I became acquainted with Lorin Ward when we were in a Children's Lit class together last spring. Often when a new book was mentioned, Lorin would say, "Oh yeah, I've read that book to my kids." I was impressed that a father who was holding down a full-time job and a full college load would take time to read books to his children. One day he mentioned that he hadn't gotten all of his children's books, and that his wife was in the hospital. Supposing that he had two or three small children, I casually asked how old his kids were. He stated, "Stephanie's 8, Barbara's 7, Tamianna's 6, Melanie's 5, Hyrum's 2, and Camilla's 1." Then my admiration turned to awe.

I didn't see Lorin again until last fall. He said, "Marlyn, we discovered why Joyce was having so much trouble with this last pregnancy." Oh, yes, I forgot to mention that she was pregnant when I talked with him before. Lorin continued, "She is going to have triplets."

I lost my composure for a moment, but then my nurse for news took over, and I said, "Let me know when they arrive, and I'll write a story about them." On October 14, Elizabeth, Adrienne, and Miriam Ward were born at Loma Linda Hospital. The identical triplets were delivered naturally, and all of the babies were able to leave the hospital within two weeks. Recently, Lorin invited my husband and me to come out to Beaumont to meet his wife and children. As we entered the Ward home, Lorin took us in to meet four of the children who were already in bed. Stephanie, with all her school program, so we didn't meet her until later. The children all said hello.

Jarvis Swings His Tax-Cutting Ax

Lorin was a Physics major in his senior year at Brigham Young University when he realized that he was not going to be happy with his major. After he returned from a stint in Vietnam, he worked in the family business for several years. Then he decided to pursue the Bilingual Education major at CSCSB. He is presently doing his student teaching and will have his credential in June.

Joyce was a junior at BYU when she married Lorin. While he was in Vietnam, she completed her degree and is now a registered nurse. When I realized that Joyce is the mother of nine children under the age of nine, I pictured a continued on page 2 anything to a very funny thing — all the people that were against (Proposition) 13 when Friedman was for it, they said he was a shithead. And now that he's making the same kind of quality statement they think he's great. That's a hypocritical bunch of bastards.

The reason Milton Friedman said what he said is because he was afraid that if we passed (Prop.) 9 the legislature would increase the taxes on corporations (Proposition) 13. In fact, Friedman said, the increase in sales taxes — the corporations don't get a nickel. And Friedman has always felt we should reduce taxes on corporations.

(Reading a letter to him he said was from Friedman) — I believe it is better to let Proposition 4 (passed in November 78, putting a ceiling on property tax increases) while before we move further to use the initiative process on specific taxes. At the same time — I will not raise the question of Proposition 9.

DAILY: How about waiting for other laws already passed by the Legislature to take effect first? (The state Legislature has repealed the business income tax, provided a cost-of-living indexing so that Californians will not be pushed into higher brackets by pay increase — two provisions Proposition 9 hopes to see into the state constitution.)

JARVIS: The legislature never passed them until I filed Proposition 9. They passed them to try and defeat Proposition 9, and each and every one of them has a clause in it that can repeal it at any time. So that is a big fat fraud. They're thieves up there.

DAILY: Do you think Proposition 9 really will result in cuts in govern­ment spending; or will taxes that can be raised (business and sales taxes) be increased?

JARVIS: No, it won't cut it a nickel (Proposition) 13 didn't cut it any either; because your school has gone up 20 percent a year while last year had was 40 percent. And every city has more money and every county has more money and the state has more money. And after (Proposition) 9 passes, your school district will have more money because that's all it is. (You're) from Cal Poly, God, you wouldn't see a juicy county, it's a lie. They said Proposition 13 was for the rich — that was a lie. Jerry Brown, after Proposition 13 passed, said it was the best thing that ever happened to California. When I was telling the previous six months it was the worst thing. So he's either lying one place or the other. And of course, the money put about the surplus. They said it was $1.5 billion and I said it was $6.5 billion, and it turned out to be $6.5 billion. So a series of monumental lies that your friends in Sacramento and in the school system told you, most of it in the school system. The people in the school system are pretty clever liars — most of them.

