Title: Power of Research

Dr. Alexandru V. Roman is an Associate Professor with the College of Business and Public Administration at California State University San Bernardino. He is the Director of the Research Institute for Public Management and Governance and the Coordinator for the Management Certificate in Public Procurement. He is also the Editor of the Journal of Public Procurement and the Managing Editor of the International Journal of Organization Theory and Behavior. His research focuses on questions of management, strategy, and public procurement. His publications have appeared in many leading journals in the field such as the Public Administration Review, Public Performance Management Review, American Review of Public Administration, Journal of Public Procurement and Administration & Society.

Research is certainly powerful. Yet, while we often discuss the far reaching impacts of research on social progress, we rarely pay commensurate attention to the effects of research experiences on our personal development. The latter, nevertheless, can be transformational – both in terms our professional growth and opportunities as well in term of our self-identity. In his presentation, Dr. Roman will share his experiences with research and discuss the power of research and why doing research is such a rewarding enterprise.
