Career Seminar

Feeling stuck in your job? Considering re-entering the job market or contemplating a move into a new career field? You might get some help from “Changing Careers,” a Cal State, San Bernardino extension class. The class will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 9, at Cal State Bernardino extension class. Registration should be made by calling the Office of Continuing Education, 887-7527.

Instructors Arlene Gluck and Patricia Dunlap will emphasize ways to identify transferable skills, develop contacts, assess the job market, and improve skills in resume writing and interviewing. Choosing an occupation suitable to the individual and setting goals also will be class topics.

Ms. Gluck has given many seminars in personal growth and professional development. She is founder of Alternate Options, a counseling services company, and co-creator of “Timeline,” a seminar in goal setting and time management.

Ms. Dunlap, a career education specialist counselor and former classroom teacher, has been actively involved in career programs and in the implementation of materials for “Creating Your Future,” a 10th grade career planning course.

“Understanding Cancer” by Dr. Ojan Latuc Professor, Health Sci. Dept. Susan Richards Student

The Department of Health Science and Human Ecology will be sponsoring an upper division elective course in the Spring of 1983 entitled “Understanding Cancer.”

Planning for this course is now underway and all students interested in serving as a committee member are invited and encouraged to call the Health Science Department.

This course will be designed and developed by students under the guidance of a faculty advisor and an American Cancer Society liaison. This is a great opportunity for students to gain experience and augment his or her resume.

If interested, please leave your name and number at extension 7348 and the student course coordinator will contact you. All undergraduate levels and majors are welcomed.

Call soon as our first committee meeting will be next week.

Life With Teenagers

“How To Live with Your Teenager...And Enjoy It” is the title of a workshop for parents, teachers and paraprofessionals from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 16, at the United Church of Christ Congregationalist, 233 W. Harrison, Claremont.

Dr. Courtney Peterson, a marriage and family counselor, will lead the session, which is offered through the extension program at Cal State, San Bernardino.

Dr. Peterson will help participants sharpen their skills in listening, straight-talking, boundary-setting and dealing with anger. Topics also will include how behavior patterns affect interactions with teens, age appropriate behavior for teens, and helping children cope with the drug culture.

The fee for this non-credit course is $25 per person or $40 per couple. Registration should be made by Oct. 8 by calling the Office of Continuing Education, 887-7527.

Free Counseling

No one need feel there is nowhere to turn during times of loneliness, depression or crisis.

The Community Counseling Center at Cal State, San Bernardino once again is offering free counseling services to people in distress. Counseling is offered without charge as a service to the community.

This is the tenth year Cal State, San Bernardino has offered counseling through the center. The center, headed by Dr. Ed Teyster, is made up of faculty members and graduate students. All a prospective client needs to do to obtain counseling is call the clinic at 887-7272.

During the day, Dr. Teyster will respond to the call and set up the first meeting. After hours, callers will reach a recorder on which they can leave a name and number where they may be contacted when the center reopens.

The purpose of the Community Counseling Center is to provide a place where people with personal problems can receive counseling, and where graduate students in psychology can gain valuable counseling experience.

About half the people who used the counseling center’s services normally are able to cope with life’s ups and downs, but may suddenly face some crisis which has disrupted their lives. Such seemingly insurmountable problems might include loss of a job, a broken marriage, death of someone close, sexual problems, general depression, lack of goals, motivation or enthusiasm, and general life adjustment difficulties.

Many clients are women, generally in the 25-40 year age bracket, who are searching for new directions in their lives.

Others who have taken advantage of the center’s services include unmarried couples who are living together and don’t know whether to get married, young persons seeking premarital information on marital problems, married couples with questions or problems in child rearing and elderly people who have no one to talk with.

Clients are first seen by Dr. Teyster, a clinical psychologist, who explains the program, what it is and what it is not; then they are provided the opportunity to meet with counselors in private, one-on-one settings. If they wish, married couples can make arrangements to be counseled jointly.

Although the clinic is not equipped to help people with certain psychological problems, such as psychosis, alcoholism, drug addiction or suicidal crisis, these callers will be referred to sources better able to meet their needs.