DAILY: People are also saying Proposition 9 is for the rich, that's a lie.

JARVIS: They're liars, it's progressive. If you have a $15,000 in­come, you get a 10 percent reduc­tion in your taxes that amounts to $1,500. But if you only earn $10,000 to $12,000, you get about a 30 percent reduction, your taxes that amounts to $300. Proposition 9 is for the rich, that's a lie.

JARVIS: No. I didn't say that. That's not correct. I just told you what a few of these (taxes) will mean. If you have less than $15,000, you pay very little income tax, most of them none at all. They don't pay nothing. They have a free ride on the rest of us.

DAILY: If you have a $30,000 income, you get in a higher bracket, you will have a 63 percent reduction and that'll be about $55 a month (Legislative analyst William Hamm estimates a reduction of 53.3 per­cent.) And finally you get $50,000 income: you only get a 49 percent reduction. So the bulk of the increase goes to the low in­come, and when Brown says differ­ent, he's a liar.

DAILY: How do cuts like these affect those in the lower brackets?

JARVIS: Don't measure up at all. Because there's no income tax and they have better property tax we have. (Texas) has no income tax and they have better education.

DAILY: I didn't have to play on our fear — they were going to lose their houses. The only fear I played on was that people's politicians, and I was playing on their fears. But the people, I wasn't playing on their fears at all. A few who have some goddamn psychologists and we believe psychiatrists' dream after he's been smoking marijuana.

DAILY: I mean the fear of losing your house because of high pro­perty taxes.

JARVIS: I didn't have to play on their fears — they were going to lose their houses. The only fear I played on was that people didn't pay that much income tax, because he thinks he's got to get out of the marinated political greast. And he thinks, "This guy's going to lose his house, and God, he will fly by God, you're right — this guy is going to get their job. They're going to go back to work shining shoes, where they belong. And that goes for a lot of professors, too. Got the records. They were in this shoebox, so help me Christ. And you know what I found out about that goddamned shoebox outfit? They built a road to San Simeon about 40 years ago. (The only direct road between San Luis Obispo and San Simeon is state Highway 1, completed in 1937.) They have never paid anything except the interest on that. That's the kind of a government you've got in San Luis Obispo.

DAILY: During the Proposition 13 campaign, you were playing on people's fears.

JARVIS: Horsewhip. The only people who shit their pants were the politicians, and I was playing on their fears. But the people, I wasn't playing on their fears at all. That's a real goddamn lot, and we believe psychiatrists' dream after he's been smoking marijuana.

DAILY: I mean the fear of losing your house because of high pro­perty taxes.

JARVIS: Yes, because the people are gradually getting intelligent — especially the ones that don't go to school.

DAILY: A lot of the states have half the property tax we have. (Texas) has no income tax and they have better education and less crime. And every time gas goes up, we build goddamn big Rolls Royce out there, a Mercedez-Benz, and call it an education.

DAILY: That's what's (gas tax) going up fast — because a lot of envi­ronmentalists nuts in this country prevent us from having oil and gas.

JARVIS: I didn't have to play on their fears — they were going to lose their houses. The only fear I played on was that people didn't pay that much income tax, because he thinks he's got to get out of the marinated political grease. Ground Broken For New Child Care Center

by Tim Hamre

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Child Care Center were held last Friday at 9:30 a.m. at the site west of the Student Services building.

About 75 people attended the ceremonies, including the children of the present center located at Kendall Elementary School.

Child Care Center Director Mary Ongaro opened the ceremonies by announcing how nice it would be to finally be on campus after a four-year struggle to get funding for the center. She also introduced people to the new center and its goals. These included: President John M. Plau, Vice President for Administration Joe Thomas, Dean of Students Kenton Monroe, Associate Dean of Students for Special Services Tom Rivera, San Bernardino County Supervisor Bob Hammock, and Jack Causey, the architect of the building.

Plau also addressed the group about the time and effort that went into the project, and talked of the youngest group in the CSCSB family.

Hammock thanked everyone involved for giving him a chance to prove that the city and county would work together. (Hammock was instrumental in getting the city and county to jointly fund the center.)

