Distinguished Lecturer Series
COUSTEAU AND MURPHY TO LECTURE
ON "PROJECT OCEAN SEARCH-WUVULU"

Jean-Michel Cousteau and Richard Murphy will present an illustrated lecture on "Project Ocean Search - Wuvulu" Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., November 19.

Mr. Cousteau, an architect, is the son of famed ocean explorer Jacques-Yves Cousteau. Mr. Murphy, a marine biologist and underwater photographer, has had a long, close association with both men.

The lecturers will deal with the development of Wuvulu, an island near Papua, New Guinea, which they became involved with in 1972. They created a master plan designed to preserve the ecology of the island, which is nearly perfect ecologically. Discoveries made there are used as a base for studying and improving ecology in other parts of the world.

Both men worked with the elder Cousteau in organization and research for the television series, "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau."

In addition to the evening lecture, Mr. Murphy will meet with two CSCSB classes. He will discuss the Coastal Ecosystem with the 8 a.m. Natural Phenomena class in PS-10. At 1 p.m. he will speak on "Coastal Marine Life and Marine Life Identification" in PE-129. SCUBA students from neighboring colleges and other interested divers are invited.

WINDS WILL BE WATCHED The fabled winds of campus are being subjected to closer scrutiny now by all amateur wind watchers. The College has installed an anemometer in the Student Services Building Lobby which measures and records wind speed and direction, via a sensor located atop the SS Building.

In operation for less than two full days, the anemometer, installed just in time to take advantage of the current Southland Santa Ana winds, has recorded northerly gusts up to a maximum of 30 m.p.h., averaging 15 m.p.h.

Kenneth White, Asst. Prof., Geography, is the campus physical geographer responsible for translating the recordings made by the equipment. "This completes instrumentation for our weather station," said Mr. White. "We have instruments which record humidity, precipitation, pressure, temperature, and now wind recording devices." The standard weather shelter is located in the olive grove at the north end of the campus.

Attention, Rain Raconteurs: The official rain records show 1.11 in. of rain since the beginning of the year, September 1.

LIBRARY
NEWS... This month's fine exhibit:

More than 200 old postcards, featuring many mailed in the 1910-1915 era, are on display in the Library. The cards were purchased to add to the Library files memorabilia of an earlier day.

Collecting postcards was a popular hobby of the first decade of the 20th century. The collection on display started during that period. In May of 1873, the first month after they were introduced in the United States, more than 31 million cards were sent. By the 1960s, Post Offices were selling 3 billion cards per year. (Display is on Main Floor of the Library through December 15.)