Regardless of circumstances, anyone with a problem can get help or direction through the center, Dr. Teyster said.

Helpline Crisis Class

The Fall HELPl ine Class to train volunteers as paraprofessional crisis counselors at 686-HELP, begins Oct. 12.

The class will meet Tuesday and Thursday evenings, 6:30-9:30 through December 17, with a week off at Thanksgiving.

Applications may be picked up at the Riverside Volunteer Center, 3527 Main Street, Riverside. Deadline is Oct. 6. Applicants must also interview with HELPl ine Coordinator Joan Strong. Upon graduation, students commit to one year on the line. The course is free or available for three units of credit by paying $30 to UCR.

The HELPl ine at 686-HELP is a 24 hour crisis line staffed largely by volunteers. It also serves as an information and referral service, 8 to 5 weekdays.
Cutbacks Affect Students

by Ted Krug
Director of Financial Aid

I wish to comment on the phase out of Social Security benefits to students attending a postsecondary educational institution. The efforts of the Reagan administration to eliminate Social Security benefits to college students between the ages of 18 and 22 years of age is one of the most calloused acts of an insensitive federal agency in dealing with the needs of the poorest element in our society. The vast majority of these students live at or below the poverty level. The funds allocated the student are “pooped” with other meager resources to maintain the entire family. Now, when the student turns 18 he/she is terminated from Social Security. If the student is fortunate to have been enrolled in college as a full-time student as May 1, 1982, benefits are reduced 25% per year for a four year period.

You have attempted to justify this action based on the availability of student financial aid. There a number of flaws in your assertion: (1) student financial aid has suffered major cutbacks during the previous two years; (2) many needy students get no aid to attend college because of insufficient funds; and (3) in many instances, students receiving Social Security benefits during the phase out period are ineligible federal regulations governing these programs.

I am knowledgeable of these facts because I see these students every day in my capacity as a director of financial aid within the California State University system. I agonize when forced to tell dependent students, whose total family income from Social Security amounts to $400 per month, that they are ineligible to receive financial aid because of new regulations. This is tantamount to denying these students access to a postsecondary education.

It seems that President Reagan’s safety net for the poor has sprung some very large holes in it. Just ask any college student whose parent is deceased or disabled, and the family must maintain themselves on Social Security.

Anti-Nuke Forum at UCR

Arms control proposals, including a nuclear arms freeze, will be discussed at a one-day forum, “Paths to National Security: Alternatives to the Nuclear Arms Race,” October 9 (Saturday) at the University of California, Riverside.

Nationally renowned experts on arms policy, including people with experience negotiating with the Soviet Union on SALT II, will be among the speakers. Dr. Helen Caldicott, President of Physicians for Social Responsibility, will discuss the medical consequences of a nuclear war.

University Extension credit (1 unit) is available for those attending both the Saturday meeting and a Thursday evening class which includes a study review of U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations involving arms control. The credit course is $50 per person.

Inland Southern California are sponsoring the forum, with the cooperation of Common Ground Coalition and other community groups.

Moral and Ethical Choices Course

A course designed to help people crystallize their views on controversial issues will be offered through the extension program at Cal State, San Bernardino Thursdays, Oct. 7 through Dec. 2.

“Moral and Ethical Choices in American Society” will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. at Cal State.

Registration should be made by Sept. 30 through the Office of Continuing Education, 887-7527. The fee is $35 non-credit.

Bradley Rep Organizes Support

On Sept. 30, Julie Holtrun, campus coordinator for Mayor Tom Bradley’s gubernatorial campaign, in San Bernardino and San Diego Counties, visited CSCSB and spoke to a group of students interested in organizing an on-campus support for Bradley’s campaign.

Eugene Padilla, spokesman for the group, is very enthusiastic about getting the CSCSB community behind the Mayor’s campaign. Padilla hopes to have Alpha Kappa Psi, a fraternity to which Bradley also belongs, sponsor the activities.

Once several groups and organizations from campus, Padilla plans to hold several informational meetings, giving voters an opportunity to form their own opinions about Mayor Bradley based on facts. He also hopes to start a mailing list to encourage others to support Bradley.

