Petition Drive on Campus

By Brad Johnson

A petition drive to remove 85 mentally disordered sex offenders (MDSOs) from Patton State Hospital in Highland will be on campus Thursday, March 12, in front of the library.

Three thousand signatures are needed by the petitioners, who represent residents who live in the general vicinity of the hospital. Local residents have complained of continued escapes by patients, many of whom were convicted of repeated sex offenses.

Of particular concern are two schools in the immediate area, Serrano Jr. High and Bonnie Oehl Elementary, whose students often pass the hospital on their way to school. Parents have reported incidents of exhibitionism among patients who expose themselves to the children from inside the compound, and some claim that the patients often attempt to lure the children in through holes under the fences.

In the past seven years the hospital has changed from one of institutionalized retarded and aged citizens to one of mentally disabled criminals.

The emphasis on rehabilitation for the retarded has diminished, she claims, and

Health Fair Set for Spring Registration

A free health fair, sponsored by the CSCSB Health Science Department, the School of Natural Sciences, and the Associated Students will be available for students, faculty, and staff during Spring Quarter registration March 22-26.

The fair, emphasizing preventive care and health promotion, will attempt to provide an overall view of campus health status through screening procedures and health education. Screenings will include the testing and monitoring of blood pressure, height, weight, vision, and hearing.

Demonstrations of acupuncture, jazzercise, and Trager, a relaxation technique, as well as exhibits from Alcoholics Anonymous, the Heart Association, and Overeaters Anonymous will be among those on display throughout the day. Skin fold tests, reaction assessment tests, stress alleviation, a treadmill test, and the Harvard Step-Test will be provided by the Physical Education Department. Negotiations for a Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) display and demonstrations of life saving techniques by the San Bernardino Sheriff's Department are currently under way. A blood chemistry screening exam, which measures chemical levels in the blood stream, will be offered for a $6 fee. All other exhibits, a sample of which was provided above, are free of charge.

Cal State Professor Meets with India’s Prime Minister

The possibility of a summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet Premier Brezhnev, and the Russian occupation of Afghanistan were among the topics discussed by India’s Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Cal State Political Science professor Dr. Brij Khare in a recent meeting.

Dr. Khare, a native of India, says his association with Gandhi began some years ago and spans the time she spent as a private citizen after being removed from office in a referendum and before her re-election as prime minister.

The arrangement for the visit were handled through a member of the Indian Parliament, but it was Gandhi herself who cabled Khare to confirm arrangements. Khare said Mrs. Gandhi recently met with Brezhnev and came away with the feeling the Russians would like to withdraw, but do not want to appear to be responding to outside pressure.

The election of Ronald Reagan as president holds hope for closer relations between India and the United States. Khare said Gandhi told him the prime minister viewed the Carter administration as unable to grasp the essence of India’s position among the countries of the world, which made relations between the two nations difficult. She believes President Reagan is better able to establish a mutually attractive relationship because he does understand India’s needs and internal as well as international policies.

Khare said, too, that he and Mrs. Gandhi talked about the situation of the American hostages in Iran and that Gandhi seemed to know, even at the time of her death, of the hostage crisis. Gandhi told him, the “prime minister viewed the Carter administration as unable to grasp the essence of India’s position among the countries of the world, which made relations between the two nations difficult. She believes President Reagan is better able to establish a mutually attractive relationship because he does understand India’s needs and internal as well as international policies.”

Khare said Mrs. Gandhi recently met with Brezhnev and came away with the feeling the Russians would like to withdraw, but do not want to appear to be responding to outside pressure.

Letters to the Editor

Why does the Associated Students waste their money hiring quality entertainment for the Pub to perform on a Wednesday night when the largest crowd is present on Thursday night? Are they afraid the quality entertainment might detract from the Thursday night discos? Since when has the dance detracted the Pub clientele? When the Associated Student spend money for quality entertainment in the Pub, why isn’t there adequate promotion and planning?