The speeches were followed by the groundbreaking ceremony. Plau implanted the college's ceremonial shoveling aid by Hammock, Causey, and several of the children.

This will be a column designed to ascertain and isolate not only some of the academic, architectural, and social barriers that students encounter here at CSCSB, but the process in dealing with these barriers.

Another thing that I would like to determine is how does the disabled students services office contribute in this adjustment process. To accomplish the goals I will conduct interviews with these students and those non-disabled students and staff who come into contact with the disabled.

Nick Hambrick is a quadraplegic student majoring in business administration. Once he obtains his degree (hopefully in June of 81) Nick wants to manage Rolling Rock. Currently he is co-managing Cal Sod at Cal State. When comparing CSCSB with Valley College Nick felt the campus was more intense academically, saying that: "Yeah you might do a chapter a week while here, you do two or three chapters a week." Socializing is extremely important, but as he puts it "by the time you get to know the people in your class the class is over." Consequently, here this course work necessitates a greater expenditure of time and energy than he would like.

Even though Nick has a 24 volt battery operated wheelchair enabling him to maneuver just about anywhere on campus it readily Civic at the fact that "... architecturally the school is not set up very well at all for wheel chair people." He felt that the doors and elevators in the buildings were prime examples of this. For instance, Nick noticed that the height of the elevator panels prevent him from ever grabbing the key properly in order to turn it (disabled students are allowed to check out a key to the elevators inside the library on a daily basis) and push the buttons because they don't protrude from the panels.

When asked about the role he would like the disabled students services office to take in the future Nick replied, "I would like the program to get more into more accessibility. There's over 300 disabled students at Valley College and not many of them come in here because of the problems." Nick believes that unless this campus does something about removing its architectural barriers, the students who would normally transfer will go elsewhere. "There's not a whole lot of people in wheelchairs here and I can attest to the fact why.

Noted Writer To Speak On The Wonders Of The Universe

A guided tour of the wonders of the universe, conducted by the noted science writer Irving Bengelsdorf, will be presented Thursday evening, May 15.

In the free public lecture, which begins at 8 p.m. in the Lecture Hall of the Physical Sciences Building, Dr. Bengelsdorf will use slides to take his audience from the gigantic galaxies (the largest objects in the universe) to the smallest objects.

"Where Are We? What Are We? The Mastery of the Physical Universe" is the title of the presentation by Dr. Bengelsdorf, now director of science communication for California Institute of Technology.

Prior to assuming the position at Cal Tech, Dr. Bengelsdorf was known to science writers in southern California as science editor for the Los Angeles Times from 1963 to 1970. He currently is a science columnist for the Sunday Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

Dr. Bengelsdorf is the author of a book, "Spaceship Earth: People and Pollution," plus chapters in several other books. He also co-authored an introductory college biology textbook.

While on campus Dr. Bengelsdorf also will lecture to a noon class on "Science, Technology and Communication," meet with the science faculty and consult with the humanities committee as part of his work as college's communication major.

The Village Idiot

by Shari Mills

Having not written an article in two weeks, I figured it was time to give an update on what is happening in Serrano Village.

First, the 4th annual Serrano Village Track Meet took place last Saturday. Since I am writing this before the event took place (this is last week of the year), I do not know what house won this year's plaque, no do I know who scored the most points for men and women to win the trophy being awarded. I do know, however, that Dennis Mondonaca showed receive special recognition and thanks for all of the time he puts into the track meets each year. Without Dennis, Serrano Village would never have had the 1st annual Track Meet. Thanks Dennis, and congratulations to this year's winners.

The second order of business is to remind everyone to attend the Spring Dinner Dance this Saturday, (your time), at the Chili Pepper. The dinner dance, co-sponsored by SVC and A.S. will start at 7 p.m. with dinner from 8-9:30, followed by outside dancing until 1 a.m. The Oreo, alias Ivan Glasco, Robin Bullington, and Anthony Duncan will also be there to entertain. There are a limited number of tickets, so be sure to buy them as soon as possible during dinner at the commons, or see Shari Mills (me) in Badger. Tickets are $6 each.