According to Padilla, the turning point as to the success or failure of Bradley’s quest for the Governor’s office will be whether or not enough young people become interested in stirring up support for Bradley.

After the logistical planning is worked out, a rally for Bradley will be held shortly before the election on Nov. 2. It will be highlighted by a personal message from Bradley.

Persons wishing more information about Mayor Bradley’s campaign should contact Eugene Padilla in Waterman, room 205, Box 158, or by calling him at 887-7422.

Lady Beware Seminar

Three seminars on crime prevention will be presented for the public at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 13, in the Student Union Multipurpose Room at Cal State, San Bernardino.

During the free program, titled "Lady Beware," Shirley Eastman, director of San Bernardino Rape Crisis Services, will speak on rape prevention. Deputy Laura Lewin of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department and Investigator Quentin Moses of the Cal State, San Bernardino Public Safety Department, will speak on security measures, including home protection.

Although primarily geared for women students and personnel, the seminars may also be of interest to men who wish to learn more about crime prevention, according to Quentin Moses, coordinator of the seminars.

"Most people work on the assumption that it can't happen to them, but it can," Moses said, referring to physical assault. "It hasn't happened here yet, but it has happened on other small campuses, and women aren't the only people being assaulted."

"Lady Beware" is being sponsored by the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department and the Cal State, San Bernardino Department of Public Safety.

Shalom Club

The Shalom Club is selling tickets for a lecture by Abba Eban, former Israeli foreign minister and ambassador to the U.S. The speech will be held Tuesday, Oct. 12, at 8:30 p.m., in the Bridges Auditorium of the Claremont Colleges.

Tickets are only $5 for Eban's appearance in Claremont, while the same talk will be conducted in San Francisco the following night for $20 a person.

For tickets and further information, please contact Dr. Elliot Bankan at 887-7239 or 686-1187.

DRABBLE
by Kevin Fagan

I feel kind of sick. I might be running a temperature.

Hmm... yeah, weeny, I think you are.

But don't worry.

Thanks for taking notes for me at school, Norm.

Would you like me to bring them over?

Not today. I wouldn't want you to catch my flu.

I thought I'd bring you some flowers since you're not feeling well, Wendy.

Boy, you look awful! Are you really that sick, or do you always look like this in the morning?

I lied. I'm afraid of a few little germs.

I'll be glad to give you mouth to mouth resuscitation, that would really make me sick.

That's the thanks I get for trying to spread a little sunshine...

New American Photos

Trends in photographic art by known and emerging artists will be featured in a show opening with a reception at 7 p.m., Friday, Oct. 15, in the Art Gallery at Cal State, San Bernardino. "New American Photographs" will display work by 27 artists who exemplify new and traditional styles in color and black-and-white photography, collage, computer graphics, postcard photography and mixed media, the show closes Wednesday, Nov. 24. Admission is free.

Among the 120 pieces selected is a series by Fiona Hall of Rochester, N.Y., titled "Painting west," in which she recreates well-known images by Matisse, Cezanne, Van Gough and other artists by using photo prints of similar color and appearance. Another group of works is by Fiona Hall, San Francisco. Other artists represent states across the country.

A catalog for the show will be available for $3 when the exhibit opens. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday; 1 to 4 p.m., Monday through Thursday; and 1 to 4 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

Space Exhibit

United States space crafts are the subjects of oil paintings by artist Hazel Olson of Colton on display in the Library at Cal State, San Bernardino through Nov. 1. Mrs. Olson's fascination with space endeavors began with the Columbia. In her exhibit, "Journey Into Space," she included "Columbia Circle," a work depicting the ship lifted in Florida to leaving Edward Albee's Force X on its trip aboard the 747.

"It fascinates me to think on the spaceship can go up into the air, circle around in outer space, then come back and fly around like an airplane. How can it go out into space then glide in so beautifully to earth," she said.