A few weeks ago the PawPrint ran an article about the Pub’s anniversary which included a review of Paula Burris — the singer-guitarist appearing that night, playing both familiar tunes and original songs to a very delighted crowd. The article indicated that some lucky students would be able to see and hear. Wednesday January 25th, what they had missed the night of the anniversary, night of the anniversary. After the article I failed to see my announcement informing us of our golden opportunity. Wednesday night I couldn’t find my student union desk to see if in fact Paula was scheduled to play. The clerk informed me that Paula was scheduled to play that night, but she was not scheduled to play for the next three weeks. The following week the PawPrint advertised that Paula was to play Wednesday night March 1.

Student Production

"God"

a Success

By Terry Seal

"God," a play written by Woody Allen, was presented in the Student Union Multi-Purpose Room last Monday and Tuesday and proved to be a very unique and enjoyable experience. The first in an expected series of joint productions by the Serrano Village Council and Associated Students, "God" was produced and directed, crafted and staged entirely by Serrano Village residents. They chose an excellent play to start with - "God," produced by Michael Vargas. The performances were all quite good. Turoci, Hoge and Vance were all very convincing and strong in their parts. Clci Murphy appeared as Blanche Dubois, John Flathers played dual roles as Bob Fate and an effiminate king, and Mike Vargas as a prompter who suddenly finds himself on stage according to whim. The supporting roles were all played well and amusingly.

Directed by Dell Yount, "God" was a sparkling, witty production that was enthusiastically and effectively performed.

Set in Athens in approximately 500 B.C., the play features a hero cast in the typical Allen mold. Played by Todd Turoci, his name is Diabetes, and he is an out of work, starving actor desperate in need of a lot of things. He has been cast in a play by his friend Hepatitis, played effectively by John R. Hoge. The play has been entered in the Athenian Drama festival, is due to be staged in five minutes, but they have yet to come up with an ending. So much for the plot - the rest is a series of riveting stage effects. Allen is a writer who is following in the footsteps of such great absurdist playwrights as Luigi Pirandello, Thornton Wilder, and Harold Pinter. He has learned their craft, their techniques, and has expounded upon them. At its best the theatre of the absurd can be engrossing and immensely stimulating; when a play is working well the effect should be one of loosely controlled chaos. One should definitely receive the impression that the play is very gradually and quite irretrievably losing any sense of control or direction.

"God" is such a play. It's action is circular, opening and closing with the scene in which Diabetes and Hepatitis try to find an ending for their play. The rest is simply confusion, as the characters seem to leave and enter the stage according to whim. The supporting roles were all played well and amusingly. Tammy Vance appeared as Doris Levine, a imposing Palace Guard, Robyn Sherwood said. "These scenes show religion and daily life of the inhabitants of Zo." From Los Angeles, will show contemporary wood sculpture, oil paintings, and pastel drawings.

Another theme looks at God's beauty and man's concept of beauty.

"To give a different look at religion, I dreamed up the planet 'Zo'," Sherwood said. "These scenes show religion and daily life of the inhabitants of Zo."

Frame, from Los Angeles, will show contemporary wood sculpture, oil paintings, and pastel drawings.

The performances were all quite good. Turoci, Hoge and Vance were all very convincing and strong in their parts. Notable supporting players were Dave Serraga as Trichinos, and Mike Vargas as a prompter who suddenly finds himself onstage. Ci Ci Murphy appeared as Blanche Dubois, John Flathers played dual roles as Bob Fate and an effiminate king, Julia Agnew was Wendy Fate. B.J. the Deejay played an imposing Palace Guard, Robyn Perry played a stabbing New York woman, and Jim Russell, Robbie Hardesey, and Paul Lemire all played audience members who stood up and shouted a lot. Dell Yount played Lorenzo Miller, John Higley played Woody Allen's voice, and Kathy Childs, Patricia Cornacchio, Sharon Rubin, and Roberta J. Smolich all played Greek chorus girls who refused to get involved.

Senior Art Show

Marsha Ubovich, Tim Sherwood and John Frame, all students here, will be featured in a senior art exhibit in the Art Gallery March 9-27. A reception to honor the artist was held Monday.

Ms. Ubovich, from San Bernardino, will exhibit abstract acrylic paintings. Her paintings are abstract formal structures which display a logical progress of color relationships. Her work is influenced by weaving and tapestry.

