Bradley And Lewis Join L.A. Business Conference For Youth

It was a day of inspiration and high spirits, straight talk and vision, superstars and future stars. It was a chance for junior and senior high school students in Los Angeles to learn about the world of business, finance and about themselves. It was a day of celebration of the city's radical, ethnic and cultural diversity as it brought more than 200 bright and eager young people face to face with very special guests and some of the most successful entrepreneurs, many of them minorities, from their local communities.

The Los Angeles Business Conference for Youth, organized by the office of Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, conveyed the message that the world of finance is one's own. Three of the principal speakers, Mayor Tom Bradley, New York's Seamless F. Lewis, Chairman and C.E.O. of TLC Group, and Michael Milken, Sr. Exec. V.P., Drexel Burnham Lambert, a securities firm, addressed the students in the morning workshop. They explained how using capital is a way of reading California State University at the San Bernardino Branch's Awards Banquet being held at November 7th.

Riverside Sheriff's Reject County Offer

By Wally Abraham - Chairman, Board of Supervisors (Riverside County)

On Thursday, October 29, the Riverside County Negotiating Team met with the Riverside County Sheriff's Association (RCSA), and the RCSA again rejected the County’s offer.

It is regrettable that the RCSA is taking this position inasmuch as the County has made a concerted effort to reach settlement. In light of the current fiscal crisis it is fully aware of the County’s offer, the following is provided:

First, the offer made on September 8, 1987 is the County’s final offer because the amount this is distributed on January 1, 1988, it would result in an annual increase of 4.6% per total compensation. The RCSA has informed, however, that this increase would be distributed immediately which would reduce the percentage increase based upon the opportunity.

Fiscal Year 1988-89: The County has consistently maintained its request to have compensation limited to 10% of the total compensation of the classified employees closer to the California Cost of Living Index.

Education and Achievement

No one could contend that higher education is the essential ingredient for achievement. However, a recent decline of college enrollment, especially among black youth, could indicate otherwise. Although limited supply of education has become more of a matter of concern, the increasing numbers of black students are fearful of the future.

The recent threat of layoffs has made the future an even more uncertain. They are afraid it might be the end of their opportunities. More threat to their future.

While other ethnic groups continue to come out of this country and become assimilated from American society, many every day are discharged as discharged as within our own communities, we stand grueling the future of every child who is a part of our future.

It is not difficult to see that the future is not bright for all African American students. On the contrary, they are in a very bleak situation.

The blacks have been accused by some as a minority parents to nurture their children. It is difficult to see how the black middle and upper classes have left the communities, also leaving behind necessary educational resources.

The problem underrepresentation gives more choices for the future. The figure, the series, is also, at times, a problem of education that in solution now requires the combined efforts of all entities working together.

The problem underrepresentation of minority group members in the science and engineering fields, lower and doctoral candidates, low test scores, and technical advancement that will re-

A street in demonstration of capital, was involved in all facets of planning and under­

Drexel Burnham Lambert's Michael Milken, a product of Los Angeles schools, made clear his company's interest in young people. "Money is not a scarce resource in the United States," he said. Milken. "What is scarce is fin­ dom, to be able to shape the future. People who can see the changes taking place and who can put in their hands the means to create the opportunities."

"There is no place in this new environment for prejudice" he said. "Everyone is judged by his or her knowledge and skills. As the person who worked with Reg Lewis on the 983 million Barclaycard deal, I mean you too, Milken. "For the people who wish to create a world." Reg Lewis on the 973 million Barclaycard deal, I mean you too, Milken. "For the people who wish to create a world."

"It's the people who create value who will succeed." he continued. "Wealth is a byproduct of identifying and creating value in society."

Michael Milken and Reginald Lewis were praised by Mayor Bradley. "Reg Lewis wanted to make a dent on Wall Street and I was through his experiences with minority enterprise lending institutions that he acquired the skills to manage major cooperations," said Bradley.

When discussing Reg Lewis's desire to pursue the hospitality industry, the Mayor said:

"You know anything was possible and he had the support of Drexel Burnham Lambert, one of the great investment banking firms in the nation."

