Waterman Burns

by Terry Seal
and Brad Johnson

Arson.
That was the verdict early Tuesday morning when a blaze ripped through Waterman dorm, destroying furniture in the lobby, blackening walls, and sending students out of 2nd story windows causing numerous minor injuries. Unlike a number of smaller fires in the past, this one was for real. "I went downstairs and saw flames reflected in the windows," said Waterman resident Terry Boykins. "The livingroom went up." There were five reported injuries as a result of the fire, four of them sustained during jumps from second story heights. Three were reported as minor ankle sprains, and one person, Adil Elkoyah, a foreign exchange student, reportedly broke his heel after jumping off the kitchen balcony. A fifth suffered from hyperventilation.

Due to the construction of the dormitories, the only escape routes possible were through the livingroom. People who had rooms on the second story could find no other escape than by jumping from their windows. "Everyone in our suite jumped," said Annice Battley, a 2nd story resident. "Everybody but one. There was no way to get out but the windows. We knew that after awhile. There was nothing but the windows."

One of the frightening aspects of the fire was that there were no adequate escape routes and no adequate precautions. Some residents experienced difficulties removing screens in order to escape through the windows. The dormitories do not have sprinkler systems, smoke alarms, or fire escapes. "People could have got hurt a lot worse than they did" commented dorm resident Denise Gojenola.

The potential for further injury was lessened by the fact that Waterman did not house handicapped students. One of the current residents was on crutches, due to an injury she sustained earlier from a P.E. class, and had to be physically removed. "If her roommate had not been there," said Gojenola, "she wouldn't have made it out."

This was the third fire in Waterman this year, all of which have been declared to be started intentionally. There was a fire last February 25th, at 4 a.m., and there had been another reported last week. Both fires were ignited in livingroom chairs, and both were presently under investigation by the campus police and arson investigators from the San Bernardino fire department.

Arthur Butler, a campus police official, commented, "initial investigation leads us to believe that it was purposely set. There have been similarities in all fires so far. Any reasonable person could be led to believe that there is probably a connection."

One bizarre aspect of the case involves reported threats that have been made on the life of one of the dorm residents. These threats have reportedly been made prior to the time that each of the fires were ignited. So far, no definite connection has been made in this case, but authorities are reportedly looking into the matter.

Damage was limited mainly to the livingroom and adjacent hallway. The dorm will be closed during the remainder of the year, with residents being dispersed to other dorms on campus. Said Dr. Wayne Henderson, Housing Director, "As far as I know there was some furniture burned, everything's all black inside."

There was some controversy over the late arrival of the Fire Department, who arrived at least ten minutes after the alarm was pulled. "The Fire Department got here in about 12 minutes," said Waterman resident Terry Boykins. "It seemed a lot longer. Everybody was out by the time they got here. Everybody in the dorms gets an 'A'. Everybody else gets an 'F'."

There had also been some false alarms, as well as the fires. Said Barrey, "You don't know whether

by Brad Johnson

"Ecstasy" is how Pauline Barbour, a 26 year old accounting major, described her emotions after soundly defeating current A.S. Vice President James D. Lyne in a low-key bid for the A.S. Presidency during last week's elections.

Barbour, capitalizing on what she called a "professional, factual, non-slanderous" campaign, received 380 votes compared to Lyne's 255. Twenty votes were cast for other undeclared contenders.

Unlike the current trend on many other campuses, in which officials are elected in a ratio directly proportionate to the absurdity of their campaign promises, Lyne and Barbour consistently maintained their feelings of respect for the office. "I intend to give a sense of professionalism to the A.S." Barbour stated, emphasizing her personal dedication to the needs of the students.

Although her term in office does not officially begin until June 1, Barbour already has plans to organize meetings and to begin preparing reports for the A.S. Finance Committee, hoping to set in motion the projects and activities over which she will preside throughout the next academic year. She is currently involved in an attempt to supplement the number of manual typewriters in the library typing rooms with newer electric models.

A.S. President Tim Hamre, who has been one of CSCSB's staunchest anti-tuition proponents, says he is "looking forward to working with President-elect Barbour to see that the college remains tuition-free." To that end he is arranging for Barbour to accompany him to the next meeting of the California State Students Association, the main anti-tuition lobbying group, and to acquaint her with CSSA innerworkings. Hamre has vowed to "insure the continued growth and development of the Associated Students" until he graduates this June.