Sherwood, also from San Bernardino, will display oil paintings. His works deal with three religious themes, which examine the Christian religion, an alien planet and man's concept of beauty. There are abstract, realistic and surrealistic scenes of Christ and Moses. Another theme looks at God's beauty and man's concept of beauty.

"To give a different look at religion, I dreamed up the planet 'Zo'," Sherwood said. "These scenes show religion and daily life of the inhabitants of Zo."

Frame, from Los Angeles, will show contemporary wood sculpture, oil paintings, and pastel drawings.

The show will be open during the regular gallery hours, 9 a.m. to noon and 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.
QUESTION: Are you seeking alternative sources of funding, such as endowments?

That is the state's job, of course, unless we turn to non-state funding. I've been predicting for some years now that in a few generations it will be difficult to tell public and private institutions of higher education apart by their source of funding. Public institutions like us are going to have to depend more and more on private funds. Our non-state funding is now into the multi-millions annually and it takes many, many forms. We now have an admitted willingness to approach that problem. When I became Chancellor, I had a whole group of college presidents who were scared to death of raising a dollar outside of the state budget because their immediate fear was that the state will reduce its support. Of course, there is that possibility. Every president now, of all our 19 campuses, has been recommended by me and been brought in by me and recommended by the Board of Trustees for appointment. I have made it clear to each that non-state funding was going to be a larger part of his or her responsibility. We now have a group of presidents who are confronting that aspect of operation very effectively and we're accepting the fact that we have to do so. So we are doing it. That's one of the things that Dumke states that it is the state's job to seek alternate funds, indeed to fund the whole system. Presently your school is funded totally by the state. Mainly, private schools are funded by alumni and endowments and our alumni as well? They should and probably do have pride in the approach that problem. When I became Chancellor, we had a whole funding. I've been predicting for some years now that in a few years higher education apart by their source of funding. Public institutions...
VET OFFICE TO CLOSE

Currently, the Veterans Affairs Office at California State College at San Bernardino is funded under the Veterans Cost of Education Program (VCIP) and unless the federal funds that support this program are released, the Veterans Affairs Office will close on June 30, 1981. More than 700 veterans and their dependents will be affected by the closing. One of the last acts of the Carter Administration was to ask Congress to rescind the more than $2 million of dollars which had been allocated for the VCIP program for fiscal year 1981, so VCIP funds provide services on college campuses for more than 300,000 veterans each year.

Services on campus after June 30, 1981 will be limited to the completion of enrollment certifications which verify the number of days a veteran is pursuing toward his or her degree. All other counseling and academic support services will be terminated.

Veterans are encouraged to contact the following members of Congress to join in urging that VCIP funding not be eliminated.

Health Fair

The fair, which will be open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., is part of the senior field study project of Cal State students Patricia Sullivan, Jan Moran, Patty Long, and Cindy Rosen. Their project will gather data for ongoing research in the Health Science Department's campus health status survey.

The fair, considered the model Health Fair in the Southern California Health Care Program, will be used to provide training and site coordinators in the Southern California area, according to Dr. Lawrence Napper, co-organizer of the project along with Drs. David Stall and Cindy Paxton. Initiated with funds from sponsors KABC, the American Red Cross, the Southern California Hospital Association, and Chevron Oil, the project was brought to this campus through funds provided by the Associated Students.

The fair committee wishes to emphasize the benefits of active participation in these various demonstrations by all students. Academic credits may be earned by those volunteering their services at the fair. For more details contact the Health Science Dept. at 867-7548.

Air Conditioning to be Restored by Mid-May

Air conditioning will be restored to the campus about mid-May under terms of a contract for repair of the damaged cooling tower and reconstruction of the destroyed tower.

Bids were opened Feb. 25 with the contract going to F.M. Thomas Air Conditioning, which submitted the low bid of $120,300 for both towers. The bid was substantially lower than the architects estimate of $140,000. Work is expected to start in two to eight weeks with repair of the first tower to be completed about mid-May. The tower will provide cooling while the second unit is reconstructed.

PRIMAL SCREAM SESSIONS, which started this year at Cornell U., hit the Midwest recently when Washington U. St. Louis students and even faculty members gathered in the common square for a half-hour of group screaming. The session was intended to release frustrations caused by final exams.