"But this was nothing new for Drexel and Michael Milken," the Mayor continued.

"They have supported the idea of minority enterprises and are major developers in the city."

"They have seized the opportunity to create new businesses and fail to take advantage of this incredible wealth of this city."

Contract Compliance Officer Retires To Devote Fulltime to Trisha's Fashion

On September 24, 1987, Patricia Igbokwe, Contract Compliance Officer for the County of San Bernardino was honored at a retirement luncheon. The luncheon attended by such dignitaries as Supervisor Barbara Riordan and Armando Navarro, Chairman of the San Bernardino Affirmative Action Commission, served to highlight some of the more positive accomplishments achieved by Ms. Igbokwe.

Among the many gifts which she received was a beautiful attache case. She was particularly honored to be presented with a County Certificate of Commendation citing her struggle to bring about equality for the many minority and women owned businesses of San Bernardino County. Having served over eight years in the Personnel department many in the audience remember her for the positive role model which she provided for young people.

Although her leaves a void in the Contract Compliance Office, she will now have more time to devote to her business, Trisha's Fashion. Trisha's Fashion specializing in women's apparel is located on the corner of Center and Waterman in San Bernardino.

WANTED: Drugs, Alcohol, Violence, And Today's Youth

Joseph Janusz was con­cerned about today's youth. After 36 years of frustration and pain, he knows from the inside the extremes of desperation in­duced by drugs, crime and Black sex.

Originated in the Black ghettos of South Bend, Indiana, Joseph was the oldest of his parents' nine sons, he and his brothers, who were among his gang members, participated in a violent lifestyle, feeling rejected and alienated by society. Joseph was determined to achieve the "American Dream" of material success by any means. At times, his quest resulted in shootings and stabbings, he was shot three times, stabbed, and burned.

Black Voice News Celebrates "Red Ribbon Week"
October 25th thru October 31st
Black Voice Summer Anti-Drug Program

Black Voice sponsored a summer program as one aspect of its Adopt-A-School partnership with Lincoln High School. This was a "first" for the Black Voice and for Lincoln Students received up to 3 credits for developing, organizing and writing this special edition on drugs. Over a period of six weeks, students made on-site visits to the Press Enterprise, March Air Force Base, restaurants and other points in the area to gather information, conduct interviews, distribute questionnaires and conduct surveys. In addition, the students participated in an Image Awareness seminar conducted by Don Griggs of Griggs and Associates. The seminar provided an opportunity for the students to take part in "hands-on" experiences for job interviews and appropriate business attire. A highlight of the program was a presentation by Brad Wright, U.C.L.A. graduate and NBA player with the New York Knicks, on sports and drugs.

Introduction To "Red Ribbon Week"

Overwhelming requests have been made for the reprint of the Black Voice Summer Youth program fighting drugs.

This issue has been updated to include some of the "Red Ribbon Week's" activities. There are many that we could not cover but we'd like to mention a few events called into our office. Lincoln School in Riverside tied red ribbons all over the trees, and fence posts. Cajon High School, with the help of the telephone company tied red ribbons on all the telephone posts. Other campuses joined in tying ribbons on trees, etc.

Next year we hope the Red Ribbon activities will even be better.

Local Organizations Kick Off Red Ribbon Week

The County of San Bernardino Department of Public Health with Beverly Jones-Wright, Consultant, and Jack and Jill of America, Incorporated - Inland Empire Chapter with Harriette L. Moore, President, co-sponsored a Red Ribbon Solidarity Rally on October 22, 1987 first at the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., statue at City Hall at 6 p.m. and later at the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Elementary School in San Bernardino at 7 p.m. In spite of the inclement weather, organizations and individuals came out to show support for an alcohol and drug abuse prevention program. C.A.T.V. was on hand at both locations to videotape most of the program.

