Letters to the Editor

Editor, The PawPrint

I enjoy reading The PawPrint and keeping abreast of what is happening. Some of your material is thought provoking and although thinking is frequently a painful process, it is good for us all.

I salute you especially for giving space to different spiritual persuasions as well. Through such things, we will hopefully develop a more comprehensive world view. That is essential to producing anything of significance with our lives. Since we all want our lives to count for something, we must take great care not to neglect the spiritual dimension of ourselves.

Yet one question nags us: how can one develop a satisfying, comprehensive world view? Good question. Let me offer a few observations.

We live in an orderly universe. Mere observation should tell us that. No where can we escape the subtle, sublime balance and order of the world around us.

We also live in a mortal universe. From the most primitive cultures to the most sophisticated, there is always an innate sense of right and wrong in relationships and community affairs. Although mores vary, they are never absent. And there always seems to be a way to right wrongs. If we offend someone, we can always ask forgiveness and make restitution.

It always seems easier to grant forgiveness than ask it, however. That is a mystery, but asking forgiveness of others is important because relationships make life meaningful. Severing relationships is a serious thing indeed.

The best way we develop a satisfying world view is to get and keep our relationships in order. Resentment bleaches meaning right out of our lives. Our most important relationships is the one we have with God. If that relationship is not what it ought to be, it will invariably affect our whole life.

Although "all of us like sheep have gone astray, each of us have turned to his own way; but the Lord has caused the iniquity of us all/to fall on him." (Isaiah 53:6) To me, it is gratifying to know that none of us need to live a day longer thinking our sins have been carried away by Jesus of Nazareth.

Sincerely,
James T. Davis

E.R.A. Perseveres

There is no stronger argument in favor of the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment than the recent actions taken by the Reagan administration, and the current assault women's rights by our elected State legislators.

Some of us dismissed or totally ignored the warnings sent by women's groups and by the women's movement. We could not believe that our representatives would so vindictively turn their backs on us, and move to abolish laws which protected all women. Yet, it has happened, and it will continue to happen unless all women unite and demand that their rights be guaranteed in the United States Constitution.

Those people who believe that there is no need for the Equal Rights Amendment because current laws provide sufficient protection, should take note that such protective laws can and are being changed. Therefore, to attain a guarantee of equal protection under the law, the Equal Rights Amendment must be ratified by June 30, 1982. Thirty five States have ratified; only three more states are needed. The three needed states are, mainly, southern, conservative states, and/or Mormon states.

Do not allow a handful of politicians to stand in your way of equality. Join the real majority and support the EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT.

Keep Climbin'

by Rick Ergang

In the last few weeks many people have asked me what they can do to prevent a further loss of programs designed to help disabled people. In my discussions with these individuals it has become obvious to me that today people tend to see themselves as helpless victims of merciless politicians. I don't believe that we are helpless victims. I believe that we can have an impact on the system!

What can you do? First of all, determine where the power lies in the particular situation you hope to influence. Is it a local, state, or federal government matter? Next, find out which individuals have the power to bring about the change you'd like to see. Once you've gotten this information the rest is easy. Write and/or call the appropriate elected officials. Let them know how you feel. How can you find their names, addresses, and phone numbers of the local, state, and federal elected officials for the area covered by that newspaper. Another way is to call the County Registrar of Voters. The people at this agency will be happy to give you this information.

If you write or call your elected officials will it really make a difference? You bet it will! Elected officials listen carefully to what the voters are saying, after all that's how they keep their jobs. In fact, every letter you send is counted as a hundred voters. Office holders believe that for every letter they receive, there are a hundred voters who share your view and haven't taken the time to write. So, if you write, and then persuade your family and friends to write your influence starts to add up.

Don't be surprised if you receive a reply to your correspondence. Most office holders relish the opportunity to have a dialogue with their constituents.

Next week I'll describe other ways that you can influence the system. Get involved, you can make a difference!

Fee increase smaller than expected

California State University students face a much smaller fee increase and less of a reduction in academic programs if Governor Brown's proposed 1982-83 budget survives the legislative process.

After receiving more than 35,000 postcards and letters from university students, Brown, in his proposed State Budget did not reduce the CSU budget by five percent nor did he raise student fees by the anticipated $216.

In November, responding to the Governor's five percent reduction request, the CSU Board of Trustees proposed an increase in student fees of $216.

With the Governor's budget calling for a two-and-one-half percent reduction, student fees will rise by $41 per student, in 1982-83.

"We said last year that students had to be vocal and active to influence the Governor to change his mind. We were-and it worked,"

California State Student Association Chair Bill Klein commented.

