeff Frazier. Jeff injured his shoulder a few weeks back but was out the next day playing.

Last week Jeff made a fantastic dive at a fly ball, fell on his shoulder and broke his clavicle. But would this slow Jeff down? No way! He left the emergency room and went to coach his high school team. That's dedication! Said Jeff: It's not so bad, I can still drink beer with the other arm! Get well and stay off that shoulder.

Our other lucky intramuraler this week is Jeff Fulton. Jeff was instrumental in Cretin Trucks 4-3 win over Powerline. Jeff played outstanding in the game coming to the plate twice and scoring twice. He led a very stingy truck defense playing superbly in the field.

Joe Long has your tickets, good for a sandwich and drink, in his office. Good show!!