Barbour, who captured 58% of the 655 votes cast, assumes office in June along with Vice President-elect David Menezes, whom she is "thrilled to work with. I'm completely comfortable in his ability." The third part of the A.S. hierarchy, the treasurer, will be decided in a run-off election today and tomorrow between Gregg Bynum and Marianna Westerly. Barbour has thrown her support behind Bynum, an accounting major.

Following his defeat, Lyne pledged to support Barbour and to return to "being a student and making money flying airplanes."

Menezes New V.P.,

Run-off for Treasurer

To almost no one's surprise, David Menezes, the uncontested candidate for A.S. Vice President, swept to an easy victory during the annual student elections held last week, gathering 507 votes.

A total of 148 votes were cast for assorted candidates not listed on the ballot, and it is speculated that many students took the opportunity to vote for themselves in a race that would not harm the actual candidate's chance for election. Mickey Mouse and Richard Nixon were conspicuous in their absence among the miscellaneous votes.

In a much closer race, only 34 write-in votes were cast in the bid for the most contested office of the year, that of the A.S. Treasurer. Gregg Bynum, president of the Black Student Union and Business Manager of the PawPrint led the field with 245 votes. Close behind was Marianna Westerly, co-chair of the Anti-Tuition coalition, with 232. A third contestant, Sondy Case, received 144 votes. Bynum will face Westerly in a run-off to be held today and tomorrow.

No upsets or surprises emerged in the race for the Board of Directors seats, in which all of the candidates ran virtually unchallenged. The only bid which faces opposition was the seat for the School of Social Sciences, won by candidate Elise Traynum, who was challenged in a vigorous write-in campaign by Herbert Byrd. Traynum received 96 votes, to Byrd's 51.

Winners of other seats include: Administration, Shari Mills; Natural Sciences, Kathryn Coolbaugh; Humanities, Robyn Perry; Education, Gene Vann Jr.; and Special, Dual Majors, Mary Ann Millard.

Editorials

Dear Editor

Subject: Reply to your Editorial Reply of April 22, 1981

Regarding your incredible insight of the journalistic point of view, you stated, "Newspapers are not obligated to give both sides of the story. To do so would eliminate editorials, personal perspectives, even political analyses from those with opposing viewpoints."

Now, I submit that printing both points of view is, or should be, an obligation of journalism. Further, how could this eliminate editorials? In contrast, it would increase them. This is so logical that I am surprised at your statement.

To continue, you claim that only one side of the story has been presented: that of the Reagan administration. Maybe we don't read the same newspapers. The L.A. Times is consistently slanted on the liberal side, and their editorials are not limited to the editorial page. Just pick up any editorial page. Just pick up any issue and read the front page. The great majority of the "news" items is written by "Times Staff Writer," who present or "interpret" the news in a biased (liberal) manner.

You mention the terrorist activities of the government junta, but omitted any mention of terrorist activities by the communist revolutionaries. You said, further on, "at this point in time." Redundant.

Ed Asner had to scream at a rally attended by those who agreed with him! Screaming at a sympathetic audience is not the action of a rational person, but that of a demagogue.

As for the revolutionaries in El Salvador, they may, or may not be communists. But, as the story goes, "If it walks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it must be a duck."

In conclusion, I agree that those who would be exposed to another "armed conflict" have a legitimate right to both sides. Your obligation is to see that they have this right. So far, you haven't.

Editorial Reply

Mr. Lane,

Thank you for your insightful point of view. We here at the PawPrint were pleased to receive your reply. We would have been more pleased had we been able to understand it. You seem to contradict yourself at every turn.

Just to clarify a point for those readers who might not know what an editorial is, it is "a newspaper or magazine article that gives the opinions of its editors or publishers." An opinion is necessarily biased. An editorial means opinions. That means one point of view. Just one.

That's why we leave space for letters to the editor— it lets people with other points of view express how they feel. People such as yourself, people such as Paul Woodruff (who wrote the original letter), in short, anybody with an opinion, whether the editors agree with it or not. That's your right. It's a good one.

However, there is nothing short of reader abandonment which would force a newspaper to give every side of the story 100% of the time. Newspaper reporters are entitled to their own viewpoints, and they have the right to present that viewpoint. If it is opinionated, then a by-line is attached to the article to signify that the author's opinions may be involved. You yourself point out that the L.A. Times does this rather often, on the front page yet. So too does the New York Times, the Washington Post, and any other newspaper in existence. There is nothing immoral, unethical, or illegal about this: acceptable journalism, whether or not you personally favor the practice.

And I may hasten to point out assuming that you were not present at the rally at which Asner spoke, that Mr. Asner did not scream at the audience he screamed to them. The audience screamed back. They loved it.

