Rev. James Cleveland, the "King of Gospel" has died after a long illness. Cleveland was ill for many months.

Cleveland has one of the most distinctive voices in the music industry. He is the founder of the Gospel Music Workshop of America and the Cornerstone Institutional Baptist Church Los Angeles.

Rev. Ed Jenkins, President of the Region Six Gospel Radio Association, said, "The voice of one of the greatest writers, arrangers, directors, and ministers, of God's Gospel music has been silenced yet his spirit will live on through the inspiration of the countless thousands when he's been touched.

Rev. Marvin Brown, Pastor of New Hope Baptist, said, "We as Christians tend to do what we want and the way we want. But we must remember, being Christian is not a way of living.

Rev. Dr. LeMar Foster, Pastor of the Carter Memorial (COGIC) Church, said, "We have lost one of the giants... one who paved the way for our young folks."

The Pastoral Aide of Zion Cornerstone Institutional Baptist Church, Dr. LeMar Foster, said, "We have lost one of the greatest writers, arrangers, directors, and ministers of God's Gospel music. His way gave more relevance to the old songs.

Cleveland won three Grammys and earned 15 gold records.

Cleveland celebrated 50 years in Gospel music last fall at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion.

Survivors include, doa ting family, LaShone Cleveland of Los Angeles, and three sisters, Marian McCoy, Rebecca Brooks and Vicki Cleveland, all of Los Angeles, and thousands of people who loved him dearly.

Funeral services will be held, Saturday, February 16, 1991 at Cornerstone Institutional Baptist Church.

"Oneness In Christ’91"

This year Riverside Christian Family Fellowship will be presenting four different affairs all relating to "Oneness In Christ’91" specifically dealing with family relationships.

Don't be misled by the title, because everyone needs to attend, not just fathers and daughters. This is the first banquet of its kind. During the evening we will enjoy an elegant dinner buffet, special music presentation by Varetta, and for the finale a unique ministry about the intimacies of the father and daughter relationship. If at all possible, we would appreciate the pleasure of your company at this exciting event!

The People: Our Constitution, begins with these words, and they are followed by: "Of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessing of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America. Since you watch in every day and night, you are watching young Americans who are fighting their lives on the battle field for America. Do you watch the news or special programs about the war? We hope you help us notice how the TV camera seems to "side" over or black out minority Americans. It is not surprising that the good people of this country are going to allow history to change the contributions of Black Americans in freedom again.

One group of Black Americans we don't give enough credit to is our Black women. They keep the home fires burning for the Blacks and Whites while they were fighting for freedom during the civil war and other conflicts. As a part of my Black history program, I will research some famous Black women. Dr. Ida Grey - 1881-1953. Dr. Grey was born in Clarkville, Tennessee in 1967. At an early age her parents moved to Cincinnati, Ohio where she eventually gained distinction as the nation's first Black female dentist. Beside Cincinnatian, 1935. In 1972 Besse Coleman received her pilot's license from the Federation Aeronautique Internationale in France, to become the first Black woman pilot. Born in Atlanta, Texas on Jan. 26, 1893, she was the 12th of 13 children. Although her mother could not read or write, she managed to obtain books from a traveling library wagon twice a year, and Besse could read to the family. Besse's quest to obtain flying instruction in the U.S. was fraught with human prejudice for two decades especially her race and her sex. This was not to be denied: she not only obtained her pilot's license but went on to Robert S. Abbott, editor and publisher of the Chicago Defender, for help. After extensive investigation, he informed her that the French were more liberal on their attitude toward women and people of color and encouraged her to study French and go to France.

San Bernardino Parade

by Hardy Brown

Riding in the back of the bus was great for Blacks in America, until mild mannered Rosa Parks refused to give up her front row seat to a white man December 1, 1955. It had been a long hard day at work for Rosa and she was not moved. She was arrested and placed in jail. The world would never look at her the same after that event. She had organized a boycott of the buses, initiated by the NAACP. The sit-in was a great success because of Mrs. Parks attendance as Grand Marshal.

Mayor Holcomb presents Rosa Parks with a key to the city while Jim King of the parade committee and KCBS fame interviews both.

San Bernardino became a part of Rosa Parks history when she participated in the 22nd Annual African American History Parade. They came by thousands to get a glimpse of the Mother of America's Civil Rights movement.

At a press conference, Mrs. Parks, under great command, stated that Black youth must be told the story of our struggle for freedom. We must tell them to register and vote. Today we have more Black elected officials than ever before because of our rights to vote. Our teachers, Preachers and parents must continue to encourage our youth to strive for excellence.

The 78 year old civil rights leader grew tired while Jim King of the parade committee and KCBS fame interviews both.

Twenty-five years ago, a study revealed that of more than 5,000 children's books published during a three-year period, less than seven percent included even one Black character in the text or illustrations. "I thought of early childhood and special education at the University of Cincinnati, says since many of those Black characters are portrayed stereotypically or laughably, the books certainly had a negative social impact on the "thirty-something" generation," Henderson said. "Literature is one of the important vehicles through which we socialize children and transmit our cultural values to them," Henderson, an educator who studies the content and social impact of children's books, said. "The effects of some of these images are damaging and devaluing for Black and White children alike." Noteworthy examples include author Sharon Bell Mathis and Mildred Pitts Walter and illustrator Jerry Pinkney. Henderson has interviewed Mathis, Walter and Pinkney extensively and studied their work. "While the percentage of books published in 1989 which included Black characters was still low," Henderson said, "there were 48 books written or illustrated by African Americans during that year as compared to 18 books in 1985."