Yearbooks will be going on sale very soon. The yearbook committee will be putting it together this week. Anyone with pictures to be submitted should turn them into the housing office by Wednesday. Flyers will be posted in the residents halls with more information about the yearbooks.

Student Consultation On Faculty Effectiveness

The policies of CSCSB provide for designated hours for students to consult with members of faculty personnel committee working on the college's faculty effectiveness. Students are invited to bring to the attention of these committees comments regarding their teachers. Scheduled times when the School Dean or Committee representatives will be available are listed below. School office locations are Library, LC-125, Student Services, Room SS-114.

She Loves Me! She Said So!

by Adrian Tafolla

Go back in time, for a moment, to the mid-19th century. When men wore coats with tails, carried canes, and were gentlemen in the strictest sense; women wore corset-ties and hoop shirts and had "spells." This is the scene for the Spring quarter production of She Loves Me! She Said So! by Eugene Scribe.

This show replaces the one that was originally scheduled at the beginning of the ’79-80 season. She Loves Me! She Said So! is directed by Dr. Ronald Barnes of the Theatre Arts department, and was translated by Dr. Helene Koon of the English department.

Pancakes In The Evening . . . Has AK Psi Flipped?

No, No really. The only thing flipping is flapjacks, says Tim Thompson, President of the fraternity. This Thursday evening, during the dance, we will be selling pancake dinners from 9 p.m. to 12 a.m. in the SUMP room.

Prices are moderate and include pancakes, eggs, sausage and milk or juice. As a special bonus, waitresses will take your order, all you have to do is sit down and enjoy your meal. How’s that for style?

When asked why this particular play was chosen to replace the one originally scheduled Dr. Barnes replied, "Because of economic problems we had to replace the show originally scheduled. In trying to find a substitute, there was a series of happy coincidences. Dr. Switzer and Dr. Koon had just finished a book on Eugene Scribe that was to be published."

Senior Art Shows

An exhibit of color xerox collages by Jana Ondrechen and recent whirlies in wood by Martin Halverson runs May 12-May 16 in Gallery Two, located in the Fine Arts building. An opening reception was held Monday evening.

Senior Music

The music of Bach, Stravinsky, Brahms and Weber will be presented in a recital given by senior Pat Sieben of San Jacinto on Friday evening, May 16.

The program will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building.

Students and community members are invited to attend at no charge.

Casino Night

Alpha Kappa Psi is gambling that you won’t want to miss their 2nd Annual Casino Night to be held on Friday, June 13, 1980 in the Student Union.

A Grand Prize of two nights free lodging in Las Vegas will be awarded to the highest bidder along with many other prizes.

Watch The PaupPrint every week for more details.

Recital

A music education major, Sieben will graduate from Cal State this June with honors. He plans to return to the college in the fall to do graduate studies in his field.

Have A Bash

On AKP

Alpha Kappa Psi is offering everyone their big chance to get even with the high price of gasoline; or at least a chance to release some frustrations. The chance will come this Thursday, during the Spring Festival at noon.

At the Festival, AK Psi will have a gasoline pump and a sledge hammer. For a cost of only 25 cents you can take a bash on the gasoline pump. For $1 you can have five bashes.

So come out and have a bash at the AK Psi gasoline pump smash.

In the dark of night... caring must go on.

Fulton And Frazier This Week!

This week there are two intramural participants of the week due to the fact that none was so honored last week. Our first worthy recipient is the venerable and fanatical Jeff Frazier. Jeff injured his shoulder a few weeks back but was out the next day playing. Last week Jeff made a fantastic dive at a fly ball, fell on his shoulder and broke his clavicle. But would this slow Jeff down? No way! He left the emergency room and went to coach his high school team. That's dedication! Said Jeff: It's not so bad, I can still drink beer with the other arm! Get well and stay off that shoulder.

Our other lucky intramuraler this week is Jeff Fulton. Jeff was instrumental in Cretin Trucks 4-3 win over Powerline. Jeff played outstanding in the game coming to the plate twice and scoring twice. He led a very stingy truck defense playing superbly in the field. Joe Long has your tickets, good for a sandwich and drink, in his office. Good show!!