"We commend Governor Brown for recognizing that accessible higher education should be a priority in his budget," Klein added.

However, Nancy McFadden, CSSA's Legislative Director, warned against being too optimistic at this point. "We have a long, arduous process ahead of us in the Legislature CSU's budget is not safe."

With the state in fiscal disarray, students realize they must share some of the burden-but not an inequitable portion which would have an adverse effect on low-cost, accessible higher education. This is the first time the CSSA has been so actively involved in the budget process; and it will continue to work with the Governor, Legislature and Trustees to insure that CSU fees stay at or near the Governor's proposed level.

A.S. Review Board in Session

The A.S. Review Board is now back in session with Chief Justice John Perez; Justice Ross Miyashiro; Justice Louise Connal; Justice Claud Sinclair.

"The Review Board shall be responsible for interpreting the constitution, bylaws, and other governing documents, policies, and procedures of the Associated Students, and shall have the power to declare void acts found to be in violation or in conflict with the A.S. constitution. The Review Board shall have power to enforce legislated penalties."

Organizations on campus should be aware that the A.S. Review Board is an alternative solution where grievances may be heard concerning Associated Students policies.

Complaint or Request for Review forms are located in the A.S. office and may be obtained during the hours of 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Sonic Art Show

by Maeve Twohey

A Sonic Art Show will open Saturday, February 13, with a reception from 7-10 p.m. in the Art Gallery at Cal State San Bernardino and San Bernardino Valley College. The show will close on March 14.

The exhibit, organized by Marlin Halverson, a senior art major at Cal State San Bernardino, "...bridges the gap between the visual arts and music."

Funded partially by a grant from The California Arts Council's National Endowment for The Arts; The show will feature an exhibition of works by 20 artists from Southern California, The San Francisco Bay area, New York and Washington State.

Bob Bates, who will perform with each of his "converters", on Wednesday, March 10, states that, "The artists in this exhibition represent a wide spectrum of diversified opinions, sensibilities, and focuses...They come from many different polarities: visual artists, painters, sculptors in sound and solids, photographers, performance and video artists, writers, composers, musicians, the list goes on..."

Bob Bates will hold one concert at 10 p.m. in the art gallery at San Bernardino Valley College; the other will be at noon in the Art Gallery at Cal State.

This concert will be followed by a workshop from 2-4 p.m. in The Visual Arts Building, Room 135.

During the opening reception at Cal State, Chris Forster, whose avant garde instruments relate to those of ancient Greek musical concerns, will present a concert at 8 p.m.

Other activities open to the public include a workshop given by Forster, the day prior to the show's opening, Friday, February 12, in the Cal State Visual Arts Building, Room 110, at noon. He will discuss his art and the musical tuning systems he uses.

Halverson will give a workshop on making ceramic whistles at 1 p.m., Monday and Tuesday, February 15 and 16, in the Ceramics Studio at Cal State. He also will present a workshop at 2 p.m., February 17, in the Ceramics Studio, Art Building Room 3, at San Bernardino Valley College.

Susan Rawcliffe's concert titled "The Idea Tickled Them: Ocarina Music and Pre-Columbian Instruments" is scheduled for noon Wednesday, February 24, at Cal State in Visual Arts 110.

Her concert will be followed by a more in-depth discussion of ocarinas, wjocj discussion of ocarinas, which are ceramic and clay, single- and multi-chambered wind instruments, at 2 p.m. in the Cal State Visual Arts Building, Room 110.

Christopher Charles Banta will give a marimba demonstration at noon Tuesday, March 2, in the Gallery at Cal State and a workshop from 1-4 p.m. on the same day in the Visual Arts Woodshop.

Dr. Julius Kaplan, Chairman of the Art Department at CSCSB, enthusiastically states that the most exciting aspect of this particular show is that Marlin is "The first undergraduate to put on a show of this scale" at Cal State.

Marlin Halverson, with equal consideration expressed his gratitude towards Dr. Kaplan's support, as well as that of Irving Buchen, Dean of Humanities "who" as Marlin says, "encouraged this project from the beginning."

Ivor Darreg and Sonic Art

by Marlin Halverson

"If the guitars in Picasso's pictures could be played, what would they sound like?" asks Ivor Darreg, one of the artists whose works are on display in the Sonic Art exhibition. His instruments may go a long way toward answering that question.

Ivor Darreg has composed in many styles and idioms for 50 years and his design and construction of acoustic as well as electronic instruments is an outgrowth of correlating the structure of music and language. By interfacing linguistics and phonetics with the physical aspects of musical instrument design, he was led in 1969 to start refretting guitars in order to achieve more versatility in sound. By the mid-seventies, he began developing the MEGALYRA family of steel-guitar-type instruments for solo and ensemble work.