Perhaps that was a point you misunderstood; perhaps it was a point I failed to make clear. In any case, the people supported his position. Many of those who attended the seminar regarding El Salvador held in the SUMMIT Wednesday left the room supporting his position. When they saw the atrocities being committed by the junta that the U.S. officially supports, many could not help but wonder where the real quacks are coming from.

Cal State Extension Course Offerings

Is the process of healthy growth a never-ending series of free choice situations?

A one-day course, "Sexual Well-Being: Human Sexuality As A Transpersonal Experience," offered through extension at Cal State, San Bernardino May 9, will explore this and many related questions.

Areas to be discussed include adolescent sexual activity in terms of a new awareness and sex education, transpersonal sexuality, legal aspects of human sexuality and sex roles and preference.

"Sexual Well-Being" is designed for health and human service professionals, paraprofessionals, educators and concerned individuals. The course fulfills the guidelines for training in human sexuality as mandated by AB 4178 for licensing requirements for psychologists, social workers and marriage and family counselors.

Gary L. Yates, family health education coordinator in the Office of Health Education at the San Bernardino County Department of Public Health, is the instructor.

The session meets from 9 a.m. until 7:30 p.m., on the fifth floor of the Library Building. The cost is $44.50 for one unit of credit. Non-credit is $37.

Registration is required by May 2, and can be made by calling the Office of Continuing Education at 887-7527. After that date, those interested may call that office to see if there is space available.

"Sexual Well-Being is designed for health and human service professionals, paraprofessionals, educators and concerned individuals. Many women are not prepared financially when they suddenly become the survivor of a marriage partnership.

"Estate Planning for Women," a one-day extension course designed to explore that situation, will be offered May 16 at Cal State, San Bernardino.

The cost is $28 for five-tenths unit of credit. Non-credit is $21.50. The class will meet from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., Saturday, May 16, on the fifth floor of the Library.

Renaissance Festival

Gian Carlo Menotti's "The Unicorn, The Gorgon and The Manticore" will be presented at the Renaissance Festival Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2, in the college Commons.

The musical dinner theatre is presented by the Chamber Singers under the direction of Dr. Loren Filbeck. Although Menotti is a current 20th century composer, his fable is done in the style of the Renaissance madrigal.

Pub Patio

Plans to begin construction of "The Beer Garden," a patio planned for the south-west end of the Student Union, were approved two weeks ago by President Pfau. Funding for the patio was approved last year by the A.S. Board of Directors.

The patio plan provides for a four-foot-high fence surrounding several of the concrete pillars on the south-west corner of the union. An area approximately 15 x 40 feet will be enclosed, extending the present boundaries of the Pub Game Room; access will be through what is now the Game Room emergency exit, after minor modifications to the door. The fence will be "redwood-look," designed to blend with the building's architecture and landscaping. The patio will be a legal alcoholic consumption area, pending final approval by the Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC).

The Board of Directors has allocated $1,000 to the patio's construction, based on bids sought last spring. A.S. officers had hoped for the project's completion last spring, according to James Lyne, A.S. Vice President; but "There were quite a few obstacles, most of them simply administrative, to overcome." Lyne credited Dr. Joe Thomas for supplying the project's technical know-how, and for helping sell the plan to the Administration.

Dr. Thomas has approved final construction plans, and Union Director Richard Bennecke has been asked to secure bids as soon as possible.

President Pfau indicated he is awaiting drawings of the proposed patio's finished design in order to give his final approval so that construction may proceed.

Actual construction is expected to take only a few days.

Writing Labs Offered

During Spring Quarter, SAIL, in conjunction with the English Department, and with the participation of the Learning Center, will be offering some additional help for students who have basic writing problems. Help will be in the form of Writing Labs. There will be labs taught each week. They will cover the same material at different hours to fit student schedules.

If you have general writing problems, contact the SAIL (EXT. 7673) or Milton Clark in the English Department (L.C. 535).

German Club Info

A new German Club has recently been formed at CSCSB. The club's objective is to develop increased student interest in the German language and culture, and to provide an opportunity for students to use German in meaningful communications during an extended period of time.

Students are invited to participate in a special Club activity to be held May 14 at 6:30 p.m. in the Lower Commons. The film, "Germany - Key to Europe" will be shown. This film, produced and narrated by Kenneth Richter, distinguished American film director, will run for 80 minutes; it is in color and features English dialogue.