As appreciation in her interpretations of the Columbia grew, Mrs. Olson began painting other crafts, such as the Skynet spy plane "The Blackbird," the Apollo 13 liftoff in 1970, the liftoff of Skylab 1 in 1972 and the P-15 Eagle zeroing in, all displayed in this exhibit.

An official Air Force artist, Mrs. Olson has paintings in the Pentagon and the archives of President Ronald Reagan. She also has paintings hanging at Norton and March Air Force bases and the Navy/Coast Guard Museum in Treasure Island. A professional artist for 19 years, she is listed in the American Artists of Renown 1981-82 and each year for the past seven years has exhibited 100 paintings at the Institute for Space in San Bernardino.

Among her many affiliations with area community organizations have been membership in the Redlands Historical Society for six years, member of the Board of Directors of the International Council in San Bernardino, and the Navy/Coast Guard Museum in Treasure Island. A professional artist for 19 years, she is listed in the American Artists of Renown 1981-82 and each year for the past seven years has exhibited 100 paintings at the Institute for Space in San Bernardino.

Family Performances

Puppets, mime, music and dance are a part of the Family Performance Series, eight programs especially for children that will be launched this school year at Cal State, San Bernardino. To expose children to quality cultural events and to make entertainment and education simultaneous are the goals of this series of Friday evening performances which begins Oct. 29. Children in the audience will be invited to learn songs, rewrite story endings and participate in other ways during the programs.

Performances will begin at 7:15 p.m. in the Creative Arts Building. Each program will last about 45 to 50 minutes and Refreshments will be served. To open the series, the Firebird Theatre Company will present "The Firebird and His Wife" Oct. 29. The company will perform this Grimm Brothers' tale in the style of Japanese theatre called kabuki, using elaborate makeup, masks, dance and music.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be enacted by the Children's Opera Factory, a professional company of adults from the Redlands and Riverside areas, on April 15. Vocal and instrumental groups from the Cal State, San Bernardino Music Department will conclude the series with a children's concert on May 20.

The series is being arranged by JoAnn Hartzog, of San Bernardino, a Cal State graduate student who undertook the project as part of the requirements for her master's degree. Advising the project and assisting with arrangements is Dr. Irving Buchen, dean of the School of Humanities.

Season tickets are $33 for a family of up to five members. Individual performance tickets will not be sold in advance, but will be available at the door of the evening of the performance. They will be $1 for children age 12 and under, and $2 for adults.

Season tickets can be obtained by calling the Services to Students with Disabilities Office, 887-7662. The office can arrange wheelchair accommodation and interpreter service if requested.

Cal State Music

Beginning its third season, the Music at Cal State series offered by Cal State, San Bernardino will again present a rich program of internationally known musicians and Cal State faculty artists.

The series will open "Music for Two Keyboards," a program with Phyllis Benson and Raymond Boese of Redlands, whoo Sunday., Oct. 17, will combine their talents to produce a program of rarely heard works for organ and harpsichord from the 18th century. Ms. Benson is an international harpsichordist at Cal State and Boese professor emeritus of organ at the University of Redlands.

The first guest performance will be by Musical Offering, a critically acclaimed chamber ensemble specializing in Baroque and classical masterpieces, Wednesday, Oct. 27.

This group has performed throughout the United States, Canada and Europe, including its American debut in 1977 at the Los Angeles Music Center and its highly acclaimed New York debut at Carnegie Hall. Other guest programs will be World Music from San Diego, featuring faculty and advanced students, Saturday, Jan. 8; tenor Paul Sperry, Wednesday, Feb. 9; the Steed Woodwind Quintet, a southern California chamber music ensemble, Wednesday, March 9; and the Kronos String Quartet, a group specializing in 20th century chamber music, Wednesday, April 20.

Performances by Cal State music faculty will include the Inland Brass Quintet, which will begin at 6 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building, except the Oct. 17 program, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., and the New: Concert, which will begin at 3 p.m.