He claims that at least four to five "New moods" are added to the musical vocabulary by dividing the octave into segments other than twelve equal temperaments. He urges composers and musical instrument builders to "detwelve!" He has compiled many charts comparing various tuning strategies which show their advantages and disadvantages. Comparing equal temperaments, Darreg says that 17-tones per octave is "brilliant" and "its mood is rousing, invigorating, stimulating," while 19-tones per octave has "incredible zonk, pizzazz and impact..." with "pungent harmonies and greater contrast between its consonances and dissonances than 12 has." One of the most pleasing systems to the ears is 31-tones per octave, having a "calm and restful" effect whereas the mood of the 12-tone system, on which most of traditional western music is based, is one of "restlessness-never any true repose."

Because of various physical and financial obstacles Darreg is forced to use "found objects" and low-cost materials for the construction of his instruments. Despite these limitations he continues to explore tuning-systems which have resources and expressive powers that have never been heard before, and has earned the description of "the grand old man of the microtonalists", by Omni, March 1981.

Winterfest Prevails!!

by Debbie Weissel

The Winterfest held at C.S.C.S.B. on Feb. 4 was based on a Winterwonderland theme. The day was filled with festivities from a jacks tournament to the performance of live bands.

Special to this years Winterfest was the celebration of the Student Unions 4th Anniversary. The event was kicked off with a cake cutting ceremony at noon. President Pfau participated in the activities and ceremoniously cut the cake in the company of Pauline Barbour, President of Associated Students and Colleen Robinson, Activities Advisor and Student Union Co-ordinator.

On display in the well decorated Student Union was a ski equipment demonstration. Booths decorated the interior of the SUMP room where many clubs were represented while hot apple cider was dispersed for free.

Entertainment was also provided by the bands "Nightspore" and "All-match" in the afternoon. Performing for the evening dance were "Ambush" and "Hot Wax".

Throughout the afternoon, visiting children were entertained by clowns Sherrie Stearman and Maggie Wilson.

Although the weather did not allow for an outdoor event the success of Winterfest was not hampered! The Winterwonderland celebration of '82 was very much alive and a special happening for C.S.C.S.B.

Religious Clubs

by Julia Merrill

There are a number of religion clubs at Cal State San Bernardino, each with a small core of faithful members.

Campus Crusade for Christ and the Christian Life Club are interdenominational groups. Denomination-related groups include the Newman Club for Catholics, the Latter-day Saints Club for Mormons, and the newly formed Baptist Student Union.

"The proximity of Campus Crusade's world headquarters, at Arrowhead Springs north of San Bernardino, gives the Cal State Campus Crusade organization an edge in securing speakers and preparing programs," said campus director Jim Miller.

During fall quarter, Campus Crusade activities included a showing of the film, "Jesus". The movie, produced by Campus Crusade for Christ, has been translated into 46 languages and has been shown to more than 45 million people throughout the world.

During the holiday break, several members of the Cal State group attended a statewide Campus Crusade Christmas Conference, held in Santa Clara.

"The San Bernardino club is composed of a variety of people," Miller said, "who have brought them to a unifying interest in Jesus Christ."

"About half of the group's regular members are international students," he said, "as one of the group's projects is to befriend students from other nations".

Regular meetings of the Campus Crusade group are at 7 p.m. each Thursday in the Lower Commons.

The Christian Life Club meets for Bible study, discussion and sometimes singing each Tuesday at noon, in Room 219 of the Commons. The meetings are always dismissed in time for participants to attend 1 p.m. classes.

Attendance at the meetings varies from three or four to more than a dozen individuals, said faculty advisor Theron Pace.

The Newman Club meets in the student senate room of the Student Union at noon, Mondays and Tuesdays. In addition, a special mass for students is held at 7 p.m. every Sunday at the Newman Center, 423 W. 18th St., San Bernardino.

Maura O'Neill, director, said the Bible studies and discussion have recently centered on the Gospels and Third World countries.

"Third World issues, especially hunger, led to the idea of Peace Week, conducted on campus during fall quarter", she said. Peace Week, co-sponsored by the Newman Club, the associated Students and the Coalition for Peaceful Coexistence, featured speakers, dances and a hunger fast.

"The club at Cal State is having a good year, attendance at Newman Club meetings varies from 10-20," O'Neill said. Faculty advisors are Paul Esposito and James Rogers.

"Be of service" is what members of the Latter-day Saints Club are told by Bishop Dan Dedrickson, director of the L.D.S. Institute of Religion. The institute, at 1250 Esperanza At., San Bernardino, services students at both Cal State and San Bernardino Valley College.