Following the film, refreshments will be served, and German songs, games and folk dances will be offered. Students wanting more information can contact Miranda Munson, Department of Foreign Languages, 887-7445 (875-9974, ext. 101).

Open House

The Cal State Open House was held on Sunday, April 26th, becoming an early morning affair due to rain and the resulting low attendance. Despite the weather, the festival proved to be the success of the day. Hits of the festival included the Raku Art Fair and the Raku Art Fair, both of which were held in the square by the administration buildings and were soon crowded with people.

Sponsors of the event estimate that around two to three thousand people attended on Sunday, most of them from the faculty, staff and the community. Student participation appeared to be fairly low. Most of the students on campus Sunday were either working or taking part in a demonstration or event.

The racquetball courts and the swimming pool were closed part of the day because of the weather and low attendance. They were opened later that afternoon. Folk dancing demonstrations were held in the ball area between the Creative Arts building and the Student Union, and seemed to draw a crowd. Live art demonstrations, held all day in the Visual Arts department, were well attended. There were campus tours, high school bands, a chili-pie bakeoff, and a barbecue from 4 until 6 in the evening to cap the day.

SAIL Seminar

The Cal State SAIL program is offering a seminar designed to "Improve Your Textbook Reading" for all students who wish to enhance their reading abilities. The one-hour seminar begins at 2:00 p.m. and will be held on three separate occasions in order to accommodate students' schedules. The first is offered today, Wednesday April 29, in LC 53. Tomorrow's seminar will be held in LC 204. The final course is scheduled for Tuesday, May 5 in LC 204. Contact Dr. Ina Katz, ext. 7723, or the SAIL office in LC 37-C for more information.

Cinco de Mayo At Cal State

The M.E.Ch.A. club has extended an open invitation to all students to attend their Cinco de Mayo festivities on Tuesday May 5th, 1981, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the Lower Commons patio area. Entertainment will include a ballet, folklorico and Music by special guests, El Mariache Corcuia. There will be food booths featuring tamales and requesos. Join them for lunch and help celebrate Cinco de Mayo.

Coyote 500

by Terry Seal

The Coyote 500, a Cal State campus car rallye that is open to the faculty, students and staff, is ready to roll again this year on Thursday, May 7th at 6:00 p.m.

Joe Long, director of Cal State intramurals, makes the point that the Coyote 500 is open to everybody. "Everybody can win. They just have to keep up a constant speed."

The goal of the Coyote 500 is to travel an assigned route at a constant assigned speed. The car that comes closest to keeping that speed will be declared the winner. Last year the speed was 35 miles an hour, and the winners were Kathy Luster and Debby Morales. Every car is given directions for the route, with the directions ranging from "turn right at the 3rd opportunity" to "turn left at the yellow sign." This is the 3rd year for the Coyote 500. Entrants for the race will be admitted right up until the 6:00 deadline before the race begins.

College Information Day, Cinco de Mayo Events Planned

"Noches de Atlan," a Latino musical, is being presented as part of the College Information Day for community college students at Cal State, San Bernardino April 29.

This Mexican-American heritage pageant, under the direction of Eloisa Segovia, will be staged by the San Bernardino Valley College MEChA. The event precedes the 1981 Cinco de Mayo festivities which will be held May 5.

This is the first year Cal State has hosted the information day, designed to acquaint community college students with the educational opportunities available at four-year colleges and universities. The day is being sponsored by the Inland Empire Chapter of Razo Administrators and Counselors in Higher Education (RACHE).

Activities begin at 9 a.m. with refreshments in the Commons, followed by presentations by representatives of various four-year colleges.

A welcoming address will be given by Dr. John M. Pfau, Cal State president, in the Student Union Multipurpose Room at 10 a.m.

Following luncheon, the dramatization, "Noches de Atlan," will be presented.

The musical depicts the rich and colorful history of the southwest through the recollections passed on by the grandparents to their grandchildren. The play centers around such historical figures as Montezuma and Father Miguel Hidalgo, who are among those that theatrically come to life as the play evolves via monologues, speakers, dancers and musicians.

Students are expected from seven area community colleges: Riverside City College, Crofton Hills College, College of the Desert, Mt. San Jacinto College, San Bernardino Valley College, Chaffey Community College and Victor Valley Community College.