The following organizations/individuals were represented: S.B. Parks & Recreation/Community Services - Audree Taylor; City Culture Center/United Senior Service Club-Pauline Fox; Delmann Heights Center Senior Nutrition/ S.B. City Communities Services - Cherrie Williams; Delmann Heights Center Headstart - Leotha Mcgee, Headstart Teacher Director, Aniqua Smith, student, Joann Smith, Candice Nation, LaVonne Eshmon, and Michael Harris; Nicholson Center/Parks & Recreation - Ann Kassel; Lyle Creek Center Parks & Recreation - Rose Villalvazo, Jano Perking, Michael Trevino, Mario Martinez, and Albert Perez; Mill Community Center Parks & Recreation - Manuel Harper, Stacy Brooks, Ja’Nain Johnson, Jackie Serrano, LaTesha Prince, and Shatera Scott; Temple Baptist/ Eta Nu Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., - Lisa Ashworth; N.C.N.W./Bethune Center and Jack and Jill - Joyce Harvey, Janeshia Harvey, Dameko Harvey, Debra Cooper, Kenneth Cooper II, Mercedes Cooper; Jack and Jill - Inland Empire Jackie McKinney, Kevin McKinney, Akiba McKinney, Tashia McKinney, Sandra Doyle, Catrina Doyle, Tanisha Doyle, Bobby Moore II, Chenika Wright, Chenika Wright, Chaunce Wright and Chema Wright; Inland Alliance of Black School Educators - Dorothy Martin; First Baptist Church of Perris - Rev. Marvin Brown, and Rev. Marcus Portley; Solid Rock Baptist Church - Rev. Eddie Williams; Loveland Center - Elsie Baker and Cordell Baker (also a student at Golden Valley Intermediate School and representing the Standard English Program (S.E.P.); San Gorgonio High School - Immanuel Maggee; and Dr. Susan Brown, Principal of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., School.

Due to the dampness and rain, the candlelighting ceremony was held at the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., School instead of at the statue. The keynote speaker was Rev. Fred Fairley of East Palo Alto, California. His dynamic message captivated the audience. Cordell Baker, a S.E.P. student, recited the famous “I Have A Dream” speech. The Inland Empire Chapter of Jack and Jill children sang an anti-drug song.

Commendations were given to Hardy Brown Jr., for his exemplary work on an anti-drug tabloid in the Black Voice Newspaper, and to Audree Taylor for her work with the S.B. Parks and Recreation for the Control Teen Theatre Group's “Countdown to Crackdown.”

C.A.T.V. was on hand to videotape most of the program at the two sites. Many participants expressed their appreciation that the groups had come together with the hope that this event would become an ongoing celebration as they lit the candles and were given buttons and bumperstickers to celebrate Red Ribbon Week October 25-31, 1987 and to “Say No to Drugs.”

Beverly Jones-Wright and Harriette Moore thank the community organizations and individuals for their support.
Military Drug User

by Todd Ponder & Maria Rocha

This is a story of an airman's life with drugs. He started off using drugs in the seventh grade. It was just a little thing to do on the weekends. But soon he began to use more and more drugs until the day he experienced his best friend's death. His friend's death was caused by an injection of bad heroin. After that happened, he tried to turn his life around by joining the Air Force. In the Air Force, he became a top fireman and received all 9's on his performance reports and was drug free. He stayed drug free until he started hanging around some old friends who were using cocaine as a week-end drug. Pretty soon, he started staying home by himself and smoking cocaine all night. He got money for his drugs from his family. His girlfriend was a mild drug user but she didn't complain about his use. He noticed that as he used drugs more and more his sex drive became weaker and weaker.

Once, he was tested four days after he had smoked cocaine and the test was negative so he thought he could get away with it. He was ordered to take a drug test when he started showing signs of poor work performance from staying up for 20 hours at a stretch and smoking 2 grams of cocaine. During those 20 hours he would also drink a case and a half of beer.

His friends saw his problem and tried to help by talking to him but he felt he wasn't doing anything that everybody else wasn't doing. So he got upset with them and pushed them away. As his smoking became heavier and heavier, he started getting into debt and he realized he had a problem. He told his parents. About that time, his supervisors also saw his problem and ordered him to take the urine test. His sample came back positive.