Season tickets for the 12 concerts are $25 general, $12.50 students. Tickets for individual performances by guest artists are $5 general, $2.50 students. Admission for the individual faculty artist performances is $3 general, $1.75 students. Season tickets are available through the Music Department, 887-7404.
Ken Richters

Mark Twain (1835), pseudonym of Samuel Langhorne Clemens, is known as America's greatest humorist. Born in Florida, Missouri on November 30, 1835, he was the third son, and fifth child of John and Jane Clemens. John Clemens, a lawyer, was intelligent and upright—but never lucky. He practiced law in various villages in the Knobs region of Tennessee.

John Clemens died in 1847, leaving his family ill provided. Orion, the eldest son, was a journeyman printer in St. Louis; Sam was an apprentice to the same trade in Joseph P. Amich's print shop in Hannibal, St. Louis and Keokuk, Iowa. Sam's first attempts at humor appeared mainly in these papers.

In April 1857 Sam Clemens set out for New Orleans. En route, talks with a pilot, Horace Boxly, revived the boyhood dreams of learning the river, and Boxly agreed to take Sam on as a 'cub.' He became a licensed pilot, and until Secession closed the river he appears to have been regularly employed. Although Sam Clemens worked the river for only a period of three years, he always felt that being a pilot was the most fulfilling times of his life.

In June 1861 Clemens served briefly in the Marion Rangers, a militia company which disbanded before it could be called into the Confederate service. In the meantime, Orion campaigned for Abraham Lincoln, was appointed territorial secretary of Nevada, and Sam joined him. He had enough saved from his pilot's earnings to pay his stagecoach fares and support himself through almost a year of fruitless silver prospecting.

During that year Sam contributed some humorous skits to the Territorial Enterprise of Virginia City, and in August 1862, was invited to join the staff. Seeking a good pen name, he chose the Mississippi, leaving behind 'Mark Twain' (two fathoms, safe water). It was the river's last and most productive years of his life.

In May 1864, a quarrel with a rival journalist, whom he challenged to a duel, forced Clemens to flee San Francisco. For the next two years he worked for various California papers, except during December 1864-February 1865 when he lived in the Mother Lode country of California. It was there he lived with Jim Gillis, a prospector and a masterfully teller of tall stories, who appears in Mark Twain's books as Jim Blain, Jim Baker and Dick Stoker. From Ben Cook, another old-timer, Clemens heard the yarn of the Jumping Frog.

Early in 1866 the Sacramento Union commissioned Clemens to do a series of letters from Hawaii. Their popularity encouraged him to try a humorous lecture on his experiences. First delivered in San Francisco on October 2nd, with huge success, the lecture was repeated on a three-month tour. In December, Clemens agreed to write and edit the Alta California of San Francisco and set out for New York via Nicaragua.

In New York he saw the announcement of a Mediterranean cruise and persuaded the Alta to send him on it. Besides supplying three material for 'The Innocents Abroad,' the tour brought him the friendship of young Charles Langdon, whose sister Olivia married Clemens after a checkered courtship. With the help of Jervis Langdon, his prosperous father-in-law, Clemens brought an interest in his work to the Buffalo Express, intending to make journalism his career.

The venture proved unhappy. Jervis Langdon died of cancer; Olivia, worn out with helping to nurse her father, gave premature birth to a son, Langdon, who died in infancy. In the big house he built on Farmington Avenue, Clemens spent the happiest and most productive years of his life. There Olivia bore three daughters; Susy, Clara, and Jean. After Elisha Bliss died in 1880, Clemens quarreled with his successor and shifted to James R. Osgood of Boston. Osgood proved unsatisfactory, and Clemens in 1884 established his own publishing and subscription firm under the name of Mark Twain and Company.

The company might have survived had Clemens not diverted its profits into another speculation, a typesetting machine invented by William W. Paige. From 1885 to 1891 Clemens paid the bills while Paige devised refinements which at last made the machine too complex to stand the strains of full-time operation. Clemens himself returned to New York, in vain hopes of salvaging something from the wreckage of bankruptcy.

Clemens announced that he would pay all debts in full, and in July 1895 began a lecture tour around the country.

Afterall, the author of "The War Prayer," an impassioned plea for humanity to resist the temptations of war, is simply talking to the audience and his inclination, drawing from nearly five hours of memorized material.