The Cal State L.D.S. Club meets at noon Tuesdays and Thursdays in Room A of the Student Union. The club has 11 active members, although attendance at meetings is sometimes as high as 15. Faculty advisor is Don Saponetti.

The Baptist Student Union, organized during fall quarter, holds regular meetings at noon each Monday in Room B of the Student Union.

Each of Cal State's religion clubs welcomes visitors. Information on activities, meeting times and places, is posted on the Student Union bulletin board.

Campus Profiles

OUTSTANDING PROFESSOR

Dr. Newton

Dr. Frederick Newton of San Bernardino has been selected as the outstanding professor at Cal State, San Bernardino for 1982, as announced by President John M. Pfau.

An associate professor of psychology, Dr. Newton will represent the campus in The California State University Board of Trustees' Outstanding Professor Awards program. Each year, the CSU honors two distinguished faculty members. This is the second year the San Bernardino campus has participated.

Nominations for outstanding professor were submitted by staff, faculty, students and administrators to a six-member selection committee consisting of administrators, faculty and one student.

"Dr. Newton was selected because of his demonstration of superlative teaching, both inside and outside the classroom, and for his contributions to psychology and to the campus and community," said Dr. Stuart Ellins, chair of the committee.

"His contributions to the field of psychology in the areas of biofeedback and brain laterality have been widely recognized," Ellins said.

Dr. Newton, who is 37, also has conducted research projects dealing with effective classroom teaching and has served as consultant and writer for television programs on "Understanding Human Behavior" which are geared for introduction to psychology classes and have aired throughout the United States on PBS.

Dr. Newton has co-authored articles that have appeared in several professional magazines and presented papers at meetings of professional organizations including the Biofeedback Research Society, American Psychological Association, Biofeedback Society of America, Western Psychological Research, Society for Neuroscience.

His professional memberships include the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Biofeedback Society of America, biofeedback Society of California, Society for Neuroscience, Society for Psychophysiological Research, and the Western Psychological Association.

In addition to his professional activities, Dr. Newton has given much time serving on numerous committees within his department and on campus, including the Open House Committee, Student Union Board of Directors, the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences Curriculum Committee, Student Development Committee and the Committee on the Use of Drugs on Human Subjects.

Newton received his bachelor of science degree from St. Peters College in New Jersey in 1967, his master of science degree from Villanova University in Pennsylvania in 1970, and his Ph.D. from the University of Houston in 1975. He has been at Cal State since 1975.

Men's Coyote Basketball League

Men's intramural basketball started January 22, and three weeks into the season have already provided fans with excitement comparable to NBA. Although, the way teams are divided into different A and B leagues, they are left with 3 or 4 teams to a league. That means a team may only have two or three different opponents to play during the season. Playoffs should be exciting though because the winners from different leagues will play against each other until there is one champion.

The small leagues haven't been a disappointment however, there have been tough teams battling to win tough games. The most exciting was the game won by Jerry's Kids over Basketcases. Jerry's Kids had been leading the whole game until the last three seconds, when Basketcases were one point down and allowed two free throws. The first was made to tie the ballgame. The second was made also, but a lane violation was called on a Basketcase player, and that nullified the point. In the over-time the Basketcases rallied back to have a three point lead with three seconds left, but Jerry's Kids inbounded the ball to Paul Hargrove who sank a three point, thirty footer at the buzzer to send the game into a second overtime. This time Jerry's Kids poured on the steam and the Basketcases fought back. At the end of the second overtime Jerry's Kids had a four point advantage and thus emerged the victors.

So I encourage everyone to come out and support these teams giving their all to win. There is always something exciting to cheer about. Games are Wednesdays starting at 3:15 p.m. and on Fridays beginning at 1:00 p.m.

Sports Trivia Contest

Sports Trivia Contest

A Sports Trivia Contest will be held on Thursday, February 11, from 7-10 p.m. in the Student Union A.S. Senate Chambers.

There will be three person teams, but if you're that good you can play with a two member team. So, get a team and sign up on the night of the event. This will really test your knowledge of trivia on basketball, football, baseball, hockey, olympics, and other minor sports from 1960 to the present.

There is no entry fee and competition is open to students, faculty, or staff. Everyone come and join the fun as contestants try to remember questions like: Who was Emil "Bus" Mosbacher? If you know that one don't hesitate to sign up. For those of you who didn't know, he was the skipper of the yacht "Interpid", victor in the 1967 challenge of the American Cup.

For more information contact Joe Long at 7564 or 7561.