When he told us his story, he had been off drugs just three weeks and said he was still fighting the urge. He wasn't sure if the drugs was the cause or not, but he said he was also having bad pains with his stomach. The afternoon of the day he talked with us, he was going for his first counseling session at a rehabilitation center in Riverside. The picture for him in the future is uncertain but we hope for the best for him.

Student Response To Military User

This military user did what almost everybody did. He just wanted some place to go and do drugs on the weekends. I guess he was just trying to be “just one of the boys”. Being that, he experienced a friend’s death. If he had not started using drugs, maybe his friend would still be here today. If he wanted to hang around his friends, that was his business, but they were dopers as much as he was. They weren't his friends; all they wanted was his money. A true friend wants you for friendship. If he had not started hanging around his supposed friends, he would still be a fireman in the Air Force getting “9’s” on his performance reports. Anybody who uses drugs and thinks they could get away with it is ignorant. You’t ever smart if you use drugs. By that, this military user just lost a good career. Not only in the fire department, but in the service of his country. His TRUE friends saw his problem but he just pushed them away. THEN he realizes he has a problem.

Student Response To Military Leader

This airman's life has been plagued with drugs. Again he started off with marijuana at parties like most teenagers and of course he began to upgrade into heavier things, until a friend’s death which caused him to enter the Air Force. But he started hanging around bad friends. Once again no mention of friends and family support. What he needed was a scare. It almost came true when he was tested for drugs four days after using cocaine but the result was negative. So this sparked him to smoke until debt came upon him then he told his family and parents about his drug addiction. His problem; he is still fighting the habit. He will always have the urge until he can win the struggle through a drug rehabilitation center.

DRUGS
Lady Drug Dealer

In the beginning, this average-size and average looking female became a drug dealer because she needed money to pay household bills. She, herself, had been a user since her early teens when she started smoking marijuana. By her mid-teens, she was deeply involved in other drugs. Her problem became so serious that it was necessary for her to see a psychiatrist regularly. However, at no time, did she stop using drugs.

After she began selling drugs, she decided to manufacture and sell. The reason for deciding to manufacture was so she could make more money. She has been manufacturing and selling for a long time. Since she sells her “own” drugs, she is not worried about anyone dying from using her drugs. People who buy from her are teenagers and adults, with adults being the majority. Most of her customers are males. While she has a temper, she has never become violent while dealing drugs. However, when it has been necessary for violent actions, she has taken the necessary steps.

In spite of receiving that her drugs will never kill anyone, she has plenty of other problems. She has been busted and has spent time in jail. Her feeling about having been busted and spending time in jail is that that’s what happens to dealers. She’s constantly aware that it’s dangerous and that they can never relax. She must always watch to see if she is being followed. Her friends are all involved in the drug world and has the same fears that she has. She spends all her time with people who are manufacturing and selling drugs. Her home is a beehive of drug activity all the time.

In spite of the fact that she is a dealer, she does not permit her teenage daughter to smoke, drink, or do drugs. She believes that drugs should be off limits to all young people.

Student Response To Lady Dealer

What I believe is this lady dealer has supported herself as well as her teen-age daughter. It is hard to raise kids today. She says that she manufactures and sells drugs and that she is not worried that anyone will die from them. I think she is wrong about thinking no one will die from them. She can never be sure about them. If it boils too long or too short, if too much of an ingredient or not enough of an ingredient is added, she couldn’t be sure of what would happen. Since she has a teen-age daughter who will not let drink, smoke or do drugs, she should not be selling drugs to teenagers or be in the drug business.

Student Response To Lady Dealer

This lady dealer needed money so she looked at dealing drugs. She experimented with marijuana in her early teens as most teenagers do while they’re at parties. She also became a junky. To pay for her habit and pay bills, she decided to manufacture and sell. Most teenagers go into drugs because of the money. And that is really the entire reason why and the soft penalty of young drug pushers. Most dealers, if they have children, don’t let them use drugs.