Mark Twain on Tour

Mark Twain once said that "against the assault of laughter, no evil can stand," and contributed to this attack through his surefire sense of irony and penetrating wit.

The humor of Twain, from charmingly entertaining to darkly cynical, will be presented by actor Ken Richters during his one-man show Friday, Oct. 15, at Cal State, San Bernardino. The performance starts at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall.

A young, dark-haired man, Richters transforms himself into the white-haired, aging author of "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," dressed in his characteristic white linen suit. The actor likes to convey the impression that Twain is simply talking to folks off the cuff, so varies his program according to the audience and his inclination, drawing from nearly five hours of memorized material.

Humorous anecdotes and quips on the follies of man are offset by serious moments. After all, the author of "The Notorious Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" also wrote "The War Prayer," an impassioned plea for humanity to resist the temptations of war.

Richters is a faculty member of the Connecticut School of Broadcasting who has appeared in numerous television, film and theatre productions. He travels with "Mark Twain on Tour" about eight months out of the year, presenting 250 programs throughout the country.

Advance tickets will be sold beginning Friday, Oct. 1 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, in the Multimedia purpose Room of the Student Union at Cal State. Admission is $3.50 students, $6 general.

Third Annual Bud Canoe Race A Success

by Mike Smith and Kevin Collins

All roads led to Devore Friday afternoon as the third annual CSCSB Anheuser-Busch Intramural Canoe Regatta took place at the Trout Lake Playground Spillway in Glen Helen Park. More than 100 Cal State students joined in the fun by either participating on the grueling course or just baking in the sun, cheering on their favorite teams.

A competitive emphasis was put on the day's festivities as each team used their talents against the clock and each other. The first heat ended with the defending champs, Dale Corrison and Donna De Dianous, setting the leading pace with the fastest time. It became a "dog fight" for the seven remaining positions on the finalists sheet. Many of the early racers seemed disappointed as their scores were bumped from the top eight by other teams.

As the final heat began, it was very apparent that the defending champs would be dethroned this year as they turned in a "sub par" time of 1:30.42. The team of Brad Redding and Becky Anderson quickly jumped to the lead but were later bumped by the local favorites, Bruce Fosdick and Jackie Saray, as they turned in a magnificent time of 1:25.84. The celebration was short-lived though as the very next team of Bryan Hendry and Susan Oberholtzer bested their time with that of 1:22.84. Their time was able to hold up for the remainder of the day, and they were crowned as 1982 CSCSB canoe race champions.

The top eight teams in order of finish were: Susan Oberholtzer and Bryan Hendry; Jackie Saray and Bruce Fosdick; Becky Anderson and Brad Redding; Kelleen Mitchell and Terry Swindell; Lauron Richmond and Paul Savage; Donna De Dianous and Dale Corrison; Debbie Haessly and Pete Schurman; and Annette Benn and Kent Chambless.

In addition to sponsoring the event, Anheuser-Busch also supplied soft drinks, posters and visors to all who attended and trophies for the four finalists.

P.E. Degree O.K.'d

Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds has granted final approval for the college to offering the Bachelor of Science degree in Physical Education effective Winter Quarter.

The college has been offering course work during fall quarter in anticipation of the program's approval by the Chancellor's Office and the California Postsecondary Education Commission. A total of 72.5 units is required within the major, 32 in lower division work and 40.5 upper division.

The new program has been on the academic master plan since 1975. The Physical Education and Recreation Department has received inquiries about the program. The new major is expected to draw students interested in teaching, in public and private schools and recreation programs, and those wishing to manage sports clubs and fitness centers. Future teachers will be able to obtain authorization to teach adapted physical education, as that program was approved during the summer.

New Gym Hours

Beginning Saturday, the gym, weight room and locker rooms in the Physical Education Building will be open for recreational play from 1 to 5 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays. Use is limited to CSCSB students, faculty and staff. A valid identification card must be presented at the door.

In addition, the pool will be open from 1 to 4:45 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays, through Oct. 24, weather permitting. Pool patrons must enter through the south gate. The locker rooms will not be available. The pool is open to members of the campus community possessing a current I.D. card.