Keep Climbin' by Rick Ergang

I'm beginning to think the Uni Phi Club is the most active organization on campus! The altruistic and philanthropic nature of the organization's activities have certainly been impressive. Well, Uni Phi has done it again! This week Uni Phi announced four awards they will be presenting to deserving students, faculty and staff. This will be an annual event to be presented at the end of each academic year. The awards will be given in recognition of individuals who possess unique qualities and have made major contributions on behalf of the CSCSB students with disabilities. This will be Uni Phi's way of expressing their gratitude to these special people. Another thing I find exciting about these awards is that they are named after four very special people who are presently on the campus. The awards are:

The Anita Hallberg Award—This award will go to a student with a disability who because of and in spite of his/her physical inconvenience has been able to successfully achieve educational goals; who has integrated into and contributed socially to the campus community; and who has done so with determination and inspirational enthusiasm.

The Barbara Sovereign Award—CSCSB student with a disability whose creativity and leadership has produced unifying interaction and awareness between students with a disability and the campus community; and whose educational achievements and personality have reflected and exemplified a positive image of the disabled person.

The Frank Lootens Award—This award will go to CSCSB staff, student, or faculty member who has done outstanding and consistent work behind the scenes and who has provided technical and/or emotional supportive assistance to the disabled students and whose voluntary efforts have reduced the educational, physical, and interpersonal barriers, thereby encouraging mainstreaming.

The Dr. Fred Kellers Award—This award is designed for a CSCSB faculty member who has been respectfully sensitive to the needs of students with disabilities and who has appropriately adapted the modified teaching techniques and materials in the classroom situation to promote and equalize educational opportunity.

I find it exciting and awesome to think that I'm witnessing the birth of an event that years from now will be a campus tradition. I am delighted to think that long after these people have left the campus they will still be remembered and that I had the privilege of knowing them.

and broke the window. All of the girls were scared. We were all wondering who was going to jump first, so I jumped. All of the girls jumped after me, they all got hurt. Adil jumped off the balcony. He was the only one up there. The rest all jumped out of side windows."

Injured were Sheila Newell, Kelli Jones, Denise Bartley, and Kayah. Kayah was reportedly trapped on the balcony and had no other escape. "I saw him land," said Boykins, "he landed in an awkward position."

Reportedly, six residents escaped through the livingroom out of a ground floor; the rest had to jump. Those who escaped through the doors all suffered minor burns, ranging from singed hair and eyebrows to skin burns.

"I was running out of the door," said resident Sonja Sweeney, "I shouldn't have. I didn't think to run out of the window. My eyelashes got singed, my hair got burned. The flames got pretty bad. I could see the red glow from the windows."

"A lot of the people started screaming," said John Dassey, "I heard the alarms. I thought it was false. I opened the door and smoke started pouring in, so I went out the window."

"People were screaming," said Donna Hefflin. "At first I didn't wake up. I problems opening up the window screen. Everything looked all black. It was pretty scary."

"The wind was blowing pretty hard," said Kimm Nelson. "I heard the alarm. All I saw was flames. The heat was intense, very intense. I jumped out of my window. Everybody was out like between two or three minutes."

Said Butler, "There has to be a connection in that whoever is bothering us is bothering the same dorm. He has to have an interest in that dorm."

No suspect has been found so far, but police are actively investigating the situation. Waterman will be closed for the rest of the year, with some pretty heavy questions to be asked as to as to dorm fire regulations.