Female User

Brutilda, a former drug user, in now in her late twenties. She was involved with drugs for 11 years from the age of 13 to the age of 22. Brutilda used marijuana and cocaine. When using drugs, she felt a false sense of freedom, joy, and sense of being together with what was happening. But when the drug wore off, she had a feeling of “downness”.

Many times, Brutilda experimented with drugs. She would mix different drugs together and take them at the same time. She claims she mixed drugs because her friends did. Some drugs she didn't use. They were heroin, PCP, and speed. She didn't use those because she thought they might make her violent. During her days of mixing drugs, she was busted for possession of 10 ounces of marijuana and paid a court fine.

She was not a hard user when she was at work but it still affected her desire to perform at her best. Since she felt she wasn’t dependent on the drugs, she felt she could do drugs and work.

Since Brutilda stopped taking drugs, her life has changed. She has a family and a life devoted to Christ. She advises young drug users to try to follow the right path and stay away from drugs.

Student Response To Female User

Brutilda was an average beginning drug user. Most likely she started off with marijuana and proceeded to cocaine. Her false sense of freedom derived from loneliness and lack of close family and friend relationships caused her to look for an escape route. As a teenager, your friends protect you from drugs and without friends your outlook on drugs is positive.

Brutilda was lucky, she didn't allow drugs to overtake her life. On one occasion Brutilda was caught with 10 ounces of marijuana which scared her. Many teenagers have little to no respect for the law today. If Brutilda hadn't been scared she might be a regular junky today.

Female Drug User And Dealer

I started using drugs at a very early age. I believe I was 9 or 10 years old. I started smoking marijuana when I was 5 or 6. I used to smoke it with my dad and stepdad. My mother used to be a cocaine addict and my stepdad used to smuggle cocaine. All my aunts and uncles, except one, smoked marijuana or used cocaine or speed. I paid for my drugs by selling myself, dealing drugs, and stealing.

I started dealing drugs through a man I met through a person I thought was a friend. When I was dealing, I didn't care what happened to the people I was dealing with as long as I got my money. I haven't given much thought to how I felt about myself when I was dealing drugs. I do know that I didn't care if I had friends as long as I sold my stuff. I'm sure I had a lot of friends because of my drugs, but I never gave away unless someone shared with me first. I had a lot of regular customers and I dealt mainly at school so my customers could always find me.

I've never been busted for using or dealing drugs by anyone. I don't think anyone ever realized I was doing it except my customers and if they said anything to anyone, they were taken care of. I did become violent when dealing if someone tried to rip me off.

I know now I started using drugs because of my mom and stepdad's divorce. I couldn't cope with that or anything else and a friend told me that drugs would make me forget.

I quit using when I was 15 years old. I had been using cocaine, marijuana, speed (crystal meth) and acid. I forced myself to stop because I realized that if I didn't, I would not have a place to live.

Male Drug User

This is the story of a young man who was drug free and who didn't drink. But he did want money to pay for the things he thought he had to have. He never really needed the money; he just wanted it. He saw his friends with extra money. They didn't work so he found out how they were getting it. They were selling drugs so he decided selling weed wasn't going to hurt anyone. He also felt that because his uncle was selling weed and cocaine that he felt he would be in good hands. He asked his uncle to start him off. At first, his uncle didn't want to get him started. He was worried about starting his sister's son. Finally, the uncle decided that he would because if he didn't someone else would. This young man started selling in the 8th grade and sold for two years. He worried about his mother finding out and getting caught and being sent to Juvenile Hall so he gave up selling. All the time he was selling, he never used drugs.

He stopped selling for one and a half years and got a job. After a while, he needed money because his job didn't pay enough. This time, he told his uncle he wanted to sell cocaine instead of marijuana so he could make more money faster. He always bought his drugs from his uncle who tested them to make sure that the drugs were okay. He's glad that he doesn't use the drugs himself since that leaves him more money to spend.

After he started selling cocaine, the police raided his home while his family was there. He drove by while the raid was going on so he just kept driving. One of the officers saw him and stopped him. He was given a test and charged with being under the influence. He spent time in jail. He still insists that he doesn't use drugs and wasn't under the influence.

His life is one of constant worry - what if his family finds out, what if one of his contacts tells, will his son want to be like him, will he lose his job if they find out he sells, etc. His feeling about drug users is that they are dumb and stupid and are wasting their lives.

Student Response To Male Dealer

This male dealer was attracted to dealing drugs by his uncle and the nice money. Teenagers look for money and if there is an easy way to get it then that is what they are going to do. He started off early as most of them do. The oddity is his uncle didn't want him to sell. Most dealers don't want their family to do drugs. He stopped because he was scared his mother would find out. So he found a job, but it couldn't sustain his lifestyle, so he returned to drugs but this time cocaine. Once again a scare stopped him. The police raided his home, and arrested him for driving drunk outside his home. Most drug users need a scare but the users need to be scared early in order to be stopped.

Social Actions Office Visit by Kaylynn Peters

On July 20, 1987, this student writer visited the Social Actions office at March Air Force Base. This office is responsible for carrying out the Air Force policy on drug testing. The office also offers information about drug counseling and rehabilitation centers off base to military personnel. Captain Cromartie and Sergeant Cantu were very kind and helpful about providing information on the drug testing process and the consequences of positive testing. The type of testing used is urinalysis. The testing procedure that is used has proven to be technically valid. In fact, the procedure is so sophisticated that there is no chance of the wrong results coming back.

There are three steps in the testing procedure. The first step is obtaining a urine sample. A monitor must be present when the urine is provided and must sign the label placed on the urine container stating that he/she was present. The second step involves a lab technician verifying twice that the information is correct. Once verified, the person who provided the sample signatures that the information is correct. The third step is when the sample is sent to Brooks Air Force Base in Texas. The entire process from providing the urine to March Air Force Base receiving the results takes about three to four weeks time. Less than 100% of the samples tested each year prove to be positive.

Each sample is tested twice to ensure that the results are accurate. The test detects five different drugs. They are cocaine, marijuana, amphetamines, barbiturates, and opiates. Currently, the most popular drug used at March is cocaine. “Crack”, the cousin of cocaine, and marijuana are the other popular drugs.

The Social Actions office is given a quota of 100 per month for testing, although sometimes the quota is higher or lower. Everyone on base is tested at one time or another. The people tested most often are aircraft maintenance workers and base security personnel. Senior and Junior officers are also tested.

The squadron commanders are responsible for choosing the people for testing. Since it is random sampling, the methods used are social security numbers, birth dates, names pulled from a hat, and other random methods approved by the legal office.

Captain Cromartie stated that the testing is most popular during the summer months because people tend to be more active in warmer weather. He also stated that the results of the testing can become part of the permanent personnel records of the person. Usually a positive test result is the only evidence used for a drug related discharge, but sometimes just possession will result in someone being discharged. Once a person is found guilty of drug use he/she is discharged. The type of discharge varies, depending upon the type and amount used and also upon the court-martial decision.

Captain Cromartie and Sergeant Cantu stated that 3-4 people a year identify themselves as drug users. Those who do self-identify usually receive a better discharge.

At the end of my visit, I knew that the Air Force policy on drug testing was firm and fair.

Peer Pressure And Drug Use
by Hardy Brown

Young people are often influenced by friends the same age or older. At certain times in a child’s life, the desire to be more like their friends becomes more important than their family. Friends can make their life pleasant and unbearable. Children are judged by their friends harder than adults in the older society. Sometimes, children feel that they have to follow their friends to be in style. Peer pressure centers on topics that parents don’t always like to discuss, including drugs.

Most children try different drugs because their friends do. The percentage of boys and girls who suffer peer pressure problems is almost the same.

The resolution urges students, their parents, district personnel, and friends to take a position against drug and alcohol abuse by wearing a red ribbon during this week. The abuse of alcohol and the use of illicit drugs are matters of grave concern in the community and of particular concern to those interested in the developing lives of children and young people. The Board joins San Bernardino County And the City Of San Bernardino in this symbolic observance to signal a united front against the evils of drug and alcohol abuse.