Honda Volleyball Series in High Gear

by Terry Seal

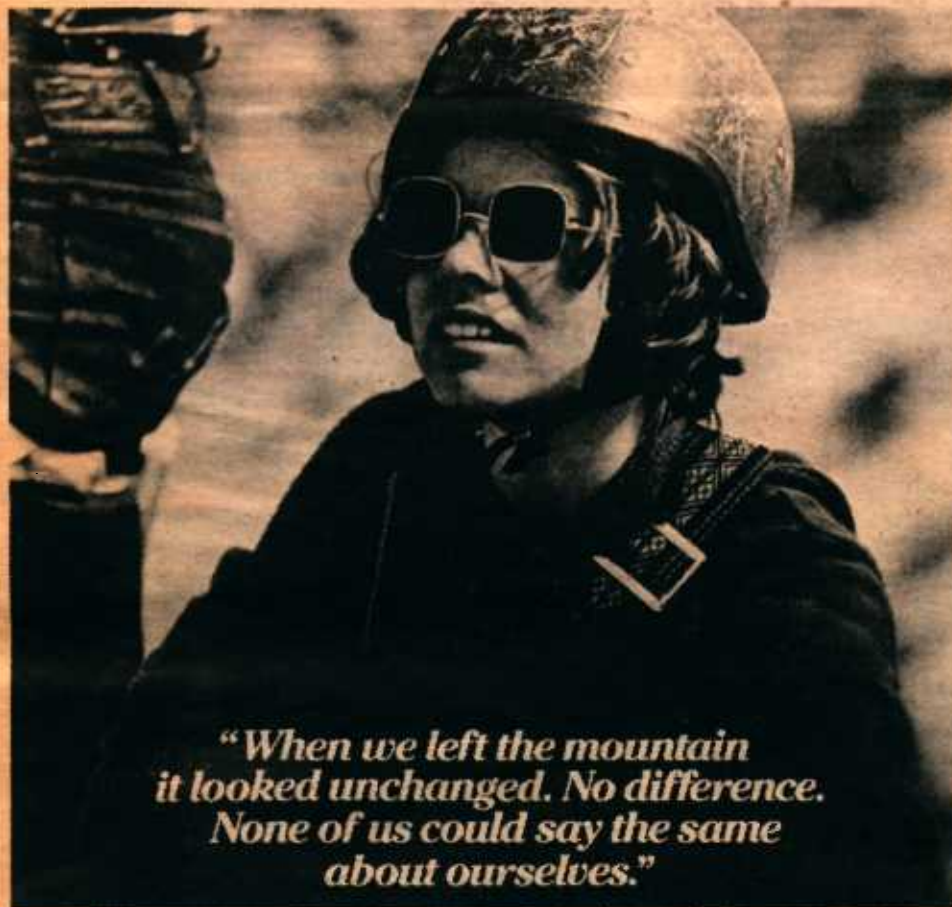

The Honda Volleyball Classic is now under way. Sponsored by The American Honda Motor company, under the supervision of the Cal State Intramurals Department, the Classic features four divisions of teams playing on a TBA basis.

The Honda Volleyball Classic is basically an experiment by the Honda people. Says Joe Long, Director of Intramurals, "This is the first year they (the American Honda Motor Company) are testing the project out in 20 schools in the southern California area. If it works, then they will probably go nation-wide with it next year."

Three of the divisions in the tournament are "Power" divisions, or according to Long, "real" volleyball. Participants are expected to have had some experience with volleyball, and are expected to play according to official volleyball regulations. These divisions include men's 4 on 4 women's 4 on 4 and co-ed 4 on 4. The fourth division is co-ed 6 on 6, playing a more informal brand of volleyball. The only real regulation in this game is the maximum three hits over the net. "It doesn't matter how clean you are. Some people call it jungleball," He adds. "What we want is people who played last winter, who maybe just weren't as good, who just had fun and want to play."

A schedule is hung up on the bulletin board in the main lobby of the P.E. building, listing games a week in advance, along with the phone numbers of team captains so that the games can be scheduled. Everybody who enters will receive a logo patch, and hopefully, a t-shirt, if there will be enough to go around. Quarter finalists at least will receive t-shirts, with more prizes to be given out on the day of the finals.

"When we left the mountain it looked unchanged. No difference. None of us could say the same about ourselves."

"And to all you folks out there who think you can't do it—I did!"

At Outward Bound* it's not just what you do, but how you feel about it afterwards that counts.

Our courses are tough—they're meant to be—but not beyond the reach of anyone who tries. They're fun. And safe as human ingenuity and experience can make them.

At Outward Bound we teach you outdoor skills. From rock-climbing to canoeing. But we're also something of a course in self-reliance (a course in self-reliance where you also have to learn to trust the group).

Outward Bound will not teach you to be a man. Nearly half the students, for one, are women. Few are really athletes. Lots are over thirty. What you need is a bit of pluck, and the yen to spend some time in some of this country's most spectacular settings.

Everyone brings something different to Outward Bound and takes something different away. But whatever your experience—we guarantee it won't be trivial.

Wilderness Photos

An exhibit of wilderness photographs titled "Turn of a Leaf" is now on display at the Cal State Library.

The 49 color pictures are meant to convey both the beauty and fragility of the environment, according to photographer Michael Philip Catlin. Catlin's theme is that, unless the environment is protected, the miracles of nature which are taken for granted might one day become a phenomenon known only through photographs.

Catlin says he chose a visual context to make his statement not only because the visual is often neglected in favor of the written or spoken word, but because pictures can often make an impression that words fail to make. His photography project was supported by grants from Utah State University and the Rockefeller Foundation.

The pictures to be displayed at Cal State represent only a fraction of the hundreds Catlin took. Many of the rest will be published in a book.

The exhibit, which runs through May 24, may be viewed seven days a week during the library's normal hours.
